THE COUNTY ORGANIZATIONS

Much good work can be done in the county organizations during the summer quarter. The contacts made and friendships formed while in school will add a new dimension to their lives. Every student should endeavor to know every other student from his county. It is highly valuable to the leadership committee of the student body to have students work all the time as there are many other things other than getting along in an education other than from a textbook. Those who are here this summer should make an effort to have the organizations learn to spend their leisure time pleasantly and to a good advantage.

WHATZAS

BY EUGENE CROWE

Once more I come to bat. Maybe this attempt won't be a strike out, but I hope we can make a little headway. S. T. C. may be on two red hills, and all that, but I wanted to get back after an absence of only one week.

Recently I heard a remote control radar broadcast from the Western flood area. It told of the damage that had been wrought in two homes and considerable demand something new. After they want, and something new comes along. But the new soon becomes old, as the shine quickly vanishes from the child's toy and he wants a new toy, though nothing is the matter with the old toy. It simply no longer has the appeal it once had. Tomorrow will depend very much on yesterday and today. Youth needs to learn this.

How quickly, too, people forget—forget all the good things they had under an old order, which had to grow in response to the crises for something new. We would not lose so many of our blessings if we did not always have to go through the same thing all over again.

They want something new, and they got it—something not as good as before. Many races, nations, and civilizations have experienced this fact. They worked hard and learned something.

A job hunter has learned his lesson. A many church would be a far more positive force for good in the community, "serving and being served", if it did not cultivate and cater to the crises for something new, if it stuck to religion.

Many a community would be in pitiful financial straits today had it not answered every demand for something new. Many a man and women would be happier, more secure, more useful members of our society and of the body politic if we kept it a better citizenry, had they not in their youthful days constantly demanded something new in the way of companionship, associations, and personal development in the traditional era of our lives.

In all of this agitation for something new, we must remember that much of the old is worth preserving. Newness of ideas is often blown away as fast as it comes, but the sacred interest often regains its luster and shines again in completely different form. This is the ideal of our dreams. Many a dream of that kind is only a pipe dream. But we find it out too late.

The flying butterfly may demand something new, ever, and anon, but in this day of big tasks and problems and sacred treasures, the demand is not insincerely for something new, but for men and women who have some regard for a great past, and for something else than a mere change of scenery.

THE VALUE OF INSPIRATION IN TEACHING

Every teacher is expected to have a thorough knowledge of subject matter in order that he may be prepared to teach it to the children. There is something else that is equally as important in the art of teaching, and that is to bring into our lives and bodies of the teacher that is and ways and means of inspiring the pupils to have a desire to learn. A person may be full of his subject-matter and be a complete failure as a teacher.

Those who are laboring this summer with their courses to get an academic foundation should also devote time to studying ways and means of inspiring the pupils to the work taught in the classroom and to teach next year. Another important thing to consider in teaching is that the student is thought by many that the teacher is the one who is the cause of his day to day are failure because young people grow out of school and colleges and then become criminals.

While teaching we are more careful drivers of automobiles. We should be ashamed to violate any traffic law or be guilty of having a wreck. We should also be ashamed of ill health because an educated person should in most cases be smart enough to know and develop health habits.

Even the person who has a high school education should be as well trained in the ideals of citizenship that others may look to him as a model.
