BACH AND HANDEL
This year we are celebrating the 250th anniversary of two of the greatest men in music, Johann Sebastian Bach and George Frideric Handel. Both Bach and Handel were born on March 21, Handel on February 23, 1685. It is interesting to compare these two musical geniuses because of their close likenesses yet vast differences. Both were organists and masters of polyphony. (The invention of two or more melodies together at the same time) Bach stayed in his own country and Handel to England. Bach married, Handel remained a bachelor. Bach was humble, Handel, essentially arrogant. To Bach, music meant life itself. Handel, life was music itself. Where Handel was musical genius, Bach was unexcelled as a composer and even instrumental music in a vocal fashion, Bach was religious and spiritual, yet Jupiter-like to the forward, fiery and shining, writing vocal music in an instrumental fashion. Handel utilized Bach by nine years, but both died of apoplexy after a life of work. Bach in 1750 and Handel in 1759.

The great critic, Rockerst, called Bach the "Allahw Durer of German music," and adding, "If one is a Durer, the other (Handel) is a Rubens.

Nothing else you do, don't be cheap. Let your foremost thoughts be to move on high levels, to make a good name your chief working capital, and to let nothing mar your prestige. Remember how you have it in all ways and always. Always don't cheapen your self.

Let the comments of what people think and say of you concern you. It is possible that a certain amount of that censure is just, especially if you are not actively endeavoring to improve yourself. Be a person of refinement, use the language of a gentleman, and be as correct as possible. Rudeness is the nature of the male, but rudeness is unattractive, so it is important to remember this.

Stand on your own feet, don't expect others to do for you what you can do for yourself, be willing to help others as you would expect others to help you. Short cuts are dangerous things; never try to get something for nothing. Remember that you must pay a price for every privilege and that you do not acquire physically, morally, and economically.

WHY NOT BE ATHLETIC, GIRLS?

By FANYE THORNTON

Are you interested in athletics? Why not try out for some of the athletic teams? This is your chance to keep up your health. If you are not, then you are missing something. Have you been in this world that look like a walking shambles? Have you any idea what athletic activity is? No person with any ambition doesn’t love competition. What is more, your favorite sports. Do we have it here? If we havn’t, let us look at what we will readily try to make improvements to provide for it. Everything. This school is aimed at one to three of the athletic clubs and that is drawing near to determine who shall have the loving cup for the following year. Each club is beginning to organize new games for the following quarter. Why not come and get the game that will not only help you, but your club. Surely, there is no one who wouldn’t like to be on a losing team if they could help it.

If you do not like play like badminton, tennis or horseback—then let us know. We will try to arrange something that you do like to play. I think every girl is interested in athletics. I am sure she would be interested. If you want to know what we are doing, ask one of your pretty letters that signifies so much.

But what is physical education or athletics? Do you need wearing the letters? It is the employment of all forces at your command for developing and keeping our bodies at their best. We want social and moral health. In order to obtain those results we must learn and practice class wholesome sports, such as track, which offers the enthusiastic lovers of athletics.

ARE YOU A FRIEND?

For several weeks I have been thinking about friend and friendship. Friend and friendship is the first word in my idea of a true friend. A student should be a friend as she would be, thinking of her day as we were strolling around as she inspired to her name, she added "hers a friend of mine." When you call a person your friend, do you just know that you are variety; do you desire to know that person and then, does that person require of you? To have friends you must be a

Ask him. You might also ask him why he is remembering play during his formative years.

Ask Harold Bush and Ersie Bryant to explain as the song “Love In The Sweetest Thing!”

Who is this man, a Senior? How can he be the first fresh face glinting from a Freshman girl.

Can someone tell us why Bud Wilbur’s mail has dropped off?

Some of our prospective big league baseball players get nerve-wracking as they watch the game on the field. Can the players said who can be easily upset make the game?

Can Lynn Little “take it” now? She is a Freshman. She is six feet tall.

And then there is a certain College professor color dressed to keep from flitting.

Dick McPherson must have had an Atlas Course. What is this? A hunch that he bravely carrying as the lady-love across a stream. Did you notice that.
