Teresa is named runner-up

By MAURICE BOWLES
News Editor

Miss Alabama Teresa Cheatham was thrust into national prominence last week by being named first runner-up in the Miss America Beauty Pageant in Atlantic City, N. J., Saturday night.

The Jacksonville coed was edged for the crown by Miss Virginia, Kylene Barker.

By being named first runner-up, Miss Cheatham won $15,000 in scholarships.

Wednesday night she received a standing ovation by singing "And This Is My Beloved," and winning the competition for the evening Thursday night, the smiling beauty tried for first place in the swimsuit competition. These two victories netted her $5,000 in scholarships.

Before leaving for the pageant two weeks ago, Teresa said she was the most excited about "singing before the judges and being on national TV." Her excitement certainly paid off because her performance was superb.

"That part was really my dream come true. I've always dreamed of coming up and singing on the Miss America stage, and having the crowd respond like that," she said, according to The Birmingham News.

Teresa's victories during the week have had this campus buzzing with conversation of the Wellington brunette. And at the football game at Legion Field, the scoreboard flashed our sweetheart's progress during the evening.

After graduating from here in May with a degree in Music Performance, she plans to go to the University of Kentucky in Louisville for her graduate education.

This week Miss Cheatham is in New York City relaxing and posing for pictures.

Parking problems plague students

Approximately 200 to 300 tickets are being issued each day on campus for parking violations according to Campus Police Chief James Murray. Murray points out that two major problems contributing to the overall parking situation stems from residents taking spaces provided for commuters and students parking in the faculty spaces.

Students living in dormitories may park only in spaces with green curbs. Commuter students may park in spaces with red curbs, and faculty members may park in blue parking places.

Murray says that the police officers will continue to strictly enforce parking regulations as outlined in handout sheets given to everyone at registration. "Usually problems arise when students fail to accept the information passed out to them," he states.

Asked about the difficulty in finding parking spaces, Murray comments, "There is enough parking space on campus if all parking spaces are utilized." He admits that "there is not enough (parking space) for everyone's convenience."

Another problem area which Murray emphasizes is

In an effort to remedy the situation, SGA President Keith Peinhardt has requested a meeting with University President Dr. Ernest Stone and Vice-President for University Affairs Dr. Bascom Woodward, III. Peinhardt says that the SGA recognizes the parking congestion as the number one problem on campus.

He says that he will recommend to Dr. Stone and Dr. Woodward that an expert be brought on campus to analyze the parking problem. Another recommendation he says, "Will be to set up a reserve fund from money received from parking tickets and use that money strictly for construction of parking lots."

In keeping with a traffic package passed by the SGA President's Liaison Committee last year, Peinhardt says that 35 bike racks will be ordered in the next few days. He adds that the availability of parking space for bicycles could encourage some students to ride their bikes to classes rather than driving their cars.

Peinhardt also says that he is encouraging students who have received parking tickets this semester to appeal those tickets. A ticket traffic office that an appeal is planned. The student will then be told what night to appear before the traffic court.

After presenting the case to the traffic court, the court will decide whether or not a fine should be paid. Peinhardt says, "I feel that a good percentage of them (tickets) will be nullified."

Computer blamed Basic grants being delayed

A computer foul-up is being blamed for the delay in processing financial aid applications for Basic Grants. Financial Aid Director Larry Smith says, "At the present 40 percent of the applications are being rejected."

He explains that Jacksonville students must complete forms from the campus financial aid office and send those forms to Princeton, N. J. The office in New Jersey then transmits the information to a center in Iowa City, Iowa. Smith says that the center in Iowa is the one at fault.

The computer sends back to the applicant forms which contain errors according to Smith but after the errors made, the computer is still sending the forms back to the student. This causes another six week delay.

"If an error is a student's fault, then it should be corrected, but if it is a processing error then they (people at the Iowa center) need to get it worked out," Smith adds.

He also says that students having difficulties with their basic grant applications can make a toll-free call to 1-800-553-6350. Smith says that he has had complaints from students, however, of rudeness and conflicting information being given. He adds that he is encouraging students not satisfied with the response after making the call to inform their

Fire causes minor damage

Minor damage was reported following a Saturday night fire in Pete Mathews Coliseum at Jacksonville State University.

Jacksonville Fire Chief Gene Burnham said the coliseum suffered only minor smoke damage to the walls of the gymnasium. However, a small sauna room was destroyed and two dressing rooms damaged severely.

Burnham said the fire began in the sauna. Although one fire department spokesman said the fire was "probably electrical," a definite cause had not yet been determined.

The 7:45 fire was reported by "someone who was in the coliseum at the time of the fire," Burnham said.

According to Smith there are about 500 Jacksonville students who have been affected by the computer foul-up.

Rat run . . .

Tradition continues

By MAURICE BOWLES
News Editor

Upon arriving at Jacksonville State every freshman catches wind of a spectacular event that is to be a part of his college experience. This event, the Rat Run, was carried out last Tuesday night, and it certainly lived up to all of the tradition that surrounds it.

Despite the most stringent security precautions, it became obvious that many individuals were forewarned of the occasion. Merchants experienced a surge in the sale of poultry products, upper classmen were seen lining the streets wearing sadistic smirks, and freshmen seemed to cluster in skittish little groups in their dorms.

Then, at 11 o'clock, the cheerleaders ascended on the frightened little creatures. Merciless students dragged the poor freshmen out of their dorms and into the streets. The screaming mass advanced down Cole Drive without incident. But, as the wave turned toward the coliseum, they were pelted with eggs and water balloons hurled by the fun loving sophomores, juniors and seniors. The mass was driven on toward their destination, only to be temporarily halted by an impending train. The freshmen were now encircled and proved an easy prey for the shower of poultry products.

