Parking zones changing

By DAVID FORD And MAURICE BOWLES

In response to Resolution S. R. No. 100 passed by the student senate last week, the administration of Jacksonville State has issued new parking regulations concerning the zoning of parking areas.

In a meeting with SGA President Keith Peinhardt, administration officials decided to re-zone the commuter (red) parking areas behind Ayers to resident (green). Also, the red zones in front of Ayers, Sparkman, Mason, Curtis, and around the Student Commons Building will be changed to green.

Only commuters will be able to park across from Brewer and beside Merrill.

Vice-President Dr. Bascom Woodward III called the parking situation "a number one priority" on this campus. He said that any resident parking in the commuter zones will be ticketed.

University officials said that this semester approximately 5,000 parking decals were issued. There are approximately 3,000 parking spaces on campus. Of these, 1350 are zoned resident (green). Over 1500 green decals were issued. There are 1400 spaces zoned commuter (red), but an exact figure of the number of red decals issued was not available.

However, not all students with parking decals are on the campus at any one given time.

Resolution S. R. No. 100 which prompted the meeting called the suspension of all parking tickets during the period of Aug. 28 to Sept. 11. Asked about that, Dr. Woodward said, "We will not do away with all of those tickets. We have rules and regulations and we have to follow them."

The resolution also called for additional parking areas to be built on campus. However, that proposal was also disallowed. "I will not commit the university to building more parking lots," Woodward stated. Dean Edwards commented, "The university is not in a position to dig up yard space (for parking lots). There is not that much of a problem if the students would cooperate."

Peinhardt asked the officials where the money from parking decals and parking tickets goes after it is collected but those attending the meeting could not answer. Vice-President for Business Affairs Charles Rowe was unable to attend the meeting.

Peinhardt said that the results of the meeting, which will be implemented as soon as possible, are satisfactory on a short-term basis.

Another meeting is planned within the next two weeks to weigh the successes and problems with the new plan.

Results help planning

EH 101 classes given diagnostic examination

By BRUCE GREEN

All English 101 students are probably concerned about the results of their recent diagnostic examination.

When asked the purpose of the diagnostic examination, Dr. Cox, chairman of the English department, answered, "To tell us what competencies the students have when they begin their freshman year. We tend to assume, I am afraid IN ALL CLASSES AT ALL LEVELS, that students may know things they do not know. At an upper level this may serve as a motivation of sorts for a student to move out and learn things it was assumed he knew. However, with something so fundamental as basic writing skills, such an assumption can be disastrous for the student.

He continued, "We need to know what our students know in order to plan a program for them. Some will need special help, and that is one reason for having the diagnostic examination now. We have tried conscientiously to help students deficient in fundamental

Proposals offered to student senate

By MAURICE BOWLES
News Editor

SGA President Keith Peinhardt introduced three proposals before the student senate last week.

The proposals concerned the Executive Cabinet. This cabinet's purpose, should it distributed as a supplement to "The Chanticleer."

Editor Glenna Brackett will submit a statement of purpose to the JSU Communications Board saying that "Pertelote" will be "to introduce and create a literary publication on this campus which would include the creative talents of Jacksonville State University students in the area of short compositions, poetry, essays, sketches, and editorial think-pieces."

The supplement must receive approval by the Communications Board. Funding for the project will have to be made by the Board of Trustees when the school budget is considered Oct. 1.

Ms. Brackett says, "There is a definite need on this campus for a literary publication, and there is this category."

Entries for "Pertelote" may be made immediately by submitting the work in person at "The Chanticleer" office, fourth floor Student Commons Building, or by mailing to "The Chanticleer", Box 56, JSU, Jacksonville, Al. 36285. In order to make a submission, a person must be taking at least 12 hours during the semester of publication.

Ms. Brackett adds that entries will not be returned unless a self addressed stamped envelope is included with the submission.

After an entry is received for consideration, it will be judged by the Editorial Board of "Pertelote". This board is comprised of "one editor chosen from the student body, two faculty members, one of which will be the department head of

Ms. Brackett states that no individual may make more than five entries for any one publication, and no more than three pieces from an individual will be printed. She also says that a 1500 word limit is being placed on each submission.

Commenting on the overall approach by the literary publication, Ms. Brackett says, "It opens up another area for people who feel that they have something to contribute. Their talents may not be in athletics, music, or drama, for example, and writing is a very important part of education at this university."

In the statement of purpose which will be submitted to the Communications Board, the standards and regulations for "Pertelote" are outlined as follows:

3. No entries will be returned without a self addressed, stamped envelope included with the entry. The editors will be under no obligation to comment on manuscripts or offer explanations regarding rejections.

4. Decisions of the editorial board will be final.

5. Deadlines for entries will be established by the Board and are final.

6. No more than five entries per individual may be entered for consideration per issue, and no more than three from one individual will be printed.

Sigma Nu's dedicate house

By GENE WISDOM

If you are not a first-year student here at JSU you may remember a rather unsightly building located just across College Street from the Post Office. Well, take another look. What was once a blemish in the town of Jacksonville is now the beautiful and quite impressive new Sigma Nu fraternity house.

The dedication and ribbon-cutting ceremony for the new house of Jacksonville's youngest fraternity took place at about 6:30, Thursday afternoon, Sept. 7. The 30-minute delay of the ceremony certainly did not dampen the enthusiasm of the members and little sisters who had all worked so hard for this big moment.

And hard work they did.

The more than 3000 man-hours of work on the building and surrounding grounds was obviously done with the goal of having a first-class fraternity house; it was a goal successfully achieved. Dr. James Rowe, vice-president of Business Affairs substituting for Dr. Stone, who had a prior commitment, stated that Sigma Nu had "literally restored" the 137-year-old house.

Knox Ide, a successful businessman here in Jacksonville and owner of the house remembers very well the condition of the building before Sigma Nu approached him about buying it; he would make an extra effort to avoid passing by the house. Now he goes out of his way just to see the magnificent job the fraternity has done with the historic building which he said now means more to him than any piece of property he has owned.

Mr. Ide, a Sigma Nu himself since 1919, was somewhat hesitant at first about letting a fraternity move into the house. Bill Whitehead, a member of the fraternity, remembers that it took over two months to get an answer from him after they inquired about purchasing what was then an eyesore in the community. But finally convinced that he could become proud of the house, Mr. Ide agreed to let Sigma Nu take over the house.

