The Student Speaks

"Do you think that the morals on college campuses today, are at a low ebb?" This was the question which was asked, and these are some of the responses.

Paula Hampton, a sophomore majoring in French, from Glencoe said, "Related to the rest of the world and to previous times--NO. I say the morals of college students, as a whole, are higher. The more educated a person, the better he is able to judge and adhere to sound principles."

Glenda Templin, a junior majoring in history, from Columbiana had this to say: "Not all people, but some are influenced by others, and tend to go along with the crowd. Some come to college with the idea of having a good time, but these good times oftentimes lead in the opposite direction. A lot of students let their morals go and respond, 'Everybody else does, so why shouldn't I?' How many times have we been told, 'Dare to be an individual?' Perhaps the freshman just entering college is confronted for the first time with really having to decide for himself just what kind of person he is going to be. Will he go along with the gang regardless, or will he dare to be a minority of one and stick by his beliefs?"

11 Year Old Talks To College Class

Recently, one of Mr. Clyde McSpadden's science classes was held captivated by the words of an eleven-year-old young man. The guest speaker was Ray Hammett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hammett of Jacksonville, and grandson of Mrs. Goldie W. Jamison, dormitory director of Logan Hall. He spoke on the topic of jets and rockets. In making his presentation, Ray used a model of a jet engine to explain how it functions, along with other devices to illustrate jet propulsion. He also showed a replica of the Gemini space capsule which he had constructed. To aid in his informative talk, Ray showed pictures and diagrams of the development of jet aircraft, and the types of rockets used in man's quest for outer space.

Besides having a keen interest in jets and rockets, Ray is an avid baseball player, plays football, enjoys fishing and camping, and also plays the piano.

With young men like Ray Hammett as the leaders of tomorrow, we can be assured that the world will be in safe hands.

Letters To Lilly

Dear Lilly,

I have been going steady with a boy for almost a year now. I love him very much, but there is one problem--his bad breath. This may sound silly, but it can be quite offensive at times. Every time I mention it to him, he gets furious, and this usually leads to a big argument. I'm afraid our relationship is headed toward an unhappy ending. What can I do?

Concerned

Dear CONCERNED,

What ever happened to your feminine finesse? Be tactful! Ask your friend if he has heard about that new mouthwash advertised on T. V. If he knows you're interested because you love him, he'll try to do something about his problem. If this doesn't work, ask yourself which is stronger, your love for him or his bad breath. Remember, halitosis is better than no breath at all.

Dear Lilly,

Please give some advice to young couples who plan to get married while still in school. I am married, have an eight-month-old son, and am trying to finish school. I don't regret anything, but I only wish I had received some advice two years ago.

EXPERIENCED

Dear EXPERIENCED,

Your letter is advice in itself. All too often, young people mistake infatuation for love. Be sure you know that love. Be sure you know what you are doing BEFORE you walk down the aisle. Many times these marriages are happy and successful, but many times they aren't. Before you enter this strictly adult role, be sure you have given it adult thoughts. Remember, "Pomp and Circumstance," "Here Comes the Bride," and "Rock-a-Bye Baby" can't be sung at the same time and still maintain perfect harmony.

the gang regardless, or will he dare to be a minority of one and stick by his beliefs?"

Robert Westbrook, a biology major from Piedmont said: "I feel that this generation is as sound as any of recent times. The pressures that face us today are stronger than those of some past generations. The times are more demanding. The phrase, 'This generation is going to the dogs,' is not applicable, after all we are following our parent's footsteps. The college morals are not any worse than those of past eras."

Mary Ann McCurdy, an English major from Huntsville, answered in this way: "Yes. However, I do not feel that it is fair to judge the morals of college students as a group isolated from our society. I feel that our society as a whole has a lower moral caliber at the present time than it has had in the past. Those things which are noticed and criticized as being evidences of low morals among college students are equaled in other age levels by practices equally disturbing. I believe our generation of college students includes as many individuals who we can point to as morally fine as does any other group of society."

Stadium Program

This fall when the Gamecocks meet Howard College in their first home game, Jacksonville students will get their first inside look at the newly-renovated Paul Snow Memorial Stadium.

