International House is "Little U.N."

Just what is International House at Jacksonville State University?

"A Little United Nations" might best describe this unique program.

Actually, the International Program is a Department of State-approved program in international information, education, understanding, appreciation and exchange of ideas and cultural knowledge.

Students from many countries around the world-- along with a similar number of American students-- make up the membership of the program. All of the students are enrolled with a full load of academic courses.

In addition, the students also take part in a series of forums, seminars, and social events-- formal as well as informal. This enables the students to learn about cultural habits, customs, attitudes, and ideals of all the students enrolled in the program.

Foreign students are carefully selected and all are given some type of scholarship. The American students in the program are also required to meet certain standards, but pay all their college expenses.

Each foreign student has an American roommate, and all students are required to invite persons from outside the program to many of the social events.

The foreign and American students usually become good friends, perhaps moreso than the average dormitory roommates.

There are currently 200-former members of the International House Program residing in 68 foreign countries.

Those who are acquainted with the International House Program recognize it as a "person to person" laboratory in human understanding and appreciation.

Its representatives from 18 countries, who profess 12 different faiths, respect each other's religion, while several of the countries are at war with each other.

In short, International House is a family of young men and women learning living, working and playing together. These students believe in the motto of International House "Know one another and you will love one another."

To Meet Growing Student Needs

Jacksonville State University has added several degrees to its curriculum since attaining university status Nov. 22, 1966.

Jax State now offers bachelor of science, bachelor of arts and bachelor of science in education degrees. In addition, the master of arts and master of science degrees are offered in several fields.

Graduate students may obtain the master of arts degree in history, English, political science and music. The master of science degree is offered in chemistry, biology and mathematics, and the master of science degree in education is offered in music, math, science, English, counseling, and physical education.

A new program was initiated Oct. 1, 1967 when Jax State took over the Anniston Memorial Hospital's school of nursing.

As a result of this new program, both degree and registered nurse certificates are now offered.

In order to obtain more doctorate degree holders, JSU is cooperating with Duke, Emory and Vanderbilt universities in a program known as DEV.

Eleven Jax State professors are currently enrolled at the three universities earning their doctor's degrees. The federal government pays for the faculty replacements, and those participating receive their regular salaries.

There are currently 5,000 students enrolled at Jax State, and 67 faculty and staff members were added this year to meet this increased enrollment.

the leadership and raised funds to construct the original International House on campus. This small bungalow is now used as the Alumni and Faculty building.

In the early 1960's, a campaign was begun to expand the International House Program, and to raise funds for a new building to house an expanded program.

The present International House - - the most unique building on campus - - is an outgrowth of these efforts. The board of trustees of the International Endowment Foundation raised approximately $200,000 toward construction and furnishings of the building campaign to raise funds to build the new building.

In October of 1964, the new Colonial-styled building was dedicated. Dr. William Calvert, Dr. Houston Cole, Col. C.W. Doughty, Jr., George Deyo, Dr. T. C. Morrison, Miss Mildred Parnell, Mrs. Gordon Silvey, Eugene Turner, William Word and Paul S. Robertson.

The new International House has living accommodations for 40 students. In addition, there are ample living rooms, memorial rooms, offices and study rooms. The International House is also equipped with a large kitchen, and dining room, which is the scene of various college functions.

Living Up to the Motto

Said Hissin and Gijbert Frankenhuys are typical students of the International House Program at Jacksonville State University. They are good friends, Said and Gijbert spend their Christmas vacations together.

The thing which makes their friendship unique is this -- Said is a Jordanian Christian and Gijbert is a Jew from Holland. While the Jews and Arabs are at war, these two students have become close friends through understanding of each other.

No foreign student who enrolls in the International House Program is asked or expected to conform to American ways of life. Students at the "Little U. N." are more interested in learning about customs than they are in changing them. Many foreign students wear their native costumes to class.

Foreign students are not restricted to take part in the wide variety of JSU functions. One International House student recently made the college tennis team, and another won first place in the Miss Mimosa Beauty Pageant, the annual contest sponsored by the JSU yearbook. They take part in parades, special shows, and the Student Government Association, the governing body of JSU.