The gentleman's agreement symbolizes the mutual respect that the new

Senators selected by frosh

Freshmen elected Amanda Smith, senator-at-large; Lisa Lamb and Mary Walden, commuter senators; and Jeff Hubbard, residential senator in the run-off Monday, Sept. 11.

This year's freshmen election went well according to Jay Jackson, SGA elections official, although not enough people showed an interest in voting. The turnout, however, was larger on Friday, Sept. 9, than in the run-off.

Students interested in running for the position were required to sign up at the SGA office. Ten students ran for the three positions.

The duties of these senators are separate in that they represent different groups, but their purpose—to represent and work for the freshman class—is the same.

These freshmen senators represent a significant percentage of the student body who come from local areas, as well as from all over the nation.

Association." The purpose of this organization would be to keep students from having to pay the $50 to $100 utility deposits a student has to pay when he or she moves into a house or apartment. The association would require a small fee from each off-campus student.

The association would require a five dollar fee from each off campus student. The association would in turn hire a professional bill collection agency which would enter into contract with the utilities to insure proper payment of bills. Discussion of this measure was also halted until the next meeting.

Peinhardt also reported that senators will now receive special cards permitting them in all school functions free. This is an added bonus of being a senator.

A resolution by Dave Driscoll concerning the traffic situation was unanimously approved by the SGA.

Liquor ordinance being considered by city council

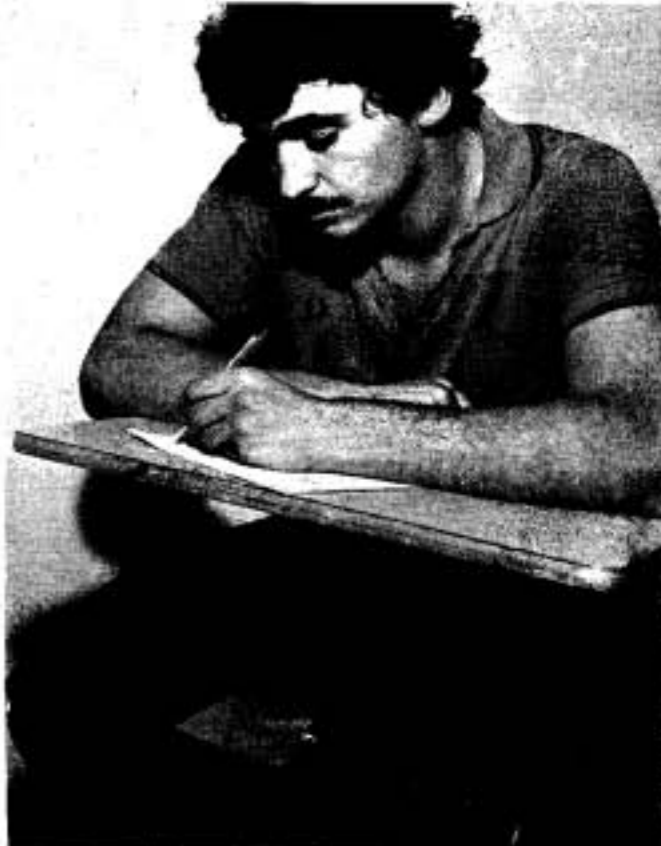

The Jacksonville City Council will consider a new liquor-by-the-drink amendment to the city's present ordinance at its meeting next Tuesday night.

At last week's meeting of the council, the proposal was given its first reading. The council also voted to have the amendment published in "The Jacksonville News" in order to allow local residents to study the proposal.

The amendment was styled after Anniston's ordinance allowing liquor-by-the-drink, and Mayor David Lee stated that about the only change was in replacing "Anniston" with "Jacksonville" in the amendment.

Council member Hazel Hicks, also a JSU faculty member, moved that the rules be suspended at the last meeting so the council could consider the proposal at the time. However, skills in the past. For example, we have worked with them in private conferences; we have done basic review in groups, when we felt that that was not time wasting; we have directed students to works that could help them, for example English 3200.

"Now, however, we have the Writing Clinic, which Doctor Lloyd Mulrairie is directing for us. The clinic is being designed to help anyone at any level with any writing problem. At this time though, focus is on survival writing skills. Hence, with our diagnostic examination we measure the student's writing health, as it were. If he needs treatment, we try to prescribe, as nearly as possible, the treatment needed." Asked what he meant by "treatment," Dr. Cox said, "for example, if the student is having difficulty handling certain punctuation marks, we indicate on the referral slip to the Writing Clinic the exact nature of the problem. The staff at the Writing Clinic then works with the student's particular problem. The advantage here is that the student is getting a great deal of concentrated, individual treatment under the guidance of a friendly expert."

Dr. Cox summed up: "The diagnostic examination, in terms of statistics, will tell us something about our programs. It will tell us something about our students in comparison with other students. And, since we will be testing again before the end of the semester, it will tell us something about the strengths and weaknesses of our program.

"No test is perfect," he reflected, "and we may discover that we will want to modify the sort of test we are using. We do know that the examination used this time is an adequate instrument with which to take the student's rhetorical temperature. It was prepared by two of our instructors who used models from professionally accepted examinations given nationwide.

"We do not yet have the results compiled. A special problem this semester in terms of logistics, of course, was the holiday early in the semester."

Freshmen who take advantage of the Writing Clinic when referrals are made by their 101 composition teachers will show some evidence of the value of both the Writing Clinic and the diagnostic tests by the end of this semester.

Interview With Dr. Steve Whitton You are what you read

By GENE HARRIS

Due to the hectic pace of modern urban living and the growing range of recreational possibilities during leisure time, it occurred to me that bookstores must be having a rough time with time with-sales. Some social thinkers suggest that, since the advent of television, reading skills and reading interests have decreased in direct proportion to the progress of television programming.

However, after surveying several bookstores I was surprised to find that, in general sales volumes have increased. I immediately began to wonder what people are reading that could possibly replace Charlie's Angels and Johnny Carson. To find out, I thought it best to simply ask people about their reading habits. Assuming that English professors must also be avid readers, I sought such a person in Pannell Hall. Dr. Steve Whitton graciously agreed to tell me his thoughts on reading and literature.

Q. Considering your academic reading duties, can you find time to read for personal enjoyment?

A. Oh, sure. I subscribe to various magazines and I always keep a novel for bedtime reading. I find that reading is a good relaxation tool.