Mr. Solon H. Glover, college business manager, stated that there will be two welcomed additions to the stadium. The first of these will be the addition of 1200 to 2000 new seats; the second, an entirely new lighting system mounted 95 feet above the ground with three times the amount of light furnished by the old system.

Work on the stadium will be completed by August 1, provided all goes well.

Updating the football stadium is just one of the many improvements being made on the campus this summer.

"The gasoline tax fund is a good example," Sen. Mathews continued. "Without equal distribution of the fund, the smaller counties could not build roads or

Where Do We Stand?

We are presently engaged in the most desperate struggle for freedom since the creation of government. Two ideologies, which are radically different and opposite, are seeking to predominate over each other. One, democracy, is based on the concepts of individual liberty and human dignity; while the other, communism, savagely maintains state sovereignty by means of oppression and tyranny. The two systems CANNOT peacefully co-exist, because communism thrives as it conquers subversively.

Those who believe in the good faith and sense of justice of the communist leaders are either deceiving themselves miserably, or they are ardent supporters of the diabolical doctrine.

The most recent addition to the communist gang was the island of Cuba in the year 1959. Cuba is only 90 miles away from the American mainland. Such a strategic location for a Soviet military and subversive base was not overlooked by the Russians. It is now, in effect, such a base, secured from any attempts by the Cuban people or the Cuban exiles to overthrow the puppet government of Fidel Castro. In Cuba now, there are Russian troops, Russian tanks, Russian intelligence personnel, Russian submarines, Russian super-sonic fighter planes, and Rus-

American nation. Just a few weeks ago President Johnson was forced to send thousands of U. S. troops to Santo Domingo to prevent a complete communist takeover. However, the Organization of American States had to intervene in the matter, or the United Nations would have classified the U. S. action as an aggression, an unjustified intervention into the affairs of a sovereign nation, or simply another example of Yankee imperialism! The United Nations has never felt urged to denounce the tragedy of Cuba as an act of Russian imperialism.

What happened in Santo Domingo in a few weeks has been going on in South Viet Nam for several years. The President of the United States was again forced to increase the American commitment in South Viet Nam to prevent the communist guerrillas from overrunning the country. These are only two examples of the many instances in which communism has tried to overthrow democratic republics. Communism has succeeded whenever and wherever the nations of the free world have offered little or no resistance. This has already happened too often.

More and more communist subversion is to be expected in the future. The communists never give up; they possess the tenacity and the desire to win that our democracies have lacked so badly

From The Editor

During these times of crisis both home and abroad much has been heard of responsibility. We heard daily of American soldiers dying and wounded in far away places. We receive admonishments and warnings when it is revealed that our rate of crime in America has risen to an unprecedented height. Women are attacked on crowded street corners and passersby just watch. In most of our towns and cities it is unsafe for one to walk alone at night. Riots and mobs deface American embassies in many parts of the world. Americans overseas tell us that the United States' image and prestige have never been so low.

Will the American people, businessmen, housewives, students, laborers, stand by and see these things come about. Apparently they will, unless they are awakened to the great responsibility that is ours in our world of today. This responsibility falls upon every man, woman and child. We may be content to sit back and allow communist, criminal, or indifferent forces to undermine the cultural, social and governmental aspects of other countries, but even the most apathetic person must realize that when these things threaten at our own doors the responsibility for destroying and rendering inactive these assiduous evils must be shouldered then and there--not passed to the next man in line.

As Americans we must bear the responsibility for the defense of the world from communism. Viet Nam and Santa Domingo must become as personal as our own backyards. We must not shirk from the truth about the role of the United States in world affairs. As Americans we have a responsibility to keep ourselves well-versed and well-read in the areas of political, military and diplomatic importance. We must be able to know what is lacking and what should be supplied in order to wisely choose leaders who will

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. Editor:

In the last COLLEGIAN you stated that "the 'status quo' must and will be preserved." I cannot quite understand your saying this, as the "status quo" is the very thing that the COLLEGIAN has always been against.

What other newspaper has said so much against those vices that are a part of today's society? One member of the faculty has said that the main problem today is indifference, or in other words, acceptance of the "status quo." Today's leaders, especially the religious leaders, are all actively against such acceptance.

