

GEOGRAPHY AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB NAMES NEW OFFICERS

When the Geography and International Relations Club met Thursday evening, January 16, in Bibb Graves Hall, Mae Gardner, of Fairfax, and Mary Summers, of Talladega, read interesting papers, Miss Gardner's subject being "The Internal Situation in Abyssinia." Miss Sumner's paper was "The Walwal Incident."

The following officers for the winter quarter were elected:

President—Newbern Bush, Oakman.

Vice-President—Lyda Mae Wilkinson, Trade.

Secretary-Treasurer — Harolyn Franklin, Samson.

Reporter—Mary Summers, Sylacauga.

A program committee appointed by the president is composed of Mildred Shepherd, Center; Raymond Smith, Jacksonville; Dr. J. Frank Glazner and Mr. Leon McCluer of the geography department. Harolyn Franklin, Mae Gardner, Lyda Mae Wilkinson, Mildred Shepherd, Mary Summers and Mrs. Glazner were appointed the committee on arrangements for the quarter social.

A committee will revise the roll. Names of members not in school will be taken from the active roll and placed on a separate one. Members of the club who are absent three times without an excuse and who do not respond to an invitation to return will also be taken from the roll.

Raymond Smith was a new member received into the club. An interested member of the organization is Arnold Thompson, of Anniston, a former student of the college. Mr. Thompson was present at the meeting and inspired the members to learn more about Alabama when he talked briefly of the pleasure of research on his native state in an effort to know more about its history and immediate environment. From his comprehensive study of Alabama, Mr. Thompson has gained a familiarity with facts and problems which he will discuss with the club at a future meeting.

A NEW PHILOSOPHY OF EDUCATION

Without attempting to criticize the present day schools or discount the good work that has been done in the past, it might be said that practically all content and methods are traditional. As a general rule we teach certain subjects because we studied those subjects when we were students.

The schools today are facing a challenge to fulfill greater needs than ever before. Greek and Roman History, Latin, and other subjects may be of benefit to the children if they can be taught in such a way as to help individuals solve some of the present day problems. Our schools should teach the children how to build up the land and prevent soil erosion, how to improve social conditions in the community, how to develop better social relationships, and how to solve political problems. It is also the duty of the school to develop proper respect for law enforcement and through safety education decrease the number of traffic accidents.

Each school room should be a laboratory where the teacher assumes the responsibility of making surveys of the needs of the community. Through the help of the children plans should be formulated showing how these needs can be met. The teachers should be so well prepared that they are able to lead the people of the community toward a solution to all social and economic problems. High school and college graduates should be so well prepared in these problems that they will be able to furnish aggressive leadership in the communities where they live. Those subjects which cannot be correlated toward the ends mentioned have no place in the curriculum and should give way to the more vital problems of the day. Every home should be made more beautiful through the education of the children and every farm should develop a definite plan of rotation of crops through the education of the country boys.

The general public will be slow to accept such a philosophy but the influence of the schools will be much more lasting as the result of such a far-reaching program.

THE INFLUENCE OF CIGARETTE SMOKING

President Dugette's talk at the assembly last Monday on the subject of cigarette smoking was very timely. It is a regrettable fact that our children are influenced by older people so often to form the habit of smoking cigarettes even though the parents object very seriously to it. Many individuals argue that cigarettes do not affect them in any way. Those same individuals are not willing to state that they do not have any influence over anyone. All people have a certain amount of influence and especially teachers. The grown-up person who smokes cigarettes and argues that it does not affect him in any way may be affecting the welfare of somebody's children through the influence that he may have over them.

We should like to submit a challenge to all slaves of the cigarette habit and see how many have will-power enough to declare war on the nicotine habit. We should do this for the sake of the small children who are growing up now and who have not yet formed the habit.

NEEDED CHANGES IN SCHOOL METHODS

Professional training of teachers is as essential as professional training of lawyers, doctors, etc. Teachers should be able through their training to weigh the present day practices in the profession and shape their methods along such lines as are necessary to develop honesty and other good habits in the children. Many of our present day practices are such as to teach the children to cheat and lie. When grades are over-emphasized, the children are being encouraged to cheat in order that they may make high grades. When the teachers refuse to accept the word of the children and require excuses written by their parents, they are being encouraged to lie. A resourceful teacher will shape his or her methods in such a way as to avoid the practices that will bring about such conditions.

