School spirit should be stronger this year than it has been in the past. Now that the team has shown that it can perform with the interest efficiency, there is no reason to think that the fans will not be ready to give their undivided support.

We have an excellent band this fall. The members are uniformly in brilliant red with trimmings of white, and the girls are wearing the gridiron uniforms and colors. We wish to let it be known that these colors are not those of a “two-bit outfit.” On the contrary, they are in keeping with the most outstanding of small college uniforms and will make a boldsplash in the realm of sports. Please do not let the members of the G.A.C. down. You are the pride of the school now. You are helping yourselves down when you ignore the spirit of your school.

There has been considerable confusion among the students lately about the matter of the play-by-play announcing over the loud speaker at the football games. The principal seems to have received a disbursement of simple questions: “Are the students of this college capable of interpreting a football game to their own satisfaction, especially when they are at a loss for an unnecessary humilation of emotive-spectators’ ear-drum confluence? A democratic method managing a public address system is espoused.”

Some of our friends and colleagues have suggested that we mention these questions, hoping that they will reach the minds of someone in a position to do something about them.

Are we in another way today? We are. We are not. We have been, are, we shall have been, seen several “whisk-kissed” fellows browsing around the campus this quarter. It resembles the time when the Fort was open. With the exception of the few who are now carrying books instead of looking for places to dance, the great majority of “yankin’ brogues” are out of the speeches of the new lot of military men.

We predict that the R. O. T. C. is destined to become a very strong asset to our school, our community, and our nation.

We are glad to learn that the following students have been added to the college faculty: Mr. William F. Adams, Miss Laura Lee Frazer, Miss Virginia Lott, and Miss Helen McKeen. Mr. LaFayette Patterson, Mr. Robert Williams, and Miss Mary Beth Thomas.

We, the student body of the college, welcome you and wish you a long and successful stay on campus.

Solo Flight Club Elected Jack Prickett, President For 48-49

Masque And Wig Presents Fall Play November 16

By Ed Shadley

As we were walking along a large crowd of people were standing outside the main doors of the auditorium. "Have you seen the details for that party yet?" a female voice asked. "Yes, I have," replied the man standing next to her. "Well, I'm going to take the bus to the meeting tonight." The woman then turned and ran out of the building, still holding her bag of belongings. It appeared that many people were preparing to leave the area, possibly for the party. The scene was typical of what could be expected on any given evening at the college.

The event being referred to was a social gathering organized by the Solo Flight Club. The club is composed of students interested in aviation and flying. The purpose of the meeting was to elect new officers for the upcoming academic year.

The election process involved a secret ballot, ensuring the confidentiality of each vote. With several candidates running for various positions within the club, members were encouraged to carefully consider their choices before casting their ballots.

The results were announced during the meeting, revealing the winners of the elections. The new president of the Solo Flight Club was announced as Jack Prickett. His election signaled his leadership role within the club for the upcoming year.

Masque And Wig presents a fall play titled "November 16." The production was directed by Peggy Bailey, one of the prominent figures in the college community. The play promises to be an engaging event for both the cast and audience.

100 Girls To See Game From 50 Yard Line Saturday Night

Approximately 100 girls will see the home football game from reserved seats on the 50-yard line next Saturday night. The event is a part of the college's annual tradition, where student athletes are given the opportunity to donate their seats to interested fans in support of the team.

The reserved seats will be available for purchase, allowing fans to witness the game from a prime location. The event is expected to attract a large number of enthusiastic spectators, with many looking forward to the experience of being close to the action.

Mrs. Ernest Stone has been the driving force behind this initiative, working tirelessly to ensure the smooth execution of the event. Her dedication has allowed the college to continue offering such memorable experiences to its constituents.

The reserved seats offer a unique and intimate view of the game, allowing fans to get up close and personal with the players on the field. This special experience is highly sought after, with many fans eagerly waiting to secure their spots for the event.

CAMEL CIGARETTE COMPANY

The Camel Cigarette Company will introduce their new cigarette brand on the morning of November 16, just before the home football game. The event is part of a larger marketing campaign designed to promote the new product. The Camel Company has been a staple in the industry for many years, and their latest offering is expected to be a significant addition to the market.

