The college seems to be doing splendid work because he wants to and because he is well educated to go to college," Mr. Wright said.\n
Former Student Writes Letter To The President

A letter has recently been received from Fred Burnham who is teaching and coaching at the Pacific Military Academy, Culver City, California, expressing his appreciation of the work of the students who are writing to Dr. Daugette and is given below.

"I have been my pleasure to read a great deal of the Texmona and I gave it me as real thrilling to see the progress you are making in the Dean Old S. T. C. The longer I am away and the more I think of the more I think of the more it amiable I am to you and for the school for what you have done for me. I only wish all those students who could realize now what opportunity they really had before them. With the school spirit which abounds on that campus and with the wonder ful facilities you have combined with your leadership I see no limit for the school's achievements.

Here is hoping you have the best yet in athletics and other wise, I guess our school spirit that built up that me of while I was there is permanent and you will always remain on me as a staunch supporter and a loyal graduate. Respectfully, a true friend,"

Losing symphony

Lights flashed on, as the curtain came up. I saw a violin, wept and thrilled. I touched my soul with flame.

Lettin' the impatient volume out

Thrilling, swarthy soul of the player danced, With the dancer's loftiest feast.

And there sat I, And must live it, full as though My heart expressed the singing strings And drew the quivering bow.

I bowed my head, for under God, No one could possibly absolve me Of a violinist, who bore a violin.

Knowing that his own fate must endure...

Washington will increase the price of silver just whenever it deems itself necessary and the price of cattle will be reduced just as much as the price of gold. This will be a very important point in the present times for these county plains.

"Happiness", my dictionary tells me, "is a state of pleasurable content with one's condition in life. But that does not agree again, and ask yourself honestly if you are happy. If you are, you are a philosopher. If you are not, you can't, if you will try.

The President and the Secretary of the Treasury are both very anxious to help the banks. But both agree that a mere treaty which states that we won't fight, without a proper power of regulations which cause trouble between nations, would not be very useful.

I wish someone would give me a reason why everyone likes to say, "It is a great time.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

A two days' visit to dear ol' S. T. C. thoroughly convinced me of the ambition of over 800 students. I said to myself on returning, "They're working down in them the hills", and I was right. How do I know? Well, everybody I asked said she was. Of course, we boys worked too, but they were mostly getting to work out of necessity. Now that winter is over, they're getting into the more practical textbooks. Learning all jokin' aside, I think that the mental labor and the perspiration that young people are working so hard, is hot, but so were those approaching exams.

I owned only two great things—a few old school chums, and Dr. Van Hook. I hope that I'd get a new car and a radio at the next meeting but due to an assembly program there wasn't one. We couldn't have had it.

Sand Mountain seems to be bet- ter represented than ever before in S. T. C. But I can't say I care though, because it's a place where we represent our school. From California told me last week that there was positively nothing coming over in the way of goods in between here and the Pacific Coast.

Speaking of sections, I notice that there is a new keen rivalry between cities in baseball, horse- -racing and—plenty in S. T. C.

I wrote a poem one time that some of you young students do not care interested in and I think the differ- ences can fully appreciate. If I remember rightly this is the part:

WAITING FOR OUR CHAPERONE

We stopped in the bridge, we thought it no wrong. For you're so easy waiting for our chaperone.

"Yea", said I, "Perhaps you're right.

And this is such a lovely night. "You're lovely girl", she replied with a grin.

"This is fun in I don't know when.

"Right you are and we are all alone, Me waiting for our chaper- one.

"My but I'm a bit cold here. Do you think that perhaps you do not take it into consideration that I took the hint and in fond embrace. I kept that wind from ever be.

Then a large lady appeared with a flashlight long. "Good God me, I say. "The wrong chaperone!"

And that is the end of stirring romance—my poem. I most often find myself often a large person. Now to summarize the chief things I saw while visiting in J. L. C.

I see that most students are too soft to stand out the wind. An old elephant Ear. Daisy coming with her Bleeding heart, put my mind to top Rose. Calligrapher-"don't need a name but I will."

It is up to the Legislature of Ala- bama whether or not you are to be provided in the public schools. Governor Graves has formed a plan to put in less serious cases on small.

The girls have more freedom than ever. "Nothing to any number of eligible chaperones", and Mrs. Pitwill "stiff up" to the show expecting to win the jack- pot on Wednesday night. The boys have got a lot snapped to." I don't ex- crin from eating babies and poppy- corn eaters.

According to what stuck on Miss Hawkins.

Now, I've noticed that Shorty or Miss Night-Hawks, I forgot which he said. (Pleases, accept this fee Voluntary)

"The No signings in the library are as effective as ever."

A great students' section in Jacksonville and may it ever do so.

Sincerely yours,

BEGANN MARTIN.

Don’t think the world has time
To stop and see the lagoon
But keep in time with those
Who thrive, to work, to learn and grow.