Q. What have you read recently?

A. A few months ago I became interested in detective novels and right now I'm still into that type of work.

Q. Did you grow up in a reading environment?

A. Definitely. There were always books and magazines around the house. My father traveled much of the time and always supplied us with an abundance of reading material to keep us out of mischief.

Q. Did this early reading have any effect on you as an individual?

A. Yes. I began wearing glasses in the fourth grade.

Q. What prompted you to the hobby of reading for fun?

A. I guess that childhood curiosity was the first catalyst. I began looking at magazines and comic books out of a curiosity for the pictures and colors. After that, the make believe world of children's books kept me interested. It was a safe and enjoyable form of escapism.

Q. What are some of the early readings that are most remembered?

A. I think that Huck Finn probably took me from comics to more progressive works. I've been hooked on Mark Twain since then.

Q. What style of writing do you enjoy most?

A. At this stage of my life, I really enjoy drama, of course, plays are meant to be seen on the stage so I probably am more entertained by the novel. The novelist writes specifically for the reader.

Q. Do you have any favorite writers?

A. Well, I mentioned before that I never tire of Mark Twain. I did my dissertation on Phillip Roth and I still enjoy him. There is a playwright, Peter Nichols, whom I especially enjoy. Donald Westleg is the writer of the detective fiction that I've recently been reading. Also, due to my course on films, I've come to enjoy Alfred Hitchcock.

Q. Are your friends avid readers also?

A. Yes. All of my friends read. Having friends that read is the best way to be introduced to interesting works and new authors. For example, friends in Montgomery introduced me to Westleg.

Q. Is it a good idea to read a book more than once?

A. Sure. A case in point is Huck Finn. When I first read it, it was a terrific childhood adventure. Later on it became an enjoyment of Twain's satire. The charm of a great book is that it becomes a different book at different times in your life. I hold on to really good works, and read them again every four or five years.

Q. Did you find that being an avid reader increased your academic skills?

A. Well, it may not give the student more interest in required readings, but it certainly develops a pattern of reading that makes the academic reading easier.

Q. Can you recommend a way in which the students could begin good reading skills?

A. I think that the best way would be to begin with subjects that are interesting to them. It really doesn't matter what one reads as long as reading occurs. Once good reading skills are developed, all literature becomes more interesting.

Q. What do you think about the idea that students should read more relevant books and refrain from commercial successes such as "Jaws"?

A. I don't like to pass judgment on anyone's reading habits, although I did think that "Jaws" was an especially terrible book. I think that in order to fully enjoy reading as a hobby, one must have a personal interest in the material. Of course, the college student cannot choose so freely due to academic requirements, but hopefully these required readings will develop an interest in other academic works.

Q. Students quite often remark that, due to the large amount of required reading, they don't have time for personal enjoyment of literature. What would you say to them?

A. This idea is a standard cop-out. Students find time for other forms of recreation so they could also find time for personal enjoyment of literature if they were inclined to do so.

Q. Do you require a large amount of reading in your courses?

A. I think I'm fair. People sometimes forget that students are paying money to learn. This objective would be defeated if requirements were kept at a minimum.

Q. What about the idea that students could more fully understand an assignment if required readings were kept at the lower range?

A. To limit the scope of a course may deprive some students of works or authors that they may become interested in. A survey course is just that, an exploration of different types of literature. More in depth study of a certain work is the function of graduate school. I don't think that any under-grad would enjoy a whole semester devoted to just Hawthorne or Melville.

Q. What can the university do to help the students develop an interest in reading, other than the normal classroom procedures?

A. The JSU English Department has established a writing clinic already. Since good writing is a product of good reading, this clinic will hopefully evolve into the development of reading skills.

head of the English department, and two other JSU students one of whom will be the editor of "The Chanticleer."

be published in tabloid form as a supplement to the school newspaper.

Although Ms. Brackett as not yet appeared before the Communications Board, plans for the first publication this fall are being made so there will be no hold-up if the Board does give its approval and the Board of Trustees agrees to allocate funds for the project.

She says that she is optimistic about the results of "Pertelote" stating, "I think there is enough talent on this campus that a publication of this sort will be brimming with entries."

Liquor

Councilman Theodore Fox quashed that move by casting an opposing vote. A move to suspend the rules must be carried unanimously.

The proposal sets stipulation for applicants to receive a license to serve liquor. Included in these is a requirement for personal information including police records. At the present only beer can legally be served by business establishments in the city.

Although liquor-by-the-drink licenses can be given under the city's existing ordinance, local businesses have had applications pending for some time. Four of these applications—Pee Wee's, The Oddessey, Poor Richard's, and BB's Deli were denied at the meeting. No reasons were given for the denials.

The amendment will be given a second reading at next Tuesday's meeting and the council will then consider the measure for adoption.

HEW gives grant to JSU

Jacksonville State University has been awarded a $27,000 training grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's administration on aging.

The money was given to the university's aging studies program and will be used for scholarships for students studying gerontology.

Students chosen for the awards will be examining issues relating to aging in three east Alabama communities—Heflin, Lincoln and Wall Street. The latter is in Tallapoosa County.

Students will have workshops in those communities to provide information to senior citizens about programs and services available to them on local, state and national levels.

Jacksonville State's rural training project is one of the units involved with the University of Alabama in Birmingham's Center for Aging Multidisciplinary Training in Aging grant. The center is using this grant to develop programs in social work, public health, rural health and optometry.

Seminar slated for program

The Aging Studies Program of Jacksonville State University is presenting the first in a series of Distinguished Senior Scholar Seminars which focus on the problems, policies, and prospects for older Americans. Dr. Rosamonde Ramsay Boyd, Professor Emeritus at Converse College, will visit Jacksonville State University on Sept. 25 and 26 to speak on philosophies of aging, the multi-generation family and training, practice, and professional opportunities in gerontology.

Dr. Boyd received her PhD in Sociology and European History from Duke University in 1945. Since that time Dr. Boyd has contributed significantly to the field of aging studies. In 1961, she was appointed by President Eisenhower to the National Planning Committee to the first White House Conference on Aging. She also served as a member of President Johnson's National Advisory Committee for the Office of Economic Opportunity. Dr. Boyd also organized and directed the Institute on Gerontology at Converse College in 1969. Her textbook, Foundations of Practical Gerontology, co-authored with Charles Oaks, has been widely used in colleges throughout the country. She is also author of other newspaper and journal articles dealing with the aging and aged.

