Will SGA pass the activity fee?

By JANA McWHORTER MOON
At the Student Government Association (SGA) meeting, the senators passed motions to bring forth a referendum vote on the Student Activity Fee and to allocate $900 for Murrielle

Boch to come and perform on campus. President Keith Peinhardt brought forth the motion to bring the referendum to the student body in a very general form to allow the students to decide whether they want the $20 fee assessed each semester or not. The vote will be April 2. Murrielle Boch, an impressionist, will appear March 29. She does impressions of leading women. Other action included Alan Nash moving that $100 be allocated to send Billy Keel to the weightlifting championship. The senate passed the motion. The Rangers and Kappa Sigma received plaques for their participation in the blood drive. Gamecock Cafeteria now has milk and juice machines up front and glassware will now be used.

Draft is a safeguard

By LINDA MASTERS
According to a recent Press Release, Congressman Bill Nichols (D-Al.) recently introduced legislation that would reinstitute military registration of 18 year old males beginning Jan. 1, 1981. "The Selective Service System has failed to maintain its posture as an effective standby component in the all volunteer environment and consequently needs to be revitalized," Congressman Nichols told the session of the House. The Nichols Bill would also require an annual report on the capability of the Selective Service to meet mobilization requirements; to place the Selective Service organizationally under the Secretary of Defense, except when induction into service is authorized and finally it would require the President to submit recommendations on various modifications and improvements to the Selective Service System.

several areas. "Debate has just begun on the general subject of selective service reform and much information needed to insure the most effective system is not yet available," said Congressman Nichols. Two of the specific areas in which Congressman Nichols seeks information are automatic registration of women. "The President would be required to evaluate the feasibility and desirability of automatic registration, using existing lists, such as school records, tax returns, motor vehicle registrations, etc., for the purpose of registration. Such a system would minimize the burden on the individual to report for a face to face registration." While the legislation does not require the immediate registration of women into the selective service system, it does not require the President to "make recommendations with regard to the registration and induction of women."

Congressman Nichols was emphatic in pointing out that, "This bill would not authorize and does not contemplate a return to a peacetime draft." The primary intent of the legislation is to register 18-year-old males. "If this bill is enacted, and if no subsequent changes are made before Jan. 1, 1981, registration and classification would be accomplished under existing law," explained the Alabama legislator. "Local boards would be reconstituted; a male reaching 18 years of age would be required to present himself for and submit to registration. In other words, a face to face registration." But implied in the legislation is Congressman Nichols' desire to see a change in the old system. A major

"It is widely accepted, and I strongly believe, women represent a great untapped national resource and have demonstrated conclusively their ability to function effectively in the Armed Forces. The issue of registration and even more of induction for military service, is controversial. My bill requires further study to investigate what needs our military will have for women in the service during times of mobilization." Congressman Nichols described this legislation as an "insurance policy." "The nation faces serious military threats throughout the world. In the event of national emergency, we will need to mobilize our manpower resources rapidly, equitably and efficiently. The Selective

The Selective Service System today can not do that. This bill represents a first step in providing the assurance that we will be able to mobilize and meet realistic manpower needs in a time of a national military emergency."

Run for office

By JANAM. MOON

The Student Government Association has run into a problem that is unbelievable and very depressing. Of the three Executive offices, only the treasurer's office will have a race. The candidates are Deborah Kay and Alan Nash. The president and vice-president, respectively Gus Pantazias and John Young, are shoo-ins because no one opposed them.

Is apathy so bad on this campus, that no one wants the rewards or the hassles of running for or holding an office. I appeal to the students to please run for a senator office and get involved in what goes on around here. You can't gripe if you don't do anything about it. So run for office and let's see some new faces in the representation for this studentbody. A few valiant souls can't do it all.

To pay or not to pay?

By ERIC WILLIAMS

President Peinhardt's recent proposal of student activity fees before the SGA senate is a clear example of the poor organization that seems to thrive around that executive office.

Although it was poorly outlined, the proposal was passed by the senate—and that is a lucky thing.