In short, they are finding out in person what American democracy is really all about. Many are surprised to find it totally different from the way it has been broadcast to the world in recent years by news medias preoccupied by only the bad things.

The only sad thing about the International House Program happens at the end of each semester when students complete their work and have to return to their home lands. It is sad for the students to leave, but they must. Although many will never see their friends of International House again, the friendship the memories and the knowledge they received at Jax State will go with them to the four corners of the world.

It is the simple things that are making the International House Program successful at JSU -- things like Said and Gijbert's friendship -- things like a compact car, whose passengers include a Lebanese Moslem, an Israeli Jew, a Jordanian Christian, a German Catholic and an Alabama Baptist.

This brings to mind a serious question. If all the races of the world can live together in harmony under one roof, then why can't nations do accordingly?

If enough students participate in programs like International House at Jacksonville State University, then maybe someday the world can have lasting peace.

As the International House motto says: "To know someone is to love someone".

Their overall goal is $25,000.00 and when the goal is reached, it will be possible for this group to establish a perpetual annual scholarship to some young lady from a foreign country to participate in the International House Program of Jacksonville State University.

serving as state president of this organization is Mrs. J. L. Morrison of Greensboro. It is anticipated that the $25,000.00 goal will be reached this year.

During the past fourteen years, an annual scholarship has been awarded. Recipients have been: Odile Savicka, France; Nicole Noel, Morocco; Margaret Dewar, England; Maria

Guimaraes, Argentina; Tomiko Santo, Japan; Felix Balkir, Turkey; Susanne Hanon, Belgium; Anne Mari Buff, France; Margaret Stanton, Australia; Esparanza Vidal, Bolivia; Monique Volgeaar, Holland; Susana Ross, Mexico; Marketta Partenen, Finland. Renu Kappal of India is the present Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs "Scholarship Girl."

Pilot Club Scholarship Is Awarded

This year marks the first time for the award of the Pilot International Ruby Newhall Scholarship to a foreign student for membership in International House Program of Jacksonville State University.

Patricia Verano of Colombia is the recipient of this award. She is a graduate of the Karl C. Parrish School in Barranquilla.

The Huntsville Pilot Club, under the leadership of President Mary Cornell -- ably assisted by Dorothy Adair and the entire membership assembled all the data, executed the many, forms and presented the matter to the Pilot International Convention meeting in New Orleans during summer of 1967.

The Huntsville City Schools have established a school-to-school project, approved by the Department of State, with the Karl C. Parrish School.

It was through this international school-to-school project that the Huntsville Pilot Club became an annual award by Pilot International to a foreign student to participate in the International House Program.

Rotarians Hear Stewart

John Stewart, director of the International House Program, was guest speaker of the Fort Myers, Fla., Rotary Club in August of 1967.

Stewart was in Florida on vacation - - but took time to thank the Rotarians and their wives for having hosted students from the International House Program for the past 18 years during the Christmas vacation period.

Several International House students spent the two weeks period in the homes of various Rotarians and participated in virtually all the community activities associated with Christmas.

This year, the following students were guests of the Fort Myers Rotarians: Audur Danielsdottir, Iceland; Mourits Dahl Hansen, Denmark; Patricia Verano, Colombia and Said Hissin, Jordan.

"You have made a tremendous contribution to the success of our International House Program by having the students in your homes and community each year," Stewart told the Rotarians.

Social Dir. Visits Europe

Clara Stovall, Social Director of the International House Program, spent several weeks in Europe during the summer of 1967.

She visited England, Holland, Belgium, France, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, and Italy.

One of the highlights of her trip was a visit into the home of Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Becker, parents of Sunna Becker who has been a member of International House Program for the past two years.

Other highlights of the trip included: changing of the guard at the Buckingham Palace; an evening at the Palladium; visiting the Gothic Cathedral in Cologne; a tour of Salzburg, Austria with all its heritage in the arts and music; a ride in a gondola in Venice; a look at the Sistine Chapel in Rome; viewing the beautiful mountains and lakes of Switzerland, and finally a visit to the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

The climax of the entire trip, according to Miss Stovall, was the view of "The Lady with the Lamp" as her ship approached New York.

The trip is proving valuable as Miss Stovall continues her work at International House with the students from the countries around the world.

