IN •

The returns from last Thursday's Freshman Class election got to us too late to be included in this issue, because the Election Committee refused to release the vote tallies. The reason given to this reporter was the fact that it would be "embarrassing to some people" if it were revealed that the New Dorm cast a greatly disproportionate share of the vote and elected all the officers, except for Resident Senator (There is a run-off tomorrow for that office.) An agreement between former SGA President Richard Reid and former CHANTICLEER Editor-in-Chief Thom Simpson, while both were in office, allowed the Editor to be present at the counting of the votes; however, this was not the case. It is believed that New Dorm cast about 150 votes while all other Freshmen together cast about 50 . . . at least, that is what preliminary returns indicate. The election was conducted against a background of numerous reported violations of the school campaign rules, including allegations of campaigning at the polls and campaigning on Election Day. The polls were supposed to be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the first floors of Bibb Graves and Merrill, but in fact the polls were not open in one building except for about an hour and the polls were also closed in the other building for a time. The Election Committee chose an Election Day between editions of the CHANTICLEER, so it was of course impossible to print the date of the election. The Committee has been withholding vote totals from the students and the press for several years, and the lack of a record of some elections leaves some doubt as to the legality of some SGA actions. The Election Committee failed to void the election, ignoring a possible court fight. And I was told that if I printed the facts about the election, "someone else will be Editor of the CHANTICLEER the next week."

"Hatchet Murderer"

Jacksonville and campus police are joining the Federal Bureau of Investigation in what has been called the largest manhunt since Jimmy the Greek put out a contract on Bobby Riggs. The FBI was called into the case when it was learned the so-called "Hatchet Murderer" carried a Nixon poster across state lanes and violated the Ervin Act, committed by Senator Ervin last week.

The intensive search began last week when it was reported that, despite the fact that there are strict rules on this campus forbidding females from sleeping someplace other than their dormitories, a bedcheck in Sparkman Hall revealed that three floors were empty. Administration officials immediately suspected play, some of it foul.

All of these events, of course, followed the prediction by world-famous prophet Jeanne Dixon, co-author (With Ruth M—y) of the book "Seer's Catalogue," in which Miss Dixon correctly predicted the outcome of the 1972 Republican National Convention, even to the naming of the Presidential candidate! Miss Dixon two weeks ago predicted that a Hatchet Murderer would attack the fifth, sixth, and seventh floors of a dormitory whose name begins with the letter "s", has two syllables, and rhymes with "darkman". She said the attack would occur on the campus of an Alabama university at which "the hills have gems, whatever that means," and she indicated that an extraterrestrial structure on the campus holds "long thin tubes in which people go up and down." She also said that "a high official of the university has a geological name." Police were mystified as to WHICH university Miss Dixon was referring to until the recent strange occurrences around here.

Last Friday, all the law enforcement classes on campus were given cards with the question "How can we trap the Hatchet Murderer?" imprinted in gold on the larger side. Some of the suggestions received were: "At the next football game, have George Salmon say, 'Hatchet Murderer come to the press box . . . Hatchet Murderer come to the press box,'" "Let word get out that the Mafia had a contract out on one of his victims, and then sit and wait for him to collect"; "Have a Student Conference on American Decapitation, and invite him to speak"; "Set a trap by having a cheerleader appear in the paper in an ad with the caption 'Get a Head'"; "Find out who ISN'T a Hatchet Murderer, and send everybody else to jail"; and "If I don't answer this stupid question, do I flunk the course?" One person wrote, "Don't axe me." The little twirp.

Most of the hysteria generated by the attack of the Hatchet Murderer has been the result of the report that a Hatchet Murderer escaped from jail in Florida and was headed toward Jacksonville. We of the CHANTICLEER would like to take this opportunity to lay that rumor to rest forever. There is absolutely no truth at all to the rumor. As a matter of fact, the Hatchett Murderer was never headed for anywhere in Alabama. He was headed for Nebraska, and Alabama just happened to be along the way.

According to Dean Jackson (not to be confused with Dean Buttram), there is no Hatchet Murderer, there never was a Hatchet Murderer, there never will be a Hatchet Murderer, and anyway they ran him out of Sparkman last week, so there is nothing to worry about. However, a member of the English Department who wishes to remain nameless to avoid the IRS, told the CHANTICLEER that he, she or it believes the Hatchet Murderer came from some place called Sleepy Hollow, and that "ol' Incabod got away after all." The reader must be reminded, though, that at the time, the faculty member referred to was driving around Trustee Circle at 140 miles per hour in a pickup truck, so this must be taken into account, along with the fact that he kept shouting "The Lilliputians are all over me" long into the morning.