The student activity fees proposal is one of the most important, and most needed programs that has ever come up before the senate. Should the program ever become a reality, it would mean that every student organization — barring fraternities, etc.—would have an increased operating budget.

The program would mean that The Chanticleer and WLJS Radio would be free of administrative controls, and that finally, their staff members would experience the pressures of survival in the field of journalism.

Student activity fees would also mean that there would be bigger names at JSU concerts, and that more well-known speakers would visit the university.

With as many benefits as this proposal carries, it is a shame that more time was not spent in its preparation.

Because of this lack of organization, it is doubtful that the average student will be willing to vote for an increased tuition unless they are assured, and well informed of its benefits.

The president should do all that is possible to clearly outline this program and assure its survival, so that the incoming administration will not have to spend their first few weeks cleaning up someone else's mess.

Testing program commendable

By ERIC WILLIAMS

The recent decision by Gov. Fob James to conduct a statewide testing program in the public school system is the most commendable venture from the new administration since they took office.

The program will be a well needed critic of the current educational system, and will chart a student's progress from one grade to the next. And Gov. James has wasted no time in initiating the program. The first tests will be conducted before the end of this school year, at an estimated cost of $700,000.

Money well spent—for a change.

This state has for too long suffered the reputation of having high school graduates who are practically illiterate. Even at this university, there has been mention of students in freshman English classes who read and write on a third grade level.

This program will, indeed, cause overcrowding in the public schools for a period of time. But it may lay to rest the myth that Alabama is nothing but "a bunch of farmers" by producing a multitude of learned graduates.

It is better to have a crowded room of students who have to, and will take their schooling seriously, than a comfortable classroom of "do-nothings" who couldn't care less.

Cutback is controversial

By CHUCK AVERY

The unearmarking of the Special Education Fund and the six percent cutback in educational funding have created great controversies across the State.

Gov. Fob James has come under attack from almost every education association from within Alabama because of these issues. It is true that the new constitution proposals could drastically affect our public educational welfare but one thing should be remembered before criticizing the governor. The State of Alabama cannot operate on a deficit budget according to law.

Under pressure during a special session last September the Legislature passed a budget for education which exceeded the predicted revenues by $6 million. If a balanced budget had been passed at that time, chances are that the schools would not have been placed under proration. Gov. James is trying to correct an awesome oversight by the previous administration.

As far as the unearmarking of funds for education, the people Alabama have a chance to stop it if they choose to do so. Let your opinion be known before it is too late.

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Food stamp limit forgot inflation

WASHINGTON — Four years ago, we investigated the food stamp program and discovered that close to three million ineligible Americans were collecting the stamps.

It took Congress two years to crack down, but they finally tightened the system so only the truly poor could get the stamps. But there's a catch. Congress also put a lid on the amount of money that could be spent on the program. The spending limit for 1981, for example, is $6 billion.

The members of Congress, however, didn't take into account the ravages of inflation. Their experts predicted a 21 percent increase in food prices between 1976 and 1981.

will also tighten the cost of living for thousands of elderly people who don't have enough money now to make ends meet.

For instance, a study conducted in Westchester County, N. Y., concluded that 31,000 of 46,000 food stamp recipients will have their benefits cut or eliminated.

Meanwhile, some elderly citizens in Kansas became worried about cutbacks in meal programs for senior citizens. So, to get their point across to their elected lawmakers, the senior citizens are flooding the Kansas congressional delegation with hundreds of paper plates sent through the mail.

The police decided that the only shooting Billy had anything to do with was shooting off his mouth. Meanwhile, we've seen a confidential police file on the case which suggests that Flynt was shot by members of organized crime.

Our sources say the mob was jealous of Flynt's booming profits from selling pornographic video cassetts. It is a highly profitable business, which has attracted organized crime. The secret report suggests that Flynt was trying to corner a lion's share of the cassetts market just before he was shot.

Another possibility is that the Ku Klux Klan was behind the shooting. According to housing unit. But the housing authority ignored the complaint.

The mayor was also angry about rents that were overdue. But the housing authority never charged the delinquent tenants.

