

New Cole Library Tilts 30 Degrees; Rendered Worthless

By GAIL BEARDED

The new multi-million dollar Houston Cole Library has titled approximately 30 degrees, and has been deemed "worthless" by state engineers.

The thirteen-story structure under construction at the cost of five million dollars is believed to have tilted in the early hours of Thursday, March 30. Engineers are aghast by the phenomenon but have issued a statement saying that the nearly completed library is now worthless.

According to University Engineer Ralph Duncan, the library is leaning at an angle of approximately 30 degrees. However, says Duncan, "the building seems to be remarkably stable and is not expected to fall completely."

When informed of the disaster, JSU President Dr. Earnest Stone issued the following statement through the University Public Relations Office: "As you know, our new library is leaning at approximately 30 degrees, but I do not agree that this turn of events will render the structure completely worthless. We are confident that this will instead, bring Jacksonville's name into the media and attract countless knowledge seekers to our friendly doors. Worthless, I should say not. Priceless, Yes!"

Public Relations Director Jack Hopper stated that the University has already made plans to take advantage of the situation. According to Hopper, "We all feel that the phrase '30 degrees' was eye-catching, so we have renamed the University yearbook, The 30 Degree Slant. Like that, huh? We are now discussing plans with Coach Pell to adopt the phrase 'the 30 degree spirit' for all athletic endeavors. Yes, indeed, we can really make a killing with this."

When contacted by a CHANTISMEER reporter, JSU Library head Dr. Hilda McMillian said, "What library?"

With the new library in its present condition, with no plans to rectify it, Ramona Woods Library will be pressed back into operation.

Construction will begin on Monday of concession stands for tourists visiting the leaning library along with restroom facilities, a museum, camping areas, and a nature trail. JSU administrators have requested another 1.3 million dollars from the Department of Parks and Recreation for the development of the project.

SGA Presidential-Elect Declares Martial Law On Strife-Torn Campus

SGA President-elect Richard Reid has declared martial law on the Jacksonville campus after an outbreak of violence by students over the quality of toilet tissue used in the dormitories.

The action by Reid came after two days of student unrest which has seen widespread destruction of several of the campus dormitories, take-overs of administration offices and sit-ins in the Duncan Maintenance Building.

In declaring martial law, Reid released a statement saying "I am sorry to have to make this my first official action, but it is evident that the situation could develop into a real powder keg if something isn't done immediately."

Under the executive order, students will be required to observe a 7:00 a.m. to 9 p.m. curfew, female students as well as male students living in the dorms will be required to sign-in and sign-out, all visitation rights have been cancelled, socializing between male and female students has been deemed illegal. In addition, all classes have been dismissed until further notice.

According to Reid, all vehicles will be checked coming on to and leaving the main campus for possible "outside agitators, fire arms, and fire water."

Disturbances erupted after a faculty-student negotiating committee broke off discussion concerning student living conditions. The use of Army surplus toilet tissue by the University dormitory system has long been a sore subject with students.

Student leaders have declared to end the "suppression" by administrators of dormitory residences by forcing the students to live under intolerable conditions.

Louis Toledo, leader of the militant Dormitory Residents Defense League, said today that "Reid's capitalistic imperialistically inspired totalitarian martial law credo is (See STRIFE, Page 36)

Two attractive co-eds stand in front of the new Houston Cole Library that has mysteriously tilted a full thirty degrees. The girls are the first of many to be hired as official hostesses to the now planned "Leaning Library National Park." Plans for the Park were released by University officials after the discovery of the titled structure.

Remarkably, the library did not fall and according to University engineers, the building seems to be "remarkably stable."

Ribbon cutting ceremonies for the new park will be held after completion of additional recreation features. The projected date of completion for the facility is early summer, 1972.

Riflers Down Three Opponents In One Day

Jax State's cracking-hot rifle team racked up two more losses last week in what has been called one of the most exciting double-headers in the history of modern man. The defeats were attributed primarily to poor shooting and a lack of coordination by the Jax team. However, skill and marksmanship became very evident as two Jax riflers mowed down three members of the opposing team as they were heading for the dressing rooms.

The best score for the day was posted by LTC Robert Byrom, who hit two of the "enemy" with one shot.