New Buildings Are Planned At Jacksonville State Univ.

Several new buildings are currently under construction to meet the increase in enrollment and added curriculum.

A new $1 million science hall was recently dedicated, and construction is well underway on a new student commons building and another girl's dormitory. The new dorm will be the 14th on the JSU campus, and will provide housing for 250 students.

Ground will be broken in the near future for a business administration building, and architects recently released a sketch of a seven-story library that is planned adjacent to the new science hall.

Founded during the Civil War as Jacksonville Normal School, much of the growth has come within the last few years. Only 119 students were enrolled in 1942 when Dr. Houston Cole assumed the presidency of Jacksonville State Teacher's College. At that time, only three buildings were located on campus.

Dr. Cole recently celebrated his 25th anniversary as president of the college, which now has nearly 70 major brick structures on its 301-acre campus.

Perhaps the most highly sought beauty title on the Jax State campus is "Miss Mimosa," the featured beauty in the school yearbook. Each campus organization nominates a candidate, and select newspaper and television personalities judge the lovelies at a pageant.

You'll Want To Get In On The JSU ACTION!

Diversity is the word for special events on the Jacksonville State University campus. Concerts, student forums, Governor's Day, Homecoming, dances and a variety of well known speakers help to liven things up at Jax State.

Band Day and the Student Conference on American Government (SCOAG) are other highlights of the college calendar.

The Student Government Association brings nationally-known orchestras and singing groups at regular intervals, and the college administration presents outstanding speakers from the fields of politics and journalism.

Previous speakers have included Paul Harvey, Dr. Walter Judd, Rev. Norman Vincent Peal, Douglas Edwards, Sander Vanocur, Edwin Canham, Barry Goldwater and many others.

Dr. Woodrow Sayre, grandson of the former president Woodrow Wilson; Cx Viveca Lindfors, Swedish award winning actress and other colorful personalities have appeared in recent years.

IN ADDITION, the spotlight is frequently on the 32 famous Jax State Ballerinas—the only group of its kind in Alabama. The Ballerinas perform with the Marching Southerners and at other school functions.

Jax State is always well endowed with an abundance of pretty co-eds, who vie for several beauty contest titles. The title of Miss Mimosa is perhaps the most coveted honor sought at the college. The winner is featured in a two-page color layout in the Jax State yearbook, Mimosa.

A "Miss Homecoming" is selected each fall from a field of lovely contestants and reigns over the annual homecoming game.

Each two weeks a "Gem of the Hills" is selected and featured in the college newspaper, The Chanticleer.

CIVIC MINDED

JSU students are also civic minded. The Red Cross Bloodmobile makes periodic visits here and the quota is always met by student volunteers.

For the past few years a United Givers Fund Campaign has been carried out successfully on campus.

Last year a joint beautification program was carried out between JSU students and the City of Jacksonville.