We may be pardoned for a sardonic reference to the late, revered Woodrow Wilson's phrase: "War to make the world safe for Democracy." We become almost bitter when we think that the world today, if anything, is less democratically minded than in quite a number of decades. We think, also, of the present-day status of the nations with which we allied ourselves in our idealistic fantasy: Italy, before the advent of Mussolini, retained at least a vestige of popular rule. Greece, who entered the conflict for purely materialistic reasons, was not more despotically ruled by her king than by the present combination of Venizelos plus puppet-king. Russia is earnestly working out her own salvation, and a victorious Kaiser would have affected her in this very little; waves of conquest spend themselves in Russia.

France's "Democratic" government drains the last possible franc from the long-suffering populace, and probably the peevish Frenchman would be happier as a German provincial, because he could line his sock more expeditiously while paying tribute than for national armaments. After all, patriotism is only skin-deep—and one's skin is not nearly so thick as the cow-skin of one's wallet!

England has done nothing to justify our quixotic succor other than virtually to repudiate debts to us that we let in utter good faith and complete idiocy. The American vets will assure you, also, that even just after the armistice, while our victorious armies languished in the sunny France that they all assure you further, we should have been fighting instead of the "Huns", the British bottoms that had been so solicitous in supplying the German guns with American "fodder" remained idle rather than transport homesick doughboys. The only nation of the conflict making a really notable progress is Turkey; not that she has Democracy—that would seem to obviate progress in Europe—but because she was so fortunate as to come under the control of a benevolent despot of a dictator!

In Germany, the gentleman with the toothbrush on his upper lip differs from his past master, Wilhelm, chiefly for the reason that he probably was born without any kind of a spoon in his mouth. Well, possibly we made the world SAFE for democracy, but WHAT Democracy? We have a species, which we are occasionally allowed to use, if it agrees with the constitution as per one hundred odd years ago, or if some adjustment can be made, but, as we find it, our pet brand is almost sub-marginal; at any rate it would not bear trans-plantation at the cost of even a minor armed conflict.

UNDER THE GOLD-ENROD

By

To a group preparing to teach in the elementary schools of Alabama, Maud Lindsay should be one of the most interesting personages among Alabama's notable people. In her early days of publication it was said she was better known in Boston than Birmingham, but her fame reached such proportions when she became so eminently successful as a writer of books, short stories, plays and verses for children, that one no longer includes her in saying "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country." She belongs to us here in Alabama, and a growing interest in her work is obvious from increased demands for her books, as well as for herself to conduct story-hours for school children over the state.

The same Maud Lindsay whose stories in Alabama school readers are so delightful is an inimitable story-teller and outstanding child psychologist. She has taught kindergarten in Alabama for more than thirty years and her methods have been studied by pedagogical experts. In her own words, she is a happy teacher and a persistent writer who first tells her stories to the children in her kindergarten classes before submitting them for publication.

The rhythm in her stories and the lines that have such a lilting melody moved me to ask the author how she acquired such grace in prose. She replied, "I sometimes write whole books in poetry before putting them into prose for my publisher. I usually write a book, put it away for two years, then get it out and revise it for publication. The rhythm that is found in some of my books does not go into all, of course. It would be out of place in a book like my desert story, "The Amazing Adventures of Ali."

Maud Lindsay cannot remember when she did not make up stories. Before she was fourteen she had written several stories, a novel and a play. Down through the years her talent has developed so thoroughly that the enchanting glimpses into the world of make-believe have found for her books a place in the magic casements. It is because she literally lives with her characters that they talk and act like normal children—as if she has breathed souls into her brain children. She knows children so well from her long contact with them in kindergarten that she cannot be mistaken in just the right material to use at the different age levels.

Her first book, "Mother Stories", was published about thirty years ago. Soon "More Mother Stories" followed; then "A Story Garden for Little Children" and "The Story-Teller." "Bobby and the Big Road", "Little Missy" and "Silver-foot" are books with southern settings. The next books of delightful stories published were "The Toy Shop", "The Choosing Book", "The Amazing Adventures of Ali" and "The Storyland Tree."