The homestretch was a field day for seemingly demonic protectors of gamecock tradition. The rats finally arrived at the coliseum parking lot but not without much superficial damage to their clothes and hair.

The crowd was greeted by the always spirited Southerners and ballerinas. The cheerleaders had a well planned schedule of events. First on the agenda was the beer-drinking contest, which was easily won by Don Cochran.

Probably the most exciting part of the evening was the kissing contest. (Especially for the contestants.)

Cheerleaders selected the eager volunteers from the crowd. The contest got underway with much fanfare. The osculating continued for several minutes. Had there been an award for "Most Active Hands" it surely would have been awarded to one Keith Davis, a freshman whose enthusiasm was obvious. The contest finally focused on two couples, Tabb Thourbrew and Hope Sweatman; Bill Neeland and Laura McSpadden; who eventually shared the title.

Through the events the rats were continuously harrassed with eggs, water balloons and a fire extinguisher.

The ballerinas' outstanding exhibition was interrupted by an exhibition of another sort as two streakers immodestly captured the attention of much of the crowd.

Order was soon restored and the show resumed. The spirit of the newly "initiated" rats was not dampened by eggs and water balloons. Most cheered along with the rest of the crowd.

"I thought it was fantastic," one coed exclaimed, much to the dismay of one freshman, "It's okay if you're a cat." One freshman would only say, "It's sticky." One rat shouted "&?!z++!&-!"

Although many students consider Rat Run a miserable experience, there are times when it gets better. But it does still have certain miserable qualities.

When offensive end Ricky Grammer leaves the playing field at halftime this season, sister, Ann Rae will take over. She is this year's head ballerina.

SGA begins semester sluggish

The SGA held its first meeting of the semester last Tuesday without the presence of SGA president Keith Peinhardt. Peinhardt had planned to introduce to the legislative body a package of bills which if passed would allow him to reorganize the executive branch of the SGA. He was unable to attend the meeting, but says that he will introduce the package at the next meeting.

Members of the SGA discussed the possibility of inviting the gubernatorial and senatorial candidates to the campus before the run-off election is held, Sept. 21. Most of those candidates visited the campus during the annual Student Conference on American Government last May.

No plans were actually made to issue the invitation, but the topic is expected to come up again at the next meeting.

In other business, elections committee chairman Jay Johnson said that he will have some students go to the voter registration office in Anniston to be deputized.

This means that those students will then be able to set up at Jacksonville to register JSU students so that they may vote in Calhoun County. The deadline for registering to vote in the November general election is Oct. 23. To change registration to Calhoun County, a student must know his beat number and box number.

It was pointed out that students not wishing to change their voting registration to this county may still cast their vote by absentee ballot.

Nursing School involved in student program

The Lurleen B. Wallace School of Nursing will assist in the newly-formed student health program for Jacksonville High School. The Nursing School's acting dean, Mrs. Roberta Watts, says that the program will be a comprehensive and well-structured program. She also said that she and Dr. N. R. Stallworth, chairman of the city Board of Education, have discussed the plan with city school superintendent Charles Nunn.

The program will be headed by Freida Campbell who was hired by the Board of Education following a closed meeting last week. Mrs. Campbell's character was discussed in that meeting. The board agreed to sign a one-year, $12,000 contract.

Mrs. Campbell is a graduate of the Wallace School of Nursing and has worked the past two years at Baptist Hospital in Gadsden as a pediatrics nurse.

She will work out of the elementary school with students from throughout the school system. According to Mrs. Watts, Mrs. Campbell will be evaluated by the JSU School of Nursing as well as the Board of Education. She will also have equipment and faculty advisement available from the nursing center for testing.

Both Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Watts emphasized that they expect the school nurse to be more than a "band aid dispenser," but expect Mrs. Campbell to work with teachers and parents in detecting student health problems. She will also work with the Board of Education in broadening the program and will make recommendations concerning possible federal funds.

Young composer competition set

A total of $15,000 is available to young composers in the 27th annual BMI Awards to Student Composers competition sponsored by Broadcast Music Inc., a performing rights licensing organization.

Established in 1951 in cooperation with music educators and composers, the BMI Awards project annually gives cash prizes to encourage the creation of concert music by student composers of the Western Hemisphere and to aid them in financing their musical education. Prizes ranging from $300 to $2,500 will be awarded at the discretion of the judges. To date, 231 students, ranging in age from 8 to 25, have received BMI Awards.

The 1978-79 BMI Awards competition is open to student composers who are citizens or permanent residents of the Western Hemisphere and are enrolled in accredited secondary schools, colleges and conservatories, or engaged in private study with recognized and established teachers anywhere in the world. Entrants must be under 26 years of age on Dec. 31. No limitations are established as to instrumentation, stylistic considerations, or length of works submitted. Students may enter no more than one composition, which need not have been composed during the year of entry.

The permanent chairman of the BMI judging panel is William Schuman, distinguished American composer and educator.

The panel of Preliminary Judges for the 1977-78 contest was Joan Tower, Maurice Wright, and Frank Wigglesworth, with Ulysses Kay serving as consultant. The final judges were Donald Erb, Stephen Fisher, Lou Harrison, Karel Husa, William Karlins, Netty Simons, Carlos Surinach, Francis Thorne, Donald Waxman, and Charles Wuorinen, with William Schuman as presiding judge.

The 1978-79 competition closes Feb. 15. Official rules and entry blanks are available from James G. Roy Jr., director, BMI Awards to Student Composers, Broadcast Music Inc., 40 W. 57th St., New York, N. Y. 10019.

