Graduation To Be Held August 4
At Paul Snow Stadium

Jacksonville State University will hold its summer graduation exercises on August 4, at 8 p.m. in the Paul Snow Stadium. This year, the commencement exercises will spotlight the university’s school of education with a special invitation being extended to all alumni of the education department.

According to Dr. Ernest Stone, president of the university, approximately 300 students are candidates for this summer’s graduation. This graduation includes those who completed academic requirements in May and those who will finish requirements during summer school.

Dr. Leroy Brown, a native of Cleburne County, will be the guest speaker. Brown received his Bachelor of Science degree and his LL.D. here at JSU. Dr. Brown has served as State Department Superintendent of Education since February of last year. Candidates for the Master’s Degree are, by county and hometown:

CALHOUN: Floyd Lamar Glass, Alexandria.
From Amiston: Sandra Burt Trippett, Leon Martin, Anne Downing Phillips, Cheryl Vinson Sparks, and Sandra Harris Wingo.
From Fort McClellan: Kim Edward Fox, Grady Franklin Parker, Jr., Peter William Stonebraker, and Judy Carolyn Esbee.
From Jacksonville: Dixon Randolph Allen, Jr., Rebecca Ann Dalton, Jeanette B. Kilburn, Agnes McNabb, Barbara Starnes Roundtree, and Beverly Kay Taylor.
From Oatman: Eliason Crook Herd and Josephine Heath Smith.
CHEROKEE: Ronald Wilson Rains, Center.
BIBB: Judith Inez Bilbro, Centreville.
BLOUNT: Clarence Wayne Lewis, Hayden.
BULLOCK: Hershel Rudolph Compton, Jr., Union Springs.
CLAY: Dorothy W. Fulbright and Mary Morgan Riddle from Ashland.

Kappa Alpha Psi

“All They Ask Is A Chance”

By BECKY INMON

This fraternity does not solicit membership. A man must see its potential before he wants and acquire it with the strong desire to pledge. Pledgeship often seems long and hard. Some drop out; however, a man makes it, he does so with the help of his friends, his fellow pledges, and above all, a strong desire to be a Kappa Alpha Psi. From sharing these experiences and helping one another over the bumps a bond grows which is known as brotherhood. It is a brotherhood which does not shape one’s identity but brings it out; does not close off old bonds but creates new ones; does not stop with chapter lines but extends over the United States to 5,000 men who will all accept a brother they have never seen before and help him in any way they can. This is Kappa Alpha Psi.

The Kappas evolved from the Diamond Club established in March of 1971. In December of that same year, ten men were pledged by the Beta Zeta Chapter of Alabama State Colleges into Kappa Alpha Psi, and they formed the first black fraternity on a predominantly white campus in Alabama. They are still in association with the Beta Zeta Chapter but expect to get their own chapter letters in the near future. Membership is open to any male student of Jacksonville State University who has a one-semester cumulative average of 2.0 or better.

(See KAPPA PSI, Page 5)

International House To Host Eighteen Countries

The International House Program of Jacksonville State University will be represented by 18 foreign countries this fall. Seventeen of the foreign students will be coming to the United States for the first time.

One of the most unique programs in this kind of country, the International House brings a select number of students to Jax State each year from countries all around the world.

These students are full-time university students who learn American customs and traditions by living among the students of Jax State and by visiting numerous civic programs throughout the state. Each foreign student has an American roommate to help bridge gaps between language and custom.

The International House Program began in 1946 with five foreign students, all from France. Today the program has been expanded to 40 members, divided equally among American and foreign students.

The new students, city and country are: Miss Kerstin Marie Adel, Storford, Sweden; Nafa Alam, Dacca, East Pakistan; Alvaro Arrovo, Alajuela, Costa Rica; Denis Michel Droulers, Fourmies, France; Jan Arne Farstad, Oslo, Norway; Miss Ragnheidur...
By MIKE HOPKINS, AUBURN UNIVERSITY, AUBURN, ALABAMA

The Auburn Plainsman—University president, Harry Philpott recently approved a new dining plan, which was drafted by the student Senate Discipline Revision Committee. The plan was presented to the student body for a public hearing on the first day of classes.

