Betty Nelle Adams, Marcella Colvin, Jeannette Kearns, Harlan Mathews, John Martin, Mary Kershaw, Mary Elizabeth Kershaw, Lois Spaniwy, and Frances Story.

The Gamecocks

The Gamecocks, the new college band organized for the Jacksonvile Gamecocks, as thrilling as the game was the demonstration staged by the Jacksonville band between halve novices to be equally talented. Departing from the traditional custom of forming the initials of the participating teams and the playing of the alma mater, Director-E. J. Eugene Dunn and his band used an entirely different format.

In observance of Armistice Day and emphasizing the efforts being made to keep peace, the band formed first at the south end of the field an airplane and advanced from the field playing "There's a Long, Long Trail," next they formed an atomic bomb and played "The White Cliffs of Dover." In front of the stands they understood they UN for United Nations and played, "In Christ There Is No East Or West," and for their final demonstration, they formed a crown, lighted a helmet, and played "Carry Forward American Soldiers." During the first part of the demonstration, fireworks were shot up light the field.

Description of the Gamecocks' spirit writer, Al Fox, wrote the following:

"... The Gamecocks have not taken first place over classical music."

One student said, "It is our aim as a college to urge our students to appreciate all kinds of music."

A music presentation ended with a summary by Dr. Matthews.

HEIM DEMONSTRATES NEW METHODS TO MUSIC EDUCATORS

At the meeting of the Sixth District Music Educators Association at Jacksonville State Teachers College, Dr. Henry J. Heim, assistant professor of music education, announced that a new system of teaching music would be demonstrated by the music staff of the college.

The system involves the use of a new technique in which students are taught to sing in a manner that is both rhythmic and melodic.

AVONDALE FASHIONS DELIGHT LOCAL WOMEN

The fashions show, which was presented by Avondale stylists, Frances Weaver, Anna Watson and Helen Cole, was held on Friday, November 18, in the Avondale auditorium.

The show was sponsored by the Progressive Educational Association and the Social Science Club of the college, and was open to the public.

The models walked the runway in stylish and elegant gowns.

Dr. C. T. Harper, president of the Progressive Club, introduced the show.

Students and faculty were present to support the fashion show.

Students OPENLY CRITICIZE PROFESSOR

If a teacher criticizes a student's work, that's not news; it is shown in the newspapers of the city. According to a paragraph of Charles A. Dana's on Dec. 20, 1879, a man's biting a dog, news was made.

Mr. J. H. Keim is a man of considerable foresight. He has a considerable amount of foresight, and he has done a great deal of foresight. He has a great deal of foresight.

They have not, however, hysterically climbed a flagpole and reminded The rules governing college dormitories that our brothers shed blood for us, and we are in danger of losing everything we fought for.

Jacksonville State Teachers College, and it is in danger of losing everything we fought for. The Faculty Rules Committee, which was elected by the local faculty body, is already ready to do so.

The two prevailing attitudes exist in this college today on the so-called "North-South" cleavage over its policy, lack of policy, on discrimin- ation against Negroes. It is totally effective, and it will not be changed unless there is a change in the attitudes of the students.

Discrimination a Continuing Policy

It must be understood that this is a continuing policy that can be solved by pot solutions for all communities. When an institution imposes quotas upon the admission of Catholics, Jews or Japanese, or when it refuses to hire anyone from outside the community, it is not isolated from other similar institutions. The same holds true for Negroes. These attitudes can be changed only if the community is willing to change its own attitudes.

The weekly meeting was held on Monday, February 5, at the Wesley Foundation Building.

The rules governing college dormitories were announced last week. These rules were formulated by representatives of the student body and were presented to the college administration. Violation of these rules, including curfew breaking or other offenses, will result in the revocation of the privileges of the person involved.

The models were Jean Wilson, Betty Sue Sellers, Frances Hor- seman, Miss Eunice Brown, and Sadie Zett, Betty Fields, and J. W. Rivero. These models were assisted by the local models already mentioned.

After a discussion of these articles, the meeting adjourned.

PRACTICE TEACHERS ATTEND CLINIC

Students who now practice teaching are graduates of the Student Teaching Program of JSU, which is among those who attended these meetings. The continuing policy of the Student Teaching Program for the current year is that all practicing teachers are to be included in the meetings.

The students and several guests who attended the meeting were served a tempting breakfast on potently decorated tables featuring an ecological theme. This was followed by the centering of the consultants from the State Department of Education, who told the students, I say, if you want to become a teacher, you must attend all of the meetings and fairs mentioned above. The next meeting will be held on Sunday before the opening of the fall quarter.

During the football season the sports pages are full of highlights concerning the condition of various teams, their chances of winning Saturday's game, and what the physical condition of the outstanding players is. This fall, more than ever, the Jacksonville Gamecocks have received a great deal of publicity. Who's responsible for the greater part of it? Finis Gaston, a small man with a lot of words, sits at his typewriter until the wee hours of the night, hunting for the keys that will tell how another press release dated Jacksonville for three years now he has failed to learn to type and now as the season draws to a close he is concentrating taking elementary typing under Miss Brazeal. I doubt that if it will produce any results as far as the college is concerned, but maybe in years to come Finis will be able to say, "I can sleep at night without chasing darn keys during my dreams."