Cheer For Our Gamecocks, Lend A Hand To Old Santa

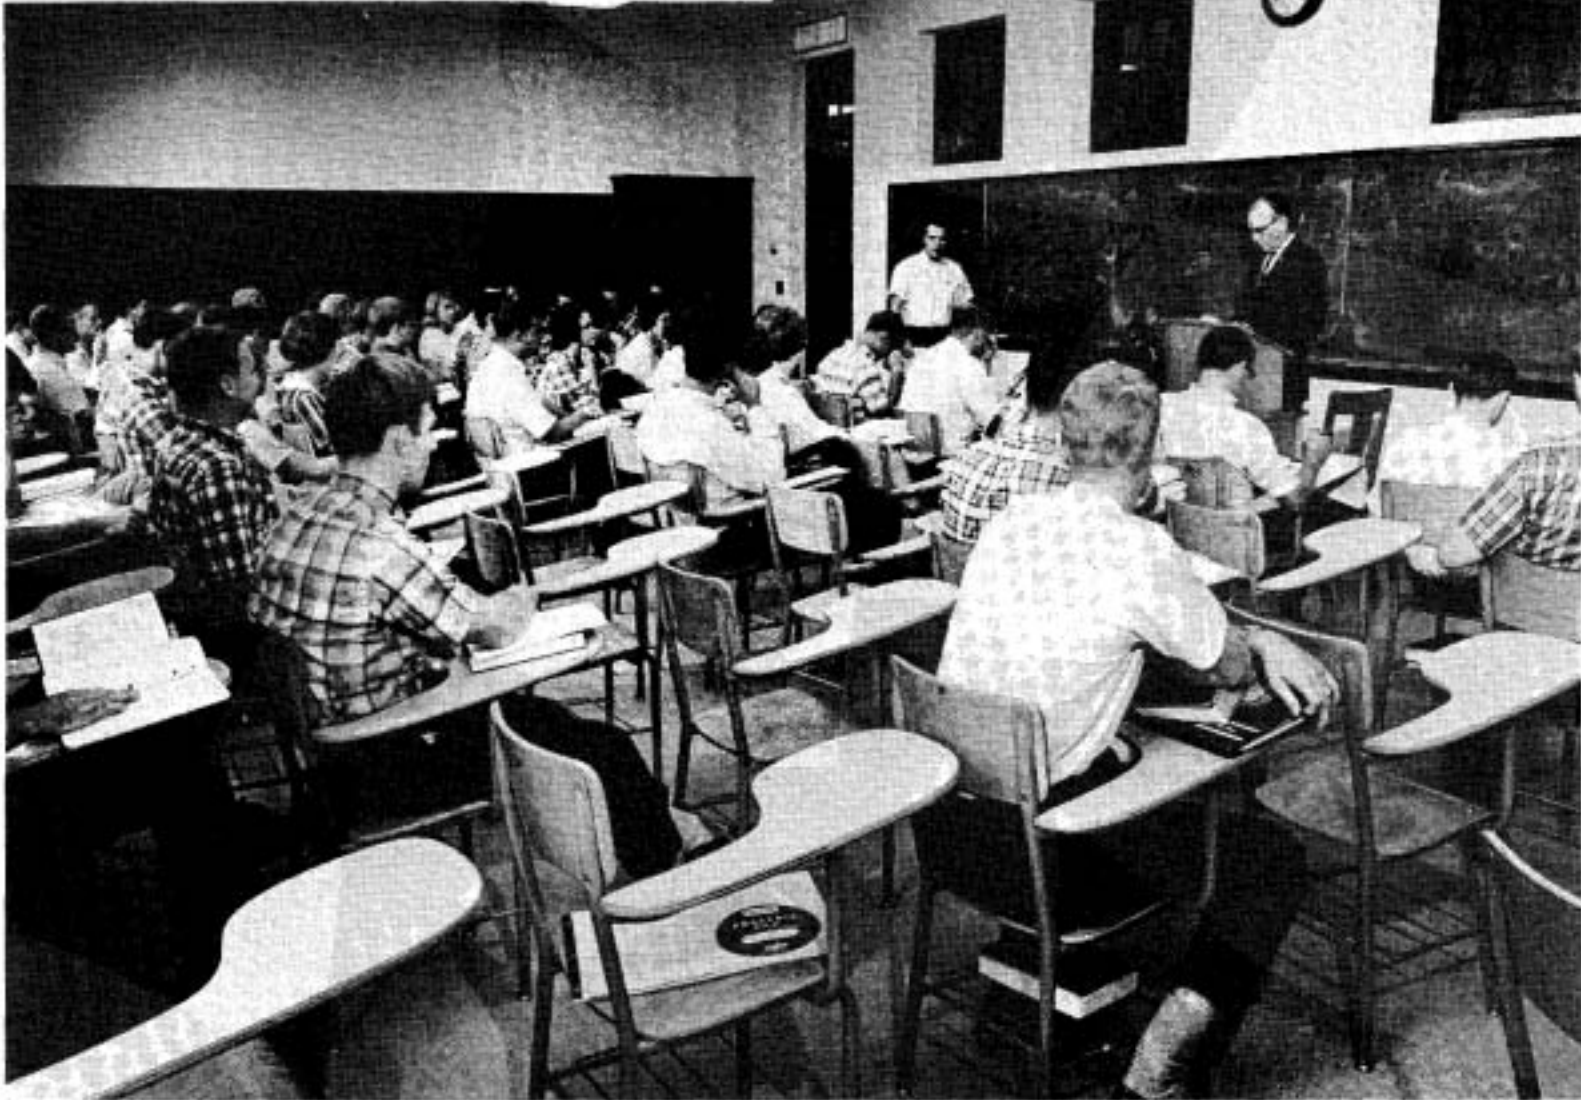

Jax State Cheerleaders lead the yells for all football and basketball games which the "Fighting Gamecocks" play.