The new plan will allow students to choose from a variety of meal options, including a la carte and fixed-price meals. It also includes a new requirement for students to purchase a meal plan, which will help to increase the financial stability of the university.

The plan was met with mixed reactions from students. Some students praised the plan for its flexibility and variety, while others expressed concern about the cost and the potential for overconsumption.

CAPITAL UNIVERSITY, Columbus, Ohio, THE CHANCELLOR—A student and the university’s board of Environmental Concerns have ruled the search for food service will be necessary next year. The current change will involve an extension of breakfast hours to accommodate more students. Also, to provide better service for those students who do not have the regular coffee breaks and are therefore not able to accommodate the change. The new plan will allow students to choose from a variety of meal options, including a la carte and fixed-price meals. It also includes a new requirement for students to purchase a meal plan, which will help to increase the financial stability of the university.

The plan was met with mixed reactions from students. Some students praised the plan for its flexibility and variety, while others expressed concern about the cost and the potential for overconsumption.

The plan was met with mixed reactions from students. Some students praised the plan for its flexibility and variety, while others expressed concern about the cost and the potential for overconsumption.

The plan was met with mixed reactions from students. Some students praised the plan for its flexibility and variety, while others expressed concern about the cost and the potential for overconsumption.

The plan was met with mixed reactions from students. Some students praised the plan for its flexibility and variety, while others expressed concern about the cost and the potential for overconsumption.

The plan was met with mixed reactions from students. Some students praised the plan for its flexibility and variety, while others expressed concern about the cost and the potential for overconsumption.
Democratic National Convention
Young Delegates Flop In Miami

By KIM STEWART

A striking black law teacher in her mid-thirties had been elected so-called "spontaneous" caucuses were required to be open. The 206 campus representatives who sat in the campus press gallery were there for the first time due to Senator George McGovern's reforms.

Women comprised forty per cent of the convention delegates; blacks tallied eighteen percent of the convention body, and youth sat in one out of every five seats on the convention floor.

A striking black law teacher in her mid-thirties had been elected vice chairman of the convention. So-called "spontaneous" demonstrations on the convention floor for nominated presidential candidates were outlawed, and the delegates upheld the law, saving hours of time in convention sessions.

Despite the time-saving rules on banning floor demonstrations and the nominations of favorite sons for presidential candidacy, the first two convention sessions on credentials and platform challenges ended well after five the next morning. For this reporter, nothing was more impressive than seeing the delegates, nearly one-third of them dozing or asleep, continually vote down motions to adjourn and continue to tackle the controversial issues such as abortion, homosexuality, and a guaranteed annual income.

The convention floor was marked by a serious, no-nonsense mood which carried the approximately 3,000 delegates through four days of moulding a platform and nominating a candidate who, with their backing, could win in November.

Whether George McGovern can fulfill the majority of the delegates' wishes in November is highly questionable. McGovern's supporters, by and large, fiercely dedicated to their democratic nominee.

Whether George McGovern can fulfill the majority of the delegates' wishes in November is highly questionable. McGovern's supporters, by and large, fiercely dedicated to their democratic nominee.

In charge of organizing youth caucuses and unity during the convention.

They've chosen not to show up at all. Farmer said at the end of the fifth unsuccessful caucus called Thursday afternoon at the Americana Hotel. "I give up," he said.

A primary reason the youthful delegates failed to come together during the convention, Farmer feels, is that "youth delegates and alternates have found themselves in a position in which they have direct input into the convention and into convention committees."

"They don't see a need for organization on a youth basis. That's a mistake," Farmer added.

Farmer emphasized that constant pressure by youth political organizers and voters has to be felt by the Democratic National Committee for youth views to be considered in the Democratic Party. "The problems of the party often occur in the state and local parties," Farmer said. "The young delegates and alternates have chosen not to come and talk about these issues."

Some youth members, however, did attempt to create unity. During the four days of the convention, five youth caucuses were called. No quorum was present at four of those meetings, and the emergency caucus Wednesday night at Convention, though held with a quorum, produced no solid action toward that end. Young Democrats of America were fighting for more representation of youth in the Democratic National Committee and the Democratic Party at state and local levels.