Dr. Boyd will be presenting an informal seminar to faculty and other interested parties at 10 a.m. on Sept. 25 in Room 306 Brewer Hall. On Tuesday, Sept. 26, Dr. Boyd will present a formal seminar on Multi-Generation Families to faculty and students. This seminar will be held from 1-3 p.m. in the Gold Room of Bibb Graves Hall. The public is invited.

Further information about the seminars may be obtained by contacting the Aging Studies Program office on the JSU campus.

Freshmen elections point to overall campus problem

By MAURICE BOWLES

Certain factions on this campus simply can't get their act together. This is evidenced by the poorly run and poorly received freshman election last week. While less than 50 students show up to vote out of a class of nearly 2000, something is surely wrong.

First and foremost is the obvious disrespectful attitude of the majority of freshmen on this campus. Voting shouldn't be a chore but an honor—even at this small level. Voting, by the way, is the least demanding form of student involvement.

Virtually every student organization on this campus is hurting for lack of involvement. If this sad turnout is any reflection on the attitude of freshmen in the future, even worse times are ahead for our campus organizations.

Too many freshmen will return home at the end of this semester complaining of boredom, but their complaints cannot be justified until their own performance improves. One gets out of something what one puts into it, and voting is the smallest contribution one can make to anything.

But one cannot chastise the freshmen without also criticizing the Election Committee. The elections were poorly run and poorly publicized. Those freshmen that didn't know of the elections cannot be criticized for not voting. Many of the students that did learn of the vote didn't know what they were voting for. The fact that there was only one poll location contributed to the poor turnout. Further, the students running for office didn't even have a chance to campaign.

Add this to the fact that the SGA office is an unfrequented location, and it reflects poor planning on the part of the Elections Committee.

No matter what problems were encountered in coordinating this election it shouldn't have been carried out under the above circumstances.

Come on guys, let's get our act together.

WASHINGTON

President Carter is becoming alarmed over his sagging popularity. But White House sources tell us that he believes he has done a good job. He has reduced unemployment by 2 percent and has deregulated airline fares. He has set up a new Energy Department and created a new Education Department.

However, the President is proudest of tackling the tough issues. He pushed through a Panama Canal treaty that the polls showed were opposed by most Americans. He arranged an Arab arms sale that the Jewish community opposed. He defied the Greek vote by fighting to end the arms embargo against Turkey.

Carter is also seeking an oil tax or tariff that will increase gas prices. He strongly believes these unpopular moves are necessary for the best good of the country.

The President admits privately that he has made mistakes. He overpromised during the election campaign. So his performance is measured against his promises, he feels, instead of his accomplishments. He also acknowledges that he has stuck by personal friends, such as Bert Lance and Andrew Young, whom a more pragmatic president would have dropped.

But Carter also believes newsmen, in the aftermath of Watergate, are scrutinizing him more critically than they did past presidents. So he has launched a campaign to improve his image.

He has begun inviting opinion makers to the family quarters of the White House for informal dinners. He has also brought media man Jerry Rafshoon into the White House to orchestrate publicity.

The President has quietly reminded subordinates, meanwhile, that he's in a far better position to get re-elected than he was to get elected in the first place.

Nuclear Danger: The federal government has systematically suppressed disagreeable news about the danger of radiation from nuclear power plants. It appears that the federal authorities are more anxious to protect the nuclear industry than the public health.

The stakes are enormously high. Both the federal government and the nuclear industry are committed to developing nuclear power. Too many unfavorable stories could jeopardize the industry's multi-billion dollar investment in nuclear power.

Scientists who have linked low-level radiation with cancer have had their government grants withdrawn and their reputations tarnished. One of them was University of Pittsburgh Professor Thomas Mancuso. The Energy Department didn't like his study of increased cancer among atomic workers in Richland, Wash. So the department fired him.

We reported what happened to Mancuso and the story led to hearings before the House Health subcommittee. Energy Department officials promised the congressmen a full investigation by their own inspector general.

Six months have passed and the investigation has been completed. But the congressmen are calling it a whitewash and accusing the Energy Department of a cover-up.

Now the congressmen have asked the General Accounting Office to investigate the investigators. They said the inspector general's report was "totally deficient."

Press Harassment: The Soviet Union is continuing its harassment of American newsmen. Two have already been convicted of "slander and defamation." They are Craig Whitney of The New York Times and Harold Piper of The Baltimore Sun.

The men were accused of slandering the committee that controls the Soviet media. This is the same committee that specializes in slandering the United States.

In fact, Soviet newsmen routinely engage in slandering our country. We've seen a CIA study of the subject which claims that Soviet correspondents "double as intelligence operatives" and "influence local press coverage of international developments."

The biggest Soviet propaganda drive has been directed against the neutron bomb. Soviet newsmen have portrayed the bomb as "the ultimate capitalist weapon." In various West German cities, communist front groups delivered protests to the U.S. consulates. In Bonn, two Soviet journalists were seen participating in a demonstration in front of the American embassy.

The CIA report alleges that the Soviets attended major conferences throughout the world in late 1977 and early 1978 for one purpose—to gain a forum for denouncing the bomb. The propaganda campaign was also aimed, the report alleges, "to stimulate doubts in the U.S. public about our own military establishment."

Conflicting Reports: Meanwhile, President Carter has received conflicting reports about the Soviet Union's growing military power. The Central Intelligence Agency has reported that the Soviets are spending about 6 percent of their Gross National Product on armaments. But the Defense Intelligence Agency insists the percentage is more than double the CIA figures. Some analysts believe Soviet defense expenditures exceed 20 percent.

In the summer of 1972, according to a top-secret report, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev discussed the huge Soviet military outlay with Kremlin colleagues. He was quoted in the intelligence report as confiding: "I fear for the Soviet people to know that one out of every three rubles goes for defense."

Be sure that you have all the supplies you need before leaving for the exam. Also, try to take a seat where the lighting is good and where you won't be distracted.

It makes some people nervous (and I'm one of them) to review with others who are about to take the same exam. You (I) get uptight about things I don't know, and begin the test with a negative attitude.

Once the exam has begun, listen to the instructor for the instructions and read through the entire exam, organizing your thoughts as you go. Try to budget time for each question and try to concentrate on one question at a time. As you read you may want to jot down key words.

If a question is objective, be sure to give attention to key words like "all", "none", "never", "might", or "should".

