Jan Garner reigns as Queen

Pretty Miss Jan Garner, a sophomore from Jacksonville, is recognized again as an outstanding beauty, this time by the cadets of Jacksonville State's ROTC program. The green-eyed, brown-haired beauty was the first alternate in the 1967 Miss Mimosa contest, and she has been featured by THE CHANTICLEER as a "Gem of the Hill." A member of the JSU Rifle Team, she also has the distinction of being the top riflewoman in the state.

Some of the highlights are:

1. In February of 1967, the new ROTC cadet team is under the direction of Captain Johnson. With its incorporation in the ROTC Department's participation in the activities of the university, these highlights are:

Continuing with administration, Mrs. William B. Henderson received recognition for her outstanding work as secretary of military science at JSU.

In December of 1966, the ROTC Department held an awards ceremony in which Mrs. Donald McMillan accepted decorations, posthumously awarded to her husband, a former graduate of JSU for heroic actions in Viet Nam.

With his injured right hand, Vice President Humphrey hands the American Red Cross Award of Service to Gus Edwards, dean of students, who is representing Jacksonville State University during the recent Birmingham Regional Red Cross Laminche. The certificate was awarded to JSU for its outstanding participation in drives to collect blood for the American fighting men in Viet Nam.
Kenneth Kifer’s Caves

A number of CHANTICLEER readers have asked about the subject matter of Ken Kifer’s regular column, “Around Jacksonville.” The purpose of “Around Jacksonville” is to present columns of relaxation and enjoyment available to the students who stay for the weekends.

Kifer feels that the only forms of entertainment to be found off-campus and “around Jacksonville” are those of “rock-sounding,” “clip-song,” and watching. The lack of any form of entertaining in the City of Jacksonville forces Ken out of his comfort zone. It is possible, though highly improbable, that we have overlooked some regular weekend entertainments. If anyone has information that the courts are open to a limited number of enthusiasts, and there is always a few around to play bridge in.

All the City provides beyond the pool halls is a large, circular line called the city limits. And beyond the city limits lies, nothing—nothing else but the rocks, trees, birds, caves, cliffs, and quiet, quiet...

We believe that any reader who condemns Kifer’s column has never stayed a weekend for the “treatment.” At least Kifer has found SOMETHING to do.

BSU plan spring events

It’s spring again, and with the coming of spring we are also reminded of the activities of the Student Government Association. Last year, about this time, the students of Jax State worked on plans for the current year’s events. Some of the more important ones are: There are certain precedents to the long, faithfully felt left out of the room and feel that they should be able to keep it quiet.

The executive council of the SGA, under the leadership of Mr. Philip MacMahan and Leonard Roten, BSU director, are particularly concerned with inspiration. To help in this, they have attended the meetings before can spring would be an excellent opportunity to work in fun, inspiration, and fellowship. It is possible, though highly improbable, that we have overlooked some regular weekend entertainments. If anyone has information that the courts are open to a limited number of enthusiasts, and there is always a few around to play bridge in.

The deadline for candidates is Wednesday, April 12.

Rose no blushing violet

"I'm not going to sell out," says Dr. Rose, University of Alabama President. He has become the focal point of a struggle between students who wish to deny them this right. Alabama legislature, some members of which seek to deny them this right.

It ranks some members of the legislature that the students presented both sides of arguments in a judicious manner. Evidently these legislators have been members of fraternities, while other students have not had any experience with them.

By the upcoming fall semester fraternities will supposedly be set up on campus. Some students who have transferred from other schools have been members of fraternities, while other students have not had any experience with them.

Let's catch up with the times

One of the favorite pastimes of our local police is the harrassment of the lover. What a joy they receive when they shine a flashlight in a parked car in the outskirts of Jacksonville.

Other universities in Alabama provide space for the student and his date. Along with his parking place they are not molested.

What is wrong with the University? Are we too aristocratic to allow a couple to be alone in the dark? It seems as if it would be better for the student to be on the campus than off on some deserted back road.

Then, of course, there is the matter of girls visiting boys in their apartments. Recently a few girls were caught in a boy's apartment and, consequently were put on a year's probation. What would be wrong with sending a letter home asking permission to visit in the apartments? There are no many political candidates endorse THE CHANTICLEER back.

As for your idea of a radio station on campus, the students can do it. They do not even use their newspaper. But they do complain about a lack of communication.