"I'm placing the whole blame on the youth and alternates," said Farmer, a forty year old Secretary-Treasurer of Young Democrats of America who was adjourned because of several disagreements that arose.

Led by Alabama delegate John McKinney of Talladega and Humphrey national youth coordinator, Jim Lang, the coalition charged that Senator George McGovern had instructed his youth delegates not to appear at the caucuses for the fear that the caucuses would pass resolutions such as those calling for the convention support of the legalization of marijuana, and other issues which might place him (McGovern) in an awkward position.

Following the first caucus, only one delegate appeared at the Tuesday youth caucus, and less than ten appeared at the Wednesday meeting. A quorum was achieved at the Wednesday night caucus but the meeting was adjourned because of several disagreements that arose.
The sports program at Jacksonville State is now under a tremendous pressure. We are very happy with the future of the program as we are concerned with our growth, and hope that we are growing along with this program.

A multimillion dollar sports complex, located on the Gaddeden highway, is now under construction, and our student fans are finally becoming a reality, and seems to be growing up overnight. We hope this complex is being built not only to meet our needs today, but our future ones.

Our institution has long been a supporter of sports, and is now advancing into many other fields. The new law enforcement building will be ready this fall. The new Nursing school is also under construction, and our new library is finally opened. The university and city is finally coming out of its shells, and extending the boundaries of this college into a major university.

Sports being the major concern of most the people is very important to any school's growth. Our teams have been very strong from time to time. We hope these teams can come back to life this year, and work as a unit. Let us carry into the new sports complex winning records, not only of scores, but fans.

Cheering At Jax State

Over 500 high school girls from across the state are attending a cheering clinic this week at J.S.U. Registration started Sunday afternoon, and an introduction of the new cheers Sunday night.

Girls from Banks High of Birmingham, and Sylacauga High of Sylacauga have been preparing to instruct the other cheerleaders of the clinic all last week.

These clinics are sponsored by the Alabama High School Athletic Association. The coordinators are Mrs. Lenette Calvin from Sylacauga High, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hatch from Banks.

This is the first of three clinics held this summer. The second clinic will be held at Troy State University. The major clinic will be held at the University of Alabama, and many of the same girls will attend for the final championship.

Tennis Game Has Improved

"ONLY A GAME" is a novel about pro football, but it seems almost like it could be written about some flamboyant star player. Realism is the long suit of this book. There are parts which anyone who has ever participated in any type of sports can identify.

The author, Robert Daley, has good reason to recognize football realism for he was publicity director of the New York Giants football team for six years. He also came by this writing style honestly after spending another six years on the foreign staff of the New York Times.

Don't get the idea the "ONLY A GAME" is strictly a football story or a book for sports buffs along, for underneath the sweat and physical activity lies the story of a man who must suddenly decide priorities in his life, priorities which he, and he alone, can set. When this theme is interlaced with three love stories; one for a good woman, one for a not so good woman, and one for a not so good, not so bad game then the book takes on an extremely sensitive aura which belies its subject matter.

Coed Takes State Foil Championship

By MARTY JONES

Donna Banks, a rising senior 17 year old junior majoring in music at Jacksonville State University, has placed first in the women's events in the state. Donna has been fencing since January when she acquired an interest for the sport from her brother who was fifth in the men's foil division.

Donna was taught the art of foiling by Colonel Byrom who instructs a local club in the sport, and is open to anyone interested in his garage. Practice will resume for Donna and her fellow fencers in the fall. Colonel Byrom hopes to enlarge his club. The CHANTICLEER wishes to congratulate Col. Byrom and especially Donna Sanders for their winning efforts.
Psychology Department
A New Way Of Thinking

By STEVEN ALLEN
The new approach of the Psychology department is commonly known as Behaviorism, and Spino Agnew definitely isn't going to like it! In an address to the Florida Agricultural Association on November 17, the vice-president spoke of mass psychological-behavioral techniques, the leading proponents of behaviorism, especially B.F. Skinner and Kenneth Clark. This warning by the vice-president suggests that the Administration would oppose the $2 billion child development bill then before Congress. And they were not wrong.

Eventually the President had to veto the bill, because Congress passed it against his wishes. Many Conservatives saw the proposed behaviorally-based day care as a Sovietization of child rearing, a satirical example of "cradle-to-grave" welfare statism.