The eight winners in the 1977-78 contest, ranging in age from 15 to 25, were presented cash awards at a reception at the St. Regis-Sheraton, New York City, May 11.

Greeks performing community service

Two of JSU's Greek groups are already performing a community service. Members of Phi Mu and Alpha Tau Omega are serving as volunteers for Jacksonville's Breath of Life Campaign Sunday, Oct. 1.

The purpose of this campaign is to alert parents to the signs of Cystic

Fibrosis, a lung-damaging disease that kills more children in this country than any other disease except cancer.

Mrs. W. T. Gregory, local CF chairman, expressed her thanks to these two groups for their willingness to aid in this effort.

The four pianos, valued at $10,000 apiece, were put on a movie sound stage and four professional dancers were filmed dancing on them for a good part of two days. The tops of the pianos came through without a scratch.

The reason the piano tops survived unscathed was that they were covered by a protective masking material made by the St. Regis Paper Company—a sheet of plastic film, specially coated to adhere firmly to the surface of the piano.

Protective masking is an important element in one of this country's latest manu-

The masking materials can be paper or various plastic films. The thickness depends on the kind of punishment a product has to put up with.

The real art of making protective masking, however, comes in formulating the adhesive coating. It has to stay put for as long as necessary, but not react with the finish it's protecting. Sometimes months of testing are required to get it just right.

Rush week plans staged

By MAURICE BOWLES
News Editor

In the movie, "Animal House," two wet-behind-the-ears freshmen are enticed by the wild fraternity parties occurring on their campus.

Many of these scenes will be re-enacted this week as rush gets underway here on campus.

Inter-Fraternity Council President Raymond Low has announced plans commencing this week's activities. Each male interested in rush must attend a meeting at the Roundhouse tonight at 7 o'clock. At this meeting representatives will speak on behalf of each fraternity. This will be followed by a big party at Village Inn.

Wednesday night is "wide open" with parties at all of the fraternity houses.

Anyone may attend these parties. Free beverages will be featured. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the parties will continue with each fraternity featuring a specific theme every night.

Mr. Low encourages all males to become involved in the Greek system. "The majority of active people are Greeks. Any person who enjoys partying, dating and striving for goals would enjoy fraternity life."

"In a fraternity," he comments, "you have 40 people that will do anything for you."

There will be more parties on campus this week than at any other time this year. "This is a perfect example of the parties you saw on "Animal House," says Mr. Low.

So, come on out, and let the fraternities bring out the "Pinto" and "Flounder" in everyone.

CDCS gives hints

By PAUL MERRILL

Classes have started and probably you're just getting the feel of your classes. Perhaps by now you feel comfortable with your teacher (with some, this never happens) and are beginning, maybe only slightly to figure out what makes him or her tick. (Again, this is sometimes almost impossible to figure out in some cases.) However, you are, I hope, in class and preparing (subconsciously, perhaps) for that first exam.

It's not terribly difficult to begin now studying conscientiously for that exam.

Every person has his own way of studying and this method often takes a long time to perfect. Hopefully a few pointers on behalf of the Career Development and Counseling Services will help to get you on the right track. Some of these ideas are my own and some are ideas taken from a pamphlet called How to Prepare for Examinations, printed by the Association of American Printers.

Rather than cover the taking of an exam, I plan to focus on the preparation of taking an exam.

UNDERSTANDING THE MARKET

Your Preferred Stock—Vulnerable To Redemption?

