

New JSC Dean Of Students Begins Duties Here

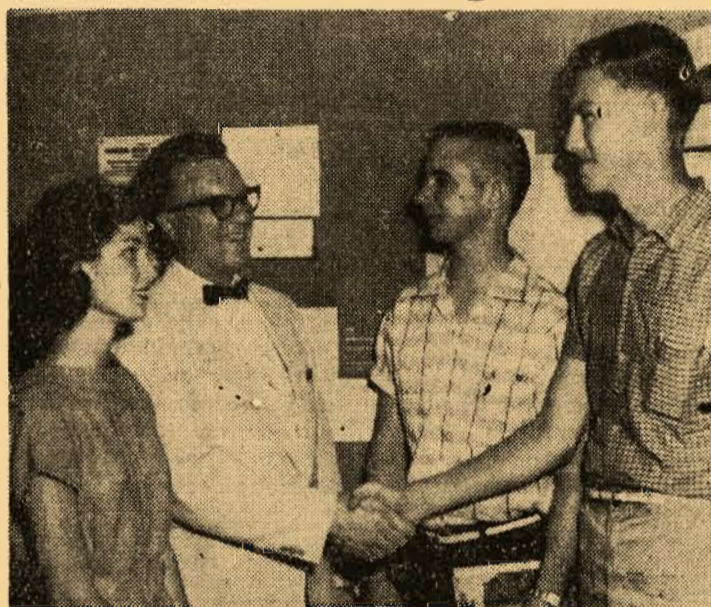

SGA Names Officers And Plans Summer's Activities

Since the regular SGA president will not be attending the summer session, James Kimbrough, a junior from Daviston, and vice-president of the Student Government Association, will be in charge of the activities this summer. Melba Young, Crossville, junior, begins her duties as the new secretary and two appointments have been made to fill vacancies in the other two positions. Donald Moon, a senior from Birmingham, will serve as vice-president and Joe Garner, a sophomore from Hartselle, will be the treasurer this summer.

Already the officers have been busy planning a schedule of activities for Jacksonville students this summer session. Most of the events center around recreational activities which include several planned sock hops, a talent show, the annual Class Officers' Ball, free outdoor movie, and several outdoor square dances. Also, the SGA will be helping plan and carry out the Water Show, which will be one of the biggest events this session.

The first meeting of the Student Government Association will be a called meeting on June 12. All class presidents, SGA representatives, and social chairmen please be sure to attend the meeting which will be held in Room 217, Bibb Graves Hall.

ALL NEW—Busy from the first day he arrived meeting people at Jacksonville was the new dean of students, Dr. Leon Willman. He has been very well received, and is pictured here meeting three of the freshmen who are new at the college too. They are, left to right, Mary Alice Davis, Vincent Terry Young, Piedmont, and Wendell McDonald, Rainsville.

"The welcome mat is out!" Dean Leon Willman made this remark after arriving on the Jacksonville campus as Dean of Students. The additional dean will not replace Dean Montgomery but merely lighten the load of his position. It seems that this new administrator has already made a tremendous impression on both the faculty and the students. Dean Willman said, "I have experienced an overwhelming amount of hospitality here at Jacksonville."

Discipline will be among the duties to be placed in the hands of Dean Willman. "My goal is to befriend the students and to act as a link between the parents, faculty and students. Discipline will come as an incidental thing instead of an expected measure." The discipline committee and the attendance committee will remain in power as Dean Willman works with them.

Such problems as class attendance will be Dean Willman's concern. The all important matters of job placements, vocational testing, placement tests, freshman orientation week, and student counseling make up only a few of Dean Willman's duties. His new office will be located at Room 204, Bibb Graves Hall.

Jacksonville seems to have made a good choice in Dean Willman for he has experience in guidance and counseling in the Tuscaloosa City High School and he will have secured a Doctor of Education degree from the University of Alabama by August of this year. His degree will be in counseling and guidance.

The Willman family were residents of Tuscaloosa and members of the Presbyterian church. The new dean and his family will certainly be an asset to our campus and all students should feel free to first welcome them and then consult Dean Willman on any problem. "The welcome mat is out!"