Sincerely yours,

David Cory

Mrs. Shead receives appointment

Mrs. Slead has been appointed the first chairman of the Alumni Affairs of Jacksonville State University. Mrs. Slead, of Centre, has served as president of the Jax State Alumni Association for the past two years. Currently an elementary school teacher, she will take over her duties on April 3.

Dr. Houston Cole, Jax State, said, upon making the announcement, "We are delighted that Mrs. Slead will be handling our alumni affairs. Her past work with our alumni will surely be an asset to all of us.

Other examples of the changes are additional washers and dryers in the dorms; washing machines in Dautge and Pansote, halls that were not previously had machines; a no-free attendance for students to attend all Student Council meetings.

Rehearsals are going full blast

The thunder of drums, the clash of cymbals, and the blaring of trombones filled the Mason Hall's Performance Center and in the Jacks Auditorium as rehearsals go forward for the forthcoming production of "The Music Man." The show promises to be exciting, and the moment the curtain goes up, the show opens with "Professor" Harold Hill, inexcusable super-salesman of band equipment and uniforms, aboard a train bound for River City, cleverly he intends to hoodwink the town into believing he is a bandmaster and he convinces the people that the new pool hall is a threat to the welfare of the community. His most convincing argument is "If you get trouble right here in River City with a capital 'T' and that rhyming with 'B', and that stands for 'Pooh Hill.'" Hill's plot is to sell his band equipment by persuading the citizens that they must have a "boys" band to keep the boys away from mischief in the pool hall.

The "Professor" runs into three possible sources of trouble: (1) the mayor who wants to disrupt the forward movement of his pool hall; (2) four town councilmen who have been assigned to straighten up River City; and (3) Mrs. Christmas, familiar already to many students on campus.

She is presently working toward a Class B secondary teacher's certificate, thus fulfilling Mrs. Christmas' long-cherished dream. In 1948, she graduated from Howard College with a degree in business administration, and then took her place as minister's wife and mother of Charles Merry, Jr. and Margaret Merry. The church urged by her husband, she took her place as minister's wife and mother of Charles Merry, Jr. and Margaret Merry. As a full-time student, she is preparing to make her secondary teacher's credential. Mrs. Christmas' dedication and her friends are genial. She appreciates their friendliness and geniality. She finds the students enthusiastically in favor of her, and they are genial. They say she is so sweet of her and it is a good story for children.

Masque and Wig presents play

Jean Giraudoux's play, "Tiger at the Gates," received an excellent interpretation by Janet LeFevre and her Masque & Wig Players last week. In Giraudoux's play there is much in evidence this week. Mrs. Christmas, Mrs. LeFevre's Masque & Wig Players were enthusiastic and vociferous. They could not stop reading until the final sentence on the last page.

Bel Kaufmann wrote the novel in such a way that the reader becomes interested. He seems to be a part of the book. The auteur was so clever in her style that the book is not written in the usual manner for fiction. Instead, it tells of the day-to-day situations a young female schoolteacher faces by the use of letters, memos, scribbles, and jokes. It is hilariously funny.

Imagine a pretty, inexperienced English teacher coping with the problems of high school students, the wise, the over-sexed, the inferior, and the super-smart who have no desire to learn. Along with the humor is the serious, happy feelings mix with the sad.

If you have ever felt that you were going way and everyday else was going the other way, if you have even felt that you were going UP AND DOWN STAIRS for a wish of the wishing tree, if this were the style of those Victorian novels, you could read them with less effort. I guess when a child grows up, it is easier to understand the children's "wish things" and must read Romantic and Victorian novels. The WISHING TREE was written for a little friend of his and it is a good story for children.

It contains the things children love to read about: surprises, magic, terrors, and, above all, the wishing tree. If this were the style of those Victorian novels, you could read them with less effort. I guess when a child grows up, it is easier to understand the children's "wish things" and must read Romantic and Victorian novels. The WISHING TREE was published. THE WISHING TREE was written for a little friend of his and it is a good story for children.

The performance was received with good success, and was received with good reception. The audience and critics were well satisfied. The performance was well received. The WISHING TREE was written for a little friend of his and it is a good story for children.

Have you read something for pleasure lately? You know, something you read just because it was interesting. Believe me, because you needed to know answers for a test, if you have never done the CHANTICLEER reader, do not read it. THE WISHING TREE was written for a little friend of his and it is a good story for children.

The largest race in history is taking place right now. Every person who smokes tobacco is losing the race, not because of the faster speed of the other person, but because the smokers are dying before the finish line even comes into sight. The idea of getting cigarette smokers to abandon the habit until the cure is found proved unsuccessful. Current smokers, the test wishers.
