Artist's Sketch of Proposed Sign

Project to Erect Campus Sign Begun

An attempt to close the Jax State communications gap is underway, according to SGA President Kwang Edeker.

Edeker announced last week the start of a $3,000 project to construct an illuminated theater-like marquee bulletin board in front of Bibb Graves.

The sign, which will be tentatively located directly behind the JSU stone marker on Pelham Road, will stand approximately 25 ft. high. It will have a bulletin board area of 5 1/2 ft. by 10 ft.

Edeker said the purpose of the sign is to close the gap created by lack of what he says are improper facilities to reach the students with messages and announcements.

The sign will be used to announce movies, dances, sports events, etc. SGA treasurer Jim Cummings added that plans are being considered to rent space on the sign during slack periods when the sign might not otherwise be in use. Cummings said this would be used to help pay part of the costs of the sign.

Present plans call for the sign to be financed by contributions to a special fund. Edeker said the committee in charge—all four SGA officers—"is in the process of creating a fund to raise money . . . so we can use as little as possible of the SGA-students' money."

Edeker places the original idea for the project with this committee.

"I mentioned this idea to a few of the night students," Edeker said, "and most seem delighted by this."

Jeff Frazier, SGA vice president, said the location was selected with the help of Jax State President Dr. Ernest Stone. "We looked over the place and we have his support and personal donation," said Frazier.

A secondary spot for the sign is near the exit off campus onto Pelham Road. The final decision will be made later.

The sign will be constructed by Noble Signs of Anniston.

Over 500 Candidates for Diplomas

Spring - Mini Term Graduation Is June 5

Dr. Houston Cole, president emeritus of Jacksonville State University will be commencement speaker on June 5 for the largest graduating class in Jax State's history.

Over 500 students will be awarded degrees in the combined service for spring and interim semester graduates. The services are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Paul Snow Memorial Stadium.

Dr. Cole, who guided the destiny of the university for 29 years before his retirement this past January, was asked by President Ernest Stone to deliver the speech.

SGA Rejects Meal Change Proposition

By Wen Scherer
Chanticleer Editor

In its second and third meetings for the minimester, the SGA devoted much time to discussion of proposed meal ticket changes.

According to James Haywood, director of food services, the suggested plan, to be effective next fall, would consist of three parts: a seated service in part of the cafeteria, a cafeteria similar to that used at present, and a snack bar at which meal tickets could be used.

Under this arrangement, coupon books ($10 each) would be sold, $120 worth at a time. Foods in the cafeteria lines would be priced, thus allowing the student to pay for each individual meal.

Feeding times would be extended, with regular and continental breakfasts being served at the same time.

Following Edeker's enumeration of the advantages (flexibility, paying for what one eats) and disadvantages (losing tickets, running out of tickets) of the proposed changes, a resolution was passed in opposition to the new plan, preference being given to the present plan.

It was conceded that the new plan would be no less expensive and would provide no guarantee of better food quality.

Another focal point regarded the management of the Chanticleer. It was resolved that $100 of treasury funds be contributed to the Chanticleer to help the newspaper become more independent and more commercial, as well as to allow it to become involved in the intercollegiate press.

In other business, the SGA voiced a desire to recommend that Mr. Haywood take measures to correct the poor lighting in Cole Cafeteria.

Furthermore, SGA executives plan to propose the construction of an illuminated sign, to be erected at the campus entrance for the purpose of posting campus events of interest. The financing of the sign would be dependent on contributions and would total $3,000.

Finally, approval was extended to David Osborne's assumption of the position of sergeant-at-arms.

According to treasurer Jim Cummings, present total funds include $1,518.76 in savings, $1,416.16 for checking, and $977.86 for appropriations.

Entertainment sponsored by the SGA during the minimester included the booking of the band "Hydra" on May 19 and the showing of the movie "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" on May 28.