Then came the straw that broke the camel's back. Every day for years, housing authority officials from Runge have eaten at the same local cafe. The bill is always paid with a housing authority check, signed by the director. This was just too much for the mayor to bear, so he simply abolished the housing authority.

Election concerns few

By CHUCK AVERY

The student body has shown very little interest in the upcoming elections for SGA officers. This is a deplorable situation. With all of the recent complaints about the job that the current administration has been doing, it appears that more students would be interested in running for office.

When only four people out of 7,000 run for office, the results of the elections will have little meaning. Two offices has only one candidate seeking the post.

If the student body takes no more pride in their SGA and is not willing to try to improve it, then individuals don't have the right to complain if all you want to do is run your mouth instead of getting involved.

nation. Their experts predicted a 21 percent increase in food prices between 1976 and 1981.

Now the same experts forecast that the food price increase won't be 21 percent but 46 percent. That's more than double their original prediction.

And who's going to pay for the bureaucrats' mistake? It will come out of the diets of the hungry. With rare exceptions, the president hasn't cut the tax benefits for the wealthy and he hasn't reduced government subsidies for the big corporations. He is cutting government spending by taking it from the people who can afford it least.

Not only will each food stamp recipient lose hundreds of dollars in purchasing power, but the White House has also reduced the amount of housing costs which can be deducted by those applying for food stamps. This will save money, it's true, for the president's budget. But it delegation with hundreds of paper plates sent through the mail.

Who Shot Flynt? Just a year ago, a bizarre assassination attempt occurred near Jimmy Carter's home town. Pornography publisher Larry Flynt was gunned down on the streets of Lawrenceville, Ga.

The gunman left Flynt on the street, critically wounded and escaped unidentified. The publisher has had repeated operations, but he's still paralyzed below the hips.

Lawmen have been unable to find Flynt's assailant. They even checked out the president's beer-drinking brother, Billy. A few weeks before the shooting, Billy said he had a man out looking for Flynt because he didn't like some remarks Flynt had made about his mother and sister. Billy said, "I've got a man looking out for him, and the first thing he's going to do is beat the hell out of him."

Another possibility is that the Ku Klux Klan was behind the shooting. According to our sources, someone got up at a Klan meeting about one week before the Flynt shooting and said the publisher should be shot.

Flynt told us that he doesn't think the mob tried to kill him. He said that he checked his own underworld sources who assured him that they had nothing to do with his shooting.

Terminal Solution: The mayor of Runge, Tex., has found a way to defeat the bureaucracy of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Faced with problems that the government ignored, the mayor simply abolished the town's housing authority and turned the whole mess over to the bureaucrats.

There were many things in the program that irked the mayor. First, he complained that a woman was living with her boyfriend in a federally subsidized low-income the housing authority.

Fantasy House: If you can't be president, at least you can pretend you are.

A scaled replica of the White House is for sale in San Antonio, Tex. The house was built 12 years ago by a crony of the late President Lyndon Johnson. It boasts similar furnishings to the mansion at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. The six-room house can be bought for a mere $390,000.

Presidential Pitch: President Carter is gearing up for his re-election campaign by soliciting funds for the Democratic Party. Thousands of letters on White House stationery have been sent across the country. But some Republican leaders are insulted by the pitch. One line in President Carter's solicitation says that anyone who's smart would naturally be a Democrat.

Right of center

Gene Wisdom

By GENE WISDOM

The draft has been quite a topic of excitement during the last few weeks. Both sides are becoming intensely vocal on this issue. One of the most interesting and unfortunately common sentiments on this subject is that of many young people, particularly college students, such as Mr. Henry Barr, who wrote a letter to the editor concerning the draft in the Feb. 27 issue of The Chanticleer. In this letter, Mr. Barr stated that if the choice came down to death or Canada, he would be "on the first bus there."

My first indication of this sudden fear was when a fellow student approached this writer in the cafeteria line one evening and asked how well I take bad news, speaking of the reinstatement of the draft. This is just a lighter example of those feelings. I guess we'll know when the opposition to the draft reaches its peak when President Carter declares he'll give amnesty to draft evaders after they leave.