As it says in the Bible, "be ye not conformed to the world, but be ye transformed . . ." I cannot accept the "status quo", but only that which is right, nor do I think that the COLLEGIAN can do so either. Therefore would you explain just what it is that the COLLEGIAN "must and will preserve."

Sincerely,
Kenneth Kifer

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Kifer,

First of all, I, as editor of the COLLEGIAN, would like to thank you for your interest in campus affairs and your wish that the school paper be of high quality and based on the right ideals. I wish more had your interest.

Now I would like to clear up your question. When I mentioned the "status quo", I had been speaking of the fact that the COLLEGIAN cannot, must not, and will not become the tool of any distorted radical group. I stated that all groups would have an opportunity to have their views aired, but the "status quo" (the existing state of affairs) will be preserved. This simply meant that no one group should be allowed to take over the reins of the COLLEGIAN and misuse it.

I hope that this clears up your question satisfactorily.

Sincerely,
Joe Stahlkuppe, Editor

A Way

Yesterday, Today And Tomorrow

When the word MORALS, is mentioned, in reference to college campuses, many parents and other adults immediately began to think about such things as Beatle haircuts, "beat" music, the Twist, the Slop, unconventional clothes, club initiations, and various other things of this nature. To many people, these images of college life--the youthful high-jinks--are confusing, and perhaps disgraceful. Imagining the worst, the minds of many adults become filled with ideas about delinquency, drug addiction, alcoholism, and sex. They feel that these strange symbols of adolescence and independence should be crushed--that they are bringing on the decadence of modern society.

Troubled parents rush to the bookshelves to consult the age-old theories of ministers, philosophers, sociologists, and others who claim that they have penetrated the realms of the "blue denim" world. Having consulted these theories, a number of which are based on Puritan ideologies, parents decide that their son or daughter is "sick." Perhaps some type of mental problem does exist, but usually, when young people are trying to see how many they can pack into a telephone booth, or when they are sidewalk surfing, or when they are engaged in one of the modern dance crazes, is a psycho really necessary?

If today's parents and adults would recall the years of the '20's, or '30's, or perhaps the '40's, when they were college age, they would find the solution of the non-existing problem of what's wrong with today's youth. They seem to forget all about the Charleston, the Shimmy, the Big Apple, yellow slickers, raccoon coats, dance marathons, spitcurls, and of course the "Poo-poo-pe-doop" girl.

Certainly there are college students who get into trouble, or those who have problems, but statistics show us that only a small percentage of the nation's youth can actually be classified as delinquents or as being immoral. All too often, ALL young people are placed unjustly within this minority bracket. Many are undoubtedly blind to the fact that this generation DOES have good qualities--that we have high ment of Fidel Castro. In Cuba now, there are Russian troops, Russian tanks, Russian intelligence personnel, Russian submarines, Russian supersonic fighter planes, and Russian missiles, of all kinds and for all purposes. We dare say that if the Cuban exiles possessed American equipment comparable to one-half of the amount of Russian equipment available to Fidel Castro, Fidel Castro would still be hanging from the highest palm tree!

Aside from the fact that the Russian intervention in Cuba constitutes an aggression upon the Cuban people, it should be considered that Cuba is the match that fires the explosive situations found in every Latin-

College Males And Military Draft

With the world situation as it is today, college students need to increase their studying time and to make better grades; especially male students.

Many are wondering if there will be major changes in the military draft if the present crisis continues in Viet Nam.

At the present, manpower officials say "no" but this "no" could change to "yes" very easily. A rise in the draft has already been started to make up for the decline in voluntary enlistments that came last year after it was hinted that the draft might be abolished, and more and more will be called up in the months ahead.

A Little Humor

Two nudists were discussing what to wear to a masquerade party. One of them said to the other, "With my varicose veins, I think I'll go as a roadmap."

* * * * *

Recently a teacher asked his students to write down the names of the nine greatest living Americans. Seeing that an ordinarily slow football player finished before anyone else, the teacher walked over and looked at his paper. "Why you only have eight names there," the teacher exclaimed. "Yeh, I know," replied the football player, "I couldn't decide on a first baseman."

More and more communist subversion is to be expected in the future. The communists never give up; they possess the tenacity and the desire to win that our democracies have lacked so badly in the past. President Johnson has responded to Communist subversion as any patriotic American should. It is your duty, if you are a conscientious American, to fight communism, whether it be by encouraging the President to continue his efforts, supporting anti-communist organizations, keeping yourself informed and alert, or joining the armed forces.

