JUNIOR PROM HITS PEAK AT GLASS DANCES

Seniors To Visit Here April Fifth For Fiesta

VISITORS WILL NOT SPEND NIGHT HERE

As is customary for the past three years, the annual Spring Fiesta will be held on the JSTC campus during the spring quarter. The date which has been set for this year is April 5, and all high school seniors of District VI, including sixty-nine high schools, will be invited. However, it is estimated that the cost of the Fiesta this year will be only six to eight thousand students, and they will be able to attend.

The students will arrive before noon in order to have time for the noon meal. The program for the evening will include a tour of the campus and the Recreation Center. A short program will be held in the auditorium of Maple Hall, and the evening meal, which will be served early so that the visitors may go to the room of the college students for rest and recreation. The evening program will begin around seven o'clock in the gymnasium. There will be a floor show and an informal dance with music furnished by an out-of-town orchestra, which has not yet been selected. The program will end around midnight.

The visitors will not be asked to stay overnight this year because of the shortage of housing on the campus.

The invitations are already in the mail, and principals and sponsors are invited to come with their classes. The visit is to be supported by the college, and there will be no charges to any of the visitors.

College students will be requested to support the program, to serve on various committees during the day, and to attend the evening program. The program will consist of music furnished by an orchestra, which has not yet been selected.

MASON, ENSEMBLE TOUR DISTRICT

The college ensemble, directed by Mrs. Walter A. Mason, began a series of engagements when the group was entertained in the city. The ensemble, consisting of three guitars and two violins, was well received at the college and performed at a number of concerts, including one in the city. The ensemble, which has not yet been selected, will continue to perform throughout the spring quarter.

Exertive Building Program Will Include Dormitories, High School

Plans are under way for an extensive building program on the JSTC campus. Recently the State Building Commission released a dormitory for girls and a high school building. It is expected that the dormitory dormitory will be ready, at least at an early meeting of the commission. The building of the entire program for any college are not located at a single meeting, but are released only as appropriations can be made. Some time in the future a new home for the president will be built. It has not been decided yet as to the size of the building or the location of the site.
The opening of the Spring Quarter brings us a flood of new students, especially girls, in the past few years, and this trend has been accompanied by a marked increase in student social activities. The weather will be perfect for any social outing; so let's make the most of it and plan some mutual interest. Last but not least, the Forney Hall boys gave a steak fry. This was a perfect example of our social activities. What we need is more and more people just like that one.

The football team has begun its spring training. The prospects for a more intelligent team next fall are indeed favorable; several veterans enrolled recently have been experienced football players, some of them having played football in high school and during their army career. We should be able to create the proper spirit and please our whole-hearted support of the football team.

The best schedule planned by the second committee for the quarterly exams in the fall is of the utmost value to the students. The student body, as a whole appreciates the thorough cooperation of the teachers in filling the schedule closely this past quarter.

In our last issue we spoke of the tests which took place in the last few days. The results have been held at Weatherly Hall, where there is a larger group of students. The results are not yet available, but a new record player will be added to the library, and a new interest in music of the old music. All of this, plus personal supervision of Mrs. Webb, has led to the success of the tea dance.

April 5 will bring in a deluge of high school seniors who are to be our visitors all day Friday and the earlier part of the evening. Remember that they are coming to see our campus—be sure to decide whether or not they will attend school here after they have seen our campus. Be friendly, courteous, and helpful. If you really prove that TSC is actually the finest college in the South.

Before the Calhoun County Federation of Women's Clubs at their annual meeting on March 12, the club appeared in full force.

The entire day of March 14 was spent touring Chambers County visiting high schools in the county. The members were presented a variety program in these schools. Mrs. Estelle R. Smith, County Superintendent, directed the tour. A test schedule for the entrance exam for any college is not released at a single move, but are released only as applications close the day. The same time in the near future a new home for the previous building will be completed. This project has been released yet but is expected to open in 1951. In all probability it will be a year before construction begins because of the acute shortage of building materials. The bids have not been let because of this shortage, although they are open at the present time.

The twenty-four Federal Housing units for veterans will be ready to the first of June. It is hoped that the college will be able to save several more weeks before the housing situation begins. A dormitory for men will be released at an early meeting of the commission. All the buildings for any college are not released at a single move, but are released only as applications close the day. The same time in the near future a new home for the previous building will be completed. This project has been released yet but is expected to open in 1951. In all probability it will be a year before construction begins because of the acute shortage of building materials. The bids have not been let because of this shortage, although they are open at the present time. A dormitory for female students will be located behind the Administration Building.

The State Highway Department has completed the circular drive around the campus.

A. J. Tice, which was completed in 1928, is our present home. This old home had been built by our parents. Mrs. Tice, who was in charge of the construction, is now the owner of the house.