But, is the draft being suggested because it is ideal or are there weaknesses in the All-Volunteer Force (AVF) which are rendering it less effective than the draft? Your friendly neighborhood reactionary suggests the latter, but not to the extent that many contend. Many of the shortcomings of this concept rest in our society. Over the cry of liberals insisting, "Yes, blame it on our sick society!" I must say, "Oh my God, we agree!" This agreement, however, is strictly superficial as the reasoning for our concurring beliefs rests on different bases. Due to the fact that it is not the purpose of this column to expound on the liberal viewpoint, I will proceed with my reasoning.

The present high level of unemployment in this country insures that the unskilled and functionally illiterate (I emphasize "functionally" because the percentage of high school graduates recruited reached a record level in 1978 while the national reading level declines) will be attracted to the military. As an Army officer stated in a television documentary on the state of military readiness in Western Europe "losers" who are rejected in the private labor market turn to the armed forces as an employer of last resort.

Drug abuse is also a growing problem in the military, although it does not exist on the scale it did in Vietnam. This, therefore, is not a very good reason for opposing the AVF. Because of the trend toward more drug abuse (including alcohol abuse), however, it is a situation which deserves attention.

An obvious problem with the AVF is that the higher pay and benefits (not to mention the advertisement) used to attract volunteers means that more military dollars must be spent on recruitment and personnel costs than on military hardware.

If the purpose of the AVF is to have, as Sen. Edward Brooke (R-Mass.) has written, "a peacetime force designed to deal with the military needs of the United States during a period of reduced tensions," then perhaps we should have a more realistic substitute. The situation is not actually one of reduced tensions but increased unconcern over Soviet advances throughout the world. As the balance of power shifts more in favor of the USSR, American policy must become less responsive to Soviet adventurism. The solution MAY lie partially in increasing our manpower in order to help shift the military balance more in our favor. Some sort of compulsory military service could accomplish this without further increasing military costs.

What is the root of this problem which presents itself in this decision? Attitudes of society must be viewed as a factor which makes this choice more difficult. The days of patriotism and "Duty, Honor and Country," have regrettably passed us by. Mr. Bowles, in his editorial of March 6, pointed out that, "We are free today because (our ancestors) had the guts to fight for what they believed in." That is fine when you have a population with a strong feeling of patriotism. But a people which does not love its country is ill-prepared to defend it no matter how its army is raised. It may therefore be asked why conscription must be used especially in peacetime to defend what fewer people believe in. The higher pay of the volunteer system has certainly produced more than enough "prostitutes" in the military who are there for the money. Getting a reliable system of national defense thus begins with a new system of values, a chance in the attitudes of the people toward the country in which they live. Until this glorious day arrives we will still have to deal with the problem of inadequate manpower. Two suggested alternatives to the draft are: (1) compulsory registration of young men as they reach draft age, reducing the time needed to activate the system; and (2) drafting young people into the reserves, which would probably be less controversial than conscription for full-time service. Because of present attitudes mentioned above, this writer must suggest compulsory registration as a compromise, with a continuing emphasis on strengthening the AVF.

CDCS offers catalogues

By PAUL MERRILL

It's possible that you may not be planning to go to Jacksonville State University for all of the four or five (or whatever) years of your college education. Unfortunately, good ole JSU doesn't offer everything that everyone wants to take. There may be another curriculum that you would like to follow that is not a part of the curriculum offered at the "friendliest campus in the South." Let's face it. As good a school as Jacksonville State is, there are other schools that might be more suitable for certain students.

Suppose that you wanted a career as an equestrian. There is no doubt about it. JSU has no courses in horse back riding. We can tell you at the CDCS center which schools have a degree in Equestrian studies. But what if you wanted to know about the courses that are required to obtain a certain degree. You'd need a catalogue, right? In case you didn't know it, the CDCS Center has a copy of every school catalogue in the United States and some foreign locations. We have all of last year's catalogues and most of the current year's—all on microfiche.