Do not lose your freedom by doing nothing to keep it.

By Miguel Medina

College students are sometimes drafted now to make up for this voluntary decrease. Under the rules, a youth is deferred only while he is a full-time student making normal progress. Students who drop out of college for a semester have been drafted before they could get back into college, others were drafted because they failed to fill out a II-S deferment form.

One can easily see that his chances of being drafted are very probable if he is one of those termed "a college dropout." It is essential that college males do the best job they can in college and to stay in college if at all possible.

--Leon Morrow

We heard of a man who is so neurotic that whenever he watches a football game and the players go into a huddle, he thinks they're talking about him.

During World War II, a unit of the 8th Air Force was assigned to drop propaganda leaflets over Tokyo. All the planes came back except one. Four days later, the plane skidded to a halt on the runway and the pilot hopped out. His commanding officer rushed up to meet him. "We're glad to see you, boy, but what on earth happened? The other men dropped their leaflets and flew right back..."

"Dropped them?" said the pilot. "I've been sticking them under doors."

military and diplomatic importance. We must be able to know what is lacking and what should be supplied in order to wisely choose leaders who will guide us with thought and care. If the American people don't show that they care who handles American policy, how can the rest of the world accept with good faith the promises and support of America? It is time that every person shouldered his part of the responsibility for our country and her actions.

The blame can be placed on our "decadent youth", our lackadaisical parents, our decaying morals, or any of a dozen other possible problems, but the basic undeniable fact remains: we are allowing the crime rate to rise and only the American people can stop it. Citizens of our country no longer become outraged when a person is murdered or a young girl is attacked. The responsibility has passed from group to group and there has been no one to pick it up, shoulder it and carry it. Are we going to allow the morals and attitudes of our country to fall into such a state of disrepute and disorder that it will take years for the next generation to retrieve it? We MUST not allow this to happen. The responsibility for seeing that we have high quality law-enforcement officers, adequate laws, and proper punishments for the guilty falls upon OUR shoulders. If we are not able to stem the tide of decaying moral, spiritual, legal, and patriotic ideals, we are LOST.

To write of these things is easy, to take definite action is hard. The unclothed truth of the matter is that unless each person, (be he student of faculty member, here at Jacksonville) does his job to prevent and abolish the rising rate of responsibility shirking, we are not fulfilling our obligation to those who have come before us and those who will come after us. We must all be willing to bear what tasks come our way. Human nature always excludes the individual when a job has to be done. This must be counteracted by conscientious and wise thinking, and action on each of our parts. It is each person's duty to keep abreast of the news developments and happenings around the world. Each person must carefully examine those who would be our leaders and endeavor to choose the best possible men to carry our standard. The individual is alone account-

Recently the Calhoun County Civil Defense Authority sponsored a conference at Oxford Lake. The featured speaker present was Gov. George C. Wallace.

Gov. Wallace was as usual at his "campaigning" best and his speech was delivered in his typical flamboyant manner. Wallace, punching and jabbing, again hit hard on federal control, state pride, and many issues of national and state concern.

We doubt that anyone, pro or con Wallace, can deny that he is quite an amazing man. The rise of Wallace on both the state and national scene has been nothing short of fantastic. His personality, leadership and integrity can hardly be questioned. Even though some doubt the wisdom of his leadership, few can question its presence.

Since his defeat by John Patterson in the gubernatorial campaign of 1958, Wallace has been on the rise politically in Alabama. According to the political "grapevine" the Governor has higher goals in mind, this of course being the seat held by Sen. John Sparkman in the U. S. Senate.

In expounding on the career of a successful man we might say, in some cases, it was "pull" or family position that brought about his success. But for many this is not the case. Wallace, as most know, helped attain his position by firmly establishing a solid background in college. Almost all the careers of successful men have been based on solid foundations which began in early life. Now is the time for college freshmen to begin establishing this foundation. For many students at Jacksonville it is too late; for others, almost too late; but for freshmen the time is now to begin a successful college career. Success in life essentially depends upon the effort put forth. Gov. Wallace has succeeded, many others have succeeded and freshmen, you will succeed at Jacksonville only by hard and diligent work.

justice within this minority bracket. Many are undoubtedly blind to the fact that this generation DOES have good qualities--that we have high ambitions and goals--that we know right from wrong--and paramount in importance, that we believe in God. Must this minority be the star representatives of this generation of our's?