By H. Russell Fraser

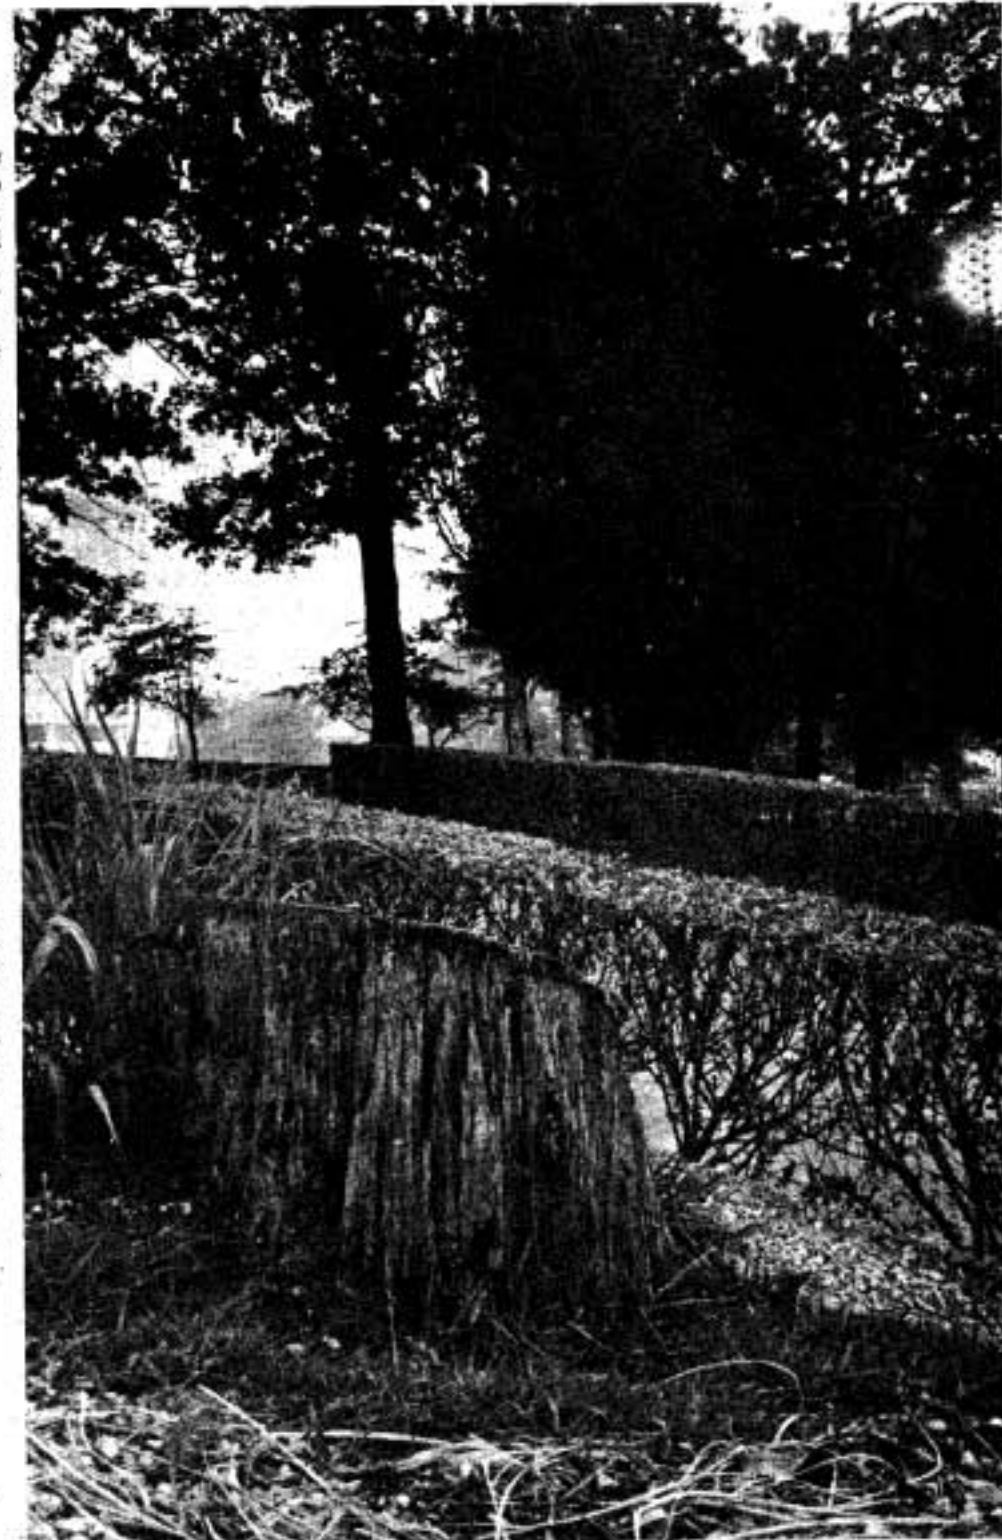

If you've been reading the big interest rate figures but not the small print, you may not realize that your preferred stock could be vulnerable to redemption sooner than you might expect.

That's the opinion of our Paine Webber Fixed Income analysts who observe that many such securities could be called within the near term at prices less than their current market value thereby eliminating any capital gains you may have in addition to high current income. Many of these preferred utilities, are sold with the guarantee that within a stated period they will not be refunded through issuance of another preferred stock at a lower dividend rate.

With preferred stocks offering high returns, this guarantee is an inducement to invest, especially if a purchaser feels that he will be receiving this high return for a specific period of time.

But what about that fine print? Our analysts at Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis point out that while it is true these preferred stocks did offer a guarantee against refunding with equal or senior securities—such as a lower interest bond, or another issue of preferred stock, it does not guarantee that these stocks could not be refunded by an issue of junior securities, such as common stock or preference stock.

To look at questions such as these which may adversely effect investors, Paine Webber has built what is generally believed to be the largest fixed income research capability on Wall Street.

Our experts urge that any investor who feels that an issue in his portfolio may be vulnerable to redemption should call his broker. If you don't call your broker, the utility may call you.

Copies of our report on vulnerable preferreds are available upon request from the Fixed Income Research Department of Paine Webber.

Parking problem needs solution

By DAVID FORD
Editor

The parking problem on campus is nothing new. Each semester it seems to become worse with the heaviest congestion always hitting in the fall.

As usual, the lack of parking space is quite a popular topic of conversation around campus. Several plans to solve the problem have been brought to my attention. These include such ideas as constructing a multi-level parking deck, banning freshmen from driving on campus, or designating the inconvenient parking areas, such as behind the library, for freshmen commuter parking.

Of these ideas, perhaps the latter should be carefully considered. Naturally most freshmen would oppose the idea, but the move could eliminate many of our parking problems.

Campus Police Chief James Murray says that there is enough parking space on campus. However, he emphasizes that all of the space is not being utilized. The areas not being used are the less convenient ones. Few students will consistently use those areas on a volunteer basis. Though not necessarily a popular solution, it is the only one of the most mentioned ideas which seems feasible.

Construction of a multi-level parking deck at this point is impractical. The construction of new buildings now being carried out or planned for the near future points to the fact that in a few years the academic area of the university will shift to the north. If a parking deck were built for convenience now, it would be almost useless in a few years.

Although many students argue that universities such as Auburn and Alabama make it very difficult for freshmen to park at all on campus, the different situations which we have makes the plan unusable here.

We have a high percentage of commuter students. For the student living at home in Anniston, Gadsden, or Oxford, it would be a long walk to school, and the city of Jacksonville has no area to accommodate these students so a shuttle-bus service could be started.

Whatever the solution, the problem needs more than lip-service from the administration and the SGA. The two should work together for a plan which would benefit the most students. It is not a problem that will go away if it is ignored.