Co-operation Appreciated

The students join with the TEACOLA staff and this writer in expressing congratulations and thanks to the faculty, and the committee on the test schedule for having the schedule worked out in such a manner that the students were not burdened with four and five final examinations in one day. We feel confident in saying that in the ensuing quarters more and more difficulties will arise during test week because of the schedule.

Apropos of our editorial on this subject in an earlier issue, we wish to say that not one of the students was as happy as the one who was called in to confer with a member of the test schedule committee. When this member discovered that the student’s failure to abide by the schedule was due to the schedule itself, he took immediate action and arranged a course of study for the student. The result was a happy one, and the student has confidence in the faculty’s ability to handle the situation.

Again we want to thank those persons in authority for their excellent cooperation. We believe that the cooperation of the students and faculty is essential for the smooth operation of the institution.
A PROPOSAL

GOTTA BE THIS OR THAT

It's either too cold or too hot;
Do you now just hit the spot?
You turn it here, it turn it there.
And then get mad and pull your hair.
It’s either too hot or too cold.
That's been my motto as I'll take it.
This water just never hit the spot.
It's either too cold or too hot?

CAREFUL, MR. MOTORIST: YOU ARE REQUIRED TO STOP by California law when approaching a school bus loading or unloading children, with penalties up to $300 fine for violations.

The Highway Patrol has increased its enforcement of this provision. In many parts of the State, students have organized bus patrols in charge of a captain to promote safety, a movement commended by Director Van Buren Gilbert. Above, traffic from both directions halts as youngsters just discharged cross in front of bus and on across the highway. (State Newsphoto)

THOMAS WELDON CHILDERS

DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Friends and former classmates of Thomas Weldon Childers were greatly saddened to learn that he was buried in Carbon Hill on March 1.

Mr. Childers was a speaker for the Carbon Literary Society during his student days. He married Mr. Ernest Stone on this occasion, since he has been outstanding in the teaching profession of Alabama.

He married the former Miss Lois Townsend, who was also a student here.

When an Englishman is told a joke, he laughs three times faster to be polite; whereas when the joke is explained, and he comprehends it, he laughs even faster.

When a Spaniard is told a joke, he laughs once first to be polite, and second when the joke is explained, and he comprehends it. He does not laugh before.

When an American is told a joke, he laughs twice first to be polite, and second when the joke is explained, and he comprehends it. He does not laugh before.

The scope of the program at the University of Alabama has increased from 500 to 2,300,000 for the last year in the high school class. And the school has been reorganized.

In the fall, the work in the high school will be divided into three sections.

The first section will be the work in the high school for the first two years.

The second section will be the work in the high school for the third and fourth years.

The third section will be the work in the high school for the fifth and sixth years.

Mr. Childers died of a heart attack at the age of 66.

Climbed Upon a Cloud One Day)

When you climbed upon a cloud one day
To watch the world so glad and gay,
In its place saw we and sin
You viewed all men, both friends and friends.

As columns of the strong marched by,
And those too weak lay down to die,
You sat on cloud and corridor long.

"Am I of the weak, or of the strong?"

You left your cloud, came back to earth,
You were born anew, just as at birth;
You spoke aloud and raised your hand
And swore to be a better man.

As the years have passed by you
Often sit and wonder why
It is God's plan to let remain
A world so full of sin and pain.

I don't pretend to be a seer,
Nor do I know just why I'm here;
But through some means of God's good grace
I've caught the light of His dear face.

It is not His will for sin and pain
To bring affliction: the poor, the lame;
Instead, if we would Him speak
All would be well for strong and weak.

The Bible tells us God is love
And from His home in Heaven above
He sent His Son to die for sin
That life might then begin.

But we with wise guides may be,
Bring on our wars, the strife and sin;
We seek Him only when we fail
And fix our strength of no avail.

If you would climb to your cloud again
Look above the sorrow, the mists and rain,
You'll see gazing down with compassionate love,
A God who yearns for a different world.

Comparing Invasions, A French Student Suggests Rereading "Gone With The Wind"

"Gone With The Wind" is a novel by Margaret Mitchell, set during the American Civil War. It tells the story of Scarlett O'Hara, an independent and strong-willed Southern belle whose life is upended by the war. The novel is known for its vivid depiction of the war's impact on the South, as well as for its romantic and dramatic elements.

In this article, a French student reflects on the novel's relevance to contemporary issues, such as the current conflicts in the Middle East. The student suggests that by rereading "Gone With The Wind," one can gain a deeper understanding of the themes of resilience, survival, and the power of human will in the face of adversity.

The article also discusses the novel's themes of love, loss, and the complexities of relationships, which are universal and timeless. The student notes that the novel's depiction of the South's culture and heritage provides a valuable perspective on the region's history and identity.