The Equal Rights Amendment which has been through almost seven years of often very heated debate may be seeing its last days. It was on March 22, 1972, that Congress sent the ERA to the states for ratification within seven years and as March 1979, draws closer the advocates of ERA resort to progressively worse tactics to achieve its ratification. These tactics include an economic boycott of states which have rejected the proposed amendment, and the expenditure of $5 million in taxes to support the International Women's Year which was little more than a means for various groups to spend federal money in support of the ERA.

The newest tactic pulled out of the trashbag is to simply change the rules in the middle of the game. The U. S. House of Representatives voted on Aug. 15, to extend the seven year deadline by three years and three months. If this proposal passes the Senate and is signed by the President, the precedent set will pose a threat to the doctrine established in 1921 by the Supreme Court in "Dillon v. Gloss." That doctrine holds that all the ratifications by the states should take place close enough together to reflect a consensus at a given point in time or a "contemporary consensus."

Every Constitutional amendment reflected this "contemporary consensus" in that no amendment has taken more than four years to be ratified. After the first 10 amendments were ratified (in 27 months) the average time for ratification has been 19 months. Yet many ERA supporters are saying that their amendment deserves more time.

In a House subcommittee hearing on the extension, advocates of ERA scoffed at the idea that state legislatures relied on the time limit and would have opposed the amendment had they thought the limit might be extended. Such doubt was put to rest with the careful research of Professor Jules Gerard of Washington University Law School, who has examined the actual resolutions by which the states ratified the ERA and concluded that at least 24 states conditioned their approval of ERA on the ratification period's not extending beyond seven years. The problems this may pose to ERA's ratification are obvious; unless it is tied to another grossly unfair idea of the pro-ERA forces that states, once having ratified may not rescind that vote before the time limit expires but if they have previously rejected it they may later ratify the amendment.

The legislature history of the Equal Rights Amendment is littered with examples of violations of Constitutional and ethical safeguards. To extend the deadline for final ratification will not only simply scar that record further, but will also wreck irreparable damage to the valid American tradition of Constitutional amendments which reflects a settled consensus.

Band outraged

Dear Editor:

I want to tell you about a lamentable incident.

One of the school's most overlooked traditions happened once again a few nights ago. Many of us in the Southeners would like to overlook it, too. This happy tradition is called "Rat Run."

This run started as all others have in the past. The band arrived early and warmed up while the unsuspecting freshmen were descended upon. The music was played when everyone arrived. A few cheers and contests were then started. This event usually gets the spirits high while the upper classmen make fools out of themselves.

The band members had asked everyone to please refrain from throwing anything at us or the ballerinas during the dance number. Every member of the Southeners has quite a bit of money tied up in instruments and uniforms, so a few carefully aimed eggs would cost us real money. Aside from the money point of view, one of the ballerinas had had brain surgery during this past summer. If any object had hit her on a certain part of the head, it could have caused severe damage. We began to play the number while we continued to watch towards the sky. We had only two measures of music left when a beer can came flying through the air and landed at the feet of one of the drummers. The band left immediately.

Most of the band members do not go to "Rat Run" because we enjoy it. We are there for everyone's enjoyment, but we will not be abused or taken for granted. It is a shame that a few will ruin a fun event for all.

Persis Kahmbatta has started a new hair style because of her new role in "Star Trek." She shaved her head as bald as an egg. The new "Star Trek" movie is due out next year with Leonard Nimoy and William Shatner.

Donny and Marie Osmond have a new line of clothes cut out for them. They are called Olive's Clothes after their mother who is their chief helper. The clothes will be as proper and sweet as Donny and Marie's image.

Jane Fonda stars as a tough and determined woman trying to overcome the consequences of World War II in "Comes a Horseman" due out next month. Jason Robards and James Caan also star.

Mick Jagger decided to cool his fans down after a heated rendition of the old and new Stones hits with a water hose.

CAMPUS

Well, we've had our first two games and I must say that the Southerners sounded terrific but their drill was a little short of that. It definitely needs to be sharper and smoother. The mistakes were too numerous to count, and yes, I do know that it was the first two performances and a band needs time to gel. I also would like to hear the fight song more often especially when the team scores and it is a common courtesy to face the opposing side especially if it is their home game.

This week's movies are "The Other Side of Midnight" and "Start the Revolution Without Me." These show at 7 and 9:30 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday nights, respectively, in the Student Commons Auditorium. It costs $1 with Student ID.

How to tell a businessman from a businesswoman

An anonymous but acute and mischievous observer of the office scene compiled this telling commentary:

A businessman is aggressive; a businesswoman is pushy.

He is careful about details; she's picky.

He loses his temper because he's so involved in his job; she's bitchy.

He's depressed (or hung

He follows through; she doesn't know when to quit.

He's firm; she's stubborn.

He makes wise judgements; she reveals her prejudices.

He is a man of the world; she's been around.

He isn't afraid to say what he thinks; she's opinionated.

He exercises authority; she's tyrannical.

He's discreet; she's secretive.

He's a stern taskmaster; she's difficult to work for.

The above was loosely adapted from "The Executive Woman" a newsletter for women in business.

Sneak fall TV calendar

The fall season is on us and with it comes the new television shows. Traditional violence has continued declining. Two out of three of the shows, however, will be whodunits (lawyers, private eyes, etc.) but the big macho violence will be missing. "Battlestar Galactica" will be one of the few shoot'em up bang bang shows left. It is complete with an arsenal of futuristic weapons used unsparingly against the bad guys. At first, sex looked like it was going to be this year's super fad due to last year's success of "Charlie's Angels," "Soap" and "Three's Company." The networks promptly followed up with other "jiggle" shows, but they flopped. The liberated women shows that swept the screen these last few years have run themselves out. The producers feel that they have written everything possible about the "new" woman. Instead, they have turned to and would you believe it? the "new" man with shows such as "Taxi." Some of the old shows returning will be "MASH," "Fantasy Island," "Soap," "Charlie's Angels," "The Love Boat," "The Incredible Hulk," "Laverne and Shirley," "Welcome Back, Kotter," "Wonder Woman," "Hawaii Five-O," "Rhoda,"

"Starsky and Hutch." Some of the new shows will be "Battlestar Galactica," "Kaz," "In the Beginning," "WKPP in Cincinnati," "Vegas," "Taxi," "Mork and Mindy," "Mary," "Lifeline," "Flying High," "Apple Pie," "The Paper Chase," "The Waverly Wonders" and "The American Girls." Looks to be a strang season, doesn't it?