Election has surprises

By DAVID FORD
Editor

There were some surprises in last week's elections. Perhaps the biggest surprise was a combination of former Gov. Albert Brewer's weakness and Attorney General Bill Baxley's strength.

Brewer led most pre-election polls including one conducted by "The Chanticleer" a week before the election. Baxley finished fifth in that poll although we noted that his position could be misleading due to the expectation that he would receive a majority of the black vote statewide.

The U. S. Senate races resulted in the run-offs most people expected, Mrs. Maryon Allen against Donald Stewart and Howell Heflin opposing Walter Flowers. However, there were some neck and neck. Heflin almost won outright without having to go to a run-off.

The battle in all three races now shapes up as the old versus the new.

Baxley has been involved in state government for the past four years as attorney general. James has never held political office.

Mrs. Allen has been in the senate only a few months following her husband's sudden death, but she is campaigning on the issue that she will continue her husband's work. Stewart has served in the state legislature for eight years but has never held a position in the federal government.

Heflin served as the elected chief justice of the Alabama Supreme Court but has never held a representative position in the federal government.

JACK ANDERSON WITH JOE SPEAR

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Nixon and Connally Keeping in touch

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon is still lying low at his isolated estate in San Clemente, Calif. Nonetheless, we have learned that the ex-president is maintaining contacts with the man he favors for president. Nixon's favorite candidate has always been John Connally, down in Texas.

Reliable Republican sources have told us that Nixon and Connally are on the phone to each other often these days. This continues an alliance that began when Connally broke with the Democrats and became a trusted adviser to the Nixon administration.

Our sources say the two men consult by phone on a semi-regular basis, perhaps once a month. On these occasions, Nixon gives advice to the ambitious Texan. Connally particularly relies on Nixon for foreign policy guidance.

For instance, the former treasury secretary is quick to pick up the phone and call San Clemente if he needs advice on such issues as China. In return, Nixon initiates calls to Connally on economic affairs. Our sources say Nixon seeks Connally's views on the battered dollar in Europe, trends in the stock market and energy problems.

The Nixon - Connally connection isn't a new development. In fact, Nixon wanted to replace Spiro Agnew with Connally as his running mate in 1972. Nixon confided to intimates that the Texan was one guy who could take over his job.

Only Agnew's strong support among conservatives and Connally's background as a lifelong Democrat prevented Nixon from making the switch. Later, Agnew resigned from office over a bribery scandal. Again Nixon wanted Connally as vice president. But this time, Connally was involved in the milk scandal, and Nixon was obliged to turn to Gerald Ford as his vice president.

Now Connally has been acquitted of the milk scandal charges. He's back in the political arena, itching to throw his hat in the presidential ring. Republican sources told us he has already collected the biggest campaign chest and has put together the best political organization of any prospect. If he makes a bid for the Republican nomination, he may get some quiet help from Richard Nixon.

Border Confusion: Two government agencies have been playing a bewildering game of ring-around-the-rose on our borders. Customs agents are supposed to keep illegal drugs and contraband out of the country. Immigration agents try to stop illegal aliens from entering.

But the two agencies operate independently. They have trouble even talking to one another, since they use different radio frequencies.

The confusion is worse at night. That is when most of the illegal activity transpires. An Immigration official described the border patrolling as chaotic. He told us that Customs agents, Immigration officers, drug smugglers and illegal aliens are out there "stumbling around in the dark."

Several times, he said, agents operating on different radio frequencies have "come close" to exchanging shots.

Recently, top Immigration and Customs officials agreed behind closed doors to coordinate their efforts. They will instruct their field agents to cooperate with one another. The two agencies also agreed to develop a joint computer system and to test an airborne infra-red system.

Finally, they agreed to adopt the same radio equipment. They will start communicating with each other as fast as they can phase out the old equipment.

Perilous Apparel: Navy men are trained to face enemy missiles, planes and warships. But they also may be in danger from their own uniforms.

The Naval Safety Center has discovered that the polyester in naval uniforms could cause serious burns to the seamen who wear them. Apparently, polyester melts when it gets overheated. This can produce third-degree burns upon contact with the skin.

The Safety Center learned about the problem from a seaman who was burned when his overalls began melting. The center immediately began a series of tests. The tests confirmed that Navy uniforms can get too hot for comfort.

The center notified the Pentagon of the danger of polyester. But the Navy has refused to do anything about the problem. A Navy spokesman told us that polyester uniforms will continue to be purchased. They look snappier, he said, and they are easier to maintain.

Perilous Paintings: West Germany has asked the United States to return a few of the 8,000 paintings that were seized during World War II. The scenes depict Nazi weapons and soldiers, and the State Department wants to make sure they will not stir up a wave of militarism in Germany. The Pentagon wants to give the pictures back. Since Germany presently maintains the largest land-based force in NATO, the brass hats point out, it is a little too late to worry about rekindling the military spirit amongst Germans.

Headlines and Footnotes: Bureaucracy trimmers at the Interior Department recently did away with the old Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. They changed its name to the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service . . . Secret Service agents learn to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by practicing on mannequins . . . A new Energy Department study says that automobile fuels can be made from coal for as little as 18 cents a gallon.

Hints

First of all, make sure you have a good place to study. Not everyone likes to study in a quiet place. Some prefer a little noise—music perhaps, or the sound of muffled steps as the residents in your dormitory or apartment sneak (stomp?) past your door. Be sure that your lighting is good and that you have everything you need on hand.

After every class (and this is a lot easier said than done) read over your notes and fill in anything that is missing. This is a good way to begin your review.

Plan to begin studying for an exam about two weeks ahead so it won't be necessary for you to cram. Be sure to allow time for rest and relaxation.

