Bath Tub Ring Is Uncovered

spirators has been uncovered by USJ's Jean Dackson. Women's Dorm rule that no one may take tub baths after II o'clock was found to be violated in 99 out of 100 cases here on the campus. The one exception was in Dog eat Dog Hall.
Dackson was reported to say that many of USJ's sweet innocents rights were being violated by the noise and disturbance caused by the tub baths. Such unpardonable and noisy violations as dropping soap into 3 inches water and the running said water was causing many young girls not to be able to "Pop their Dex" and study for the recent mid-term exams.

Counselors under the direction of Dackson reportedly caught 2000 embarrassed girls violating the rule. punishment for this starling offense will four months room restriction with bread and water twice a day. "It will be an improvement over what improvement Breaker we've been eating," said one convicted offender.

Those being punished will not be able to attend classes but will instead use USJ's closed circus TV system to listen to lectures. The added expense of the updating of the system to accommodate the 2000 girls will be 1 billion dollars, which will be taken out of the girls' activity fees.

Mr. Woodhay, direc tor of USJ's food service will personally ration out the bread and water to the coeds. This will save the cafeteria l billion dollars.

Result: Debit USJ 1 billion dollars.

Spokeswoman for the offenders was reported to have said that "We realize we were wrong and from now on we'll take showers." (At a noise increase of 500%).

The Bathtub Ring, as it is now being called by USJ's publicity office, has officially denied the whole incident and was quoted to have said: "No com ment! Don't call us we'll Dallas Hott, president of the USJ was shocked by the incident and immediately left for Washington to take a leave of absence.

Theron Money, dean of the school, was also shocked and immediately hired the entire U.S. Army WAC Corp to take over as interim counselors and professors in the school of dormitory regulations.
The following people had no comment:

Dean Ed Words, Char-ley Horse, Manuel Labor, Bad Bart Bransbush, and the entire faculty and remaining administration.
The board of trustees could not be reached.

Chief Hoss Lipton, head of the local police force, was one of the few peo ple who spoke out on the matter. The police of - ficer today released Lip ton's official statement as follows: "I would just like to say, that at this particular time, that I have no comment to make." He would not elaborate on this sweeping statement.

Remember the imortal words of William Randolph Hearst: "Show me a clean newspaper and I'll show you a parakeet with a problem."

Editorials

New Editor

In order to promote equality and at the same time give more students a say so in the politics of JSU, Martin Meance today said he is making the entire student body editors of the Chanticleer

the Chanticleer.
Said Menace: "By making everybody editor, we can have a better representation of what the real issues are, not just what our present staff of two and one-half think the issues are."

As the first step to initiate the program, Menace said he is allowing everyone to write an editorial in the blank space below. "We know there are some who don't like the editorials we write, so we are asking that everybody write editorials which they do like," Menace remarked. My editorial is:

Letter To The Editor

The following letters to the editor have been received in the past month by the Chandileer:

Miss Brans Brush, who recently purchased the old Alumni Office, is shown following her new purchase down Pelham Road. Asked why she bought the house, she said, "I've always had this urge to be hell on wheels."

NOTICE

This edition of the Chandileer is purely fiction. Any resemblance in names, photographs, or situations, to actual names, photographs, and/or situations is purely coincidental.

Chandileer

The Chandileer is published on alternate April Fool's Days under the supervison of the JSU Dept. of Journalism. Offices located in luxurious Hammond Hall.

Rules For Letters To The Editor

Hereafter, all letters to the editor will be subject to editing for clarity brevity, as Editor Martin Menace said that it's come to the point where we are going to have to in the very near not too distant future cut some of the meaningless paragraphs out of long lengthy letters to the editor to the Chandileer, of ficial student newspaper at Jacksonville State University, the friendliest campus in the South. Said Menace: "If the students would only take the Chandileer as a guide and model their letters after it then they would have no problem and could write clean decent letters which would not require hardly any editing on our part inasmuch as we would like to run everybody's letters I think everyone will agree that we have to draw the line somewhere."

ROTC Unfair With Tests

Over the years, the students with early classes in ROTC have been discriminated against. These poor cadets were always the ones to take the tests; copy down the answers and then pass them on to the rest of the brigade.

Those of us who are late risers always (and still do) appréciated their efforts. But, now is the time to end this gross injustice. We demand that the ROTC department from now on pass out copies of the test to all cadets in all sections. This will prevent any one group from being discriminated against.

We feel that this is the only fair way.

The Delta Thi this week announced their little sisters whose names will be withheld in this column pending notice of bail and besides that nobody cares anyway

Congratul: ions are in order for Sam Sprell, Steve Boyley and practically every other brother for their selection as outstanding ROTC cadets of the day.