NOTICE!

The college pool will be open all summer on Monday through Thursday nights from 5' til 9 p.m. for free swimming. Lifeguards who will be on duty at these times are Donald Moon and Horace Pope. Everyone is welcome to take advantage of the pool.

NOTICE TO RGI VETERANS

Please notice that the Veterans' Office has changed locations. The new office will be in the Business Office at the other end of the second floor hall of Bibb Graves. Please remember this when you start to have business there.

"Miss Maude" Luttrell To Retire After 44 Long Years

"It is a wonderful calling to be a teacher." Those were the words of Miss Maude Luttrell as she talked with a Collegian reporter. That's the way she feels about her profession. To her it has been a wonderful experience to be a teacher for forty-four and a half years. No one could be more dedicated to his job than Miss Luttrell has been to hers. She will be ending her teaching career, however, as this summer semester ends, and Jacksonville College will be losing one of its best-loved people.

For the past twenty-three years Miss Luttrell has been a part of the English faculty at Jacksonville State College. During that time she has taught, at one time or other, practically every subject offered in the English department.

RETIRING—Jacksonville State College will lose Miss Maude Luttrell after twenty-three years of service as she retires at the end of summer school. Here she is pictured in her classroom. Note the words on the blackboard. You who have been in Miss Luttrell's classes, will understand the meaning of them.

Candidates Seek Class Offices Tues.

Elections for class officers will be held tomorrow, Tuesday, June 10. The polls will be set up on the first floor of Bibb Graves Hall.

Those who have qualified as candidates for offices in the freshman class are: president, Cecil Smith, Centerville; and Jim Adamson, Goodwater; vice president, Mary Alice Davis, Vincent; secretary, Betty Frazier, Eden; treasurer, Barbara Frazier, Eden; SGA Representative, Billie Campbell, Lafayette, Eleanor Box, DeKalb; and Jane Barcliff, Union Grave; social chairman, Louise Pickens, Eden.

NOTICE!

Any girls wishing to work with the Mermaids in the Water Show this summer, report to the college swimming pool at 6 p.m. tonight, Monday, June 9.

"One Way" Means One Way

Certainly, we hope, there are not people at Jacksonville State College who cannot read or who do not have sense enough to know what a simple direction means after they have read it. However, some students, and perhaps members of the faculty, are acting as though they cannot read.

How are they doing this? —By disobeying the signs which read plainly—ONE WAY. On top of being lazy and discourteous, people who drive in the wrong direction on the streets are putting themselves and others in perilous positions, inviting accidents. There are several ways in which this law is disobeyed. One involved the area directly in front of Bibb Graves Hall. It is very unpleasant, and not very good for the nerves, to be driving in the correct north-south direction on the streets in front of B. G. and to meet a car flying around the curve in the opposite direction. It has happened frequently, however, and if it keeps happening, a bad accident can occur.

Something needs to be done about enforcing the rule for one-way traffic. If people cannot, for their own safety, use the proper entrance and exit to our campus, perhaps the area will have to be policed again and fines charged to offenders. There is no sense, either, in waiting until an accident happens here before we begin obeying the rules or forcing people to obey them. The time to be a good (and a safe) citizen is now.

Hot Weather—Short Shorts

By Norman Alexander

Recent climatic changes have brought about several developments contrary to campus protocol and produced conditions highly unfavorable to maximum comfort and efficiency. What I mean is that all that perspiration isn't due to scholastic endeavor.

Quite naturally, the rising thermometer has brought forth a decline in necklines, trouser-lengths and decreased the need for over-lading the delicate frame with discomfitting attires. The common plaintive cry heard from distressed young ladies now-a-days is "If Charles 'Nubby Knees' Williams and the other boys wear Bermudas, why can't we?" That's a solid point. As a matter of fact, ole Charlie's about as solid a point as you could find. Why can't girls wear shorts, long and barely, to classes?