A native of DeKalb County, Dr. Cole holds degrees from Jacksonville Normal School, the University of Alabama, and has done additional graduate study at Columbia University.

In 1942 he returned to his alma mater, which at that time was a teachers college with only 119 students enrolled. Through his leadership the college expanded to the third largest university in Alabama with an enrollment of nearly 6,000 students.

He has been active in numerous civic, religious, and charitable organizations.

Twenty-three advanced ROTC cadets will be commissioned into the U. S. Army prior to the graduation services. Among those to be commissioned are:

James R. Garmon, James E. Moree, Jr., Anniston; Tommy V. Ellenburg, Arab; Charles D. Goldman, Charles A. McRoberts, Ernest S. Spruiell, Harold J. Taylor, and Glenn D. Wilkerson, Birmingham; Beamon E. Head, Boaz; Ronald Workman, Cussetta; and Gary Herring, Gadsden.

The commissioning ceremony is scheduled for 1 p.m. in the Student Commons Auditorium.

Following is a list by county and city of the candidates for graduation:

BLOUNT--- Jamellia Marion Clark, Robert Cooper Graham, and Brenda Sue Heaton, Oneonta.

Editorial Opinion

Ignorant Complaining

In a time when the order of the day appears to center around the individual's ability to complain, Jacksonville State University falls readily into the category of conformity. Whether it be dissatisfaction with the military, administrative authority, or student regulations, the university contributes an immense proportion of the noise.

Now that regulations imposed upon women students have been eased, now that compulsory ROTC is no longer a point of argument, the "need" to dissent has shifted to the area of university food service.

It is at this point, where students obviously have been unable to make relative comparison, that the argument becomes ridiculously ungrounded. In the opinion of this editor, if more of our students had had the opportunity to experience the meal programs of other universities for more than a day or two at a time, their complaints undoubtedly would dwindle.

How many times have students at Jax State been appetized by an occasional roach crawling among the tossed salads? How many of us here have seen hamburgers cooked, thrown back into a pan of grease for safekeeping, and then re-heated for a moment or two upon the placement of an order. Have we ever been blessed with molded pie crust? The answers to these questions must certainly fall into the negative category.

Preposterous as they may seem, these conditions existed (and may still exist) at a small private university not less than one year ago. And burdened with a present tuition of $36.50 per semester hour (not including room and board), students at that university would undoubtedly find the food at Jax State to be not only reasonably priced, but also quite tasty.

This editor is not trying to excuse the often ill-prepared food at our university.

For, unquestionably, there is room for improvement. The editor's purpose, in this case, is merely to point out that, whereas food service at Jacksonville State lacks the expected commercial quality, in many ways it is superior to that now in operation at other universities.

Apathetic Concern

Although discussion of student apathy has become a "worn out" topic, it is quite possible that the subject has been discussed from the wrong standpoint. Recent student activities with regard to issues "relevant" to their interests tend to validate this conclusion.

As far as actual university interest is concerned, student efforts at reform are generally carried on in only a half-hearted manner. Talk, of which there is an enormous amount, rarely materializes into action. And when there is action, there is no unity and very little sacrifice.

Whereas members of that vociferous minority are willing to risk arrest in the nation's capital in a degrading and, for all intents and purposes, useless, anti-war demonstration few are willing to attend even one SGA meeting. Thus, students concerned in one respect become apathetic in another respect.

Perhaps too many of us wish to change the whole without altering the component parts—an impossible task. Perhaps we need to concentrate on those problems at hand rather than concern ourselves with those beyond our reach. Such action might lead to eventual revision in other and greater areas of importance. It may not work, but it's worth a try.

Jax Law Enforcement Students Sworn In

Three Jax State Law Enforcement students were sworn in as members of the Oxford police department May 7.

The three, all juniors, were Charles Rose of Mobile, Gerald Owen of Oxford, and Billy White of Oak Ridge, Tenn. They join two other Jax State students from the department who are training in the state: Johnny Robinson who is working with the DeKalb County Sheriff's Department, and Bruce Howell who is working with the Probation Office of Circuit Court.