Many people cite the example of the Hillside Slav colony's sports, education, and as fields as proof that it is "creeping up on us." Movies such as A CLOCKWORK ORANGE show us how behaviorism will destroy freedom. Psychiatrists speculate about the use of the scalpel to alter thought.

When the Psychology department announced its change from the traditional, or Humanist, school to that of the Behaviorists, teeming multitudes failed to protest.

The CHANTICLEER talked to Dr. David D. Patterson, of the Psychology department and academic head why. According to Dr. Patterson, "there is no controversy over the change because all psychologists are basically Behaviorists. Everything we do, every observation we make is based on behavior. With what we know about human behavior, I can't see behaviorism being any kind of threat way into our children's lives and their children's lives. Ultimately, of course, it will be possible to control behavior, but I don't see it as a threat for a long, long time.'

"There will not be that many changes, for a while at least, in the way the course is taught. Just about the same books are used; we're reducing the number of required courses; and we're going to try to improve the system of teaching. You know, Socrates used better teaching methods than the ones we have now. He used the dialogue form, which is far superior to the lecture form we have now and we want to use the best teaching techniques, even if it does mean changing our techniques a little."

Dr. Patterson continued: "The main emphasis we want to put on the program will be on applied training, with theoretical matters secondary. There are a lot of people now who are needed by mental institutions, community health centers, and so forth, and there just aren't enough psychologists to go around. So we want to offer courses that will be useful to those who will just get a B.S. or B.A. and also to those who will go on to graduate school. And striking the delicate balance between the two is part of what this change is about."

Even though B.F. Skinner (author of BEYOND FREEDOM AND DIGNITY) and Kenneth Clark could be considered extreme, it is still surprising the Behaviorism is to psychology as Keynesianism is to economics.

To paraphrase Milton Friedman: "In one sense we are all Behaviorists now; in another sense, none of us are Behaviorists."

SGA Announces Plans

By CHRISTOPHER TOWNSEND
On July 14, the Student Government Association held its third meeting of the summer semester. Tonight the SGA will meet again at 7:00 p.m. in the Student Commons Auditorium.

The SGA made it public that there will be a meeting visitation hour in the girls' dorms starting this fall, on Sunday from 7 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Recently the SGA has brought to this campus three hit movies: "True Grit", "The Bible", and "M+A+S+H".

On July 14, the Student Government president, Mrs. Phillips, a former JSU student, who is an authority on insurance has offered to be present three hours a week in the Student Commons Building to offer advice and answer questions concerning insurance. It is hoped that students will take advantage of this free advice.

Other items of interest include these: Mr. Phillips, a former JSU student, who is an authority on insurance has offered to be present three hours a week in the Student Commons Building to offer advice and answer questions concerning insurance. It is hoped that students will take advantage of this free advice.

Another meeting for Thursday July 27 has been called to hear John Jackson, head of the Citzen's Committee on State Government. Richard Reed, president of the SGA, invites students to this meeting at 2 o'clock in his office in the Student Commons Building.

International

Israelotto, Reyjvik, Iceland; Christakis Kyriakos, Nicosia, Cyprus; Miss Marianne Lang, Aachen, Germany; Miss Tanis C. Mattos, Gunabara, Brazil; Miss Alia Micher, Torreon, Mexico; Timothy Russell Punits, Havant, England; Lowe Clay, Schlesinger, Guatemala City, Guatemala; Tom Tiratadina, Jakarta, Indonesia; Miss Kiyomi Watanabe, Tokyo, Japan; Friedrich Weiler, Volzburg, Austria; Miss Suzanne Wenzel, Lima, Peru; Miss Loretta Yuan, Taipei, Taiwan; and Miss Megan Bolling of Sydney, Australia, who will be returning for her second year of study.

Kappa Psi

point average and a STRONG desire to be an active brother. The pole-march (equivalent of president) is Ralph Armstrong. Other officers include Tommy Huesley, Billy Almon, Sam Lyon, and Rayford Sims. Elisah Slaughter is the Kappa Alpha Psi sponsor. National fraternity members include Chamberlain, Abbernathy, Carl and Lou Stokes and many other widely known figures.

