Education Majors Hear Dr. Meadows

It was old-home week for Dr. Austin R. Meadows, state superintendent of education, a Jacksonville State College on Wednesday when he arrived to make a scheduled talk to education majors at the college.

He found the auditorium filled with students and friends, and former associates were present to recall his early days as a student here.

Dr. C. R. Wood, former college dean, told of Dr. Meadows' athletic, academic and debating record. Dr. J. M. Anders, a former classmate, now chairman of the Division of Social Sciences, spoke of his contribution to education in the state, particularly his introduction of an accurate system of bookkeeping in the public schools.

Dr. Ernest Stone, superintendent of Jacksonville schools, a professional associate, pointed out that Dr. Meadows has given more than 40 years to education in the state; he has served as state superintendent longer than any other person; and he has

Alabama Education

Education has been in the news since Governor Wallace has asked for record appropriations for schools. Governor Wallace has also called for a guaranteed pay increase for teachers and free text books for elementary and secondary schools.

Most people seem to be in favor of some increase in the money appropriated for education. And it seems likely the legislature will pass a substantial increase in money allotted for schools and education.

Can it be that Alabamians are beginning to see the importance of education? Can it be that the people of this state are beginning to see that more money must be appropriated for further education? We have all heard the old saying, "The South is going to rise again." It is no longer conjecture, but established fact, that if that rise does come about, the South, including Alabama, must accomplish it through education.

It is not difficult for an Alabama college student to see the inadequacy of the education he received in elementary and secondary schools. Indeed it is not difficult for him to see the limitations placed on his college opportunities and curriculum because of a lack of money in the school system. These limitations resulting from inadequate finances are plainly evident here at Jax State. This recognition of the need for far better education systems is basic to substantial improvement upon the existing systems. Many of the people of Alabama have yet to realize that their sons and daughters are not getting the level of education that most students in other states are getting. Or perhaps they realize it but have done nothing about it.

Not unfrequent in Alabama is the sight of school children going from door to door selling flower seeds, candy, light bulbs, and cookies. With this money they buy things needed in the classroom recreational equipment, and other needed equipment. Certainly there is nothing wrong with students selling things for extra money for the classroom, but this is often not extra money--it is needed money! There have been Alabama schools in the last two years which could not be sure they could open their doors at the scheduled start of the year because of lack of bama.

Recently during the time when there were rumors that a large part of the Marshall Space Center would be moved from Huntsville, NASA director James Webb stated that the move was being contemplated because of a lack of personnel with higher education in Alabama. Whether this statement was true may be debated but the fact remains that this statement could not only be made, it was accepted by many people as proof that the people of Alabama are uneducated.

Should the state furnish free text books for all elementary and secondary schools? All students, no matter what the economic station in life, deserve the same opportunities to obtain an education. It would seem that this end would be accomplished much easier and quicker through having the state supply them; it might possibly be cheaper, since the state would buy in such great quantities.

Students here at Jacksonville need not look far to ascertain the urgent need for increased expansion and construction of additional facilities. This problem is prevalent all over Alabama. JSC will turn away several hundred applicants next year simply because the current facilities are not adequate. This is not restricted to housing, it extends to the need for a larger faculty and other important areas. This means that many prospective students will be detained from attending college, many of them will lose interest during the waiting period and never make it to college. This is extremely regrettable because Alabama needs, now more than ever, all the educated people she can produce.

If Alabama is to continue to make progress in the field of education, and hence, progress in the national esteem, the people of Alabama must be willing to pay. All these situations can be corrected only with more money and a lot of hard work. But first of all there must be more money.

Should all of Alabama's citizens have to contribute to education through increased taxes? Should people who have no children in school be forced to share the burden of increased revenues for schools? It stands to reason that a more educated Alabama will be a more prosperous Alabama; and a more prosperous Alabama

Appraisal Of JSC Library

In the last edition of the Collegian, it was noted that the JSC library had received a grant of $1,000 in the form of equipment from the Association of College and Research Libraries. Perhaps while we have the library in the spotlight a general appraisal of its facilities would be worthwhile.