Congratulations are also in order for the whole chapter for their last bash held at Not So Lonely Pines and 100% of the group and their dates were completely soused before the Il o'clock curfew. Jean Dackson chaperoned the party and called it a complete success.

The KO's took the whole brotherhood to the recent Frazier and Ellis heavyweight championship and were all koed before the second round.

Congratulations are in order to the entire brotherhood for not accomplishing one thing last month.

The party at Lenlock Shopping Center was a big success and the 5:59 rush that tore down the store can not be attributed to the KO's.

Plans are in the making now for a finals party to burn down the present house. The group will not only be better for it, but they can write it off for next year's taxes.

the Buzzies recently had a Mexican dinner followed by the initiation of the iniatitees, it was a heart-wearming experience. Buzzie Delta has been elected as the new president of the Buzzies; Sue "Do" Nothing is vice-president; Jane "Quick" Hands is the new secretary; Steala Bundle is the newly elected treasurer. We are confident these Buzzies will be a complete success or at least make a lot of noise.

Phi Phew recently had their formal installation of officers for the coming year. The formal dinner was held at the Anniston Bus Terminal, where selections from the Iron Butterfly were played on the juke box for entertainment. Following dinner, the group adjourned to Jacksonville, where they enjoyed a midnight snack at Tuma's.

Thousands Flock To First Annual J'ville Creek Marine Show

By Abraham T. Model

Amid much glitter streamers, the First An nual Jacksonville Creek Marine Show was a smashing success. Captain Davy Cole, proprietor of the tainment. stated "for show, size, this is the largest performance that we have ever given."

A delightful affair, the program began with a water polo match pitting some dolphins (which, it be confessed, looked like snails) against several Octopi, the Octopi win ning 7 to 2.

Snacks were served by a bevy of mini - bikinied girls, all of whom were at least eight years old.

_After the dolphin - Octopi affair, fanfare sounded and Mr. Monty Thery, world - renowned fish-ologist ascended the platform erected over the expanse of the creek, put a fish between his teeth and a porpoise leaped from the water and plucked out the morsel; unfortunately, Mr. Thery forgot that he has been wearing his false teeth. The porpoise discretely returned them.

The stars of the Marine Show, however, were the Mermaids, who received a standing ovation for their acquatic hand - stands. The greatest part of the ovation came when the head mermaid accidentlly shed her skin. Even Captain Cold leaped to his feet to ap plaud.

Closing out the per - formance was a rousing act by a hammerhead shark and an anvil fish who squished out a ringing rendition of The Anvil Chorus'

We have been informed that due to circumstances beyond some people, there will be no Second Annual Marine Show. At the close of the performance, Mayor claim to fame in the sporting world is her "Million-Dollar" Sports Complex. To the students of this University, this is a source of pride unequaled in the annals of man.

Jax Proud Of Its Sports Complex

Jacksonville State's main

Is there a student among us who does not gaze in reverant awe at the imposing facade of our gymnas ium? This beautifully styled building is an inspiration to any architect who may be so lucky as to gaze upon it. Built in the classical post Civil War architectural designs of the reconstructionists, this building is used for all home Basketball games.

Jax State's baseball stadium is truly a miracle of engineering and design. Set in the picturesque forest across the street from the Campus Main, the stadium radiates its glory for miles around. One cannot even see this stadium until he has almost fallen into it, through the spiked fence. Jax State has one of the finest base ball teams in this part of the country, and this cow - pasture like field, full of chuck holes, is truly a tribute to their prowess on the diamond.

Then there are the lakes below the Student Commons Building, commonly known as the Tennis Courts. If one enjoys playing in ankle deep water for days after a moderate rain, this is the place for you.

Last, but far from least, is that paragon of excellence, the Eighth Wonder of the World: Our Football Stadium. This is truly a miracle of modern planning. Covered with rocks and stones, full of large holes in which to break their ankles, overgrown with weedlike grasses, this is the place where our young Gladiators do battle with the foes. Contained in this stadium is one of Jax State's most wonderful appara tus; the Scoreboard. This is a modern, self operating miracle. The only problem being that it doesn't work too often.

Yes, the students of Jacksonville State University really have something to be proud of in their Sports Complex. Is it any wonder that School Spirit is so high?

Dean Wards Uncovers Liqour

It was announced today that Dean Ed Wards, who is dean of men here, has uncovered a considerable amount of liquour from the men's dormitories.

Dean Wards, when asked about the incident, said he had impounded all of the liquour in his home for safe keeping.

He is now on a two-week leave of absence.