The three students were given an indoctrination talk by Oxford

Police Chief W. O. Walden, who told them to strive for fairness in dealing with possible offenders.

The students began working regular police beats May 8 accompanied by Oxford city officers.

Mini Venture Is Relevant

After having spent one mini semester involved in a course of practical significance to my career, I must applaud this new venture of this institution. I have learned more in these field trips than in all the volumes which I have read on the subject.

Perhaps the powers that be should this time be congratulated on moving toward more relevant and enlightening education and away from technical lectures in enormous quantities.

Four Jaxmen Make All-ACC

Even though Rudy Abbott's baseball Gamecocks missed out on a championship in the Alabama Collegiate Conference by getting beat by the wrong team in the last game of the season, his troupes did dominate the all star team that was announced last week.

Selected to the first unit were leftfielder Larry Foster, centerfielder Tommy Cason, firstbaseman Eddie Isbell, and pitcher Barney Wilson.

Abbott, along with Livingston State's coach Bob Reisenor, was named Coach of the Year earlier in the same week.

Foster, a sophomore from Attalla, led the conference in hitting with a .446 average and in homeruns with 13. He had 42 rbi's, and that was enough for runnerup in that department.

Cason, the senior from Brunswick, Ga., hit .371 with eight homers and 48 rbi's. He was conference leader in rbi's, and was third in homeruns.

Isbell also hit .371, and was considered the finest utility infielder in the conference. He was bothered with a bad shoulder all season and was unable to throw at his potential. Isbell is from Weaver and graduated from Jacksonville High School.

Wilson, the big right-hander from Oxford, finished the season with a 7-2 record. Six of his seven wins were against conference foes. Wilson completed the season with a 1.67 era which was second best in the conference.

The Gamecocks finished the season 30-6 overall, and 15-2 in the conference. Only Cason, catcher Benny Bunn and rightfielder Craig Edge will be missing from the lineup next year.

Others named to the team included Willie Frazier, Elton Reece, Benny Buttram, Gerry McBride, and Allen Weedon of Livingston, Danny Cawthorne and Charles Gray from Huntingdon, Dennis Gouch from St. Bernard.

The Gamecocks led the ACC as a team in every hitting category except triples. The Jaxmen led with a batting average of .338, in home runs with 50, stolen bases with 62, doubles with 60, and runs with 306.

In two years as skipper for the Gamecocks, Abbott has compiled an impressive 43-18 record overall, and that includes second place in the ACC both years, and a 1971 invitation to the NAIA District 27 playoffs.

New Cager Will Join Gamecocks

A 6-6 Ohio sophomore is the latest addition to Coach Tom Roberson's Gamecocks.

Tony Rice, from South Charleston, Ohio, signed a grant-in-aid with the Jax State Gamecocks last week.

He will join forces with Coach Roberson in hopes of redeeming the first Jax State losing season in a decade of play.

Rice, who served as a top line reserve for a squad that recorded 49 victories and lost 13 in his two years of play, averaged 8.2 points and 6.7 rebounds for the two-year period.

In his first game as a freshman at Dalton Junior College, he scored 32 points and claimed 17 rebounds to set a new scoring record.

Although starting slow as a sophomore, Rice came on strong at mid-season to spark the Dalton Roadrunners to compile a 30-4 mark, winning the George Junior Athletic Association crown.

Coach Roberson said he was delighted with the signing of the big forward. "Tony will definitely be a big help to our rebuilding program," Roberson said. "He has lost about 25 pounds from what he was at the start of last season, and now weighs 215. At that weight, he is much more agile, but still has enough push and pull to handle himself under the guards."

Rice is the 13th Gamecock signee for 1971.