The battle of the TV specials

This year's battle of the TV specials is about to begin. They may be bigger and better, as the hype machine promises, but they are losing their uniqueness. There will be scads of mini-series of every type; made-for-TV movies of every stripe; top-quality Hollywood movies such as "Rocky" and "King Kong"; variety shows featuring tried-and-true personalities, and coverage of every conceivable event from Miss America to the World Series. In short, so-called TV specials will account for half of TV's total output this season. Splashy, yes, but hardly special.

It's no accident that splashy specials have become the norm. Network bigwigs know a golden goose when they stumble on one. They also know how to squeeze as many eggs out of it as possible.

NBC's 1978 "Holocaust" virtually held Nielsen families hostage for days on end. No wonder, then, the mini-series is back this year with a vengeance.

Since repetition has replaced imitation as the sincerest form of TV flattery, ABC will offer "Roots: The Next Generations," a 12-hour sequel to the original black ancestral saga. James Earl Jones plays author Alex Haley, with Henry Fonda, Olivia DeHavilland and Richard (John-Boy) Thomas as co-stars. Other ABC mini-series also up at bat shortly include "Ike," starring Robert Duvall in a six-hour dramatization of the general's World War II years, which alludes to his relationship with his driver, Kay Summersby, played by Lee Remick; and "Pearl" with Angie Dickinson and an all star cast reliving "the lives and loves" of Pearl Harbor military personnel during World War II.

seller lists for its mini-series offerings. Most promising are Brooke Hayward's stunning autobiography, "Haywire," in which the author tarnishes Hollywood's golden image; Irving Wallace's "The World," which questions existing accounts of Christ's life and death, and "The Pirate," Harold Robbins' absurd but compelling tale of an Arab prince who finds out he's Jewish.

However, as mini-series go, NBC has to win the prize for ambition. It will program 75 hours of them, including an all star adaptation of James Michener's "Centennial," about 100 years in a Colorado frontier town. Playing time: a whopping 25 cumulative hours. If NBC gets some hit series, you can bet the last-place network will cut back drastically on mini-series, which in the long run are more costly than are weekly series.

Made-For-Television Movies

Made-for-TV movies are next in importance to the mini-series this season, and the best-seller list hasn't been ignored here either. CBS snatched up Judith Krantz's "Scruples," about sex in the fashion world; ABC grabbed gossip Joyce Haber's "The Users," about sex in Hollywood, starring Charlie's Angel Jaclyn Smith and NBC has Dyan Cannon as San Francisco madam Sally Stanford in "Lady of the House," based on Stanford's autobiography about sex in, well, the house.

It looks like a good season for women in TV movies. Journalist Betty Rollin will be portrayed by Mary Tyler Moore in CBS's "First You Cry," Rollin's account of her own mastectomy. Carol Burnett will get under the skin of humorist Erma Bombeck to tackle the suburban woes in CBS's "The Grass Is Always Greener Over The Septic Tank."

Anyone who saw the A&M game knows that the 'Cocks were not in top form, at least for the first three quarters. To be honest, they looked like they were a little overconfident and were taking A&M a little too lightly or something. So today when the first Gulf South Conference statistics came out the Jaxmen were not in their expected top positions in many of the categories, most noticeably the defensive ones where the Gamecocks ranked no better than sixth in any area. The offensive stats looked a little more like last year's, with Jacksonville State leading the conference in passing offense. This is thanks to Bobby Ray Green who leads the conference in passing with 29 completions in 32 attempts for 170 yards and two touchdowns. James Moreen also leads the conference in pass receiving with six catches for 81 yards. The Gamecocks also ranked second in the GSC in scoring offense, but when you couple this with the fact that they are also last in scoring defense it doesn't look so good. Of course you can't say too much after one game. Things should get better for the Red Bandits have too much talent to stay on the bottom for too long.

Congratulations to women's tennis Coach Margaret Pope who was named this past week as the Alabama Intercollegiate Athletic Conference tennis coach of the year in the small college division. Coach Pope and her team had an excellent year last spring winning the conference title and going to the Southeast Regional Tournament.

We are trying to organize a weekly football predictions section to pick the winners in the top Gulf South and SEC games, along with one other game of national interest each week. Dr. Ronnie Harris, athletic director for women's sports and men's spring sports and SGA President Keith Peinhardt, our own sports staff, along with a mystery forecaster will be among those making the picks. One JSU student will also have his picks listed. Anyone interested in being a guest prognosticator come by the Chanticleer office in the Student Commons and submit your name.

In Saturday's game

Gamecocks fall to Colonels

By MIKE MOON

The Gamecocks opened their new "fighting pit" Saturday night but not exactly the way Coach Jim Fuller had hoped for. The 'Cocks fell to the Nicholls State Colonels 19-17. The hardest part of it being that Jacksonville beat Jacksonville more than Nicholls State beat mistakes made at the worst possible times, a low long punt that allowed for a runback, a pass interference call on the goal line, and a fumble to give Nicholls the ball back after a great goal line stand. The final mistake being more bad luck than anything else as a Jax defender slipped in the end zone allowing the Nicholls receiver to get open for the the kick a Green pass was intercepted by Boyd of Nicholls and returned to the Jax 22. Here the "Red Bandit" defense made its first stand of the game and the Colonels had to punt. Still the Gamecock offense couldn't get cranked up and the first quarter ended 7-0 Nicholls.

The second quarter was a different story as the 'Cocks the offense again drove down the field this time a 46 yard drive, but on a seven yard run that carried the ball to the one, quarterback Bobby Ray Green was injured and left the game never to return. His replacement Mike Watts carried the ball in with 6:58 to go in the half and the 'Cocks led 14-7, a position they were to enjoy till nearly the end of the the Gamecock offense out of the end zone and Coach Fuller had to settle for a Rocky Riddle fieldgoal and 17-7 halftime lead.

The third quarter was a battle of the defense as neither team could mount an offensive attack.