Well, it's like this, girls. The biggest and most prevalent, if not the most valid reason, is that campus authorities frown on it. No is no, know matter how you spell it. A real good reason is that Bermudas, even draped upon such attractive young ladies, are the only articles of attire that look worse than the sack. ("Shimmys" not included.) Not that I am by any means opposed to short-shorts or similar feminine garb; on the contrary, they are quite attractive to me, as well as to eleven out of every ten red-blooded young American men on the campus. That is principally the whole trouble. The havoc created by the permission of this apparel would be inestimable.

One aspect of the question at hand, although never seriously considered, is the osseous lower extremities which must inevitably make their appearance on such occasions which warrant the wearing of lesser garments. Do take this into consideration, and if you must show yourself in such a manner, do move occasionally so someone won't make the tragic mistake of burying you. The reverse is true of cases of obesity. Someone remarked the other day that quite a few tents were being erected around on the greenery. His acute embarrassment was not abated when subsequent movement showed the tents to be the posterior views of several young ladies who were happily engaged in sun bathing.

Tarantulas? No; the long, excruciatingly hairy limbs are not of the arachnid specie, but belong to a peculiar group whose Latin name is Bermudus Exopus, composed entirely of males and common on any campus. As to the masculine portion of the issue involved, I would deem it highly beneficial to the general well-being of the college if these daring young men in plaid, knee-length plowing britches (so's the dirt don't get in the cuffs) were allowed to continue. We all need a few laughs now and then. It relieves the tension immensely.

Summarily, and half-way seriously, we must conclude that the shorts problem isn't really a problem at all. Surely the comfort obtained isn't worth the dignity lost, and dignity is

BSU Reports

Jacksonville representatives have been sent to the Ridgecrest Student Retreat June 5-11. When they return to the campus next fall, they will have had many interesting experiences to share with us.

The BSU is very busy making plans for the entire summer. We hope that every student on the campus will attend some of our services before this semester is over.

For inspirational devotions to give daily guidance, there is no finer source than Morning Watch at 7:45 each morning in the little auditorium of Bibb Graves Hall. Evening vespers, at 6:00 o'clock each night, can contribute much to spiritual life on our campus.

For those who are interested in attending the Sunday services of the First Baptist Church, transportation will be furnished each week. For the young people there will be many BSU parties after church on Sunday nights.

This summer, let's make BSU the biggest and strong organization on the campus. It's up to you.

one asset you will find to be highly commendable in years to come. Few ministers, lawyers, or men of wealth and position would sanely consider wearing clothing of this nature in carrying out their daily vocational functions. Ladies, reconsider and stand by the old crinolines and full skirts. They may be less comfortable, but on you they look so nice. And men—you funny fellers.

Four Teachers Here For Summer

As Jacksonville State College enters the summer session for an eight-week period, several changes in the faculty have been made.

Taking Miss Lucille Branscomb's place for the summer in the business department is Ernest E. Miller, a member of the Florida State University faculty. Miss Branscomb is on leave for the summer. Mr. Miller is to teach advanced typing and shorthand.

Graduate courses in mathematics will be taught by Dr. James L. Howell, a member of the faculty of the University of Alabama.

Miss Nancy Wilson, librarian at Decatur High School, will teach courses in library science for the summer session.

Substituting for Austin Howard who is on leave for the summer is Mrs. Asa Self of Anniston, who has taught in the evening session, and will teach math classes during this summer.

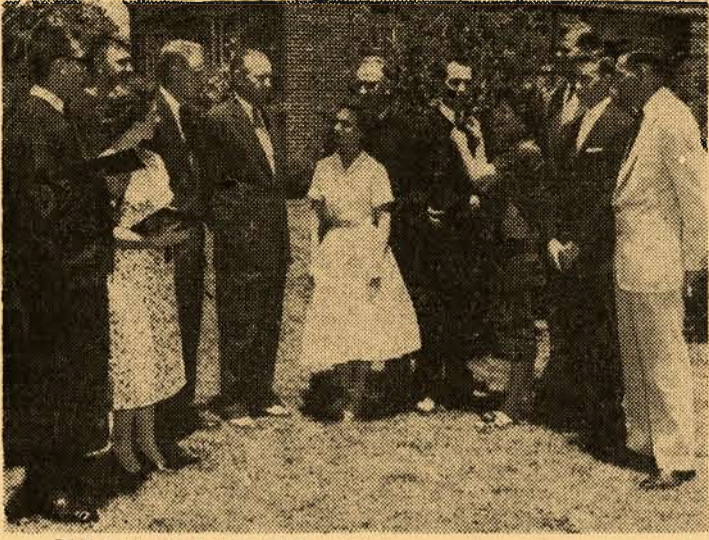

Mrs. Susie L. Glover of Anniston has succeeded Mrs. W. C. Sargent as manager of the college book store. Mrs. Sargent retired this month.