A Christmas party for children whose fathers are serving in Viet Nam is held each year at Jax State and is financed solely by the student body. This patriotic gesture has grown by leaps and bounds during the last few years, as even the pre-school youngsters, as above, are invited.

Be A Scholar...

Jax State Has Spot For You in Sports

Play Or Watch For Thrills, Fun

Football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, softball, gymnastics, soccer, "touch" football, and many other sports are open to students at Jacksonville State University.

Besides being rated as one of the "top small college athletic centers in the Southeast," Jacksonville offers an intramural program second to none for both male and female Jax Students.

And should your taste run along the spectator line, playing in the band, or cheerleading, there's also a place for you at Jax.

Jacksonville's athletic plant includes a 12,000-seat football stadium, equipped with a modern lighting system, a modern athletic dorm completed in September of 1967, a 1,700-seat basketball arena, a beautiful baseball diamond, four tennis courts, and several intramural fields for "touch" football, softball, and other games.

Jacksonville cheerleaders are chosen by the student body. A new election is held each year. Band members and ballerinas are chosen by a committee after a series of tryouts.

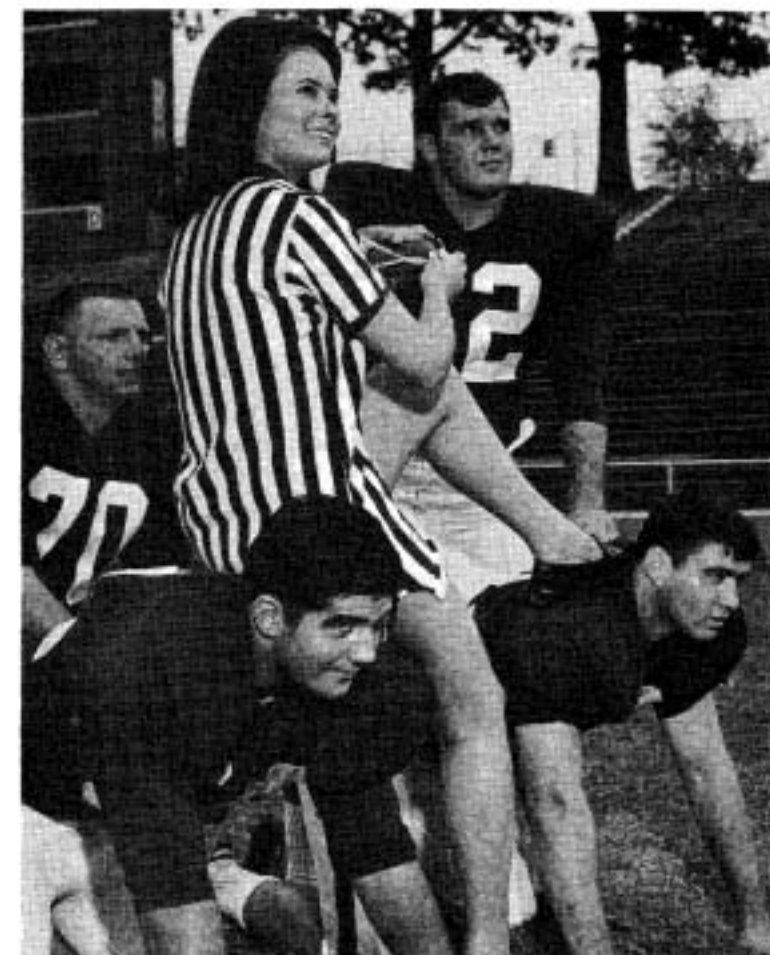

Gamecock football teams have played in several bowl games including the Paper Bowl (3 times) in Pensacola, Florida, Refrigerator Bowl in Evansville, Indiana, and the Space City Classic in Huntsville (1966).