In an exclusive CHANTISMEER interview, Col. Byrom was reported to have quipped, "I told Reichley we'd get 'em one way or the other!"

Unfortunately our team will be suspended for the rest of the season due to unsportsmanlike conduct.

Wrestlers Take First In The NCAA Championship Tourney Bring National Prominence To Jacksonville Campus And State

By R. D. WASHKINS

Jax State wrestlers have walked away with the NCAA crown by defeating Iowa State 113-20 in action last weekend in Chicago.

The Jacksonville squad was the real surprise of the year, coming from absolutely nowhere to national prominence.

Jacksonville's trail to the championship was a long and exciting one starting back in November with a decisive win over Ohio State on the Buckey's home mat. From there, the story really begins.

Central Arizona State, University of Arkansas, UT at Chattanooga, Notre Dame, Lacrosse Teachers College and Oral Roberts University all fell successively to the might of the surging Gamecocks.

Wrestling Head Coach Buster

Grappling commented to a CHANTISMEER reporter after the win that "we got here on the will and support of the Jacksonville State athletic program. Without the help of JSU administrators, the boys would have never been able to compete in this tournament, much less win it."

In the finals, eight of the nine weight classes were captured by the Gamecocks. In the 98 pound event, Bob "Skinny" Mackle scored a pin in less than thirty seconds to highlight the Jax win.

The CHANTISMEER will run a full-color insert in next week's edition highlighting the wrestlers and paying tribute to them for the recognition they have brought the University.

That's Just BS It's Time To Be Perfectly Clear About Jax's Problems

If there is one thing that really bothers me, well, it doesn't really bother me, it just sort of makes me wonder about how good, but not really how good as much as how well . . . let me put it this way, I often wonder, maybe not often, but every so often. Come to think of it, I haven't thought about it until I started typing which is sort of odd since I should have given it more thought, but since I have been on campus, the problem has been with us and it seems to just keep on hanging around. In my view, it is time that the CHANTISNEER take some action on such a socially detrimental infection. Now there is a classic phrase. Have you ever noticed how those verbal gems just come to you out of the blue and you wonder where they come from? I think about that sometimes, too, but that is not what I want to drive home.

As I have already stated, this problem has gotten completely out of hand. Now you know as well as I that we can no longer stand for such a disgraceful disregard of this pressing problem. Please note the use of alliteration. Classic in CHANTISMEER annals.

But despite that, we have got to act and act now. If there is one thing to which the CHANTISMEER is dedicated to that is the eradication of this embarrassing enigma. To that purpose I am sure you will agree we should funnel our efforts.

Perhaps a bit of background on this problem is needed. Well, I think it started a few years ago, but I am not sure. It is often difficult to say that such a problem started on a certain day, at a certain hour, with a certain action. No, we cannot blame anyone in particular, although there are a few that I feel should be exposed for their part in perpetuating this situation. But, let us generalize and say that we can narrow the time element down to say . . . on second thought, we can't narrow it down. Instead, let us turn our attention to the ramifications that the growth of this problem has reaped upon our happy campus today.

Now, all of us know that if this problem were to be solved, then all of us . . . maybe not all of us, maybe just a few of us . . . well, I know that it would not affect me if the problem were solved. When you come down to bear facts, few would really benefit from an honorable solution but then we must consider what is more important: our personal happiness or the well-being of the university community. I believe that the students of this university would come to the aid of JSU when called upon to do so. Therefore, I am issuing a call to rally around the old red and white and defeat this monster that has been turned loose to plunder our intellectual valley.

Our purpose is clear. We must unite and stand firm. The time for rhetoric has passed. Action now is the only course for us. I realize that there are many more problems that need to be taken care of at this time, but pressure needs to be applied on the proper points to get results for the betterment of the community.

Do not misunderstand me. We cannot just rush into this ill-prepared. There are definite plans which must be the basis for our action.

First, we must clearly define our course. Second, we must band together to present a unified front. And third, we must proceed from there.

But, where will that lead us? I have my ideas about where we will wind up, but I don't think that I should speculate. It is not my

Dean Jackson Lifts All Co-Ed Regulations; Sparkman Shut Down Due To Lack Of Residence

The Office of the Dean of Women released a memorandum Monday, the 20th, which stated that henceforth there would be no curfew hours for women students living in dormitories.