We are a fine generation, but from reading the newspapers and many periodicals, one wouldn't believe it. The press does a superb job of "playing up" stories involving youth, and violence and crime--headline material--it always makes good reading for the public. Anyway, who cares who was selected for "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Who cares who signed up for the Peace Corps? No, the hoodlums on the street are not our generation's representatives, but due to extensive publicity, today's youth have a pretty black name. Please keep in mind that youth and airplanes are alike, in that you only hear about the ones that crack up.

Certainly, we as young people can irritate our parents and other adults, we can be disobedient, and we usually deserve the reprimands we get, but we also deserve a lot of praise. This is a fine generation, of which America should be very proud--indeed, this nation should be more than proud. It should be grateful that its most precious natural resource shows such depth and strength.

We will be teaching the oncoming generations; we will be making laws and enforcing them; we will be caring for the sick; and we will be defending our nation and democracy.

We should be recognized, not as just "good" boys and girls, but as people--young men and women with ideals, aspirations, and potential. We want peace, understanding, and tranquility, not just among the World Powers, but also among ourselves, our friends, and our families. We don't want to take over a "hand-me-down" world; we want to take the building laid down by our fathers and forefathers and sculpt our own world--always striving for a better world. It is not our desire to be considered products of our environment, but to be considered as architects of the future. We beg for the opportunity--may we have it?

Featured in the COLLEGIAN'S Senior Spotlight for this edition is Leon Morrow from Oxford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Morrow. He attended Talladega County High School at Lincoln.

This young man is probably one of the most versatile seniors attending brought Leon many honors and rewards. An honor student in high school, he has continued his high academic zeal in college. Some of his principal accomplishments include being named a Distinguished Military Student, Outstanding Cadet Junior Class ROTC, and member of the select "Who's member of the select "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

Other than being an outstanding student, Leon possesses a high degree of leadership. During his junior year he commanded the Ranger Company which was designated the best unit at the annual formal inspection. Also in his junior year of ROTC he was awarded the Scabbard and Blade medal for achievement. Last summer he attended ROTC Summer Camp at Ft. Bragg, N. C., where he finished in the elite upper third of his platoon. During the past year he was executive officer of the First Battalion.

Leon's accomplishments extend much further than ROTC. He has also participated in the Student Conference on American Government, Phi Beta Lambda, Usher's Club and Accounting Club. Recently Leon was elected president of the senior class for summer school.

When Leon graduates in July he will receive a degree in business administration, but just as important to him is the commission as second lieutenant in the Regular Army which he will

What It Means To Be A Rat

All new freshmen on this campus have something in common with upperclassmen, whether he is from Birmingham, Opp, Atlanta, Ga., or Cowlet Country, Any State. Every student who was a freshman here has been a "rat".

Yes, a rat, that scum of humanity, the very epitome of everything bad and unclean. As a former rat, I can speak from experience. Two weeks ago I donned my red and white beanie (called a rat cap) and stepped briskly away from my dorm, confident that my upperclass-

Leon should have no trouble adjusting to the tremendous responsibilities of being an army officer because he has distinguished himself in so many ways at Jacksonville State. Leon is truly "gung ho", devoting his time and intellect to the duties he faces. If college success can in any way prepare one for the future then Leon Morrow has nothing to fear.

men friends would protect me from the terrible people who would harm me and make me work. I was sadly mistaken. I was at the mercy of these same upperclassmen, plus all the rest of the school. I carried trays, shined shoes, and picked up litter for the remainder of the week before rat court where the final chastisement was carried out.

Still, as I think back, I can smile at the thought of those unfortunate plebes that had more upperclassmen "friends" than I did, for they, I'm sure, had a much worse time, I can only say to them, "wait until the fall when you can help to 'acquaint' someone with the customs and traditions of Jacksonville State.

"They had a great emotional issue in the last election which accounted for much of their success, but the Democrats will do all they can to hold their majority," he concluded.