The fourth quarter was a disaster for the Gamecocks. With just under 12 minutes to go in the game, Nichols'

Then came the second 4th quarter error, JSU fumbled the ball back to Nichols at the 11. Once again the defense rose up to stop the Colonels, but then came mistake number three, pass interference, and the Colonels had new life at the six. Still the Red Bandits wouldn't quit and held the Colonels to fourth and nine. Then came the back luck. As anything from the Colonels who played a great game. In fact a NFL scout sitting in the press box called it the best college game I've seen this year." Truly it was not a great number of mistakes that beat the Gamecocks but than two minutes left. The game opened up bad for Jax State as on the second play from scrimmage Nicholls ran the flea flicker pass for a 76 yard touchdown pass. Then on the first play after opening the game by capping off a 10 play, 94 yard drive with a five yard run by Pat Clements. The Jax defense was still solid, as it would remain for the rest of the game, and Nicholls was forced to punt. After the punt

The "Red Bandits" weren't through for the half and forced a Nichols fumble on a pass completion and once again, Jacksonville was in business. This time the tough Colonels defense held low JSU punt and raced through the JSU coverage, who hadn't time to get under the kick, for a 72 yard touchdown return. Then Dwayne Parker came up with what was nearly the game saving play for JSU, as he blocked the PAT leaving the 'Cocks with a four point lead. It was simply not to be as on the following JSU possession a Watts pass was intercepted and brought back to the 40. From there the Colonels drove down to inside the JSU 10 where, responding to the cries of the crowd, the Jax defense rose up to stop the Colonels and take over at the 8.

use this zone, appearing on the new loose sod. This left the Nichols receiver Marvin Duman wide open for the winning touchdown. If nothing else the Red Bandits have made up for their performance against Alabama A&M, despite losing the Jax defenders played as though a goal line defense as will ever be played in that disastrous fourth quarter. Now everybody at Jacksonville is going to have to do something very strange and turn into Troy State fans, at least for a week, because they are Nichols' next opponent.

LAST YEAR

JSU will play its first conference road game Saturday, as it travels to Martin, Tenn., to take on the Pacers of UT-Martin.

The Pacers will be waiting in hopes of avenging one of three losses from last year. Unfortunately for new coach Vester Newcomb, who replaced George MacIntyre this season, he will be facing the Gamecocks without the Pacers major offensive weapon from last year: Gulf South Conference MVP quarterback Alvin Smalls. This will mean UTM will move more on the ground this year with returning lettermen running backs Henry Williams and Mike Gipson.

Their return will help the Pacers, along with six other offensive and eight defensive starters from last year's 8-3 team. Still, graduation hurt UTM. According to Coach Newcomb, "We lost the heart of our pass offense and pass defense, but I feel we have some youngsters capable of filling these positions."

The Pacers had a rough opener losing to Austin Peay 21-14 and another tough game this past Saturday against Middle Tennessee. Nevertheless, you can count on the Pacers to be ready for the 'Cocks when they arrive in Tennessee Saturday.

JACKSONVILLE 36 — UT-MARTIN 13

JACKSONVILLE—Game four of the 1977 football season was another home affair for the Jax State Gamecocks and another winning affair. The win, a 36-13 margin over the University of Tennessee at Martin, marked the Gamecocks' fourth win overall and second straight conference victory.

Jacksonville's James Coleman and Jerome Coleman combined their efforts early in the contest for the first TD. Defensive back Jerome Coleman set it up by intercepting a UTM pass on the Jax 35-yard line in the first quarter. Bobby Ray Green, on the first play from scrimmage after the steal, hit James Coleman for a 65-yard TD aerial. Green hit Coleman later for a 10-yard score to put Jax up 14-0.

UTM scored in the first period to put the score at 14-7. Jacksonville came back on a six-yard Green run in the second quarter to stretch its lead to 20-7 at the half.

The score went to 29-7 in the third quarter on a safety and a one-yard TD dive by reserve quarterback Mike Watts. The final Jax score came in the last period on a 10-yard TD run by freshman tailback Terry Stephens.

GSC weekly schedule

Mississippi College's Ezra Tate jumped to a quick lead in three categories in the first Gulf South Conference football statistics released this week through the office of Commissioner Stan Galloway.

Tate, who scored on an 87 yard run the first time he touched the ball this season, leads in total offense and rushing offense while being deadlocked at the top in scoring.

The Choctaw back accumulated 233 yards, all on the ground, in MC's win over East Tennessee State Saturday, putting him ahead in both departments. His two touchdowns also matched the figures recorded by North Alabama's Johnny Grubb, Tennessee-Martin's Michael Gipson and Troy State's Boyd Grant.