Myriam Jackson, Dean of Women, made the statement, "We have come to the conclusion that our women are mature enough to be responsible for regulating their own hours."

All girls were informed of the decision at dormitory meetings Monday night. It is reported that

Rapid Transit Plans Released For J'ville

Plans were released yesterday from the office of Jacksonville Mayor John B. Nisbet for the soon-to-be constructed rapid transit system for Jacksonville and surrounding areas.

According to Mayor Nisbet, the system will link the central part of greater Jacksonville with the suburban areas of Piedmont, Alexandria, Rabbittown and Weaver and cut commuter time down at least one half.

The system, scheduled for completion in early 1984, will be dedicated to Dean Buttram, whose first term as governor is also expected to be completed at that time.

eight girls went into hysterics during the meetings and that five others had to be hospitalized and treated for shock.

After the meetings a special meeting of the campus religious organization, Student Challenge, was called to prepare for the end of the world.

Meanwhile, a group of girls from Rowan Hall celebrated their new freedom by organizing an undershort raid on Logan Hall. Once inside Logan, they seized some boys and forced the boys to hold hands with them. The campus police had to be called in to remove the girls from Logan.

It is reported that at midnight Monday night, the majority of the girls who were out of their dorms became mentally disturbed. They realized at this time that they would have to make the decision of what time to return to their dormitories themselves, having no set hour at which they had to return. Evidently, the girls were unable to cope with this decision. It is reported that seven cases of nervous prostration occurred among girls at this time.

Formal de Hyde, assistant professor of biology at JSU, offered an explanation Tuesday for the reaction of these girls: "Any ability which is not exercised by an organism is lost, in time. It is evident that long disuse of the ability to decide when to return to the dormitory has caused these girls to lose the ability to do so."

Even some of the girls who somehow were able to adjust better to the new situation, were unhappy about it. "Why, they've taken away the only real ex-

Jax Movie Society Plan Big Weekend

The Jax Movie Society will present a mammoth triple feature Saturday, April 1, in the Roundhouse. Beginning at 11 p.m. will be Ethel Merman, Woody Herman, Allen Sherman, Strom Thurman and Felix the Wonder Pidgeon in special adaptations of HAMLET, MACBETH, and KING LEAR. These films were produced only for showing at Jacksonville State University and will self-destruct immediately following the cartoon feature—Donald Duck, Porky Pig, Spiderman, Minnie Mouse, King Kong, Atom Ant, and Hubert Humphrey in KEEP SMILING AND MAYBE YOU'LL FOOL SOMEBODY.

There will be no admission, and film society membership cards will not be honored.

Col. Thomas J. Hudson, CSA, will assume his duties as the commanding officer of the ROTC Department today. Col. Hudson is a Silver Star winner and has been in the Army for 29 years.

ROTC To Receive New Commanding Officer

Col. Thomas Jefferson Hudson will assume his duties as the new ROTC commanding officer today.

Hudson, a graduate of the Tennessee Academy for Delinquent Boys, comes to Jacksonville with twenty-nine years of military experience.

Upon graduation from TADB, Col. Hudson enlisted in the Tennessee Tenth Mounted Calvary as a cook. Several fortune breaks and a lot of Army red tape promoted him from private to major within the space of two meals. Col. Hudson holds the distinction of being the only major in the army to have served as a cook for 13 years.

After the Army discovered its error, then Major Hudson was promoted to the rank of Colonel and given three years back pay and assigned to duty in the Yukon territory of Alaska. It was on this assignment that Col. Hudson received his Silver Star for bravery in fighting off forty-seven food starved polar bears.

Col. Hudson comes to Jacksonville for an indefinite tour of duty. According to Information Officer Maj. John Righteously, Col. Hudson will bring a new and fresh face to the ROTC Department. In the words of Righteously, "The Old Man cut off one student's ear lobe for not polishing his saddle twice a day. Now, that is the kind of Army we all want."

City Council Votes Jax Wet

The worshippers of John Barley corn can now rejoice; Jacksonville has gone "wet."