Colleges Receive Gifts

Who says Americans don't help their neighbors the way they used to?

A staggering total of $6,700,000 was poured into good causes by charitable Americans in 1957, reports Don Wharton in the June Reader's Digest. At least 25 million individuals worked as volunteers in fundraising campaigns to help collect this all-time-high total.

Some of the most impressive gifts went to colleges. For examples, Pomona College in California, with less than 1200 registration, and the University of Pennsylvania received single contributions of one million dollars each, and from anonymous donors.

Princeton received a half-million dollar gift from an unknown benefactor for a new dormitory. Colgate got $350,000 anonymously for study of the world's great religions.

In all, one-ninth of the sums given for philanthropic purposes last year went to education. Much of it, says Wharton, was contributed by business corporations, which gave three times as much to colleges in 1957 as they did to all charitable causes 20 years ago!

What's behind the tremendous increase in corporate aid to education?

One answer would be "enlightened self-interest." George V. Holton, former Chairman of the Board of Socony Mobil Oil Co., explained it this way:

"The success of our business depends primarily on the intelligence and ability of the people running it. This fact in turn is based largely on the educational facilities which have been available to them."

Some companies have developed unusual methods of helping colleges, General Electric, for instance, began in 1955 to match, up to $2000 a year, any employe's gift to his college. By last Fall, 39 large companies and many smaller ones had followed suit and established matching gift plans.

The colleges themselves have in many cases stimulated corporate giving and saved on administration costs by creating college pools—state and regional associations of independent colleges, to solicit business gifts.

Says Wharton: "The physical plants and endowments of our privately supported colleges and universities are valued at more than ten billion dollars . . . every dollar the result of giving. This represents private philanthropy on a scale without precedent in history."

The article, "How Your Annual Giving Adds Up," is condensed from "Think."

Squirrel Enrolls As Veteran?

Veterans are changing more and more every day, or thus says Mrs. Manners. She was working in her office one day when a little visitor in a fur coat entered through the window. Mr. Squirrel didn't say a word, just looked around as though he had forgotten what he came for.

Mrs. Manners would have signed him up, but he left without saying what name he wanted on his checks. The people in the Veterans' Office say that it was obvious from his long bushy tail that he must have been a veteran of the Civil War. Perhaps Jacksonville College just looked a little too modern for him!

Two Chicago matrons stopped to look at a bookstore display. "There's a book on 'How to torture Your Husband'," said one. "I don't need that," the other replied, "I have my own system."

The Reader's Digest From a Vermont Development Commission advertisement of a local farm for sale: "If purchased before the next heavy windstorm a barn is included."

Square Dance To Be Weekly Event

One of the plans of the Students Government Association for the summer is to have several outdoor square dances. Those of you who have attended Jacksonville State College during summer session in previous years will remember the popularity of these dance occasions. If you are new here, you will probably soon find out about them.

The first dance, is to be on Friday evening, June 13, and will take place outdoors in front of Bibb Graves Hall. Free refreshments will be served at this and the other dances. Plan now to attend every square dance this summer.

DEFT DEFINITIONS

Meteorologist: A man who can look into a girl's eyes and tell whether.

Throw Rug: A small rug that usually throws anyone who steps on it.

Conscience: The still small voice that makes you feel smaller.

Diplomat: A man who can convince his wife a woman looks stout in a fur coat.

Platonic Friendship: The interval between the introduction and the first kiss.

The Reader's Digest

Just before Christmas a college professor read the following on an examination paper: "God only knows the answer to this question. Merry Christmas." Across the paper the professor wrote: "God gets an A; you get an F. Happy New Year."