According to Miss Bennett, the director, the library now contains nearly 100,000 volumes. It subscribes to over 500 periodicals, with past issues of many in bound volumes. Government publications complete the list of materials and books.

The equipment which the library received through the grant was microcard readers and selected microcards. An increase in the use of microcards is expected in the future because of the space-saving aspect of this device. A number of pages are printed in microscopic letters on each small card. The microcard reader projects this card onto a screen the size of an ordinary sheet of paper. Thus, a whole book can be in the form of a comparatively few cards. Microcards will also allow the library to obtain old and out-of-print works.

In an attempt to keep abreast of the expansion of the college and the rapid increase of the student body, the library has added over 7,000 books per year for the past several years. The number of periodicals and government publications have also been increased.

This year there have been a decided increase in the circulation of books and other material. The library sometimes checks out over 800 books in one day--nearly double the circulation of last year. That more students are visiting the periodicals room and using more current periodicals would seem to indicate that students are rounding out their reading with recent information.

A good library is essential to college education. It is the resource which fills in the details and goes above and beyond what is found in the textbooks and classroom. Indeed, the classroom serves as the foundation for excellent education, but the expansion of excellence must come from another source. Anyone should know that the library is the best source for expansion of this excellence. The increased use of the library

What Are You Leaving To Be Remembered By?

Recently Esther, who was in my classes from 1921-1925, sent me a news clipping about the death of Graham, one of the boys from the gang, who had, thirty-odd years ago, married Katherine, one of the leading girls in the group.

For the above four years we had been quite close to her whole family.

In acknowledging the letter of condolence which I sent, Katherine put this characteristic bit:

"I am sending you something and I bet you won't have the slightest memory as to the history behind it.

"When you were leaving Bay St. Louis on the ferry, as I remember it, we all went down to each was consistent in the quality of work he did; each was an active leader in constructive campus activities; each was frank, friendly, and sincere. Not one of them smoked--few students at Jacksonville did smoke during the 1930's.

One present leader in the Alabama senate is remembered because whenever there was a chance to talk in class he had a constructive contribution to give; and whenever there was an opportunity to participate in a speaking contest or debate on the campus he tried to be one of the speakers. He wanted to speak and to be known for intelligent constructive leadership.

Some are remembered because money! There have been Alabama schools in the last two years which could not be sure they could open their doors at the scheduled start of the year because of lack of funds with which to operate. This is a deplorable situation in a time when education plays the great role it now does in life.

There has been a marked tendency of graduates of Alabama colleges to move because these other states offer more financial advantages. If this intellectual drainage is to be stopped, the state of Alabama must make it more profitable to teach in Ala-school be forced to share the burden of increased revenues for schools? It stands to reason that a more educated Alabama will be a more prosperous Alabama; and a more prosperous Alabama means the people of Alabama will be more prosperous. Thus, it is an endless circle.

Praise is due Governor Wallace and all who have helped him in demanding more appropriations for education. Perhaps this is the beginning of a great move forward for the state. Let us hope that such efforts will continue.

English Conference

The Association of College English Teachers of Alabama opens its 17th annual conference at Alabama College in Montevallo on March 26. Jacksonville State College will be represented by Dr. William J. Calvert and Dr. Frank Rainwater of the English department.

Dr. Rainwater will participate in a panel discussion on the topic "Freshman English for the Poorly Prepared Student.;; Dr. Calvert is also on the program, taking part in a similar panel discussion on "Freshman English for the Advanced Student." Other topics up for consideration by the conference include the English Major, The Teaching Load of English Teachers, and Graduate Study in English.

Leading English teachers of all Alabama colleges are on the program.

Dr. Calvert To Give Lecture

Pi Epsilon Chapter of Sigma Tau Delta will present Dr. William J. Calvert, Jr., in a lecture on "The Dictionary and the Language" in Mason Hall performance center on Monday night, March 1, at 7:30 o'clock.

Dr. Calvert will discuss the new Webster's Third International Dictionary and the controversy it has caused in certain intellectual circles.