Resident students are advised to keep their jaws and doors locked concerning this fiend, and please study the drawing of the Hatchet Murderer. This is a composite of the descriptions given by two unidentified residents of Sparkman, who said that they thought he looked like a member of the SGA Senate.

On Coed Dorms

By Robert C. Fisher

The past two issues of the CHANTICLEER have carried articles by wonderfully enlightened liberal thinkers in support of coed dorms.

Being neither enlightened nor liberal, or even particularly wonderful for that matter, I oppose the idea.

Carl Phillips was the only one who provided any reasons for his views. Note: I said reasons, not logic.

To begin with, the International House is a coed dorm as Mr. Phillips pointed out. I am also willing to accept his statements that 70 per cent of all U. S. colleges have some form of coed dorms and 26 per cent have males and females on the same floor, simply because those claims have nothing to do with my objections.

My own general opinion is that I see nothing inherently wrong with men and women living in the same building, same floor, or in adjoining rooms. I have lived in all three situations while attending JSU. I also have no complaints for the present about housing arrangements at the International House. But I do oppose any additional coed dorms.

I have talked to many students who live at the International House or would like to.

The first reason given for wanting to live there is the price. Face it, if you can't afford it you aren't going to apply. Secondly, the students want a nice room. These are the same reasons why I picked a room off-campus. The International House has other advantages peculiar to itself, however. Students like living with the foreign students, they like the fact that it has a small number of residents making for a closeknit group, and, I might add, the small group also makes it much less likely for trouble to occur. Not one student mentioned coed housing as a favor in their decision. The obvious fact is that the International House is viewed as just that; not as a coed dorm.

Any additional coed dorms would be in an entirely different class. None of the good reasons for applying to the International House apply to other coed dorms. A person choosing to live in one of the new coed dorms would be basing their decision on that single aspect.

Obviously there is a completely different attitude in the two situations and attitude is the important factor since our attitude

As some of you recall in my last column, I came out in favor of more coed dorms. I gave the reasons of shorter fights and better treatment of the two sexes by the two sexes.

STAFF CONFERENCE

After the column appeared, several staff members talked to me about their experiences in coed dorms at other universities. They (I forgot to write down their names) stated that the dormitories had a more relaxed atmosphere, cleaner rooms (you never knew who would come to visit), and in general, less restrictions (everyone knew the limits of misconduct which existed).

IOWA

The University of Iowa, according to these people, has an open dorm system which would be more readily accepted by JSU—meaning the administration, students, parents of students, and alumni.

For example, one twelve-story dorm, originally for men only, has a system whereby the first two floors are off-limits to all women. Floors 3-8 permit women only at certain hours of the day. Floors 9-12 are completely coed. The floors are connected by a system of elevators.

This living arrangement is on a completely voluntary basis. Those who choose the first two floors generally, but not always, are those persons who need to study undisturbed by anyone (24 hours of quiet hours for the entire semester). The middle floors are occupied by persons who would be satisfied to have social contacts only at certain hours of the day (such as now exists at JSU). The top floors are occupied, strangely enough, not by the more intelligent persons who need an extra amount of social contact to prevent them from studying too much.

AUBURN

To give an example of what JSU just evolved from, Auburn University is now going through the stage where the students desire inter-dorm visitation, but a few members of the administration and a few students are against the idea.

For quite some time, THE PLAINSMAN has editorialized and taken polls about this situation. The last issue of the summer reported that no progress had been made in that area.

YOUR TURN

determines our actions.

Mr. Phillips claims that the number of rapes at colleges with men and women living on the same floor has gone down to practically nothing. Questions: What had been the previous number of rapes? What is "practically nothing"? What are the rates of venereal disease and pregnancy among unmarried students at these universities? What is the average number of rapes at JSU over the past five years? And what was the source of your original statement, Mr. Phillips?

Any girls who believe Mr. Phillips is advocating coed dorms because of rapists roaming the campus probably also believes the world is flat and all aspirin is alike.

There is still such a thing as right and wrong, as morality and immorality I know, that's a corny attitude. To you maybe, not me. Morality is not a realative thing, nor is it a matter of individual opinion or standards. It is not corny, reactionary, or passe'. It is ignored, which is the problem.

Mr. Phillips is wrong when he claims the major reason for students moving off-campus is that when on-campus they were forced to live apart from the opposite sex. The truth is, students who make that excuse are immature little creatures convinced that they know more than their elders or God.