The Jacksonville City Council finally voted in favor of legalizing the sale of alcohol in Jacksonville. This decision came about after many months of waiting by a group of students who had previously met with the mayor and the city council. Although this does not lower the drinking age, many students under 21 are confident that the new ruling will be to their benefit.

When asked his opinion concerning the switch from "dry" to "wet", Jim Curran, a freshman remarked, "I never knew it was dry! He is happier, though, about not having to drive outside the city limits to purchase alcoholic beverages.

The residents of Jacksonville have mixed views about the new law. Some feel that by making alcohol easier to obtain, the conduct of the students may decline. Others are pleased with not having to face a bothersome drive whenever they become thirsty for a six-pack.

Many Jacksonville merchants plan to stock beer in the very near future. They believe that the sale of beer will boost their incomes. But the beverage stores outside of Jacksonville feel that their business will drop due to the large percentage of students who buy beer.

There is also talk of opening an ABC store in Jacksonville. This would make hard liquor readily available to those 21 and older. The nearest "state" store is now in Lenlock, also an inconvenient distance to drive for liquor.

The new law will also aid the financial position of Jacksonville. The tax on alcohol will bring in welcome revenue to the city. Until now, Jacksonville received only a small share of the tax money from Calhoun County liquor sales.

So economically, the officials and merchants of Jacksonville are pleased with the council's decision. And you can bet a case of beer there are many students who are also overjoyed for the making of a "wet" Jacksonville.

Hopper Turns

Down Editorship

Jax Public Relations Director Jack Hopper has reportedly been offered the editorship of one of the nation's largest daily newspapers.

When contacted by CHANTISMEER REPORTERS, Mr. Hopper, who in his spare time serves as CHANTISMEER advisor, said that he has no intentions of leaving the university at this time.

"My plans for the next year," said Mr. Hopper, "are concentrated in expanding the journalism department at Jacksonville University into one of the finest in the South."

It's dinner time as a student prepares to continue his protest of the University mandatory meal ticket program. Students by the hundreds have turned on to the natural foods that are found in the surrounding areas to dramatize their opposition to the present meal system.

Students Turn To Nature To Protest Meal Ticket

Students are turning to all forms of natural foods which they find on and around the Jacksonville campus to protest the meal ticket program.

Dandelion, watercrest, ants, bumblebee wings, and even various forms of tasty lizards are "on the menu" as students mount their campaign against the mandatory meal situation.

The whole protest came about after student failure to persuade University officials to change the requirement that dormitory residents must buy a meal ticket each semester. Several unexpected things, however, have come from the new line of protest. First, students have been participating in the 'return to nature' campaign have reported weight gains. Second, students contend that they have more energy and stamina. And, third, University Exterminator, Dr. Audey Bugg states that his office has been called upon far less than normal in recent days.

Parents are not quite as concerned with the ramifications of the protest as they are with their children. A CHANTISMEER study has revealed that JSU administrative offices have received no less than 32 calls in the last two days from concerned parents. Of the 32 calls, 20 derogatory of administration policy, 5 were were in support of administration policy and 7 were wrong numbers.

According to student leaders of the protest, the nature kick is scheduled to continue until, in the words of one student leader, "either we get the optional meal ticket, or we gross the whole world out. Have a spider?"

The Infirmary reports that it has not received any increase of student patients, but has been flooded by administrative and faculty personnel complaining of upset stomachs, dizziness, and

Entertainment To

Have New Direction

Entertainment provided by the Student Government Association of the university, which in the past has consisted primarily of dances, rock concerts and SGA meetings, will be broadened for Fall Semester, 1972.

Plans currently under discussion include scheduling the appearances on campus of Abbie Hoffman and his Amerikana Ballet Corps., Joan Baez in a benefit performance for the Daughters of the American Revolution and Gloria Stienem, who has been invited to present the awards at the annual athletic banquet.

A faculty rock group, headed by Dr. Ronald Mertz, is scheduled to present a special concert climaxed by a lecture on ecology and the responsibilities of the modern day newspaper. Miss Bloomer of the sociology department is expected to vocalize.

Rapid Transit Plans

Stalled For J'ville

Mayor John B. Nisbet announced today that plans for the proposed Jacksonville Rapid Transit System have been postponed indefinitely.

The plans were changed when an independent survey initiated by Jacksonville State Bank showed that 181,000 passengers daily would be needed to defray the operating expenses of the system.