Collaborating with Emilie Poulson, of Boston, this southern author has published two books, "The Joyous Traveler" and "The Joyous Guests", Miss Lindsay writing the stories and Miss Poulson the verses.

Her short stories and verses are found in many magazines that are of interest to young people, and are enjoyed not only by children, but by adults who have Peter Pan souls.

Miss Lindsay's family history is interwoven with that of the state. She was christened Maud McKnight Lindsay, a daughter of Robert Burns Lindsay, a Scotchman, the first governor of foreign birth to

CARPENTER'S CHIPS AND SHAVINGS

Of course, from all reports its no use for me to write anything this time. Word has come to me that my contemporary, Barow, has constructed such a masterpiece this time as to put all others in complete oblivion. The only fault, that is, real fault, I find with him is that he is in sympathy with that accursed tribe of "Them thar Morgans."

Even if we must hear the sales tax argued pro and con another time, I think that we should have a fairly good debate. The only thing, I don't believe there's any use of the Morgans wasting time and patience to prepare any opposition.

So much for the debate. The next important thing is, who will be in the presidential race this time? Probably the most logical thing they could do would be just to put only Roosevelt's name on all the ballots and let the election go on.

It seems, with all the nations of the world clamoring for peace and then manufacturing war material day and night, that some agreement should be reached soon, such as, "Let everybody have all the armaments they want." Even Mr. and Mrs. J. John Public of the United States are asking for more adequate national defenses.

Radio engineers have at last found the outlaw station that has been causing radio disturbance along the Atlantic seaboard. However, it is not really a radio station, but, instead, it is caused by the operation of the well-known X-ray machines in neighboring hospitals.

It has lately been suggested to the President that our nation have ten or twelve small sub-capitals scattered over the country to secure better results in government. In my opinion, its just another scheme of the Republicans to let all their possible candidates run for the president's office.

The latter part of the evening was spent in square dancing which was directed by Miss Minnie Sellers, teacher of physical education for women. Coach "Steve" Plays Every Man

Coach "Steve" and his basketballers played Livingston last Thursday night, and when we say boys we mean BOYS. Coach "Steve" even went so far as to play Fred Thomas. Thomas went only to drive his car, but the Jacksonville cagers were so far ahead of Livingston that Coach Stephenson sent in "Midget" Thomas.

Saturday night at Fairhope Red Jacobs and Hill were missing when game time was near. Coach "Steve" had to drive 35 miles up the bay to get them. When he returned the score stood 11 to 2 in Jacksonville's favor; so you see it is not always necessary to have a coach present to win games.

Emmett Baker, star guard of the Eagle-Owls Cagers, became ill in Meridian, Mississippi, and was sent back to Jacksonville on the train. Baker's services were missed although Jacksonville had a fairly easy time in winning all four games.

Teachers Hear Ruth Slenczynski Play at Birmingham

On January 15, Miss Fanny Bush, Miss Ada Curtiss, and Mrs. Elexer Hames motored to Birmingham to hear the famous little pianist, Ruth Slenczynski. The recital was presented in the auditorium of Phillips High School beginning at 8:30 P. M. and lasting until about 10:30 o'clock. The teachers gave very interesting reports of the evening. Miss Curtiss said that the little girl, who was only eleven years old January 14, played compositions by Bach, Beethoven and Mendelssohn, in which she displayed very fine technique and sense of interpretation and expression. After presenting her program Ruth played five encores without showing any evidence of fatigue.

The child, who gave her first public recital at the age of four, is indeed a "Musical Wonder."

Students Attend To Dental Work

The study of the formation, growth, parts and care of the teeth by Miss Sellers' personal hygiene class inspired so many students to take better care of their teeth and to consult dentists that the percentage with perfect teeth has been considerably raised. At the December examination of dental condition of students only 19 per cent of the class scored perfect. Since the Christmas vacation, when students had time to visit the dentist, the score is raised to 42 per cent.

Are you doing it, too? We think it's becoming the great feminine collegiate pastime. Who mentioned ping pong? But as one wool gatherer to another . . . cold weather is on its way and a nice finished, warm, knit dress will feel nice.