Sen. Mathews was introduced by Baskin Wright, a member of the political science faculty. Dr. Edwin Van Keuren, professor of political science, presided.

Methodist Students

Welcome Rev. Miller

Methodist students will have a full - time student minister in the future following the appointment of the Rev. Robert O. Miller by the North Alabama Conference.

Last year there were approximately 800 Methodist students enrolled at the college and about 1,000 are anticipated this fall. The Rev. Charles Howard, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Jacksonville, has served as part-time minister for students the past two years.

Mr. Miller is the son of the Rev. Otto Miller, a retired Methodist minister, and Mrs. Miller, of Birmingham.

A graduate of Birmingham-Southern College and Candler School of Theology, Emory University, he served as youth director at West Woodlawn Methodist and First Methodist of Ensley while an undergraduate student at Birmingham - Southern, and during his seminary days was youth director at First Methodist Church, Monroe.

Welcome To JSC Jack Campbell

Jacksonville State College is fortunate to have as a student this semester Jack Campbell, from Gadsden. Jack has distinguished himself in many fields, but especially in the field of Christian service.

While a student at Auburn Jack made a very important decision, a decision that affected his whole career. He decided to enter full - time Christian service, although he had received a scholarship to Auburn to study engineering and physics.

After making this decision, Jack attended Auburn only two quarters, transferring in January, 1960, to Toccoa Falls Bible College in Toccoa, Ga. There, in 1963, he graduated and received a BA degree, with majors in theology and Christian missions.

While a student at Toccoa, Jack was awarded many honors, and his distinguished record displays his excellent scholarship and leadership abilities plus the willingness to work.

He was a member of the Oratorio Chorus, Student Ministerial Association, and Theta Pi Sigma, social fraternity, which he served as president in 1962. He also served on the President's Council and on a special student committee which drafted the constitution for the Student Government Association. To top it all, Jack was elected to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Upon graduation from Toccoa, Jack was employed as summer youth director for the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, Flint, Mich., where he was associated with the Intra - Varsity Christian Fellowship.

Not only Jack's college career, but also his high school career contained many honors. He graduated from Gadsden High School in 1959 in the top 10 per cent of his class. There he was a member of the Hi-Y, Student Council, and the National Honor Society. He also received several awards for scholarship and leadership ability.

In the spring of 1964, Jack

Methodist of Ensley while an undergraduate student at Birmingham - Southern, and during his seminary days was youth director at First Methodist Church, Monroe, Ga.

Since completing his work at Emory, in 1963, he has been associate pastor of First Methodist Church, Anniston. He has also served as interim pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church, Center Point.

At Birmingham - Southern, where he majored in psychology, Mr. Miller was vice president of the inter-fraternity council, president of Pi Kappa Alpha, social fraternity, member of the ministerial association and

At Emory he was associate editor of the school publication, "The Candler Advocate"; president of the dormitory council and inner residence hall for men; social actions chairman for the Student Government Association; and member of the honor council.

The new student minister is married to the former Margaret Fisher of Birmingham, a graduate of the University of Alabama, teacher of speech and debate coach at Anniston High School, and former religious education director at First Methodist Church, Anniston.

tional Honor Society. He also received several awards for scholarship and leadership ability.

In the spring of 1964, Jack entered Jax State to continue his education in English and history. After graduating from Jacksonville, he hopes to be able to attend a seminary, preparing for a career in Christian Education and youth work at the college level.

CAMPBELL

Currently Jack is serving as interim pastor of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church in Gadsden. On Aug. 21, 1965, he will be married to Gloria Edvenson from Fort Myers, Fla., who graduated from Toccoa Falls Bible College in 1964, with a BA in sacred music.

When asked his opinion of Jacksonville State, Jack replied, "I have become more aware of the problems that face so many young people since the majority of them go to college. Jacksonville State is an excellent school, with a capable and understanding faculty, but the faculty members are not miracle workers transforming indolent students into geniuses."

Commenting further on his observations Jack said, "The problem in the lives of most young people is that they are unable to find a meaning for their lives in the vast, complex world in which they find themselves. When a young person has adjusted to himself, and finds meaning in life, socially, spiritually, emotionally, and intellectually, he acquires the peace which everyone seeks."