As you study, try to predict the exam questions. Sometimes it is fun to try to outguess the teacher and this becomes fairly easy if you study for each test keeping the particular teacher in mind.

Don't be afraid to ask your teacher to recommend some pre-examination work. Often they will give you some pointers and may emphasize certain points you should be sure to study.

And don't study until 3 o'clock in the morning. It's essential that one gets a good night's sleep before an exam. Don't try to stay awake if you can barely hold your eyes open. You're defeating the purpose. Put the book up, (say about 10 or 11) and go to bed, and if possible, dream about making an "A".

These suggestions may help, I hope they do. The main thing is that you make studying a habit. You may think up ways that help you to study. Anything that helps . . . use it. Good Luck!

It's 5 a.m., the commuter is finishing his fourth hour of deservied slumber after studying until 1 in the morning. Suddenly his sleepy bliss is destroyed by the sound of the dreaded alarm clock—the beginning of a new day!

Swearing that he only fell asleep a few minutes ago, the commuter looks out his window hoping to find the moon and stars but finding Mister Sun instead.

The baggy-eyed commuter grooms himself to face the world (or more appropriately so the world can face him).

He commuter begins to doubt his sanity when these same thoughts plague his mind. "Okay, I did my essay for English class but I saved that psychology term paper to do tonight. God, if you just help me make it through this day. Oh, no! I'm late!! Maybe if I keep an eye out, I can spot the police before they spot me. If I can just live through today, I'll only have four more left.

Tomorrow's my easy day, then I got two more hard days so I can sleep Thursday. No I've got a test Friday. I've got to work Saturday. I go to church Sunday, so I guess I'll get some sleep in four years!!!

Nothing can be compared with the experience of "flying" to J'ville from Oxford, Heflin, Piedmont, or wherever. The commuter finds himself part of a flock of Gamecocks—each with one thought in mind—"If I get ahead of them, maybe I'll find a parking place!" The flock weaves in and out of lanes cussing everybody who obeys the speed laws.

"Hurry up, fool! Why do I always get behind a slow Joey?!! &!!: &!!! Oh, Lord, help me be on time!!!

Most commuters have experienced the blue flashing lights and the terror that goes along with getting pulled over by the police. "Sir, we clocked you at 85 miles per hour in a 35 mph zone." "Oh, I'm sorry, officer, but I'm late for class and I've got a test and . . ." The excuses are endless.

After the commuter finally reaches the university, he plays a game of "ring around the campus." He usually circles the place three times hoping all the time that somebody will go home so that he can grab their parking place. "Oh, there's one! Damn. It's blue!" It always seems that the blue spaces are endless.

After all this, the commuter finally makes it to class, unsure of his preparation, but ready to face the day.

But the walk to class has lifted his spirits. A cool breeze was blowing, the trees rustled and glowed in the sun. Everyone spoke to him as they passed. Yes, today will be a good day!

Then, the ultimate, that great looking member of the opposite sex that you've had your eye on approaches. "Which dorm do you stay in and I'll come over and study with you if you want me to."

Oh no, I hate to even say it. "I don't live here, I commute."

Style?

It appears that a spree of subtle nudity has premeated the minds of women of today. Increasingly so today it appears that the growth of semi-nude women is becoming increasingly astronomical. Women seem to think that wearing the thinnest and least of garments is the "style." Perhaps such is the "style." Irrespective of that, however, I feel certain that there is intervening variables, whether meteorological or climatic, that influence the decision of women to dress in a semi-nude fashion.

The crux of the matter is that the "style" of dress women are adhering to make obscure the pitfalls inherent in the "style." The opposite sex, not all however, is not concerned about the "style" of dress, but rather ways in which he can employ his glib tactics of deception to further his gain of the product she advertises.

In time, perhaps more women will coalesce with the minority of those that have already perceived the fact that advertisement of the product leads to a high rate of consumption of the product, generally. And that conservation of the product, through the use of clothes, will make the consumption of the product more interesting, or annihilate the misconceptions that men draw from the stimulating attire, or both.

Winter is nearing and perhaps the semi-nude "style" of women dress-or-fashion will disappear. At any rate, I hope that the guilt-ridden women of today notice and understand the message I've politely tied to convey. However, the trend dictate that winter is the only means by which certain of us men can rely on for any substantial curtailment of the trend at the present time.

sonification of Los Angeles music biz evil, a sequin-studded seductress out to sink her highly polished talons into nice little Peter Frampton. An accomplished singer, danger, musician and actress, Dianne was chosen for the role despite heavy competition, including Donna Summer and Carly Simon. She's recorded two LPS, neither of which received widespread acclaim, but since her debut in "Sgt. Pepper," the calls are ABC Records, her previous company. "I want to be with people who believe in me. I have to be very careful about who I sign with because I want a company that cares. I've been with two, Atlantic and ABC, and in both I became an abandoned child because the people responsible for signing me left." When asked if she might be signing with Stigwood's RSO label, she just smiles. "There's a possibility. We'll see."

When she got the call to audition for the movie, Dianne was putting together a touring band and preparing to go on the road with George Benson. "I was so into my own projects, I didn't even know who Robert Stigwood was," she laughs. "I went into that audition not knowing anything, so I was totally at ease." "Sgt. Pepper" stock may be dropping, but Steinberg stock is apparently rising, and to prepare for it, she's currently involved in rehearsing her new group. She's fond of "Universal Child," but says it's "a little over-produced." Her next LP, she promises, will be more contemporary. "It'll be funkier than the last one, kind of punchy, because that's the way I feel now. "It's strange," Dianne says. "When a woman can dance, sing and act, record companies immediately think, 'Okay, send her to Vegas.' That isn't what I'm interested in. I like variety in my act, but I'm not interested in turning it into a Vegas show. I want to keep a more contemporary feeling in mind." The former high school voice teacher doesn't seem particularly concerned about the lukewarm reception "Pepper" has received thus far. She's sure fans of Frampton and the Bee Gees will like it despite the critics. And despite its flaws, it offers the aspiring actress and singer just what she had been looking for—exposure. "For me," Dianne says, "the whole situation is great. I can finally showcase all the things I've been telling people about."