Kappa Alpha Psi members wish to promote Jax State and the Jacksonville community as a whole. They hope to see growth and greater unity among the Greeks here in the near future.

For these Jax State students, Kappa Alpha Psi is a dream. They have come a long way, but still have a long way to go. All they ask is a chance.

Publications Board To Meet

There will be a Board of Publications meeting held on Wednesday, July 27, for the purpose of selecting a Business Manager and Editor for the 1972-73 CHANTICLEER. Students interested in applying for these positions should contact the Public Relations Office or Richard Reid, Student Government president.

The students who apply for these positions will be expected to appear before the Board on Wednesday, July 27, at 3:00 p.m. to present their qualifications to the Publications Board. The meeting will be held in the Conference Room of Bibb Graves Hall.

Sydney, Australia, who will be returning for her second year of study.
Shakespearean Festival
Opening A Comedy

By MIKE HOPKINS

The Alabama Shakespeare Festival opened its doors Wednesday evening, July 12, to a large crowd of theatre lovers. Martin Platt, the artistic director of the Festival, was pleased to see such a responsive crowd on opening night. The Festival opened with "A Comedy Of Errors" the first of four plays to be presented by the Festival.

Shakespeare wrote for the vast public; not a choice few. His plays are to be seen and not just read. They are for the entertainment of the citizens. "Comedy" is a play dealing with two sets of twins who have been separated from childhood and the complications that develop when the twins are brought together in the same city.

The cast had a great time with the play. It is enjoyable to both children and adults. Everyone loves a slapstick comedy. The cast kept the play moving quickly to capture the excitement and interest of the audience. Which they did from their outrageous entrance from the back of the theatre to the unexpected leap from the stage at the end.

Director Platt has brought Shakespeare to life with ideas of the modern theatre. The cast drawn from Alabama, New York, and other parts of the North-East work and play extremely well together. They have reached a polished state which notes them as professional. The set and costumes are no less professional than the cast itself. Such a high standard of entertainment is usually found not closer to Anniston than New York; however, for this summer, it is found right here in Anniston.

ALABAMA SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL
Inaugural Season 1972
July 12 - August 19

Individual Tickets $2.00 - Season Tickets $5.00

Available by mail - Alabama Shakespeare Festival, Box 441, Anniston, Alabama 36201.
For information call 236-7223 Evenings.
All performances at Anniston Little Theatre. Open at 17th

PERFORMANCE SCHEDULE
July 11 Comedy* Aug 2 Hamlet
July 12 Comedy Aug 3 Teddy
July 13 Two* Aug 4 Two
July 14 Two Aug 5 Teddy
July 15 Tank Aug 6 Deck
July 16 Two Aug 7 Two
July 17 Comedy Aug 8 Comedy
July 18 Two Aug 9 Two
July 19 Comedy Aug 10 Hamlet
July 20 Comedy Aug 11 Hamlet
July 21 Hamlet Aug 12 Hamlet
July 22 Comedy Aug 13 Comedy
July 23 Two Aug 14 Two
July 24 Comedy Aug 15 Hamlet
July 25 Two Aug 16 Comedy
July 26 Two Aug 17 Two
July 27 Hamlet Aug 18 Hamlet
July 28 Comedy Aug 19 Comedy
July 29 Two Aug 20 Two
July 30 Two Aug 21 Two
July 31 Comedy Aug 22 Comedy
August 1 Two Aug 23 Two
August 2 Two Aug 24 Two
August 3 Comedy
August 4 Comedy
August 5 Comedy
August 6 Comedy
August 7 Comedy
August 8 Comedy
August 9 Comedy
August 10 Comedy
August 11 Comedy
August 12 Comedy
August 13 Comedy
August 14 Comedy
August 15 Comedy
August 16 Comedy
August 17 Comedy
August 18 Comedy
August 19 Comedy
August 20 Comedy
August 21 Comedy
August 22 Comedy
August 23 Comedy
August 24 Comedy

Opening Night

A Fairy Tale

Once upon a time, long ago, a "sexist" hamster lived in a small, university-centered town in Alabama. Theron Huston, as he was commonly known, was a morally good hamster who never bothered anyone—as did other hamsters on that campus—and lived quite happily in a university dormitory. He was a very energetic hamster who was always concerned with the rights of others and spent his entire life making sure that everyone on campus was treated equally.