Movie Reviews

By BEVERLY TODD
"Paper Moon"

"PAPER MOON" is a step backwards into the 1930's. It is complete with coney islands, roadsters, radio comedy shows and it's even filmed in black and white. Ryan O'Neal and his daughter Tatum are the stars. They flim-flam around the country making money in every devious way they can think of. This movie is full of laughter, tears and enough sex to give it just the right zing! If you haven't seen it, then go!

"LIVE AND LET DIE"

For all you James Bond freaks out there "LIVE AND LET DIE" is another hit for the 007 industry. This movie takes you into the jungle where James Bond does everything from walking on alligators to saving his damsel in distress from a poisonous snake. The sound track is unbelievable and the boat chase is fantastic! You can't miss it and of course, no matter what kind of predicament 007 gets into, he calmly and coolly gets right out of it completely unharmed. Another conquest of women and the enemy for old J. B.!

"THE HARRAD EXPERIMENT"

Reviewed by BRYAN WEAVER

I went to a movie at the Cheaha Theatre last night expecting to see a skin flick about a different kind of coed dorm where roommates are of the opposite sex and came out very pleasantly surprised.

The "Harrad Experiment" is about a school which is trying a new type of coed dorm. Complete strangers of the opposite sex assigned as roommates. At first it seems as if this will be a comedy situation, but it turns out to be a very emotional story about very human people. The main characters in the story are Stanley Cole (Don Johnson) whose roommate is Sheila Grove (Laura Walters) and Harry Schacht

Fall Of The "Ethics" Bill

The Alabama Legislature has passed an "ethics" bill which is intended to make all legislators honest. It is going to fail.

The first question that comes to mind: Is the bill, in forcing reporters who cover "state government in any way" to reveal the sources of their income, the people and organizations they represent, their debts, property they own from which they receive income, etc., unconstitutional? Can the state force persons to give up their right to privacy in order to become reporters? The First Amendment guarantees freedom of the press, so that, for one thing, dishonest politicians will be investigated and their dishonesties revealed. Under the "ethics" bill, persons would be discouraged from becoming reporters, and reporters would have yet another sword over their head to be dropped at the fiat of the state.

So most would agree that the section of the bill that refers to reporters is not reasonable. But the section about state officials having to reveal their whatever, that's okay, because public men are public and we therefore have a right to their deepest secrets . . . Right?

Wrong. If the state can force a person to reveal his financial situation in order to become a public official, can it not also force him to give up his other Constitutional rights, such as those that entitle him to free speech and religion? Why should a law that forces public officials to give up their "divine rights" be any different from one that forces reporters to give up theirs?

Some say that, well, the law is unconstitutional, but it will do some good, so let's just wait and see, and THEN maybe challenge it in court. This is not the case. Public officials who have committed criminal acts are no more likely to report those criminal acts now than before. Otto Kerner certainly never entered "Stock Manipulation" on his 10-40.

There is a controversy now over whether the Governor violated this silly law forbidding the appointment of a relative of oneself or one's wife to a state office. If an appointment is one for which confirmation is required, it is that body's responsibility to determine when any conflicts of interest occur, and when nepotism appears. If the appointment is one that does not require confirmation, the Governor will appoint the right person or the wrong person as he sees fit, without regard to whether the person might end up being his wife's cousin. The no-relatives law only serves to eliminate from competition persons who might really be qualified for an office.

The main problem seems to stem from the fact that people believe it is possible to make people honest by passing a law against dishonesty, without regard to innocent people who might be hurt.

Letters

Dear Dr. Stone:

Although I have never been on the campus of Jacksonville State University, I am presently a fan of your institution.

During late August I had the happy experience of working with the Baptist Student Union choir from Jacksonville State. Along with the composer, Bill Cates, I had written a church musical, Joy. This has been performed a number of times during the past year. We have worked with, I suppose, no less than ten groups all over the United States. The highlight of those experiences came when we worked with the Baptist Student Union choir from Jacksonville State.

There must have been a thousand to fifteen hundred other college students in attendance at the conference. Following the musical a number of students came to me and said they couldn't believe the vocal sound of the choir and asked where the group was from. Even though the choir had been introduced earlier, many people still wanted further information about this group. Your music faculty must have gotten several thousand dollars worth of free publicity as a result of that performance!

Already I have deeply appreciated the campus minister who works with Baptist students, Mr. John Tadlock. Now, I am grateful for the entire institution and just wanted you to know what a tremendous job the choir did in performing the musical, Joy. I am sure you are grateful that a group like this represents Jacksonville State University.

Sincerely yours,
Ed Seabough

From: Ernest Stone, President
Subject: Conservation of Energy.