This will be the second in a series of lectures by members of the language division on literary subjects. In December Dr. Pauline O'Brien spoke on "Hamlet; Shakespeare's Most Controversial Character."

The public is invited to attend.

"It Went Over Like"

All of us have heard the expression "It went over like a lead balloon." We feel that this is becoming trite and that Jacksonville State should have some "it went over like" expressions of its own. Listed below are some of the new "it went over likes":

--like asking Dean Montgomery to skip semester exams.

--like folding, spindling, or otherwise mutilating IBM cards at registration.

--like wearing short shorts into the library.

--like the "Southerners" refusing to play "Dixie" at a ball game.

--like making a local call from Pannell Hall after 10 p.m.

--like having a peaceful weekend on second floor in Logan.

--like having a dirty spot on the floor in Rowan.

--like having a restriction (period).

Can you think of some?

of excellence must come from another source. Anyone should know that the library is the best source for expansion of this excellence. The increased use of the library by the students shows that at least a part of the student body recognizes this fact.

This increased use of the library has shown, too, the inadequacy of the library in meeting demands of the students. Even with all the increases in books and other materials there are still insufficiencies. For instance, American history is an area which is often found to be lacking.

The library employs seven full-time and one half-time librarians. They are aided by 36 student assistants. They do a fine job, but the number of personnel is not enough. Sometimes the librarians can be found doing work which they should not be bothered with simply because they do not have enough help.

Everyone who uses the library has noticed how crowded it gets sometimes, with practically all chairs taken. The national standard for seating in college libraries is 20 per cent of the student body. Right now the JSC library seats less than 5 per cent of the student body. The situation is bad now, but if all the students used the library, it would be acute. The new wing of the building which was added in the fall of 1963 was inadequate when it was opened.

If the students of JSC are to have the library which they need and deserve, one adequate in its services, resources, and space, there must be a lot of expansion and soon. The library cannot do this on its current budget. Indeed, it is to the credit of the staff that they provide the services which they now give the students. More funds must be made available to the library which is the foundation stone of all knowledge.

Jacksonville State College is moving up in the world quickly. Let's hope that this rapid growth is not retarded because of the lack of intellectual nourishment which the library must provide.

FOUND: One Physical Science book, lost by owner during first two weeks of second semester. Owner may claim by giving adequate description of book and circumstances of loss. See Dean Willman.

I bet you won't have the slightest memory as to the history behind it.

"When you were leaving Bay St. Louis on the ferry, as I remember it, we all went down to tell you goodbye and I said I didn't have anything to remember you by. You reached down and pulled the shoe string out of your shoe, and this is it. . . ."

The string was wrapped about a card on which appears my name and May 29, 1925.

Why will people remember you?

I remember Katherine because she is an important character in so many pleasant pictures along the walls of memory's gallery. She was a good student, a superior basketball player, a girl with common sense, judgment, purpose, leadership, strong character, and a delightfully stimulating wholesome outgoing personality.

What are you doing to make people wish to remember you?

There are, of course, countless reasons for a persons being remembered, and different individuals might remember one for quite diverse and distinctive abilities, qualities, or acts. I try to remember the fine qualities and distinctive accomplishments of the people with whom I have associated.

From among the boys who have been in my classes I know of four college presidents. Every one of them could be remembered because of strength of character and determination. Each worked at whatever was available to help earn money to pay college expenses; each lived as frugally as feasible; to participate in a speaking contest or debate on the campus he tried to be one of the speakers. He wanted to speak and to be known for intelligent constructive leadership.

Some are remembered because of some incident concerning the person or group with whom, or which, they associated. One day a business-man came to me and said, "Do you know student X?" "Yes, fairly well," I replied. "Whom does X associate with?" he asked.

I replied that in recent months I had often seen X with S.

To which he asked, "Would you call that association a recommendation?"

Would being seen with you be a recommendation for another person?

Two men from my classes are remembered because I indorsed their notes at the bank. Later I paid the notes to stop the interest on them.

Are you laying a foundation so that you will be admirably remembered because of qualities of scholarship, strength of character, desirable leadership, wholesomeness of personality, sincerity of interest in individual and institutional development and welfare?