Better be warm than cold, so hie down to MANGEL'S, now and pick up a few finished knit dresses. Their colors are magnificent, like the woods during the gold, red days of October. And they are well made. They look like hand knits. They are made to hold their shape through rainy, snowy campus tramping. And they are priced for happy buying at MANGEL'S.

Jacksonville Wins Four On Road Trip

JACKSONVILLE RETURNS FROM SUCCESSFUL ROAD TRIP

Engaged in Games With Marion, Livingston S. T. C., Spring Hill, and Fairhope

Jacksonville Eagle-Owls returned Sunday from a road trip through Southwest Alabama where they engaged in games with Marion, Livingston S. T. C., Spring Hill, and Fairhope.

The team left here Wednesday morning and played Marion Wednesday night. The game was close during the first half. J. S. T. C. only had a four point lead at the end of the first period. In the second half the Eagle-Owls found their eye for the basket, and started hitting from all angles. The Marion boys fought hard all during the game making it interesting. "Red" Kemp's defensive work kept the Marion score down.

Thursday night the home boys played Livingston State Teachers College at Livingston. There was a large crowd at the game including (according to Bryant Steele) about two hundred beautiful coeds who showed much spirit in supporting their team.

The Livingston team was small and fast, showing a fast break and an accurate eye for the basket. The score was close for the first half. Close guarding by the Jacksonville boys kept the score low. In the last half the boys began hitting the basket again and soon ran up the score. Coach "Steve" used every man on the squad except Penny, who had hurt his knee in the Marion game.

It is reported that Penny sat on the side lines and entertained the co-eds.

Eulon Hill was the star offensive player of this game, scoring fifteen points.

Friday night in Mobile, Spring Hill started five football players in the basketball game. These boys were big and rough, playing a different type of ball from any team Jacksonville had played this year. The game was fast and rough. In the first half the lead changed hands several times with Jacksonville holding only a two point lead at the half. The Jacksonville boys played the best game of the season that night. Every man was strong on defensive.

According to Mobile sports writers, Plunkett was one of the best forwards who had played in that city this year. He hit thirteen points most of which were difficult shots.

"Red" Jacobs was elected captain for the season just before the

Girls To Have Basketball Practice

The Athletic Clubs of the Women's Athletic Department will begin basketball practice this week. The girls will practice every Tuesday and Thursday, weather permitting.

A tournament will be held within the department by the different athletic clubs. The winners of the first round will play and the loser will do likewise to determine the rating that the different clubs will receive.

Miss Sellers has had four new, first class, outdoor courts constructed. The new courts, with the four old courts, should give every girl an opportunity to participate in basketball.

Girl managers and assistant managers of the different clubs are:

1. Archaens—Fay McClendon, manager; Jeanette Poole, assistant manager.
2. Aeolians—Dixie Smith, manager; Sara Birchfield, assistant manager.
3. Dorians—Eleanor Johnston, manager; Pauline Clanton, assistant manager.
4. Ionians—Thelma Barnes, manager; Iris Evans, assistant manager.

game started. He played an inspiring game, to lead his men to a glorious victory. This basketball victory toned partly for the loss of the football game to Spring Hill.

The Eagle-Owls played the strong Fairhope Cardinals Saturday night. Due to delay of Jacobs and Hill in Mobile Jacksonville started the game without the coach or captain and with only five men present. Jacksonville took an early lead and held it throughout the game. They stopped Fairhope's fast breaks and employed a fast break themselves to demoralize the Fairhope team. Penny played a wonderful offensive game, scoring twenty-one points. Kemp's defensive work again stood out and he also scored fifteen points.

During the entire road trip Jacksonville scored 207 points and their opponents scored only ninety-one points.

Points and scores by each team follow:

SCHOOL SPIRIT

By TOM BARNES

With such an outstanding basketball team representing us this year, it is deplorable that our school spirit is at such a low ebb. There is nothing that inspires a team more than a well organized cheering section, and there is nothing more discouraging to a team than the lack of backing from the students whom they represent.