We are facing an energy crisis on this campus and in just about every school and industry in the whole country. We normally use a very large amount of electricity, natural gas, and fuel oil. These just happen to be the energy sources in short supply. What can we do to conserve energy on this campus? The following ways are suggested:

1. Keep all lights turned off when not in use. Be sure lights are turned off in classrooms when classes are over and when the lights are not needed. Keep lights off in all hallways during the daytime.

2. Keep doors to classrooms and buildings closed to conserve heat. Keep thermostats set at 70 degrees at all times.

NOTE: The energy crisis is rapidly becoming a nation-wide problem. The two new buildings we opened last year and the two new buildings we will open this year, together with the buildings we hope to construct in the next two or three years, make it mandatory that we conserve energy.

P. S. I have ceased use of three big lights in my office.

Reminder

I have been asked to remind everyone that Jimmy Carroll has free puppies at 435-3608, but I decided that it would be better to wait and make him pay for a classified ad. So handle it for me, will you, Dave? And make sure this doesn't get in the copy like my last memo did.

"Mustachioed"

By JACK HARDY

(Reprinted Courtesy of exponent)

Mustache! Clark Gable and Lawrence Olivier and Douglas Fairbanks and Robert Taylor and Anna Magnani. So why not me? All of them were wonderfully mustachioed, and like most young men somewhere between the onslaught of puberty and the decline of marriage, I was determined to grow a manly mustache. Curiosity was my goad—just how rakish, how debonair, how sly could I be—mustachioed?

So while on a fishing trip in the Smokies, for the first time I didn't shave under my nose. I didn't want a Fu Manchu, a Teddy Roosevelt, or one of those greasy thin pencil affairs—modified Robert Redford, as the then-playing "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," that's the sort of mustache I longed for. It would be full, silky, soft as down, the ends curving down to a point just below the corners of my mouth—rather evil looking, actually, but classy, that's the mustache I longed for.

"You shave that thing off RIGHT NOW or you're not coming in this house." Mothers loathe mustaches on their sons (it's alright on Walter Cronkite, he's got a good job, but you're just a student, how you going to get anywhere in life with that thing on your face?). Maybe it's because with a few notable exceptions, they are unable to sprout one of their own. This particular mother was adamant. She lobbed the good, basic American threat at me: shave or no food, no home, no nothin'. I won round one easily, countering with "aw shucks, I just wanna see how it's gonna look, I'll shave it off in a couple of days, honest, gee . . ." Humble can get one anywhere with mothers. The stall, I thought, would give time for those few, sicly hairs to shape up into a luxurious, thick grade A mustache.

It is a wise father who ignores his son's first mustache, remembering his own first effort, the hope and the sudden loss.

My good friends snickered. I learned it takes at least 200 snickers, an even dozen "what's a caterpillar doing under your nose?", a score of "doesn't it get in your soup?" and maybe a thousand stupid grins for a mustache to get to the "gee, that really looks terrific" stage. It takes a good, strong man (and a fast mustache) to withstand the brickbats of his good friends.

My girlfriend hated it, of course ("it tickles"), but settled on a public strategy of Noble ("I think Jack looks really good with a mustache") and a private stand of Suffering Female ("it tickles"). She wanted it to go.

Movies

(B. Kirby Jr.) whose roommate is Beth Hillyer (Victoria Thompson) who seem mismatched as roommates in the beginning but get things together later in the film.

The acting is some of the best I've ever seen. The people who usually don't get mentioned deserve recognition from this film. The cameraman (Albert Betcher) and the film editor (Bill Brame) performed their jobs as well as the actors, and helped GREATLY to make this the excellent film it is. The musical score is so subtle and well done that you must listen for it specially to hear it.

In my opinion this film is well worth the drive to Oxford and the admission price. It's one of the best films I have ever seen. Guys, take a date. It's the kind of film to see together.

It's scheduled to end Tuesday, the second of October, so hurry.

Her parents were convinced I'd gone over to the Hippies.

Acquaintances tended to stare, as if I'd become slightly, but not yet dangerously, unbalanced. They either ignored it, as if it were a wart, or were Polite: "You just keep at it, Jack, I know someday it's going to be a first class mustache"—on the day I'd decided it had finally amounted to something.

Strangers no longer looked me in the eye. They looked me in the mustache.

My boss talked to me about Good Grooming Habits being important nowadays in getting ahead in the workaday world. Of course, as far as he was concerned, a man should be able to grow facial hair (as he phrased it), but well, you know, how THEY are out THERE . . .