Livingston Tigers Win District Playoff Here

The Livingston Tigers won the District Playoffs here May 15 and are playing in the Area Five NAIA Tournament at Knoxville, Tenn. Coach Rudy Abbott's Gamecocks were eliminated from the tourney after having their best season in the school's history. Their final record was 30 wins against six defeats.

William Carey College of Hattiesburg, Miss., defeated the Jaxmen 7-6 in the first game that went 11 innings.

Livingston, winners of the Alabama Collegiate Conference, walloped Jackson State 10-1 in the second game of the double elimination tournament.

Down 8-1 at one time, the Jaxmen rallied to defeat Jackson College 15-10 in a real donnybrook game which ended the first day's activities.

Livingston outscored William Carey 9-2 to begin the second round of the tournament. Jacksonville's hopes to meet Livingston in the tourney were shattered when they fell 6-3 to William Carey.

The final round was moved to Gadsden because of wet grounds. Livingston, still without a loss in the tournament, defeated William Carey 3-2, thus winning the right to represent Alabama and Mississippi in the Area 5 NAIA Playoffs.

Going into the playoffs with a commendable 15 game winning streak to their credit, Livingston defeated State College of Arkansas 4-1 in the opening game.

The winner of the double elimination contest will go on to the NAIA World Series in Phoenix, Ariz., June 4-9. Livingston placed second in the NAIA last year.

In ACC, Abbott Reiesner Named Top Conference Coaches

Rudy Abbott

Both Bob Reiesner of Livingston State University and Rudy Abbott of JSU have been named 1971 coaches of the year in the Alabama Collegiate Conference in baseball.

In balloting, done by their fellow conference coaches, Reiesner and Abbott tied for the award.

Reiesner led his Tigers to their seventh consecutive ACC title, his fourth in as many years at Livingston. The team finished the regular season with a 32-6 over-all record and a 14-2 ACC slate.

Jacksonville State, under the leadership of Abbott, posted their finest record in the school's history at 29.3 over-all. The Gamecocks also had a 14-2 conference, however, Livingston had a 2-1 game edge with Jacksonville during the regular season which gave Livingston the crown.

Conference Officials Meet In Louisiana

Athletic officials from six Mid-South Athletic Conference and four Gulf States Conference institutions will meet today at Nicholls State in Thiboubaux, La., to explore the idea of combining the two leagues into a 10-team athletic conference.

The MSAC was a football conference formed last year with the intention of bringing in all phases of athletics by 1971. The members include Jacksonville State, Livingston, Troy State, Florence State, Delta State in Cleveland, Miss., and the University of Tennessee at Martin.

In addition to belonging to the MSAC, the four Alabama institutions are members of the 12-year old Alabama Collegiate Conference in basketball and spring sports. Since the birth of the Mid-South last year, there has been a constant quarrel between the non-football playing institutions and the members of both leagues that play football.

The ACC executive committee has asked each football playing member for a letter of intent as to whether it will stay in the ACC or pull out altogether. Spokesmen from each of these institutions are totally committed to the MSAC and each plans to withdraw from the ACC before next fall.

Chanticleer Staff

The advent of the first minimester at Jacksonville State University has resulted in a definite, but varied, impact upon the university community. In practically every aspect of this novel institutional venture, both praise and criticism have been strongly voiced.

Upon general observation, it appears that the more practical the course, the more positive the student evaluation. Whereas straight lecture courses have served merely to oppress the students involved with extensive reading assignments, those courses geared primarily to classroom participation have produced a greater sense of relevancy on the part of the participants.

In order to disclose some degree of student sentiment, the Chanticleer has attempted to present a general evaluation of some of the more unique courses being offered.

The following is a concise discussion of several individual evaluations.

Publications Workshop

Unlike many other subjects that have been covered, the publications workshop has received, for the most part, unanimous approval. This heretofore unoffered course is divided into two groups, one composed of students on the Mimosa staff, and the other consisting of Chanticleer staff members.