It came to pass on the campus, that a new hamster and his wife moved into an adjoining dormitory room. Theron Huston decided to visit the couple and welcome them to the friendly dormitory. After seeking his owner's permission, Theron went to visit this new couple and, unfortunately, the male was not at home. In his usual friendly manner, Theron Huston introduced himself to the female hamster. He had no sooner sat down in the cage when the male entered, it had been told, and became violently aggressive upon finding his wife with another hamster. Theron Huston, a decent, self-respecting hamster, became the victim of a savage attack.

Rumors spread like a wild fire in the little town. Soon enough in the town had heard that Theron Huston was a sexist who raped another hamster's wife. Theron's friends knew better and assured him that they would set the town straight about the matter. "Don't build a monument to me," were his last words. Theron Huston died within a few hours after being savagely attacked.

Theron Huston was just another victim of blind justice which was somewhat the custom in the small town. The police never found the time to investigate his death. The coroner's report listed the cause of death as "circumstances of the case in the result of too many weekend parties."

The friends of Theron Huston gave him a funeral that only a hamster of his moral character deserved. The entire third floor of a dormitory was turned into a parlor and it was there, the legend goes, that his loyal friends came to pay their last respects.

Along with these friends, came many university celebrities including the dormitory director, his wife, and the local drunk. Forty mourners signed the guest book.

A member of the university biology department, it was told, spoke at the funeral of Theron Huston. He read a short passage from his biology text and then prayed the "Rodent's Prayer" from which the Lord's Prayer—that humans frequently use—was inspired. After an hour of memorial tribute, four pallbearers led the procession from the dormitory. All of the dormitory residents stood in their doorway, in silent tribute, as the body of Theron Huston passed by.

The coffin was draped with a Confederate flag; it was carried by the mourners past a building housing the biology department and the psychology department. "It was like a slap in Theron's (See FAIRY TALE, Page 7)

Chanticleer

Day by Day—day by day
Oh, dear Lord, three things I pray
To see Thee more clearly
Love Thee more dearly
Follow Thee more nearly
Day by day.

—GODSPELL
Mini Courses Are A Hit

By HAROLD RAGLAND

After months of charges, counter-charges, heated discussions, protests and, previously alleged administrative abortions, Black History was born at Jacksonville State University May 1972 during the Mini-seminar. Due to the over-worked popularity of the subject, Black History articles and discussions have paddled both sides of the question; and it would be fruitless to raise them again, however, salient factors of the Black Man's History has included some of the following conclusions and ideas:

1. The study of Black History is difficult, awesome, disagreeable, interesting and necessary.
2. Due to neglect, white oriented educational racism and the dominance of American History, Black History in general and Black Studies in particular can be considered in an embryonic stage and the need for stable research and historical writing is overwhelming.
3. Accredited Black Studies programs must exist and grow as long as weak professional educators and historians continue to sit on their brains and cast up inflated nonsense.
4. Blacks have not gained full equality in America and this is due, in part, to anti-Black sentiments.
5. Most Black organizations are of a reformist nature and can be divided usually into two camps: 1) Integration-Assimilation, and 2) the Separatist-African-Oriented.
6. Any objective and prepared college student and/or teacher cannot deny himself the exposure to full American History nor sacrifice personal or sabbatical postiency by his ignorance.

Since public and university services aid us, we are not congratulated for doing what is decent and moral, we only hope that students and teachers will not rest until they have the chance to be an extinct animal in Alabama and the world.

The Black History course has been scheduled for future semesters and it would be wise for interested students to contact tentative schedules for academic arrangements.

POETRY

Take not from others
Give not of yourself
Teach not your brothers
Table Knowledge on a shelf

Love not the first
Kiss not the last
Play up your heart
Follow not the chart.

Kiss not the Saint, Pray not to gods
Live not with few, seek not the mobs
Covet not your neighbor, spare not the rod
Live for yourself, "What endless joy"

H. Ragland

O let me wake before I die
To notice the birth of short tall trees
Let me wake to see the world
Past of time I could not hold.