It got in my soup. Also in my milk, coffee, ice cream, root beer, toothpaste, peanut butter, ketchup, gravy, and everything else. While eating, it was necessary to frequently and surreptitiously brush my tongue over the thing to clean it off after each bite, slurp, sip. Frequent dabbings with a napkin proved vital. Miss a speck or a spot, and someone was sure to ask, knowingly, "Did you have a jelly sandwich for lunch today?"

In the mornings, when I shaved the rest of my face, it was always a task to shave around the mustache. God help the mustache which is uneven, which droops on one side and has been sliced off on the other.

It's possible to get severe eye strain from a mustache. I was constantly looking down to see what it was doing. I also spent an incredible amount of time playing with my mustache: I would lick it; I'd rub it, curl it, run my forefinger across it at a right angle, stroke it up, smooth it back down, I'd play with the little droopy end, I'd curl up my lip to see what I could see . . .

As it grew, I made the horrible discovery that its color nowhere matched the color of my own hair—chiefly, the mustache was mousy brown, but there was a lot of white hair, and black hair, and even some red hair in with the mousy brown hair. It got bristly. It wasn't soft, it wasn't downy, it was bristly. God, how it itched. I didn't look like the Sundance Kid (I didn't even look like Anna Magnani)—I looked like a Fuller Brush Man who'd glued a multicolored wire brush under his nose.

Also, I discovered one had to actually TAKE CARE of one's mustache—it just didn't wind up after a few days looking terrific, and then staying terrific. No, it needed brushing, combing, trimming, pruning, massaging, it even needed oiling. (For the Silky Look Women Love")

I shaved the damn thing off.

FRITZ HUGHES

Due to publication problems, I have extended the deadline for the contest to name this article. To enter your suggestion, go by Homestead Records in Jacksonville Plaza and drop your suggestion in the box provided. The deadline will be October 10, with the winner announced in the October 15 edition of the paper and, as before, the winner will receive three albums.

Z-Z TOP-TRES HOMBRES LONDON-XPS 631

That little ole band from Texas is back with another exceptional album. Z-Z Top is a blend of rock and roll, jazz, and rhythm and blues that can kick out the jams all night long and I don't think you would get tired of it. The "Top" is already a strong, sturdy group with a fantastic sense of ensemble playing. Their first album, adequately named "Firsts", was lean but energetic in style. Their second LP, "Rio Grand Mud", was just a little short of being stupendous, but "Tres Hombres" is without a doubt the most dynamic album Z-Z Top has produced yet—like it reads on the album cover "In the fine Texas tradition."

Z-Z Top doesn't piddle around with some kind of unlistenable noise, they get it on. Billy Gibbons' vocals and fantastic lead guitar sets are only equaled by the raw, gutzy blues beat produced by Bassist Dusty Hill and Drummer Frank "Rube" Beard. In my opinion, the song "Beer Drinkers and Hell Raisers" is the best cut on the album and would probably suffice as the theme song for most college fraternities. The other exceptional up-tempo boogie tunes are "Move Me On Down The Line", "Precious and Grace", "Waiting for the Bus", "Master of Sparks", and "La Grange".

Really the whole album is fantastic but those cuts listed above are the ones I think show Z-Z Top's growing abilities that make them one of the groups to watch in the future. What else but a quality product can you expect when three extremely talented and competent musicians get together. Z-Z Top is without a doubt the best three-man rock group I have heard in quite a while.

CHEECH Y CHONG-LOS COCHINOS A & M - SP 77019

Cheech Martin and Thomas Chong are back with another witty and hilarious album. In comparison with the albums "Cheech and Chong" and "Big Bambu," you should get many hours of enjoyment from "Los Cochinos." Pedro and Man get into another crazy adventure when they smuggle two dudes into the drive-in. The hassles of people living together are portrayed in "Don't Bug Me." The best cut on this album has to be "Basketball Jones"—leave it to Cheech and Chong to produce an extremely humorous cut like this one.

With imitations like the ones on this album, no wonder Cheech and Chong is one of the most sought after comedy routines in the business.

Special thanks Homestead Records in the Jacksonville Plaza without whose cooperation this article would not have been possible. This week's special is the Roger McGuinn album. McGuinn, formerly of the Byrds, has a little help from his friends, Gene Clark, Bob Dylan, Chris Hillman, Bruce (Beach Boy) Johnston, and Charles Lloyd. This album is regularly $4.19, but this week only it is $3.48. The Football Tournament will be October 2.