Today you are being and becoming the person with whom the rest of life is to be spent; the person who will be remembered?

Remembered; How, and Why??

College is to raise the standard of living; but far more important to improve the quality of life.

BSU Plans Summer Missions Program

This year as usual the Alabama BSU'ers have gone all out in planning their summer missions program. The State Missions Committee has named ten outstanding students from colleges and universities across the state to spend their summer witnessing for Christ both at home and abroad.

Those named to go were: from Jacksonville State College, Fannie Lee Fuller, Lafayette, who will serve in the Philippines; from Troy State College, Dean Henry Byrd, Jr. who will serve in Indonesia; from Auburn University, Lawrence Lee Corley, who will serve in Pakistan; and from Howard College, Mary Ann Chandler, who will serve in Malawi. Betty Lynn Reese of Auburn University, Jean Kirkpatrick of Judson College, Janis Murphy of Alabama College, and Larry Ray Walker of Auburn University are to serve at the Baptist Children's Home in Troy. Eva Merel Sellers and Kenneth Veazey of Howard College will serve with the migrant workers in Alabama.

This year we of Jacksonville State College have a special interest in fulfilling our goal of $550 for summer missions. The money which we raise will help to send Fannie Lee Fuller, a senior this year at JSC, to the Philippines. So far we have only collected $150 toward our goal. By giving freely to the summer missions program, the Baptist student can be a part of sending students like Fannie Lee to the mission fields of the world.

Look at your hands. Are they as pretty as they could be? When was the last time you gave yourself a manicure? Not just a quick filing and a dash of polish, but a complete manicure?

The bodysupplies little natural oil to the backs of your hands or to the wrists; therefore, it is necessary that you supply it. When the weather is cold and windy or when your hands are in water frequently, it is advisable to use lotion often and liberally. Smooth the lotion from fingertips to wrists making sure you work it into your cuticle. Make a habit of creaming your elbows each time you do your hands. They are another part of the body that has no natural oils.

For a lasting manicure hold a cotton pad saturated with polish remover against your nails for a few seconds. Then wipe off the softened polish, working from the cuticle up. Use an emery board to shape nails. Be careful not to get them too narrow at sides or too pointed at the tips. Using a fine emery board stroke the underside of the nails to remove the thin nail lining. Apply cuticle remover not only to the outer cuticle but also to the underside of the nails (An oily remover is best.) Wash the hands in warm water to remove the dead cuticle, then dry thoroughly. When you don't use a cuticle remover do use an orange stick to gently push back the cuticle. NEVER use a sharp implement; you can easily injure cuticle with one.

Cover the nail and under-nail tip with base coat. It should be heaviest at the nail ends to prevent chipping. After the base coat dries--be sure it is dry--apply either one or two coats of color depending on the depth of shade desired. Most brands of nail polish double as base coats and top coats. After you have applied the final coat, keep your hands idle for five minutes. This is to allow enough time to complete drying and thus preventing smearing or denting the polish.

HAND - SAVERS: Wear gloves whenever you go outdoors in winter. Practice exercising your hands to keep fingers from becoming stiff. Make a practice of using hand lotion daily.

Annual Meeting

Annual Meeting

Held For Library

School librarians and student assistants from high school in seven northeast Alabama counties met here in February for the annual meeting of Alabama School Librarians, District VI.

During registration, 32 librarians and 224 student librarians were welcomed by Mrs. John R. Stewart, assistant professor of library science, and Miss Doris Bennett, head librarian, who were hostesses.

Mrs. Hugh Rice of Oxford, district president, presided.

Mrs. M. D. Thomas of Fort Payne High School was elected president of District VI for 1965-66; Mrs. Woodrow Albea, Jacksonville High School, vice president; Miss Ollie Brindley, Crossville High School, secretary-treasurer.

The student library assistants elected Nita Roberson, Glencoe High, president; Anita Whitley, Oxford, vice-president; and Ann McMahan, Hokes Bluff, secretary-treasurer. Debra New, Centre, the retiring president, presided over the election.