The major complaint I hear as I walk over this campus and talk to the students is, "There's not enough to do around this place," and "It's dead around here." Well, I am glad to say that those statements are absolutely false.

I know that many of you are shaking your heads and disagreeing with me right now. But wait a minute and I will give you proof as you take a walk with me over Jacksonville State's campus.

The best place to start is the Student Commons Auditorium situated just to the left of Bibb Graves Hall. On second floor, there's Chat 'em Inn if you want to sit down with a friend over a cup of coffee or a Dr. Pepper, or you could even try out the pinball machines, the ping pong tables or the pool tables. If you like to watch TV, a nice color one is sitting there waiting for you to watch it. On third floor, Cinematic Arts provides movies on Wednesday and Thursday nights. On special days, they show movies especially to suit that occasion. These are first rate and many of them were in the top 10 just last year. On fourth floor, the SGA and Chanticleer offices would be glad to help you fill your time with such activities as writing for the paper, serving as a Student Government representative or helping on the various committees which include entertainment. Through the SGA come our speakers, musical artists and other entertainment events. Take your grievances to the SGA and you might be surprised at what may happen. The Mimosa, our school annual, could also use some of you able bodied students. They are situated on the first floor of Bibb Graves.

Outside of the SCB, tennis courts are provided. We also have tennis courts outside Pete Mathews Coliseum. Inside the coliseum you can pick from swimming, handball, basketball, track and just about anything else you could think of.

If you are interested in more scholastic clubs, just contact one of the professors in your major field of interest and almost without exception, there will be a club that would be just right for you. Sororities and fraternities offer many functions for students and a good many of them do not require Greek affiliation.

The football team will be playing on most Saturdays this fall and after the ballgame, you won't have to look hard to find a party.

So you out there who grumble about this dull campus had better take a second look and get involved. Believe me, these activities won't come inside your dorm, house or apartment to get you. Go out and find them and believe me, you won't regret it. Who knows what else you might find out there if you look hard enough.

A little misunderstanding

About meaning of 'WC'

An English lady while visiting in Switzerland was looking for a room and she asked the school master he could recommend one. He took her to see several rooms, and when everything was settled, the lady returned home to make final preparations to move. When she arrived home, the thought had occurred to her that she had not seen a "W. C." in the place. (A W. C. is a "water closet" or a bathroom). So she immediately wrote a note to the schoolmaster asking him if there was a W. C. in the place. The schoolmaster was a very poor student on English, so he asked the Parish Priest if he could help him in the matter. Together they tried to find the meaning of the letters W. C.

The only solution they could find for the letters was "Wayside Chapel." The schoolmaster then wrote the following letter to the English lady.

My Dear Madam:

I take great pleasure in informing you that the W. C. is situated nine miles from the house in the center of a beautiful grove of pine trees surrounded by lovely grounds. It is capable of holding 229 people, and it is open on Sundays and Thursdays only. As there are a great number of people expected during the summer months, I suggest that you come early, although, usually there is plenty of standing room. This is an unfortunate situation, especially if you are in the habit of going regularly. It may be of some interest to know that my daughter was married in the W. C. and it was there that she met her husband. I can remember the rush of seats. There were 10 people to every seat usually occupied by one. It was wonderful to see the expressions on their faces.

You will be glad to hear that a good number of people bring their lunch and make a day of it, while those who can afford to go by car, arrive just on time. I would especially recommend your ladyship to go on Thursdays when there is an organ accompaniment. The acoustics are excellent and even the most delicate sounds can be heard everywhere.

The newest addition is a bell donated by a wealthy resident of the district. It sings everytime a person enters. A bazaar is to be held to provide for plush seats for all, since the people feel it is long needed. My wife is rather delicate so she cannot attend regularly. It is almost a year since she went last, and naturally it pains her very much not to be able to go more often.

I shall be delighted to reserve the best seat for you, where you shall be seen by all. For the children there is a special day and time so that they do not disturb the elders. Hoping to be of some to you.

The School Master

Would you believe?

2. Tuesday at 7 p.m., there will be an invitation to an ice

5. This being Easter Sunday, we will ask Mrs. Daly to come forward and lay an egg on the altar.

6. The service will close with "Little Drops of Water" which Mrs. Nelson will start. The rest of the congregation will join in.

7. On Sunday a special collection will be taken up to defray expenses of the new carpet. Will all those wishing to do something on the carpet please step forward and get a piece of paper.

8. On Sunday there will be a conception of new members.

Dr. Ronnie Harris, athletic director for women's sports and men's spring sports, has announced the hiring of two new coaches. Steve Bailey will coach the Gamecock golf team, while Glen Roswal will head the men's tennis program. Roswal, not a bad name for a tennis coach.

This weekend's game will be the first home game of the season, which means the first game to be played in the new stadium. By the way the statement in last week's paper about students having to purchase tickets referred to away games, not home games. Students will still get into home games free if they show an ID, so there is no reason for not having a big crowd Saturday night.

Cardiac 'Cocks over A & M

They're at it again. The JSU football team must think the folks at the cardiac emergency unit at the Jacksonville Hospital don't have enough to do, because they seem determined to put their fans into full cardiac arrest.