...After Academy Election

Operation Red-I

By RANDY MILLER

At one time or another during his college career, a student hears about the university police; usually in reference to receiving a parking ticket or being stopped for some other offense. So, everyone knows that the campus cops run around giving tickets to everyone they can get their hands on, right?

Wrong. I have watched the university police ever since I moved to this campus last year. Just from what I've seen as a student I can say that these guys are being more than fair with violators. Many times an officer will not give a ticket to a student if they feel that no intentional wrong was done. If you have ever seen the patrol car stopped in the drive coming down from Panell Hall you know what I mean. It seems to be natural to really pour on the gas coming by Rowan and Weatherly after having been boxed in up in front of Sparkman. In one fifteen-minute period I saw at least ten cars go by traveling over thirty miles per hour. Every one of them could have been stopped and ticketed but none were. The officer chose only to let the drivers know he was present either by blowing the horn or flashing the blue lights to get their attention. In most cases this was enough to slow the cars down. Stop, now, and think of all those students who would be crying "Police harrassment" had they been stopped. If you don't believe that is really like this you can always go by and watch what goes on. You will see that the university police are not out just to give tickets.

Recently, I was granted special permission to ride with the university police and observe their work. In my study, I found there is no one way to describe the work of the campus police department. However, campus security and the protection of the students if the main objective of the university police.

Of all the security operations performed by the university police the most obvious to the students is to see that intruders are kept from the campus. This is a service designed for the students protection and, when in operation, is often misinterpreted as police harrassment. The officers do not know each student personally and so, under certain circumstances, must stop people and ask to see an ID. If the person is a student and is not doing anything that may be illegal they may go on their way. If, however, the person is not a student the police must find out why that person is on campus. The university police are not just trying to hassle people but still they must do their job.

While riding with the university police I was able to see how different situations were handled. The common denominator in all cases was courtesy and attitude. Always, when stopping anyone for any reason, the officers were polite. I have seen them stop someone who may have Dial 237-CARE and what do you get? A real live, interested person who has volunteered his time to help people. 237-CARE-238-8526 are the phone numbers that belong to the CARELINE in Anniston, which is operated by the Calhoun-Cleburne Mental Health Center and Anniston Area Drug Council.

The CARELINE receives calls about every conceivable type of problems, including drugs, alcohol, abortion, venereal diseases, pregnancy, and loneliness. One of the benefits of the CARELINE for people with problems is that they can remain anonymous and yet find help.

The CARELINE is manned by a Mental Health staff member and a trained volunteer daily from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. and on weekends from 6 p.m. to 12 p.m. If other professional help is needed, we have a list of volunteer professionals and referral agencies we can refer people to.

Volunteer help is always needed. The Mental Health Center will start new training sessions in the near future. Anyone interested in joining the volunteer forces to help others should call the CARELINE and leave their name or watch the local paper for date, time and place. Do join us. We CARE and we need your help.

More Letters

Dear Editor:

With Nixon and Agnew both under investigation in Washington for assorted political crimes, and who knows whatever other monkeybusiness. It makes this writer wonder about the supposedly honest politicians we elected to office this past November. The President may have an honest reason for not giving up the tapes, but if you ask me, this so called executive privilege bit has gone far enough. At least Agnew has the guts to lay the facts in the open, come what may. It is not this writer's intent to stick up for the Administration nor is it his intent to deride it with deplorable remarks over the Watergate affair. I only want the facts to be laid out in the open where we can all examine them. Only then will America have faith in the conduct of its government.

Bill Littlejohn

Dear Sir, etc.,

There certainly are a lot of buildings cluttering up the J. S. P. L. (Jacksonville State Parking Lot). What can we do about this problem?

Art Exhibits

An exhibition of watercolors by Judy Martin, a senior, and Marsha William, a sophomore, is currently on display at the Art Department. These works were created during the Minimester. Both artists are Art minors. These exhibit dates are October 2 and October 12. The public is invited.

There will be an art show at the Hammond Hall Gallery October 2 to 26, according to Joe Smith. The time for the show is 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The show will feature the paintings, drawings, watercolors, a ceramics of Bill Page and Marvin Shaw, according to Smith.

officers involved got tough only after the persons refused to cooperate, had lied, and tried to put something over the police. Fortunately, this is not a common experience.

Judging from what I have seen and heard on campus I would say the university police are trying to do a difficult job under much pressure from a few students. Look around, do not just listen to other people, and you too will see that these guys are not just out to get you, rather, a job must be done.

Kappa Alpha Psi

Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity was organized Jan. 15, 1911 by two industrious young men at Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind. Imagination, ambition, courage, and determination have continued to be shared characteristics of all subsequent Kappamen. Therefore, with the memory of our founders and the love of our over 50,000 brothers around the world, Kappamen have attained the honor of being tops in every field of endeavor.