Seconds of years with no control
Let me wake before I die, or else,
Winter comes and stars shine not.
In deep clouds the trees will hide,
My sleep in time forever more.

H. Ragland

A spark of life, a will to live
A hand that shields, the growth of years
A seeing form, a stone to warm.

Seconds and minutes the fire goes worn
The endless summer, a final winter

Snuff out the spark, the sign of heat
All is cold, dark and repeat.

H. Ragland

Where It's At

The ManKind Project—what is it? To put a simplistic definition to such a question is difficult, but one might attempt to answer it by saying that ManKind is merely a group of people who want to create a community where "students can coexist with townspeople."

ManKind began last January with the optimistic intentions of becoming a community house where students could come just to rap and talk or their brains.

Why did the originators of ManKind feel the need for a project such as their's? Kids can close their eyes and stay stoned out of their minds, saying the problems will go away, but the problems are there just the same...Maybe we can reach out to these people, freaks and straights, and break through their celluloid worlds and bring them together. All this sounds very idealistic but what has ManKind actually accomplished for the community of Jacksonville? The results are surprising and hopeful.

The ManKind Project, after receiving many statements from students concerning police brutality in Jacksonville, held a meeting with the city police. Action resulting from this meeting will probably be taken this fall.

ManKind is visited regularly by speakers and provide current documentary films. Some of the speakers are members of organizations such as the Institute of Study of Nonviolence and the Atlanta Workshop of Non-Violence.

One of ManKind's objectives is to have a psychologist on campus. There were 25 attempted suicides last semester on campus. Do we need to say anything further, for the figure is only too eloquent in supporting the demand for a resident psychologist on campus?

ManKind has suggested free night classes. These night classes should not necessarily be academic subjects instructed by professors, but seminars in which people share skills in handicrafts with others. This would mean involvement of students and townspeople on a "show and tell" basis, leading to a better understanding within the community of Jacksonville and better understanding needs all the help it can get! ManKind is here to serve the community and will help anyone whose cause is non-violent and constructive. ManKind invites anyone who would like to rap with them and contribute any ideas that can effectively be put to use in creating a more beneficial community.

Book Reviews

“THE HAPPY HOOKER” by Xaviera Hollander

Books, New York, 1972, $1.50

Xaviera Hollander is one of New York's famous and most expensive madames. She has written an account of her life, travels, and travels which may be one of the unsellable books to come out this year.

This book, which seems a little too good to be true in spots, deals with the more realistic side of prostitution. Miss Hollander, a nice girl from the right side of the tracks who got derailed and did all right. In a time when prostitution is one of those party-joke subjects, some of the innocent and some of the enjoyment which Miss Hollander received comes through with startling clarity.

Miss Hollander, still in her early 30s is almost prudish about some elements of her past, but she does give a view which seems much more realistic than the KLUTE" and more honest than "A HOUSE IS NOT A HOME" books which cover the same every semester in Spanish. The house is fairly readable, but some of the attitudes expressed and reasons given for the attitudes seem a little stilted. The style is that of a first-person narrative and of an adolescent person who can envision what is happening now. This makes the story a little hard to follow.

If one would like a spicy, but unintentionally boring look at a self-admittedly "happy" person, try this one. So what if she can't really write worth a darn, a person can't do everything well.

Letters

JSL has a new dean for the College of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Reuben Boozer, head of the Biology Department, replaced Dr. L.J. Haywood Jr., who retired June 1, 1972 as the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences which is the largest of the seven schools at Jax State.

Dr. Boozer has a doctorate degree in zoology from Auburn University. Dr. Boozer has been on the JSU faculty since 1967, and had taught there previously from 1954-1963.

Fairy Tale

face," said one of the mourners, "that the President of the University didn't come out when we passed his home on the way to Thorton's burial."

By and by, that police escort directed the mourners across the busy highway which was named after a familiar general of that town. The mourners, one carrying a sign which read: "Funeral: Rest in Peace"—the peace being illustrated by a peace symbol.

Thorton Huston's tomb was a four-foot slab of cement which stood directly across from the President's home, on a hill. An eternal flame was placed beside his grave which shone radiantly through the darkness of the small town. It came to pass in the small town, that after Thorton Huston's burial, the citizens therein decided to build a monument on top of the hamster's grave. Now, beneath a twelve-story marble structure, Thorton Huston lies in peace.

