MOTHER (On Her Day)

Always you loved me with a quiet love
Finding about me such a gentle soul.
Now that the flowing years have been
Of memories, I find them full and fair.
Even as your hands, were busy with the seas.
Following upon that day brings me joy.
Or with your wisdom made my moments gleam,
But most of all, your wish to know me.

Outlines a glowing pattern from the past,
Beauty and laughter, guiding serenity.

Having mingled hours that somehow strangely last,
Thoughts upon no day but brings me you,
Each second draws me nearer to your ways.

IN SILENCE
Wednesday, May 15, 1935

I cheated a good friend yesterday, Kept what was his and went my way,
Wronged him by silence—for in haste
I let a good thought go to waste.
I had a word of cheer to speak, To strengthen him when he grew weak,
To send him sailing on his way,
But what I thought I didn't say.
He would have richer been to know
That deed of his had pleased me so,
But oh, I failed to let him see
How much his conquest meant to me.
The praise was his by right to bear
To him I belonged my word of cheer,
In silence, though, from him I hid
And cheated him of what he'd earned.

Due to the fine team work of the faculty the girls did not get further than second base, but they proved to be good losers.
Mr. Van Hool's interesting catch covered an umpire's fly remain along with the excellent playing were being well worth watching, though the score was slightly one-sided.

By EUGENE CROWE

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love. Kindred spirits in the South T. C. have their seasons mixed.

Add disappointments: A bid to be "freshman homecoming" king is unplanned and an "unavoidable" reason I couldn't go. Our freshman dance held recently on the terrace was a complete success. Various things had been causing us to forget. On the Terrace were masters of the situation that night. "The Night Is Young—"

Anna Sullivan Macy, life-time companion and tutor of blind Helen Keller, may not be forced to return to New York after all.

Doctors believe that the removal of a cataract over her left eye will restore her sight.

Have you noticed the rush that "-high school girl of 1915" is enjoying? Her latest catch is Thad Barrow of Nosebag fame.

Many people know that "Baby" Jack Torrance, 311 pound shot-putter of L. S. U., is a night policeman in Baton Rouge. What an excellent chance for Hays Long to get a stiff arm from him even front of the flag recently. There was one B. Franklin, a baseball fan, that had a trade in an estate and he that has a calling had an office of honor and profit.

Add bouquet: "Shorty" Scott, after playing 149 minutes with Dr. Van Hook, says that he is real pal. When you consider the fact that Shorty has ridden under the good DOC you can fully appreciate this tribute.

Add new inventions: Dr. Felix Buminate, German, residing in New York, has invented a death proof post-mortem. According to the elasticity of a person's crystalline lens, Dr. Buminate can tell whether they will die young or live to see another age.

And then there was the girl who got up in assembly and announced, "There will be an all-day singing next Sunday afternoon." It doesn't really matter so her name was announced.

If a Mac West really did marry one Frank Wales, the campus depressers are creating a furor over this same question. Of course Mac (the poor girl) got married. It was, infirmed, said "this thing is going too far. That makes nine guys this year for Mac. I wonder what she married to. It's a lousy publicity gag, and I'm not getting anything out of it."

Expressions don't mean much in Weatherly Hall: "Aw, grits!"

Because of a spell that had happened on the campus recently, this quotation from Addison was brought to mind, "The golden generation would not affront me, no other could.

Wouldn't you like to have—Eugene Agrey's slim white hands?
Clyde Woodruff's popularity?
"Shag" Hudson's future as a baseball pitcher?

During the business meeting new officers for the summer were elected as follows: Grady Jacobs, President; Robert Jarvis, Vice-President; and Boyce Johnson, Secretary and Treasurer.

Plans for the coming season were held next Friday, May 17, at Neuba Lake were discussed.

We wonder at the Co-ed's at a distant university, they have reported to settling their differences in amicable truce. The prospects of being reverting to their Ammonian pastimes, or perhaps "smiling in stutus" would be a more apt expression.

The Salt of the Earth: The proof who grades a theme, "poor," bearing loving impression, "F." The skirt who asks when and whether there is any sugar on her table, "Yes, not gristled."
The person who thinks herself a mass of sarcasm:
The mug who says in Biology: "I don't know anything about that."

The guy who says in one of his "enamel theme" and grooveled, "Excellent—"

The reason for the Puritanism of this summer is:

She: "My husband is not at home as he was before they were married."

He: "He must be an unusual woman."

I like women," said Dr. James Johnson. "They're such quiet creatures."
As I was going out the other day, a fellow I had never observed, "The war changed everything."

KNEW HOW HE FELT

The other day the big shots who dabble in campus policies were searching for a candidate to run for the office of president of the student body. These self-appointed campus bigwigs got it from their respective heads that they would use the usual tobacco smoke which characterizes all their political meetings, chose Houston as the most likely candidate for the office.

And to make certain Houston would win; they filed his name as a candidate and but little would I like to know if a Mac West really did marry one Frank Wales, the campus depressers are creating a furor over this same question. Of course Mac (the poor girl) got married. It was, infirmed, said "this thing is going too far.