The company has partnered with local sports venues to showcase the new product, ensuring maximum visibility and reach. The event is scheduled to occur in a prominent area, with special displays and promotional materials set up to attract the attention of passersby.

The Camel Cigarette Company has a long history of innovation and excellence in the industry. Their commitment to quality and customer satisfaction is evident in their ongoing efforts to introduce new and exciting products.

In conclusion, the upcoming event promises to be an exciting and memorable occasion for all involved. Whether it's attending the home football game, participating in the Masque And Wig play, or witnessing the肖选 officers' election, there is something for everyone to enjoy. The college community is united in their support of these initiatives, reflecting the strong spirit and camaraderie that characterize their experiences.

The atmosphere is set for a dynamic and engaging evening, with the anticipation of a thrilling game on the field and the excitement of the entertainment off the field. This combination of sports and culture ensures a rewarding experience for all those in attendance.

The college is proud to host such events, offering its students and community members the opportunity to come together and celebrate the spirit of unity and tradition. These events are not only a testament to the college's rich history but also a reflection of its forward-thinking approach to providing enriching experiences for its constituents.

French Student Writes of Her First Impressions of America and JSC

Last night at our matinee, the audience was captivated by the performance of French student Marie-Jeanne, who spoke passionately about her first impressions of America and JSC.

Marie-Jeanne, a native of Paris, arrived at JSC just a few weeks ago and has been overwhelmed by the beauty and diversity of American culture. She shared with the audience her experiences of the bustling city life, the vibrant social scene, and the richness of American artistic expressions.

Her speech was filled with vivid descriptions of the American landscape, the friendliness of the people, and the overall atmosphere of the country. Marie-Jeanne's perspective was fresh and engaging, and the audience was moved by her insight into American society.

The event was followed by a lively Q&A session, where Marie-Jeanne answered questions from the audience about her experiences and her life at JSC. The session was a testament to the richness of cultural exchange and the beauty of diverse perspectives.

THE HEART OF THE MATTER

BY GRAHAM GREENE

Reviewed by John Davis Roberts

The thing that came to my mind when I finished The Heart of the Matter was Conrad, for there Greene studies the disintegration of British imperialism under odd and slightly exotic conditions. He tells of the terrible and trivial problems of an assistant police commissioner (British Army) in a British colony on the African coast in the last years of the Ottoman Empire. These problems flow into each other with regularity until at the end they present one intractable question: This great man at the end is perhaps the heart of this particular matter.

Major Scobie has been in the colony for fifteen years and has come to love it with the inert fondness which we all hold for familiar surroundings and people. He has no real hope of getting any better position in the army and does not really want one. He has come to terms with the natives and the contempt of the officers' club. What more could he want?

His affections and passions, aroused only by pity, sight on four different people: his wife, Louisa, who continually hopes that he will be appointed commissioner; Helen Holt, rescued from a torched ship and forced to remain in port until some ship finds room to take her back to England (her husband was killed in the sinking); Wilson, the soul-sick adolescent attaché in the Intelligence Department; and Yusef, the fat, sleepy, sentimental Syriac merchant.

Wilson falls in love with Mrs. Scobie. Mrs. Holt becomes Scobie's lover in a curious way until Mrs. Scobie's return trip to South Africa. Mr. Scobie destroys Scobie's joy in smuggling activities.

As Scobie's pity for each of the people dies, does he. At last, in his pity for and love of his Scobie, he sides with the nation of a lay Christ with no one to die for, this the heart.

The cold detachment of Greene's style—that bit like Maugham, that bit like Thackeray, and that bit like Maugham's—cannot hide the certain thoughts and certain principles that Scobie's love for them and to judge with comparison. But it is what I am expecting to do. I am discovering by degrees what is hidden, is the hidden visitor or to any people who do not know the ways with Scobie are not to look for them in the future Scobie, the man with the heart of the matter, is to forget them and to judge them without comparison. But it is what I am expecting to do. JSC Marching Song

This fall, at the request of the student body, a new song was written by Mr. Eugene Duncan, who is the band director and a member of the music department. Mr. Lawrence Miles, member of the English Department, wrote the words.
DOES the supper succeed? Is the kitchen well tuned up? Jack Kirby was asked: "Have you ever been interviewed before?"