The purpose of the Mimosa workshop is to organize the Mimosa staff for 1972. Working and studying together, the students have come together to form the staff. According to Mrs. Opal Lovett, instructor for the course, they do the actual planning of the yearbook and create the tentative layouts, this "ahead-of-time" preparation making the final work simpler. Under this system, there is more time to devote to bettering the yearbook.

The class has had guest lecturers from the publishing company, as well as Mr. Opal Lovett, the photographer.

Mrs. Lovett feels that the students have been doing a fine job in becoming an organized working unit. All are quite serious about their work.

Although there is still a monumental job to accomplish, a tremendous amount of work has already been done.

An attempt has been made to attract an equal number of representatives from all facets of college life.

According to some of the participants in the workshop, it is enjoyable. Preliminary work is done ahead of time, thus making the work easier for the staff and allowing the yearbook to progress smoothly.

The purpose of the Chanticleer workshop, under the direction of Larry Smith, is to acquaint those students involved with the principles of journalism. Practically all aspects have been covered—from the proper procedure for writing a news story to the actual process of laying out a paper.

From a practical standpoint, the course has been most beneficial with regard to the development of technique, a vital element in newspaper organization.

It is hoped that a program such as this one will encourage journalistic interests, which are so glaringly absent from this campus.

In this manner, the quality of the newspaper may be improved, and greater student participation may be developed.

Gymnastics Class

Receiving high acclaim from students, the gymnastics class appears to be a complete success.

The Gymnastics Laboratory is designed for the purpose of planning and putting on a performance in gymnastics. Class members must have had experience in gymnastics, preferably at JSU.

The girls work 14 hours a week for three weeks preparing the skills they perform.

The events which were covered in the show on May 28 were tumbling, mini-tramp, balance beam, double skills, parallel bars, uneven parallel bars, triple skills, free exercise, a clown routine, trampoline, and pyramid building.

According to the students, the class has been worthwhile and relatively beneficial. Because of the extended time period, they have been able to set up the equipment and still have time for learning new skills.

Observational Astronomy

Observational Astronomy is a course designed to teach the fundamentals of observation. Its primary purpose is to help students who will, after graduation, pick up astronomy as a hobby.

In the course students develop techniques which will benefit them through later use. They observe the stars and planets as they move in respect to the earth and to each other.

According to Clarence Angelette, the instructor, "Student enthusiasm is greater than in most required courses, and the students are very active in the classes—which is generally true for any elective. The course lends itself to the minimester and is as challenging as students can absorb the information. The pace is much faster than a regular semester, and the students have covered an almost unbelievable amount of material."

The major detractor is the weather as this particular season is not the best time for observations. When the weather is too bad, the students use the planetarium.

From the student standpoint, all seemed to enjoy the course, but, as one student put it, "We try to cover too much in too short a time." They expressed the opinion that the course was harder than courses in the regular semester, a consensus for almost all minimester courses.

Being non-science majors, one stated, they did not have a good background in science, a problem which made a lot of what they were covering too technical.

Scientific Heterodoxy
The scientific heterodoxy course, under Dr. William Reid, is an examination of the literature of scientific dissent, some of which is purely crackpot and some of which, once considered to be crackpot, has since been discovered to be true. Sample topics include alchemy, cataclysmic geological and cosmic theories like those of Velikovsky; the Symmes "Hollow Earth" theory; alleged exotic biological specimens such as the "abominable snowman," the "Lock Ness Monster," pre-Columbian crossings of the Atlanta and Pacific.

The material, some of which is historical, is unorthodox. This is the type of course which broadens one's background and makes one aware of the wide diversity of ideas people may hold.

Although this is not the type of course in which credit could be given for physics, it provides a variety of information which is worth knowing but which cannot be taught along with the regular course in physics.

According to students, it is a course taken because it is interesting. Although it is worth three hours credit, it is not the type of course one would take during the regular semester.