Here at JSU, our local Beta Zeta Extension Chapter strives for academic as well as social achievement. We offer the energetic male college student a chance for true understanding and brotherhood in one of the world's finest fraternities—Kappa Alpha Psi. However, it should be pointed out that Kappa Alpha Psi is quality-oriented—seeking only the finest God-fearing, clean living, serious minded men enrolled at JSU.

Since our local chapter's establishment here at JSU, we have been very instrumental in offering assistance to the local community through our National Guide Right Program (established for assisting the community).

JSU vs Livingston Preview

STARTERS RETURNING

OFFENSE—Ronnie Massey (QB), Robin LaCoste (TB), Larry Lightfoot (RB), Teddy Saenz (T), Tommy Winfield (SE), Ronnie Slovensky (K).

1973 OUTLOOK

Livingston will be hard-pressed to repeat their two consecutive appearances in post-season playoffs, but the Tigers should not be counted out of contention for another winning season.

The Tigers lost the bulk of their offensive line, but return seven starters on defense, including Little All-America Ken Hutcherson, and standouts Herbie Malone, Adrian Gant, and Johnny Benavidez.

On offense, quarterback Ron Massey returns along with backs Larry Lightfoot and Robin LaCoste. New head coach Jim King, an assistant at LU under Mickey Andrews before Andrews departed for Florence, says "it's going to be hard to replace the people we have lost by graduation and some of our academic casualties. Our chief problems will be the offensive line and secondary."

JSU Leaves No Trace Of Pacers

The Fighting Gamecocks showed why the NAIA had rated them as number 3 in the nation as they scored a touchdown on the UTM Pacers with three minutes gone in the first quarter of the game. JSU's new exciting running back, Richard Crump scored the touchdown on a 9 yard waltz and soul dance. Hix kicked the PAT to make the score read JSU 7 UTM 0 with 11:42 left in the quarter.

END OF THE FIRST QUARTER

The Gamecocks showed more scoring muscle in the second quarter as Boyce Callahan scored on a 6 yard sweep of right end with 5:40 left in the quarter. Joe Hix booted the PAT to make the scoreboard read JSU 14 UTM 0.

END OF THE FIRST HALF: JSU 14 UTM 0

The Gamecocks wasted no time in scoring as Richard Crump rambled for 57 yards and a TD with 12:25 left in the quarter. Joe Hix kicked the PAT to make the score read JSU 21 UTM 0.

The offense began to click off touchdowns like they were the only team on the field. Ralph Brock fired a 9 yard touchdown pass to Mike Hobson with 6:37 left in the quarter. The scoreboard showed JSU 28 UTM 0.

Brock had not reached the bench before the young bunch gave the Gamecocks the ball on the UTM 26. Brock's flamethrowing right arm went to work chewing up the yardage quickly. Brock spotted Terry Grammer in the end zone for another 6 points and the Gamecocks led UTM by a 34-0 margin with 5:09 left in the quarter.

Chandler replaced Brock at quarterback and immediately found Gordon Knowlton in the end zone for another 6 points. Joe Hix kicked the PAT and the score read JSU 41 UTM 0.

END OF THE THIRD QUARTER

The Pacers got their only score of the night on a 32 yard Zenon to Maddox pass. Brundage kicked the PAT to make the score read JSU 41 UTM 7.

The Gamecocks wasted no time in showing the Pacers who was in the Cat-Birds-Seat at this game as they started a 79 yard scoring drive. Steve Clinkscales got the call to get the final yard in a plunge up the brier patch to add yet another 6 points. Jim Cox missed the PAT and the score read JSU 47 UTM 7.

Larry Barnes headed the final Gamecock scoring assault and the Gamecocks wanted to score 50 points so Joe Hix was called upon to put his big and talented toe to a 31 yard field goal attempt. Joe lived up to expectations and kicked the ball through the uprights for 3 points and the men of JSU led 50-7 over UTM.

FINAL SCORE: JACKSONVILLE 50-U of TENN. MARTIN 7.

An impressive victory for the Gamecocks.

Nicholls Sinks Into Bayou

On a hot and muggy September night, the Jacksonville State Gamecocks entered the Louisiana Bayou to play the always tough Nichols State team.

The Nichols team surprised the Gamecocks scoring first on a 21 yard field goal with 12:02 left in the first quarter. This scoring play made the score board read Nichols 3 Jacksonville State 0.