CLEBURNE: From Helena: Evelyn Louise Barber, Betty Allen Marney, Donna Lynn Moore, and Kenneth Craig Turner. From Cullman: Stella Wynne Morrow, Baileyton; and Gary L. James, Cullman.

From Rainbow: James Daniel Ashley, Jewell Crie Shanahan, Elizabeth Dobbs Sixmore, and Betty June Newmore.

From Hayden: Barry Lewis Bottoms, John Frederick Dugger, Joan Ellen Ebanks, Vivian Maddock, Frederick G. Overholt, Lucille Frazier, June Overstreet, Linda Gail Smith, Nancy Joyce Walton, Gary Earl DeBerry, L. Gary Dennis, John Durwood Lumpkin, Charles Lewis Owens, Douglas Clayton Reed, Roger Alan Dulaney, Selma Carolyn Sansey, John Frank Sizemore, and Betty June Peck.

From Wellington: Paul Eugene Pettit.

CHAMBERS: Michael Steven Monroe, Lassett.

CHEROKEE: From Cedar Bluff: Judith Carolyn Bailey. From Centre: Carol Davis

Page 8

Graduation

From Blue Mountain; Myra Sue Batterner.

From Ft. McClenan: Mary Anne P. Dold.

From Jacksonsville: Donna Jean Bryan Benefield, Peggy Biggers Surges, Jimmy Wayne Champion, Betty Hettinstiene, and June Lynn Foulds.

From Bessemer: Helen Wild, Dorothy White, and Michael Bateman.

From Sylacauga: John Gary Ready, Tallasee.

From Tuscaloosa: Russel Borden, Dorothy Beatrice, and Betty June Newmore.

From Montgomery: Marsha Rutherford, Betty June Newmore, and Scottie Jean Freeman.

From Weaver: Betty Jack Grom Fii.

From Dawson: Kathy M. Lanett and David Scott Turner.

From Rainsville: James Mobley, Allan Saxon, and Jack Andrew Bobo.

From Hueytown: Ida Jo Hayes, Cave Springs, and Leon Chisholm.

From Albertville: Betty Jo Reynolds, and Gary Lee Caldwell.

From Bessemer: Margaret Ayers K. Roberts.

From JSU. The war interrupted that. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way.

We believe that this building should be renamed in honor of the 1972 Alumni of the Year, Scotty Ross of Rossville, Ga. Scott, paralyzed from the chest down, was a student at Jacksonville State in the early prewar 40s and actually participated in the building of Hammond Hall. Scott was seriously wounded in the early part of World War II and has played a large part in the development of JSU. The war interrupted that. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way.

We believe that this building should be renamed in honor of the 1972 Alumni of the Year, Scotty Ross of Rossville, Ga. Scott, paralyzed from the chest down, was a student at Jacksonville State in the early prewar 40s and actually participated in the building of Hammond Hall. Scott was seriously wounded in the early part of World War II and has played a large part in the development of JSU. The war interrupted that. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way.

We believe that this building should be renamed in honor of the 1972 Alumni of the Year, Scotty Ross of Rossville, Ga. Scott, paralyzed from the chest down, was a student at Jacksonville State in the early prewar 40s and actually participated in the building of Hammond Hall. Scott was seriously wounded in the early part of World War II and has played a large part in the development of JSU. The war interrupted that. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way.

We believe that this building should be renamed in honor of the 1972 Alumni of the Year, Scotty Ross of Rossville, Ga. Scott, paralyzed from the chest down, was a student at Jacksonville State in the early prewar 40s and actually participated in the building of Hammond Hall. Scott was seriously wounded in the early part of World War II and has played a large part in the development of JSU. The war interrupted that. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way.

We believe that this building should be renamed in honor of the 1972 Alumni of the Year, Scotty Ross of Rossville, Ga. Scott, paralyzed from the chest down, was a student at Jacksonville State in the early prewar 40s and actually participated in the building of Hammond Hall. Scott was seriously wounded in the early part of World War II and has played a large part in the development of JSU. The war interrupted that. Some may say that he is not a famous politician or public figure who might have influence to help the school in every way.