Current Issues In Biology
The biology department has instigated a program in current biological problems, one course for biology majors and minors and one for other students. These courses highlight such issues as the drug problem, environmental hazards, and other problems relevant to survival. The basic course (300) is taught in three parts by three instructors. Included in the subject matter are drugs and radiation, under Dr. William Staples; nutrition and population, under Francis Woodliff; and pollution, under Marion Rollins.

Dr. Staples expressed great hopes for the type of course which he is teaching. He went on to say that these are problems of people, and that recognizing these problems must precede solving them. He emphasized that the course should be continued "if we feel that it is worthwhile to the students."

From the student standpoint, the lecture nature of the biology class is somewhat tedious. There is also the problem of limited time. However, students liked the air of informality and the freedom of debate.

One of the most outstanding features of the class is the student's awareness of relevancy and their notice of some degree of purpose in what they are studying.

Judicial Process
The Judicial Process course is taught by Hope Davis and is limited to ten students. These students concentrate on court room attendance and outside reading. The course is centered around court room observation.

Mr. Davis emphasized the need to observe actual court room functioning, a process which cannot be learned from books or lectures. He further noted the personalities of judges and lawyers, explaining how an understanding of such traits can give the student the insight into judicial process which books fail to capture.

Although there is a large amount of outside reading involved, the students in the judicial process class seem to find this procedure more relevant and exciting than the typical lecture method. As with the biology class, the main arguments center around limited time. Here again, students were pleased with the informal atmosphere and the freedom of debate. Whereas the lecture nature of the biology class caused the students involved to mention long class periods, the judicial process students failed to notice their class hours even though they often spent eight hours on court trips.

As with the biology class, the outstanding feature of this course is the students' awareness of relevancy and their sense of purpose in their studies.

In conclusion, criticism of the minimester manifested itself in a variety of ways.

Many students felt that six hours was too heavy an academic load. Furthermore, too much information was compressed in the length of time allotted, thus making retention difficult.

Other students expressed the opinion that a better description of the courses should be given.

Many also felt that it would help if the professors did not try to teach as much.

Positively speaking, some students felt that minimester was quite beneficial for the person needing a few hours to graduate.

An interesting and practical suggestion concerned possible limitation of the minimester to juniors and seniors needing a few hours to graduate.

Rush??

What is it anyway? Is it just a week of parties and meeting people, or is it learning the social life philosophy of the Greek organizations? Actually, it is both. Not only is "Rush Week" an excellent opportunity to make lots of friends, but it also acquaints one with the Greek system.

Every campus with Greeks groups is organized somewhat differently. Here at JSU, there are three sororities, Alpha Xi Delta, Zeta Tau Alpha, Phi Mu, and each one has its own individual meaning of "Being a Greek."

Generally speaking, each group will agree that an individual greatly benefits by becoming a Greek. You ask how??

Greek organizations help to develop friendship, maturity and character. They also promote intellectual, social and mental development, appreciation of learning and education, and service and concern for others.

Yes, an individual does benefit in many ways by pledging a sorority or fraternity. No one person can accomplish as much by himself as he can with a group. Be a mature and responsible individual—be a Greek—after all, that is what it's all about!!!!

Editor Is Named For '71 J-Book

Preliminary production of the 1971-72 Jax State J-Book began this week.

Mrs. Judith Reese, this year's editor of the SGA-sponsored student handbook, said she is in the process of reviewing material. She said she hopes to get the annual publication "away from its stilted appearance."

The J-Book is a quarto-size handbook of approximately 30 pages. It is distributed free each fall to incoming freshmen, and lists clubs, organizations, activities, and other explanations of Jax State student life.

Mrs. Reese said she has not had a deadline imposed yet by the SGA president, but she expects the work to be completed by July.

"I'm going to try to give it a little more original look," she said.

"Maybe use some more candid shots."

Some 1600 copies of the J-Book will be printed, she said.