So if you're satisfied with JSU and have no desire to study elsewhere, you're in good shape. But if, for some reason, you have the desire to attend another school, we can find out about almost anything you want to know about that school (undergraduate or graduate) through the use of the AOIS and the Microfiche College Catalogue System.

Let me make it perfectly clear that I certainly am not trying to talk you into attending another college. But if that is your desire, then let us help you find out about that college. You might find out that it can't hold a candle to JSU, you will, however know more about that particular school and will be able to decide beforehand, as much as possible, if that school is for you or not.

Is your washer missing?

By RON SHREWSBURY

As an SGA senator, I feel it my responsibility to inform all you dorm students about the raw deal we have all been getting with the laundry system here on campus. You may laugh but this is a serious problem and if you don't believe it just try making it a week or two without washing your clothes. I have checked every dorm on campus on numerous occasions making surveys of the operable washers and dryers. I have found such things as washers half full of stale, smelly water, doors that won't close on machines, remnants of fires in machines, and in three male dorms I found that there were no machines.

Now you may be asking yourself who is responsible for these beat up excuses of washers and dryers? The administration? No. The SGA? No. Then who does that fickle finger of fate point to? The answer is Jordan Vending Company. I have had a meeting with these people and am convinced that they are fine representatives of the Jacksonville community. Two of the three men that I met are volunteer fire fighters. But like the rest of our good neighbors in the city of Jacksonville they are making their living off of us. This is not so bad, but my gosh look at the pathetic job they are doing. At all times at least 30 percent of the machines are shut down! The president of the company promised me only 20 percent shutdown and a prompt two-day repair service on all machines.

As I write this article, there have been no machines in Crow Hall for two months and even Dixon Hall's machines disappeared sometime last week. The best part of this farce is the "24-hour" watch line. If you check your phone book or call Jordan Vending Company is listed. There is no "24-hour" watch number posted on any machine either. Now I remind you the people of Jordan Vending Company described to me an effective telephone system involving recordings which can be made in the wee hours of the night. I think it is pretty obvious to you at this point that Jordan Vending Company has no place on the third largest campus in Alabama.

Now as your Dorm Committee Chairman, I offer you a chance to change the laundry system here on campus.

After confronting Dean Schmitz, I was informed that the only way that we can award the laundry contract to another company is to have numerous complaints from you, the resident students. That is right, the key to improving conditions is in your hands. All that you need to do is instead of telling your roommate how upset you are or holler at the SGA senators, use a more effective system which the dorm committee of the SGA instigated last semester. Simply go to your doom counselor and ask for a dorm suggestion form. Being sure to put your name and address, fill this form out and let us have some solid evidence of your dissatisfaction. I will personally collect your complaints within a week of its deposit. If all dorm residences will cooperate with the SGA on this, then together we can solve the problem of washing clothes on campus.

The 14th annual SCOAG Convention will be held Friday, May 4, and Saturday, May 5. It is sponsored by JSU, the Political Science Department, and the SGA. Some past speakers include Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Sen. Edmund Muskie, Sen. Hubert Humphery, and Speaker of the House Carl Albert. There will be some 200 to 300 high school students from Alabama and Georgia attending Jax State — students who wish to volunteer will be counselors, tour guides, or lecturers.

This year there will be "Youth and the American Judiciary." The guest speakers, prominent U. S. and state government officials, will be announced at a later date.

Executive Director is Deborah Kay. Assistant Director is William Killough, and Dr. Glenn Bronder is the Faculty Advisor. There will be an organizational meeting

Wednesday, March 28, at 6 p.m. on the 4th floor of the Student Commons Building.

Anyone who is interested in participating or seeking more information is invited to attend the meeting or contact Kay, Killough, or Dr. Browder at the Political Science Department, 3rd floor of Martin Hall.