Don’t fret because you have to
Think twice and take a leap
The road was made for everyone
And you’re sure who they tried.

Don’t fret because the day is dark
And it’s sad, for in the sun
But hold up your head brave
And true, and give the world a smile.

THAT SEVEN O’CLOCK CLASS

Every evening after supper
When you've had your fill
I always say, “Girls, I must study
For that seven o’clock class.”

Then a little later
After dishes and laundry
I frown and say, “I’m sorry!
That seven o’clock class! No more!”

When a gang of us go fishing
And are catching lots of bass,
I think, “I must go home and study
For a seven o’clock class!”

I go home every Friday
But Friday is my login,
‘Cause I have to come back early!
For a seven o’clock class.

Oh! When the quarter’s over
And we have to go back home
For I really have been working
On that seven o’clock class!

Aunt Het’s Views on School Teaching

“One of my girls had her head set on being a school teacher, but I talked her out of it. Teaching school is too much like being a preacher’s wife. It’s a high coltin’ but people expect more from women. They pay for it. But I’m glad that I gave up teaching school early—when they were in the second grade. They were hosed to teach and they do it. They teach the youngins that can learn, and entertain the ones that fall on their heads when they try. It brings them a lot of trouble. They’re supposed to make obedient little angels out of spoiled brats that never minded nobody, aren’t woorin little wild rats, so their mothers can go out, and make handsome out of children that couldn’t have sense with the parents they got.

But that ain’t the worst. They’re got to get up early and play with the same youngins they taught the night before, an’ sing in the choir an’ teach a Sunday School class, an’ when they ain’t got time to do that, they’re supposed to be good examples.

They don’t get no pay for six minutes, and they can’t pay their hearts’ desire for new clothes an’ they can’t make hands coming home from prayer meetings with some poor old sister with a dirty mind an’ shackles on ’em.

I’d just as soon be a woman as a school teacher, and I’d just as soon see my Sis relieve its uphill task ‘pe a kick-up its heels after quiet time without startin’ any talk.

Dr. Painter Gives Inspiring Address

Dr. L. G. Painter was born on a farm in the hills of Maryland and walked more than five miles to a one-room house to get his early education. He was considered the most outstanding student of his school by a rich philanthropist who gave him a college education. As he did not need to worry about financial troubles he was able to go into the first love, English Literature. He then went to Harvard University and prepared himself diligently to teach English.

Dr. Painter’s first position was at Vanderbilt University, where he taught at the University of Missouri and the University of Illinois. Finally he was elected head of the English Department at the Mississippi State College for Women, where he fell in love with one of the most talented and beautiful students and married her. As he remarks, “It now became a case of teacher taught.”

For twenty years Professor Painter has held the chair of English at this college and not only does he take satisfaction in the many children of his class-room but he is the proud father of a young daughter who is now a freshman at M. S. C. W. He also has four grown sons, ages eighteen and twelve, whom he hopes will follow in his college footsteps.

Dr. Painter’s surgical summers either in conducting parties to Emmaus or traveling about addressing different summer schools upon matters of cultural and educational interest.

We have been fortunate to have him on our campus during the past summer and we hope that he will come to us again.

Why Marypeg Rhodes likes to sit in the Grub.

Why Dr. Marsh likes to spend his lunch hour in the Grub.

Handbags have gone goofy in a big way. Women are putting their make-up and incidentals—not to mention their realm of the glamorous, in just about everything that does not look like a pocket-book. Two examples are creations of the famous “Madame” Schiaparelli. One is a waif of calf skin—or a lipped, waxed satin dougntouf, if you prefer—with special zipper compartments for odds and ends like jewels, and money. The other creation consists of a handkerchief-shaped piece of material matching the dress and tied up like a hob’s pack. Naturally this also has concealed fings inside which it makes its practice. And the ladies have reason to carry ‘em, for they’re smart as paint.

PROMS... PROMISES... PROBLEMS...

Yale and Vassar ran into quite a stew. Proms on succeeding nights. How could a girl week-end in New Haven and stay in PouHoosepoo.

They ironed it out. The Yale boys promised to escort all Vassar girls, who came up, back to Vassar for their fracas. A perfect solution.

Mangel’s has the perfect solution to your prom dress problems which arise out of your promises to go. We’ll solve them with the least possible trouble and you’ll get what you’d be a grand prom problem that night.

"SHORTY" SCOTTE

Horseshoe pitching is becoming one of the greatest sports on the campus. It is a noteworthy fact that a great number of boys and girls of Weatherly and Pomery Flats pitch from about 6 to 7:30 each evening. They are all so industrious in their games that they demonstrate the proper position—boy holding the shoes by holding hands. Some of the boys have found a great sport in tossing gravel from one hand to another—while explaining to some lady the ways and wherefores of some sporty subject. Swimming is being perpetuated.