Two Department Heads Retiring This Month

Last Semester for Calvert, Van Kueren

department; Miss Goggans, who has been a member of the faculty and Jacksonville Laboratory High School for 25 years; and Mrs. Tom Malone, a member of the English Department.

Two Jax State teachers retire this month taking with them a total of 77 years of teaching experience.

Mrs. Palmer Calvert, head of the Physical Education Department, and Dr. Edwin Van Keuren, head of the Political Science Department, will leave their positions at the end of the minimester.

In an interview with the Chan-said. Their regular daily walks have changed only slightly during the past few years: "We've gotten to where we drive out of town and walk only about three miles a day."

Teaching at Jacksonville since 1950 (with a six year period from 1937 to 1943), Mrs. Calvert said she considers the dance one of her favorite areas of participation and instruction. "But I think gymnastics is too . . . it's so hard to say," she said.

Mrs. Calvert claims the development of ingenuity as one important asset a teacher has to have.

Mrs. Calvert's education includes B. S. degree from George Peabody College in Nashville with additional undergraduate work at Columbia University. She received her M. S. from Louisiana State University.

Dr. Van Kueren, a retired Army colonel, estimates he has a total of some 48 years in the teaching profession including every line from high school teacher to superintendent.

He was "born and raised in

Mrs. Calvert

Chanticleer last week, Mrs. Calvert, and Dr. Van Keuren talked of their education experiences and their plans for the future.

Mrs. Calvert, whose father was president of Jax State from 1901 to 1942 (Dr. C. W. Daugette) said she intends to keep her retirement activities in line with those she has had professionally.

"I've thought about all the things that I always liked to do," she said, "and they're so varied."

"As a general rule I like to do the things that we both like to do together," she said. Her husband, Dr. William Calvert, is head of the English Department.

"We do a lot of walking," she upper New York . . . up the river . . . at the foot of the Catkills."

He had well established himself in educational administration when he joined the army. What prompted him to leave education? "World War II," he said. "I missed World War I by one year and I made up my mind I wasn't going to miss World War II."

He received a commission and retired in 1956 under a retirement credit system based on service time and age. He was separated from the service at Ft. McClellan after heading the fort's chemical school during the early 1950's.

He accepted a teaching position with Jax State because, he says, "I had never lived in the South before and we liked it so much we decided not to move."

Asked of his retirement plans, Van Kueren said he had nothing definite yet, but that he would stay active in civic organizations. He is presently district governor of Rotary International for North Alabama.

JSU English Professor to Retire After Summer Term

The Jax State English Department observed the ending of 45 years of teaching dedication recently with a reception in honor of Miss Mary Moss Goggans.

Miss Goggans has been with the Jax State English Department for 13 years. She will retire at the end of the summer semester.

Though she has taught in several Alabama cities, over half of her teaching has been done in Jacksonville. "I supervised practice teaching of English at the high school (in Jacksonville) for 13 years," she said.

Asked by the Chanticleer to review student changes during her time as teacher, Miss Goggans gave some definite views: "You want the truth? I don't think they apply themselves as well as they used to."

She emphasized, though, that "that's taking the group as a whole. I've got a class that's fine now, but they're not freshmen."

Reasons? "The change has been in the affluent society that you young people have been brought up in," she said after some thought. "You haven't felt the squeeze of money." Again she limited her generalization: "I don't think it's the individual as much as the conditions in which he has been reared."

She thought again, then added, "I don't blame the young people at all."

Much of her teaching, she claims, reflects this attitude. "I have tried to instill in my students the need for ambition . . . or the fact that man needs something greater than himself . . . Christianity in other words."

Miss Goggans' church work, she said, has been and will continue to play an important role in her future plans.

She is also going to continue traveling. During her years of teaching, she estimates that she very seldom took off more than one month a year for vacations. And her vacations were for traveling.

Her travels are more than mere vacations, however. As an English teacher she keeps her eyes open for background sites. "One time I was in Boston," she said, "and I felt as if I'd fought the American Revolution all over again."