Letters to the editor

Dear Student Body,
 On Monday, March 21, Sigma Nu Chapter here at JSU was visited by nine chapter members from Montana State University. They spent two days en-wait for it to end, and return home to laugh at the fools who had lost life and limbs for something as insignificant as their country. But what if there actually were a Third World War?

troversial of all—an allotment of a $20,000 budget to clubs and organizations. In the three years I have attended school on this campus I have never paid for an athletic event or its founding. Actually no such special editions are really necessary for each new edition is a celebration of that beginning. Again, I wish you a happy anniversary

United Negro College Fund, that was presented on the 19th of March at the Leone Cole Auditorium. I was intrigued by the talents of the young blacks who participated. It demonstrated that events like this are essential to utilize some of the untapped resources of black students at JSU.

I just hope that AKA will continue their innovation and that a lot of my younger brothers and sisters would come out to patronize an event that is so vital to the survival of black colleges and universities. Because of their tremendous effort and dedication, the participants. (See LETTERS, Page 6)

They spent two days enjoying sun and the South and expressed love for our campus and the friendly atmosphere we have here. They talked of snow and how much the two environments differ and asked all to write to those members of the student body whom they had the pleasure to meet during their stay and to thank them for proving that JSU is the Friendliest Campus in the South. We brothers of Sigma Nu on campus would like to thank the student body for making their stay an enjoyable one and proving this is the friendliest campus in the South.

were a Third World War? Canada would be just as involved as the U. S., except they would have millions of useless and unwanted Barrs hiding under rocks waiting for the amnesty that would never come.

No, Mr. Barr, I won't even advise you to learn Russian, because they know how to deal with attitudes like yours.

Thomas Gilbert, RSVP

Dear Editor:
Roebuck Waters Drive, Jacksonville, intersects with and dead ends on Pelham Avenue. Immediately behind Pelham at this point lies the Student Commons parking lot. In order to park in this lot, one must drive past the library and in front of Bibb Graves—twice—slightly less than a half-mile. This is preposterous.

One needn't be a mathematician nor a statistician to conclude that in a course of time, many needless miles are driven and many, many gallons of gasoline wasted by this unpractical arrangement.

The curb should be knocked out enabling one to drive straight into the facility, eliminating the hassle and saving gas as well, not to mention wear and tear and time.

I feel that this is an appropriate change that can easily enough be made, certainly easier than plowing up the dorm. Let us prove if we are concerned with conservation, or with talk.

Keith Easterwood

To Whom It May Concern:

From what I understand concerning the Student Activity fee which will come up for a vote on April 2, a campaign should be raised against it until its controversial points can be smoothed out. This bill passed by the SGA Senate Monday night, March 19, may have a good basis, but should not be passed in its present form.

The proposal is to charge a $20 student activity fee in addition to our regular semester tuition. This activity fee is to cover—sports, activities, movies, concerts, annual and newspaper expenses and most conan athletic event or newspaper and I have been given no reason why I should pay for them now. The expense of an annual is to be covered in the general tuition so that all students can receive one at no extra charge. As for concerts—movies—I certainly do not attend 20 dollars worth of concerts in one year and $1 per movie can't be beat.

As for the large allotment of the budget for clubs and organizations this justly does not cover any social sorority or fraternity or any professional fraternities on campus because they have a limited membership. The only organizations eligible are the Circle K and the Afro-American Society—that is $10,000 apiece for these organizations—although they are open membership organization everyone does not belong and not everyone is willing to give such massive support to these organizations.

Although this Activity Plan is working under different conditions at other universities I do not believe we are ready for a program at this much additional expense and for these particular purposes. Perhaps reworked and hopefully at less expense (maybe $10) we would all benefit from this type of program.

The activities involved in this program are normally covered in the general tuition and I do not see how the extra for activity fee will relieve the price of tuition.

Sincerely,
Letetia Ashworth

To The Editor:

I wish to congratulate you and your staff on this day, the 45th anniversary of the founding of The Chanticleer.

Many changes have happened since then with one notable exception—the desire to inform and to entertain the Jacksonville State University community.

Few publications or businesses last five years. For a publication—any publication—to last 45 years is quite unusual. The only explanation can be that that publication is serving its public and serving it well.