Finis is married and he and his wife live in Galveston at the present. Before he started here at Jacksonville he spent three and a half years in the army of which three were overseas. Since coming to JSC, he has maintained such a high quality to him for membership in Gamma Delta Pi. He is majoring in history and minoring in physical education. However, right now he is having a good deal of trouble with Russian history under Mr. Anderson. It seems that everywhere he turns he sees something about a story that is to be sent to the papers that day. Actually he has been class four times this quarter but that was not enough for one of the football players and found himself trapped.

Finis is a member of the National Football Writer's Association and is the official press man for the All-American game this year.

Recently, when pictures were being taken of Mr. Anderson at the Calmwell's which was held for Whoo's, Finis actually telephoned President Ode to let him know his tie and coat for the occasion; it's good. Mr. Finis was the only one that wasn't notified the day before and Galaden is a long way from the college.

To Mr. Anderson wishing, Finis will graduate. The college will lose one of its most valuable students, the Calmwell's will lose one of their football heroes, and the TEAGAOL will lose its sports editor, but none of this is to be considered. Finis—the brains thinking about next year's season and the football team will be the situation. The year he is to have to think about that class on the morrow.

(Amazement, but not outspoken, the Jacksonville State Teachers College Gamecocks pulled one of the biggest upsets in small college football last night when they beat the powerful Southern University Louisiana Lumberjacks. The Lumberjacks, one of the powers of small college football, had to come from behind three times and finished the affair after a Horsford to Hodge pass had put the Gamecocks in front late in the second quarter.

The Gamecocks blocked and tackled for keeps last night as the Lumberjacks managers carried off several of their plays not to play any more last night. Ben Pillory, former Emma Sanam grid mentioned as a hard to tackle member of the Southern Louisiana team, was one of the hardest tackles ever witnessed by this writer and many of them are giving a good press box. The entire Gamecocks line played one of the finest games in their history.

L. C. Gardner, who played one of the outstanding defensive games of his career as he broke into the Indian backfield and threw the ball carrier for loss after lost. Although the Lions had the edge in most parts of the statistics, the Gamecocks had the edge in fighting spirit and the whole team will excel.

BEDROOM FARE

Mr. Bingle was complaining to Mr. Grump about his domestic difficulties. "I can't live with my wife any longer," cried Mr. Bingle. "She wants to keep a goat in our bedroom."

"Well," said Mr. Grump, trying to be helpful, "I wouldn't let that upset me. Just open the windows."

"What?" exclaimed Mr. Bingle, "and let my pigeons fly out?"

MEET THE MAN WHO CARES FOR THE CAMPUS

By Raymond Dale

"Thou didst look down upon the naked earth, and, Portewith, rose all these fair trees."

William Cullen Bryant

Have you noticed the beautiful shrubs and trees that make the campus one of the most beautiful campuses in the nation? We have a very fine man to thank for this, Mr. David D. Walker.

It took years of planning to develop a campus that we may be proud to think of as our very own. Yet, the grounds were prepared for our coming long before we dreamed that we'd be here.

"On September 3, 1872, in Lauderdale, Georgia, Mr. David Daniel Walker was born. Mr. Walker has lived in Jacksonville all but six years of the forty-seven years he has been away from Lauderdale.

"Mr. Walker began working for the college on July 5, 1928. He was then in charge of the college farm. Two years later he took over the job of taking care of the grounds. Miss Mary Forney was his supervisor. Mr. Walker, with Miss Forney's suggestion, transplanted some local trees found near Bonnebrooke. The trees were planted around Daugart Hall, and not one tree died. The trees bloomed in March and made one of the most beautiful displays of nature one has ever seen. For an inspiration you will never forget, just watch the trees this March. The buzzing of the bees from the tree to tree, give you the feeling of having heaven just a little nearer."

I asked Mr. Walker how long he intended to work for the college, and he answered with a twinkle of his eyes. He said, "Until I see fit."

"This is a man who has given so much and asked for nothing, nothing except the privilege of working and making others happy."

New Haven, Conn. (11 P.)—A special fall examination, based on five books which all members of the Sophomore class have to read in conjunction with Yale's newly instituted summer reading program, will be continued as a regular part of the undergraduate curriculum, it was announced here by university officials.

Among other changes this year is the inauguration of a new program leading to the B. A. degree for juniors and seniors, who will have a choice of four different methods of achieving the B. A. degree in the first half, for juniors and seniors, who will start flopping a 20-yard snap, unless joined several thousand more alumni, students and faculty at the football game in College Bowl. Before the game, the band made its appearance on the field. The colors were presented by neatly-uniformed members of the new college R.O.T.C. and the band played "America the Beautiful" and " Alma Mater."

The Gamecocks entered the game as decided underdogs but the tie definitely established them as one of the stronger teams of the small college class. It might be added to the above account, that Johnny Williams, also a Gadsden boy, played his usual dependable football, but was well spotted before the game and was kept covered all through the game.

Pursue cards (Continued from page 1) announced, "we must avoid being trapped in concentrating all of our efforts on this one program, which is only a small part of the overall activity of NSA."