At least it seems that way. After all the fourth quarter heroics that marked the '77 JSU football season, the Gamecocks opened the '78 campaign by turning a 23 to 3 quarter deficit into a 24-23 victory over Alabama A&M last Saturday night.

The game didn't start that way though. The heavily favored Gamecocks kicked off to open the contest. Then left end Tommy Macon fell on the A&M fumble on the Bulldog 24 yard line with 13:17 to go in the first period. Less than 2 minutes later, after a 15 yard penalty killed the JSU drive, Rocky Riddle put the 'Cocks on the board with a 33 yard field goal.

Nobody in the Legion Field crowd would have believed that this was to be the last Jacksonville score for nearly three quarters, but it was. The Gamecock offense looked totally flat for the first 40 minutes of the game, and at times the defense didn't look much better.

The flatness of the defense was noted on the A&M drive that followed the kick. The Bulldogs covered 90 yards on six plays, most of it coming on a 52 yard pass and a 28 aided by an A & M penalty, and the Bulldogs had to settle for a 32 yard field goal.

The Bulldogs got their second touchdown a few minutes later however after Jacksonville's Jerome Coleman fumbled the kickoff and A&M recovered it at the Jax 32. A&M punched the ball in 9 plays later as Eddie McCoy took it in from the six.

The JSU mistakes weren't over yet, after the kick tightend Butch Barker fumbled a pass completion to the Bulldogs at the JSU 40. A&M scored four plays later on a five yard run by Thomas Craft. Then came the break that changed the game, a bad snap from center and the PAT is no good.

That missed point seemed to light a spark in the Gamecocks. Taking the kick the 'Cocks drove to the A&M 24 as the third quarter closed. After a pass interference call on A&M Green carried the ball in to cap a 13 play 80 yard drive.

Not to be outdone by the offense the Jax defense stopped the A&M offense cold forcing a punt. Starting on their 37 the Jaxmen launched their second good drive of the quarter this on taking 10 plays capped off by a one yard TD pass from Green to fullback Cedrick Brownlee.

Now A&M tries to rally and drives to the JSU 29 where they are forced to try Next . . .

Nicholls St.

By MIKE MOON
The Gamecocks will play their first game in the new Paul Snow Stadium Saturday night against the Colonels of Nicholls St.

Coach Bill Clements will bring his team up from Thibodaux, La., in hopes of avenging a 10-7 loss to Jax State last year. With a tough defense, led by linebacker Ken Ortolano, that returns almost intact from last year, and an experienced offensive line, Clements and the Colonels certainly have the tools needed to gain their revenge.

Thirty-one returning lettermen and the best group of freshmen recruits in the school's history have given the Colonels hopes of a much improved season over last year's eighth place (2-6) Gulf South Conference finish and 4-7 overall mark. Coach Clements also reflect a bit more optimism this year. "If we don't improve offensively, we'll be just like last year," he predicts. "However, this year we have more depth and an offense geared to fit our personnel. I also think our fine crop of freshmen will be fighting for positions which in turn should make our veterans better football players."

All things considered Nicholls certainly has what it takes to have a good football team with their strong defense and solid offensive line and may well provide the Gamecocks with one of the tougher games of the '78 season.

LAST YEAR

JACKSONVILLE 10 — NICHOLLS STATE 7

THIBODAUX, LA—Jacksonville's first road trip of the year saw the Gamecocks pick up their third win in as many outings and their first conference victory. That win, 10-7 over Nicholls State, came due to some tough defense and a fourth quarter field goal by Jax specialist Rocky Riddle.

At the half, the Jaxmen held a narrow 7-0 margin over the Colonels. That score came in the second quarter with just 4:13 left in the half when Bobby Ray Green picked up the points on a six-yard quarterback keeper and Riddle added the point after.

With four minutes gone in the third period, Nicholls State fought back to tie the score 7-7 on a nine-yard TD pass.

With 11:31 left to play in the contest, Jax head coach Jim Fuller called on his soccer-style kicking specialist (Riddle) to break the deadlock and the youngster did just that, splitting the up-rights from 36 yards out.

James Moreen pulls down key pass in Jacksonville's fourth quarter drive yard touchdown run by A&M, a field goal, but the attempt quarterback Cleveland Austin whose 165 yards passing and 69 yards rushing easily made him the game's most outstanding offensive performer.

The Gamecock defense stiffened during the second quarter, but the offense still sputtered and the A&M Bulldogs took a 7-3 advantage to the dressing room at the half.

The opening offensive play of the second half gave the Jax State fans forewarning of what was to come in the rest of the third quarter. Gamecock quarterback Bobby Ray Green fumbled a pitchout which tailback Wayne McCoy fell on at the JSU one yard line, a nine yard loss.

After the Gamecocks managed to push the ball out to the 26, a Green pass is intercepted by cornerback Thomas Newsome and returned to the 25. The JSU defense managed to hold, is blocked by linebacker Greg Robinson and recovered by Jax St. at the 39.

From there the Green led the Gamecocks on their third big drive this covering 61 yards in 14 plays, the outstanding play (perhaps the key play of the game for JSU) was the clutch catch by wingback James Moreen at the A&M one yard line. Then it was up to Green to toss another TD pass to Barker to tie the game up, with 2:25 to go in the game. Riddle drilled home the PAT and the 'Cocks finally went on top 24-23.

Taking the kick A&M tried a last ditch drive with no timeouts left. The 'Dogs efforts went for nought however when a 53 yard field goal fell short with 30 seconds left. After that Green fell on the ball twice to end the game and wrap up number one for Coach Jim Fuller.