Overall, the article invites readers to revisit "Gone With The Wind" with a fresh perspective, recognizing its enduring relevance and the lessons it can offer in navigating today's challenges.
The Girl

The Boy

Our outstanding Frosh

In this month Haniel Daniel described her observation of beauty and brains in one hour. It is admirably written. So are some little things. Bahn was born in Shawntown (Chamberville, Alabama, September 2, 1998. Bahn is five feet four inches tall, very brunette, and has even eyes. My favorite was a very short boy that allowed her to discuss anything from extramarital affairs.

Haniel attended the Shawsntown Junior High School and the Valley Vocational High School at P ash."Then. She was active in the Dramatics Club. While she was in high school she was a member of the football team, basketball team, and the "J" Club. Football was her first sport and she played quarterback in her high school team. Her greatest thrill, he says, was helping to defeat Piedmont High School. Her plan was to attend the University of New England, but she subsequently fell in love with Bahn. After her graduation, she enrolled at澍CSTC in September, 1994, and upon completion of her college hopes to be a police officer. She is fond of all sports, but particularly football. During her senior year she was to be made an honorary member of the University's Beta Theta Pi fraternity. As a student at JSTC she was active in the Drama Club and the Valley Vocational High School football team. She also likes to dance, swim, and is partial to the Air Force (which discovered her now, however).

Her ideal man (now that this is well worth remembering) would be very much like her father. If ever she finds a boy with similar character, she is going to declare a personal Spacc Hawkins’ day. Haniel is one of the true personalities of our times and potentially, her nickname is zesty.

Jack and Jill went up the hill. Upon a moonlight ride, When Jack came back one eye was black.

If you should see a brown Ford around the campus, chances are that the driver is James Haywood, the outstanding Frosh for this month. Haywood, as he is known to everyone, is a Jacksonville boy. He was born here June 18, 1923. He attended Jacksonville High School and upon graduating entered the University of New England. While in high school he was a member of the football team, basketball team, and the "J" Club. Football was his first sport and he played quarterback in his high school team. His greatest thrill, he says, was helping to defeat Piedmont High School. His plan was to attend the University of New England, but he subsequently fell in love with Bahn. After her graduation, he enrolled at JSTC in September, 1994, and upon completion of his college hopes to be a police officer. He is fond of all sports, but particularly football. American Soldiers In India Get Laugh At Beggars’ Unique Chant

(By Claude Bennett)

In 1943 I went to India as a member of the United States Army. Our first stop was at Bombay, the Gateway to India. Everywhere we went we were pestered by the native beggars, mostly young kids, calling us "Bhoocheh, sahib, Bhoocheh." Not knowing the language, we did not know just how to react. For all we knew, they might have been singing calams on the Gateway. Referring to our "Guide to India: A booklet furnished by the Army, we found that sahib means "Gentleman," but the word bhoocheh was not listed. By asking an Indian shopkeeper, we found that bhoocheh is the Indian way of making the American soldier for alms. There were only a few American troops in India at the time, our radiograms as yet had not influenced the native dialect.

As the number of American troops increased, we began to notice a slight change in the beggar’s chant. If the beggar was a girl, more than likely he would approach with "Bhoocheh, sahib," "No mama, no papa, no brother, no sister." Apparently an American soldier with sales technique taught one youngster the American way, and as they appealed to the Americans, it became general. In the beginning, the other kids were quick to take advantage of the improved technique.

New Delhi had been selected as Headquarters for the American troops in the Churni Theatre of war. Due to limited facilities in New Delhi for quarters and rations, many of them were put up on per diem—actually in lieu of rations and quarters. This caused New Delhi to become known as "Per Diem City" as no other base or area used this method of meeting the troops’ needs. Per diem soon became a "more sport" to the many soldiers fighting in the foreign area. To the credit of what they termed a "bonfire" gesture, they take the kids an addition to their rations which made it a hit. "Bhoocheh, sahib, No mama, no papa, no brother, no sister, no per diem, no flight pay. Bhoocheh, sahib.

There is a controversy as to the origin of the last addition to the chant. One story has it that someone from another branch of service felt that he had a gripe against the Air Corps, and added "no flight pay" just for the kicks. The other story has it that in order to get our flight pay, we added the "air corps."

Regardless of its origin, it is there, and one will hear the plea whether he is in Mo, Lucknow, Basheesh, sahib.

Basketball Season
Ends Victoriously

On March 6th, Coach J. W. Stephenson and his Piedmont ended the successful basketball season by defeating Bessemer YMCA in Birmingham by a score of 28-20. During the season, which started November 4th, the team played thirty-one games and lost only four of them. More than thirty boys began practicing the first of the season, but only eleven of them made the final. They are:

Out of the thirty-one games played, the four losses were at Marsion Military Institute, West Georgia College, Fort McClain Post, and Company B, 3rd Regiment from Fort McClain.