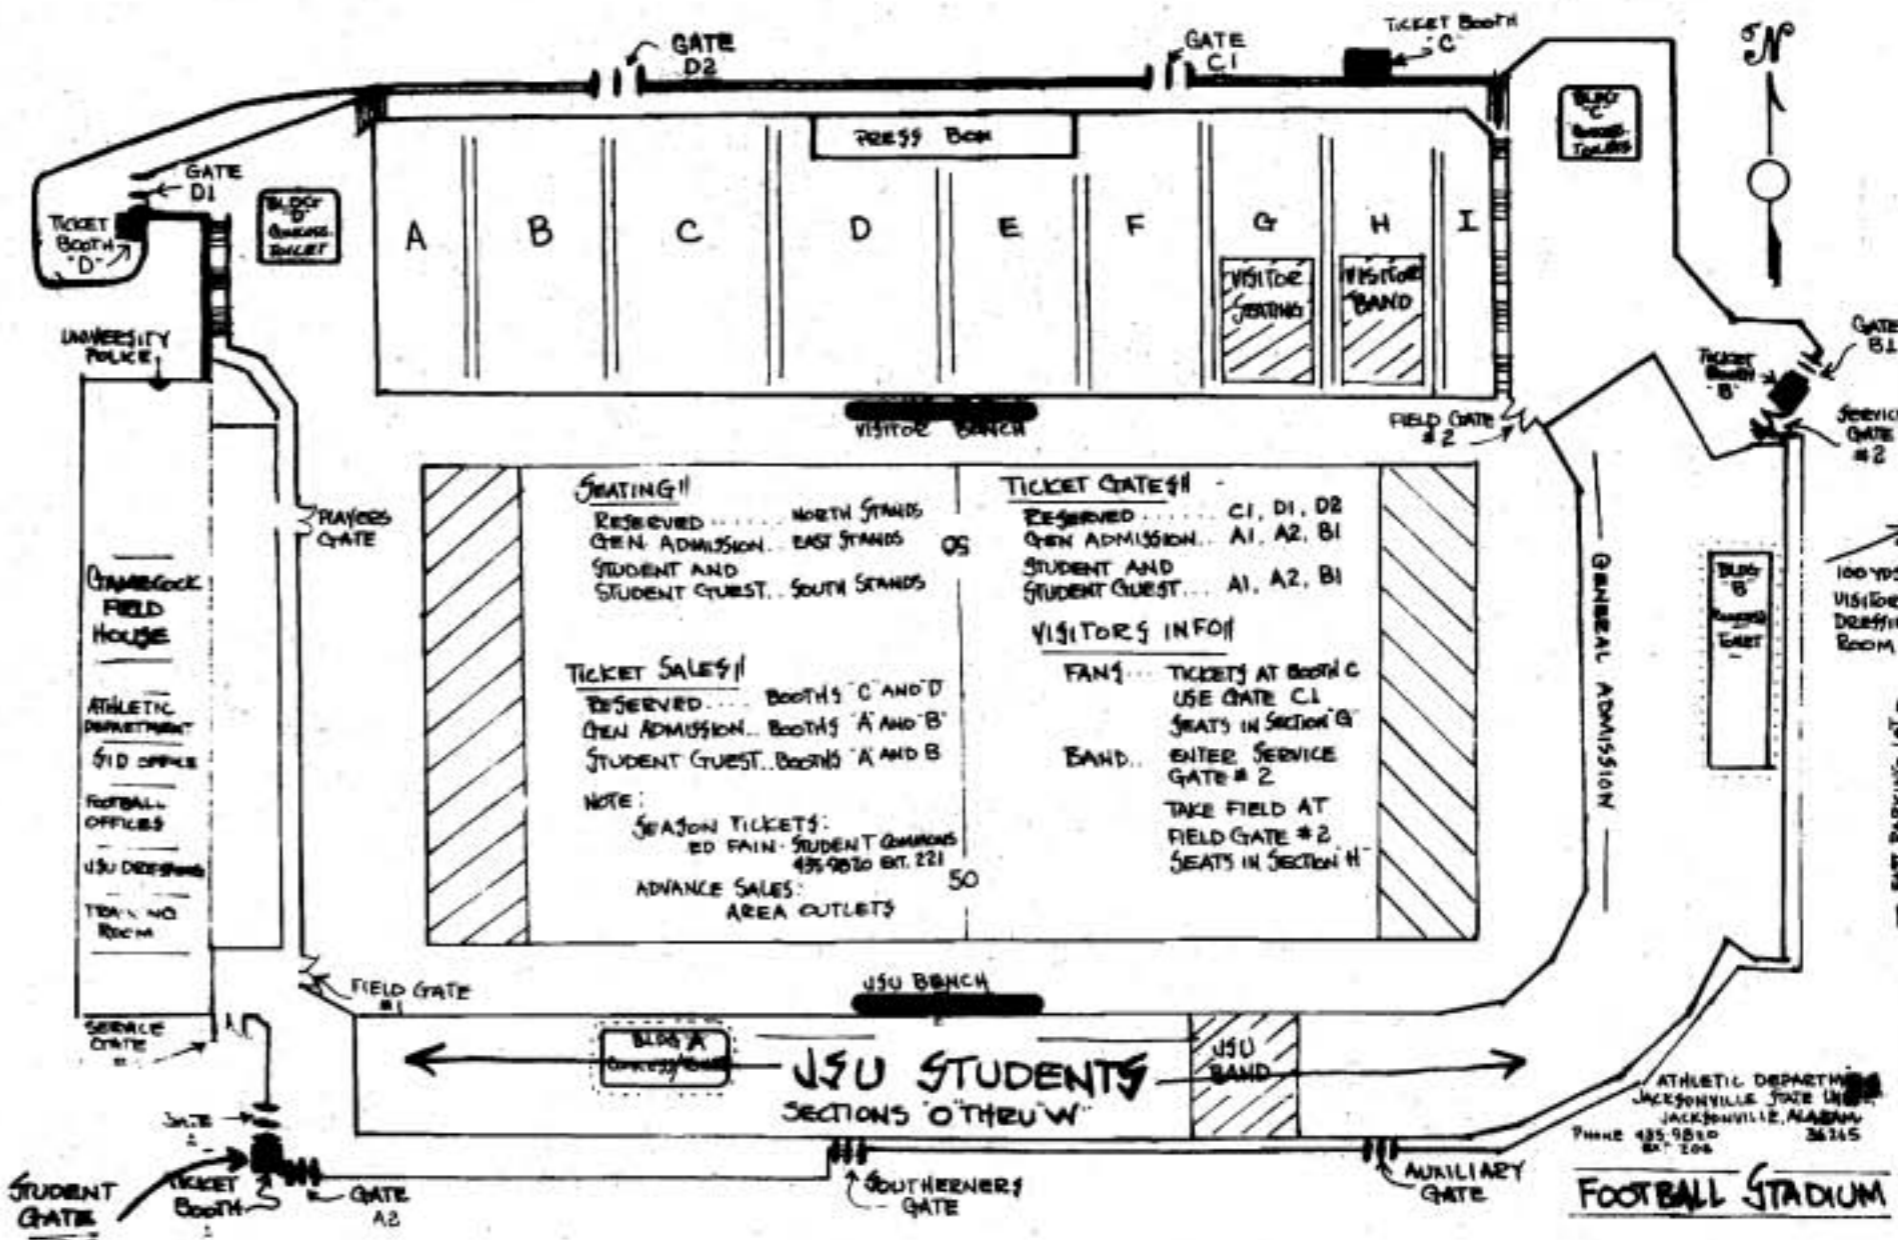

Jacksonville State's Bobby Green picked up where he left off last season, ahead of the GSC's passers, by completing 20 of 32 tosses in the 1978 opener. His favorite target in that game, James Moreen, leads the receivers with six catches for 81 yards.

Troy State's Mike Quinn averaged 43.5 yards per punt to pace the GSC in that category while Livingston University's Bernard Jackson picked off two interceptions in his first game of the season, a figure matched by Nicholls State's duo of Byron Boyd and Mike Clark in two games.

A pair of Southeastern Louisiana University performers lead the GSC in kick returns. Anthony Vereen heads the punt returners with an 8.1 average while Donald Dykes' 46.0 average easily tops the kickoff returners.

In the team statistics, North Alabama paces the GSC in total offense (444.0), rushing offense (370.0) and scoring offense (34.0). Jacksonville State is the top passing machine with a 170.0 average per game.

Southeastern leads the GSC in total defense (189.0) and in passing defense (45.0). Troy State is tops against the rush (65.0) and Livingston has the early lead in scoring defense (2.0).