Three college library science students, Mary Jane Baker, Centre; Janet Fisher, Rome, Ga.; and Phyllis Hall Shingleton, Fort McClellan, spoke to the high school students about library work.

Miss Martha Blackshear, state library consultant, emphasized the growing need for librarians and encouraged students to chose library work as a career.

Mrs. Stewart spoke to the adult group on "What's New in the Library Field".

Tours were conducted to the Ramona Wood Library and the new International House and luncheon was served in Cole Center.

Before adjournment the visitors were entertained with music and dancing by three international students. Virginia Mayorga, El Salvador; Henrik Tham, Sweden; and Alain Chandelier, France.

Cadet Wayne White, a freshman from Sylvania, has been named "Cadet of the Month" for February. Wayne is majoring in mathematics and minoring in chemistry. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas White.

Book

Opie Read: American Humorist by Prof. Robert L. Morris of the University of Arkansas was released by Helois Book Publishing Co. on Feb. 28.

Opie Read was editor of the phenomenally successful humor magazine The Arkansas Traveler for two generations. Because of its reputation, Read became a much-sought-after lecturer on the famous Chautauqua circuit. He was also the author of a series of hastily-written but robust and humorously flavored novels which reached a large and devoted public.

Prof. Morris discovered the attraction of Read's works when delving into Arkansas folklore and history, and he raises the serious question of why no sampling of Read's voluminous output is included in most anthologies of American literature offered to students.

Prof. Morris, author of the book, is professor of English and American literature at the University of Arkansas and is the author of several plays dealing with the creative careers of Thomas Wolfe, Henry James and Stephen Crane.

lighted senior--Michael L. Dorsett. Mike, as he is called by nearly everyone (except while on the drill field), comes from a military family, is a distinguished military student, and plans a military career. Mike has been a member of the ROTC rifle team and is presently a member of Scabbard and Blade, an honorary military society for ROTC cadet officers.

Mike has, along with his many military activities, proved himself quite versatile. He is a member of the Circle K, a service organization affiliated with Kiwanis International. Mike majors in history and minors in sociology. His minor has proved to be very helpful, for since his junior year, Mike has been a counselor in Glazner Hall.

Mike Dorsett is perhaps best known for his work with his "first love", the Ranger Battalion. Although he was a member of the Pershing Rifles for one year, Mike has been actively involved with the Ranger program since its beginning three years ago. He became the commanding officer of the Ranger unit last September, and has devoted much time and energy to the further establishment of the Rangers at Jacksonville.

Those who know Mike sometimes wonder if he were actually born, or if he were requisitioned from a supply sergeant at an army base somewhere. It is certainly true that Mike, in his position as cadet captain, sometimes seems to bear this belief out. Mike and his parents, Chief Warrant Officer and Mrs. Lester Dorsett and his sister Marian have been transferred to and from many army bases both in the United States and in Europe. Mike grew up on bases in Mineral Wells, Tex.; Biloxi, Miss.; Columbus, Ga.; Fort Bragg, N.C.; Newport News, Va.; Miami, Fla.; and Frankfurt and Nuremburg, Germany. Mike admits, that because he has been here longer and knows many people, both on campus and in town, he feels closer to Jacksonville than any other place.

Of all his obligations, Mike feels none more keenly than his position as counselor to the freshmen that live in his dormitory. For as "Gung Ho", as Cadet Captain Michael L. Dorsett may be.

ACC TOURNAMENT CHAMPIONS

Jax State Cagers Captures ACC Tournament Title With 73-71 Win

The Jacksonville State College Gamecocks basketball team are the newly crowned Alabama Collegiate Conference Tournament champions by virtue of a thrilling 73-71 victory over St. Bernard, on Feb. 27, at Athens.

The Jaxmen ended the season with a nine-game winning streak and an overall final record at 16-6. This is one of the best coaching jobs done by basketball coach Tom Robinson. This was supposed to be a rebuilding year also for the young inexperienced Gamecock team.