"No," his first time." I found myself in the presence of Jack Kirby, who, dressed in a bra, was asked if he could explain something.

"Don't you ever drink water?" I asked after several seconds of silence on his being quoted. Jack Kirby replied: "We have many more romantic poems. He couldn't bear to be in that purse. A whole dime is less than a week had been quarantined on cheese. Too, I wondered of the French store water like cacti.

"Don't you ever drink water?" she repeated, if it's thirsty. She went on to explain that the wine is drunk by all classes in France. Some people think that the French are not wicked, but in a mild poison which will send the consumer to an early grave.

"I'm a lot of Typhoid Mary in France," I remarked.

"Typhoid Mary in France," I remarked, fitting for the occasion. Generally the selection is very rigorous. We try to pick subjects that no one else has ever thought of—what makes an absolutely excellent work. Also we always choose one that we are sure no one can do anything about.

Whatever you are worrying about can be remedied, there is no fun in worrying. On the other hand, if you are in a position that you can absolutely not about it... hey! You have a permanent and enduring trouble that brings perfect worrying satisfaction.

The Klan members generally drop by the post office on Monday and Thursday evenings to worry about their worries. If they can't come by for some reason then they come some other day of the week... if they come at all. In the latter case they are, as they have been, plenty to worry about before they come, so full worrying with the group.

Would you, by any chance, like to have a free sample of our works? I'll give you one anyway, if you have the energy enough to read off for you certainly would worry yourself to death if you can't find out. Take this worry for instance: Suppose the world were to crash into another planet. I'll bet you never thought of that. Could you do anything about it? Well, that's it. Fender a week on that and see what you deduced.

Music Notes

S. D. Roberts

The new band uniforms are hitting. No other comingling is intended to develop a social rhythm. You have, by now, seen them.

Newcomen, June Crain, from Anniston, plays piano with a smooth night-club style. Until she started here she had a program on WGBM at 3:45 on Thursday and Thursday. Lovely and popular, she plays an arrangement of "spade" which brings on baritone. Music is approached at a style.

Several hundred dollars worth of records have been bought for the music department. Mr. MASON tells me. "Outside listening," has been established and anyone interested is invited. They are 11:30 on Mondays and Wednesdays and 12:30 on Thursdays and Fridays. This can go some of the way toward correcting the situation that I was muddling about up there.

The Music Department is no longer plagued. It would show better if it were free from all literary, though not so deep. More formal, pocket-sized, tally-waiters will appear. Mr. Mason tells me that some real talents have materialized this fall.

Note on the World Series. Third game of the look sharp—feed sharp business was decidedly flat.

Dean's Announcements

The following articles have been found and handed to this office. Please call and identify.

Bus ticket, case of keys, a set of keys, Mrs. Morton Saxon's reynolds, one Parker pen, one everehard pen, one pocket set. It is approved for all the people who will be regular about the things you worry about. Did you know that if you choose carefully the things you worry about you can actually gain new respect from your friends? Even new friends among the multitude of crowds? You can do exactly that. Even you can be an impressive worry-wart.

Before the season is over.

This should be of interest to a handful of people who have developed a taste for some sort of art music. A new music society means of hearing it. Records are expensive and store books are a novelty. Music society courses may be of some help, but are usually too far in the best cases the concerts are given flashes of 10 or 12 different styles, with the net result that there is a blurring of all the familiar and the general—what brings on baritone. Music is approached at a style.

Team Remains Undefeated—Untied After 12th Straight Victory

The Jacksonville State Teachers College Gamecocks are still 11-0, a perfect season, and an undefeated team. However, in the first quarter, the Gamecocks scored on a 95-yard drive, and quarterback Terry Jarrett had a 4-yard touchdown.

On October 7, the Gamecocks played against the University of Alabama. The game was intense, and Terry Jarrett scored a 1-yard touchdown in the first half. In the second half, the Gamecocks scored again on a 2-yard touchdown by running back Jacks Miller. The final score was 20-0 in favor of the Gamecocks. The Gamecocks have not lost a game this season and have remained unbeaten. They are currently ranked first in the SEC and have a strong chance of winning the conference championship.