Fellow students, ponder these questions! Do we have any cheer leaders? If so, who are they and what are they doing? What has become of the "Pep meetings" that did so much to instill the fighting spirit in the team before a hard game? Is the interest in sports dead in J. S. T. C.? Do you realize that a good athletic team is an asset to the college and therefore deserves the utmost support of the faculty and student body?

In my opinion the school spirit in J. S. T. C. isn't dead but sleeping. That spirit can be awakened by the selection of excellent cheer leaders who are capable of securing the cooperation of the student body; in forming a well organized cheering section at every game. After the cheer leaders are selected, pep meetings should be held at regular intervals for the purpose of practicing and perfecting inspiring "yells." Like Edward Hale's THE MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY, the college basketball team is a team without a student body. A basketball team that can defeat Marion, Livingston, Spring Hill, and Fairhope on the road without the inspiration of the student body certainly deserves their support while playing at home.

I propose that a meeting of the student body be held at an immediate date and organize a cheering section that will awaken and keep alive the unconquerable spirit of our DEAR OLD ALMA MATER.

Oglethorpe To Play Jacksonville on Friday Night, Jan. 31

Oglethorpe will bring a faster team to Jacksonville than the Western Kentucky team Friday night, January 31, led by Copeland and Dean. These boys have a fast scoring team. In one of their games on a northern tour these boys scored seventy-five points to defeat Pennsylvania Teachers 75-73. They defeated Jacksonville in Atlanta by a score of 51-43, and the home boys are hot after revenge. They are determined to win the game here Friday night. The team is expecting the full support of faculty and student body.

Morgan Girls Win Game From Calhoun Girls by Score 16-9

The Morgan girls captured a well-played game from the Calhoun girls last Thursday night 16 to 9. This game was played as a preliminary to the Morgan and Calhoun boys game.

Iris Evens, Morgan forward, was the star of the game getting eight points. Harolyn Franklin, Morgan center, out-played the Calhoun center most of the game.

The Calhouns played a smooth game, but could not get started against the Morgan sextet.

Mr. "Fuzzy" Hutchins, Misses Maxine Holliday and Emma Kate Mynatt spent last week-end in Gadsden.

CALHOUNS WIN FROM MORGANS

The Calhoun Literary Society was on the winning end of a close score Thursday night, January 23, when they beat the Morgan Literary Society in a basketball game 12 to 10.

The game was one of the best that has been played this year on the State Teachers College floor. It was a well-played game with both sides fouling about the same.

Shelton Akers started the game with a burst of scoring that the Calhouns could not equal. The Morgans were rushing the ball, not giving the Calhouns the time they needed for their passes. Treece was holding the veteran guard of the Calhouns scoreless most of the first half, Wallace getting only four points in that period.

To begin the second half the Calhouns playing a brand of ball that was new to the Morgans, and the score which stood 8 to 4 at the half was fast coming closer together. At the end of the third quarter the score was tied 9 to 9. Hoke Wallace, making 8 of the 9 points, was the star of the game for the Calhouns. The score remained tied only a few minutes after the third quarter opened, then the Calhouns sank a long shot to put them in the lead for the first time since the game started. The Morgans soon pulled up one point only to have the Calhouns get the benefit of a foul shot, and made it good.

This game put the Calhouns in the lead in the series 1 to 0. The series will get under way at an early date with the Morgans seeking revenge.

Mrs. W. O. Frith, her son William, and Miss Nannie Bee Campbell motored to Guntersville this week-end.

Jacksonville To Play The House of David Team February 13

Jacksonville's Eagle-Owls will engage the House of David, the bearded basketball team, on February 13. This basketball team is classed with that of the Olson Swedes, Celtics, and Negro Renaissance Basketball team of New York. The center of this team is seven feet, eleven inches tall. It is said that he gets the tip off, walks to the side line and starts talking to the spectators until a point is needed. Then he walks to the goal and gently drops the ball into the basket. The Jacksonville Eagle-Owls played the House of David team on previous occasions only to be beaten by a ten-point margin. The Jacksonville team will be after revenge this time and will take advantage of the FOUR-MAN game that the bearded cagers play. The House of David team has traveled in the United States for several years having almost a spotless record. This team has won from some of the leading colleges in the state. As they play the same type of ball as the Olson Swedes, everyone will be interested in seeing the game.