Bill Jones was the man of the hour as his 25-foot shot with five seconds left in the game gave Jax State their second ACC title since the foundation of the conference. A marvelous job was done by Charles Ayers who hit seven straight points when the Gamecocks were trailing by seven points. These points tied the game up with only 2:30 left to play.

Jones also paced the Jax team by collecting 19 points. Paul Trammel and Fred Lovvorn followed behind Jones with 14 points each. Terry Owens, who was lost on fouls late in the second half had 13 points. Roger Pate who played a brilliant defensive game had six points, and Charles Ayers the sixth man had the seven points which he hit without missing.

The game featured two jumped off into a quick lead, but the fast breaking Saints, behind the shooting of Guard Trent Chandler, and rebounding of Charles Maples trailed the Gamecocks by a score of 39-37 at the half.

The second half saw Terry Owens get into foul trouble early, and the Saints used his absence to pull up with J'ville and when Owens fouled out with around seven minutes left to play in the contest the Saints enjoyed a seven-point lead, the biggest lead of either team during the game. Charles Ayers replaced Owens and pumped seven quick points into the basket to tie up the score at 71-71. After St. Bernard missed a shot, Pate grabbed the rebound and the Gamecocks froze the ball for the next two minutes and 30 seconds. Finally Jones shot with only enough time on the clock for only one play. The shot was good giving the Jacksonville State Gamecocks a win and the first place trophy.

Baseball Team Sees Action

The Jacksonville State Gamecock baseball team opens its 1965 season tomorrow, playing a double header with Howard College of Birmingham, at 1 o'clock at the new field. Last season the Gamecock baseball team rolled past seven clubs while suffering defeat from Troy, Florence, Howard, and Livingston. The team lost five of its six pitchers and three of its infielders. Coach Wedgeworth and the team will have a big task in store to match last year's record of 7-4.

The returning lettermen this year are Larry Golden and Randy McCord, catchers; Clyde Jenkins and Dennis Love, infielders; Larry Patterson, Bobby Martin and Jerry Ware in the outfield and Jimmy Grigg who will be pitching.

Coach Wedgeworth will have some time to get his boys in shape after the season starts because he will be playing 20 games. Two games are slated for March, six for April, and seven for May. All of the home games will be played at 2 o'clock on the new field except for double-headers which will begin at 1 o'clock.

Intramural News With Mac Parsons

The deadline for volley ball teams to enter the tournament has passed. The only team entered at this time is the Big Joe's coached by Tom Ballard from Mentone.

Anyone who would like to play in a tournament should contact Coach Stevenson. If there isn't one planned it will be considered. If you don't have one in mind remember if you can't play a sport be one.

Pershing Rifles Marched In Venus Parade

Jacksonville State college's Pershing Rifles Company marched in the Venus Parade on Saturday during Mardi Gras festivities in New Orleans, and again in the Isis Parade on Sunday. The Sunday parade was seven miles long.

The company left Friday morning in chartered busses for New Orleans under the direction of Capt. Gordon Nabriga, of the ROTC staff, and Miss Gerrye Clegg, women's counselor.

In the group were eight officers of the drill team, 30 members, and four sponsors. Expenses of the trip were paid by members who have had a number of money-making projects this year.

The company ranks No. 1 among the 16 companies located at Auburn University, Georgia Tech, Florence State, Clemson College, and the University of Chattanooga.

This is the second trip the unit has made to Mardi Gras in New Orleans, and last year it was selected as the most popular unit in the parade it marched in.

Razorbacks Beat Studs

The Razorbacks beat the Studs 58-51 to win the Intramural Basketball Tournament. Winston Massey, of Collinsville, was the coach of the winning team. He was presented a trophy by youthful Coach Stevenson.

Chuck Jennings of Jacksonville, Richard Johnson of Oxford, Bird Bellamy of Gadsden, Allan Stevenson of Gorgas, Jimmy Wilson of Pisgah, and Porky Turner of Montgomery were the outstanding players for the Razorbacks.

Coach Jim Grigg of the Studs comment was only, "Them that's got it is them that gets it, and they had it." He went on to say Scotty Harrison put on the best performance for the losers.

Grigg cut the interview short because of a trip he had planned to Lenlock.