The Gamecocks wasted no time in scoring as Ralph Brock tossed a 15 yard touchdown pass to Terry Grammer. Joe Hix put his talented toe to work and kicked the PAT. This scoring drive made the score read Jacksonville 7 Nichols 3.

Ralph Brock cranked up his arm again as he found Virgil Pearson cruising in the Nichols end zone for another touchdown. Joe Hix booted the PAT to make the score read Jacksonville 14 Nichols 3.

END OF FIRST QUARTER

The second quarter started the defensive units as neither team could sustain a scoring drive.

END OF THE FIRST HALF: JSU 14 NICHOLS 3

Wayne Boyd intercepted a pass and put the Gamecocks in business on the Nichols 33 yard line. Ralph Brock pumped his arm twice and found Terry Owens scampering free in the end zone for six points. Joe Hix did his thing and the score read Jacksonville 21 Nichols 3.

The dynamic duo of Brock to Owens showed their form again as Brock fired a 50 yard pass to a waiting Owens in the Nichols end zone. Joe Hix booted the PAT good and the scoreboard read Jacksonville 28 Nichols 3 with 5:24 left in the 3rd quarter.

END OF THIRD QUARTER

The Nichols State team finally showed their offensive muscle as they scored a touchdown on a Barbaro to Harold 32 yard TD toss. The final score read JSU 28 Nichols State 10.

JSU Defense Proves Tough ...Clayton (32) and Brothers Make Stop Rifle Team Is Promising

The Rifle Team of JSU has a long and promising season ahead. Coach Phillips has had the shooters practicing hard since August 15 in order to be ready for the first match at Florence State, September 29. Twelve matches will be fired this fall and next semester.

All team members are members of the JSU Rifle Club which is an affiliated club of the National Rifle Association. Rifle Shooting is a varsity sport on campus and the members can earn their letters. JSU is a member of the Alabama Riflery Conference along with seven other competitive teams; Florence, South Alabama, University of Alabama, Auburn University, Spring Hill, Tuskegee and Marion Institute.

Jim Selman was the only experienced shooter last year. This past year provided needed experience for the freshmen. With each match the team improved and ended with a season record of 7 wins and 4 losses, losing only one match in the spring to the University of Alabama. The team also placed second in the ROTC Southeast Region match in April. The girls team took the Alabama State Championship, in a competition with Spring Hill.

JSU Soccer Team Wins Over Academy

Delta Chi

Well! The fall semester has blasted off at the Delta Chi house, and we have come back with the same fire and more that we had last spring while winning Greek Week and the Greek Softball Championship. Our calendar was a great success and our concert helped enhance our always famous social calendar. Athletics is still the topic of everyone's conversation, and the Chi's are working on as good of a football team as we've had in the past. Congratulations go to our Rush Committee, and its chairman Tommy Britt. Through this new committee we obtained thirty-eight new future brothers in the bond of our brotherhood. Our next rush function concerns our sisterhood which is that special ingredient that makes Delta Chi what it is.

Person:
Dr. Malcolm Street;
Educator, Par-Excellence

By Staff Writer AL WHITAKER
"A refreshing change," according to one student, referring to Dr. Malcolm Street, head of the Dept. of Law Enforcement.
"I think there's several purposes of collegiate education," Street said. "I'm just as concerned with why a student reaches a conclusion as I am with the conclusion he or she reaches. I'm forever mindful of emphasizing self-reasoning."
Street, who's 31 years old, received his Juris Doctor degree from Duke University. A member of the American Bar Association; the American Judicature Society, and licensed as an attorney-at-law, Street was named as one of the Outstanding Educators of America in 1973.

Often referred to as a favorite among the students, Dr. Street said, "It's a pleasure anytime someone enjoys their job, and I enjoy what I'm doing. I do enjoy teaching, and I especially enjoy my students."
Even though being head of the Dept. of Law Enforcement keeps him busy, Street still finds time for numerous outside activities. For instance, he is the Scoutmaster of Troup 8, Anniston, and bills himself as one of the world's greatest "Trivia" players. He enjoys all sports, including football, tennis, hiking, camping, etc.
Whether Dr. Street is best known for his special coffee mug (the one with the mustache protector), or for letting his classes out very early on the first day is hard to say. "I never thought that a class learned anything on the first day; I know I didn't. So after roll call, and a brief outline of what to expect in the class, I'm through until next time."

There are many 'payrol -teachers', but, unfortunately, only a limited number of truly good educators.
"I enjoy what I'm doing . . . I feel an attachment here."
Dr. Malcolm Street, Jr. Educator, par excellence.