Since the system was to be dedicated to future governor Dean Buttram, the university is cooperating with city hall to honor Gov. Buttram with the Buttram Memorial Hydraulic Lifts which will be needed to hold the library in an upright position, thus symbolizing the Buttram administration.

Self Cafeteria requests the return of all stolen glasses taken from the administration.

The judges for the Annual Cobweb Festival will be at Jax State to examine cobwebs in the dormitories. Dormitory residents are reminded to be decent between 1:00 and 4:00 p.m. for the judges' visit.

A group of JSU students have begun to circulate a petition to have the words "or sitting" added to the "no standing" area in Self Cafeteria. Anyone wanting to help them in their cause should contact Clyde Mushroom at 435-3676.

Jax Cafeteria Called

One Of The Best

Honors have been heaped upon Jacksonville State University's Cafeteria system in a special announcement today. In their annual awards banquet, the National Association of Cafeteria Fire-Proofing Inspectors named the Jax State facilities as the winners of the "Least Likely to Burn Down" award. In making the presentation, Dr. I. M. Ghetinseic, president of NACFI said, "It was phenomenal! I've never seen anything quite like it Jacksonville State is to be commended for its planning and foresight. The food they are serving is 100 per cent better than asbestos. Not only is the food unburnable, but it actually put out fires in all our tests. Defies gravity!"

yet another example of the failure of the moneyed class and its puppet governments to understand the will of the working class."

Rusty Vann, spokesman for Students of the Red, White and Blue, an ultra-conservative group, said that the martial law statement by Reid "dramatized the point that the SOTRWB has been stressing and that is that the Commies, the pinkos, the left-wing hippie, long hair freaks, and faggots are everywhere. This is yet another example of the failure of the moneyed class and its puppet governments to understand the will of the working Jeff Frazier of the Students Who Prefer To Wait stated that the Reid decision would not greatly affect his groups. Said Frazier, "We wish he hadn't, but he did, so we are glad he did,

Now, if he hadn't, we'd been happy about that to. It just seems to me that this is just another example of the failure of the moneyed class and its puppet governments to understand the will of the working class."

Student demonstrations have been temporarily curtailed by the curfews, but officials close to President-elect Reid say that they expect the situation to deteriorate into utter chaos.

In a closed door meeting with SGA officials, Reid stated that "there is little that we can do except play around with some of these powers that we've never used. Besides, look at all the great publicity I'm getting out of all of this mess. Before this is over, I'll be so widely known that I can run for the Senate, maybe even the Statehouse. Who knows how far this will take me."

job to form public opinion, or is it? They never told me how far we could go, so I suppose we had better not make them mad at us. In that case, I urge the students to control themselves in order that a delicate situation will not be created. It is essential that we not tear down without the proper tools to rebuild. I can't remember who said that but I think it sounds rather catchy. So, sit tight and let us keep our ears to the ground (an old Indian saying) until a definite course of action is determined. But for Jax sakes, let's not rush into anything. We barely know one another. And besides, would you have any respect for me if I allowed you to go too far? Now, there is really a point to ponder.

citement I've never had at JSU," said Marsha Shuler, "the mad drive my boyfriend and I have to make to get me back to the dorm by curfew!" Another JSU coed, Paffa Jay, exclaimed, "Man, I'm really going to miss those far-out blinking lights I used to see every night. I could really dig them!" Ms. Jay was referring to the blinking of the dormitory lights as a warning that curfew was five minutes away.

The SGA is expected to pass a resolution condemning the administration for springing the rule change on the women students without first determining their feelings toward it.

Students are divided in their opinions of what actions should be taken. Some feel that the damage has been done and that the best course for the women would be to begin the slow and painful process of adaptation to the new situation. Others are in favor of bringing curfew back into force and going back to the "good old days."

inability to eat. Doctors are at a loss to explain the development, but believe that the meal ticket protest could be the underlying reason. One doctor said to a CHANTISMEER reporter that he believed that "the inability of faculty members and administrators to grasp the gravity of the protest by sincere students was probably due to a powerful dislike for either their fathers or mothers, which has manifested itself into a demented sexual drive for power and fortune. There now exists a block to that