Honors have been numerous for Jax athletes in both collegiate competition and intramural sports. Nine football players have won Little All-American recognition and 13 have signed professional contracts. Several have been invited to play in post-season all-star games, including the Blue-Gray and Senior Bowl.

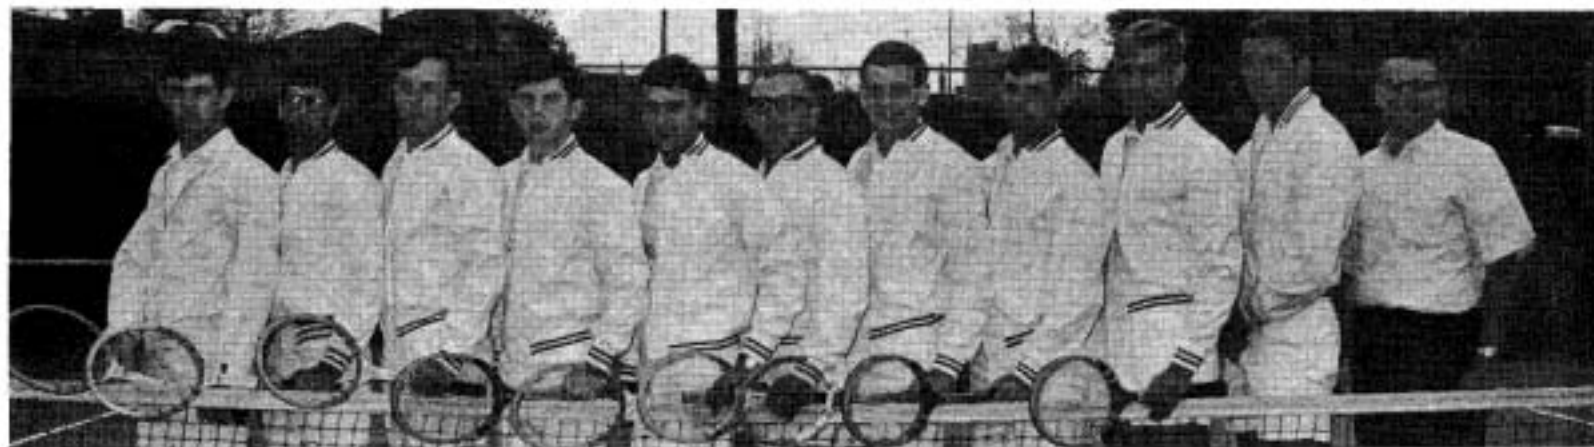

Jacksonville is a member of the Alabama Collegiate Conference and the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

New Sports Complex Is Planned

A giant sports complex is being planned at Jax State to meet the growing demands of the future.

Architects have completed preliminary plans for a field house which will seat over 5,000 people and a football stadium with a seating capacity of 25,000.

Paul Snow Memorial Stadium and Stevenson Gymnasium—the two present facilities—will be used for practice and intramural purposes once the new facilities are completed.

Construction on the new sports complex is scheduled to begin sometime in 1971.

The field house will have an olympic-size swimming pool, in addition to the basketball court and other modern athletic facilities.

Rotary Clubs Provide Many IH Scholarships

In 1955, the Rotary clubs of District 686, north Alabama, adopted a project to provide an annual scholarship of a young foreign student to the International House Program at Jacksonville State University. There are 34 Rotary clubs in the district, with a membership of approximately 2,000. Each Rotarian contributes $1 per year and the proceeds provide the funds for the annual scholarship.

Fritz von Bardeleben of Germany is the Rotary Scholarship recipient for the 1967-68 academic year.

In addition to the scholarship provided by District 686, many of the Rotary clubs and individual Rotarians have made and continue to make annual contributions to support the International House Program.

Recipients of the Rotary Scholarship in years passed have been:

Mohammed Ali Bouraled, Morocco; Martin Broadbent, England; Hanspeter Strauch, Switzerland; Uta Fritzsche, Germany; Merlyn Rumble, Australia; Franz Schneider, Austria; Jose Queimado, Portugal; Henrik Tham, Sweden;

Uffe Erikson, Denmark; Carlos Sanchez, Paraguay.