Five years ago a special edition of The Chanticleer was printed in celebration of anniversary.

Sincerely yours,

To The Editor,

As a writer and a person with a conscience I am offended by the article in the features section of the March 6 Chanticleer complaining about the maids in the Student Commons Building.

It is poor journalism and weak ethics for someone to hide behind an anonymous column in order to take pot shots at someone. Had that writer asked any of the office workers on fourth floor of the SCB he would have found out that these ladies work exceptionally hard.

All full-time workers on this campus also get a lunch hour. Perhaps the person writing this column was too lazy to ask these ladies if they were on their lunch hour when they were napping. My guess is that he was simply irresponsible. Anyone who works as hard as do the maids on this campus would feel like taking a nap, or was this writer suggesting that lunch hour only be allowed to be used for eating? It is their own business, however, what they do on their time.

I would also like to ask why our unknown writer had to hide behind thanking Dr. Harris for mopping the floor of the coliseum. Dr. Harris didn't mop the floor and straighten the coliseum up. The Rangers, a few SGA senators and some other responsible students cleaned it up. If the cleaning ladies are not as enthusiastic as were those who cleaned the coliseum, they would have good reason—they work longer hours five days a week and don't drink beer while they work. But, they are enthusiastic and do a damn good job.

How would our friendly writer like to carry a trash can around all day? He could combine this, his anonymity, and the poor taste exhibited in his column by carrying one around over his head.

What is social work?

By JANA McWHORTER MOON

What is Social work? Think a minute before you answer. It is not psychology or even sociology. Social work lies somewhere between the two. Nor is it money to poor folks, though this is a small part of social work. You might even be surprised where you will find it. Would you believe in a psychiatric hospital, a law office or even in industry? Today's social work is a diverse and a well-paid field!

Social workers work in mental health fields, schools, industries dealing with absenteeism, alcoholism, injury and management employee relations, hospitals (social workers are required in hospitals for them to be licensed) family services, children's protection, street gangs and financial aid to single parents.

The salary ranges for social workers are with Bachelor of Arts in Science, $11,200-$19,000; with Bachelor in Social Work, $11,700-$19,000; with a master's in Social Work, $14,600-$20,000; with a Certified master's in Social work, $16,900-$40,000; and with a Doctorate in Social Work, $20,500-$40,000. Other benefits include the Departments of Pensions and Securities paying a person with a Bachelor of Arts or Science to go to graduate school. There are also monetary allowances to undergraduate students in a fully accredited Bachelor in Social Work programs.

There is no such thing as a stereotype social worker. They are male, female, white, black, brown rich, middle-class or poor. The only thing they have in common is a care for the individual. Could this be you?

The basic purpose is to help people from all walks of life with personal development and social functioning by adjusting the relationship between individual and society. The preservation of an individual's dignity and uniqueness is their main goal. Instead of simply helping individuals to adapt to an often unjust society, social forces such as economics, racial and religious bigotry.

The three areas of social work are social casework which deals with helping individuals and families to change forces that restrict their well-being; group work which helps people make adjustments emotionally in group therapy; and social planning which forces society to make opportunities equal for all.

Did you ever wonder who designs national programs such as nutrition sites for the aging, community-based mental health clinics or barrier-free accessibility policies for the handicapped? Social planning is a method of social work that has been largely invisible to the majority of people.

What has been visible in the past has been welfare. Most people have viewed welfare with suspicion as if it were a free ride for lazy people. However, welfare is actually a public insurance program to which all citizens are entitled. With an average family grant of $57 per month, there is little comfort in collecting this insurance. The turn-over rate is high with 50 percent of families with dependent children off welfare within 20 months.

Did you also know that Jacksonville State offers a minor in Social Work? The student must complete 24 hours of prescribed courses. They hope to have a major within two years. Contact Doug Pratt in the Sociology Department if you are interested.

Indians and vampires, perverts and pals.... Sociological imagination at JSU

Which had you rather do—find a new friend, take a guided tour of Africa, read a horror story, or locate prehistoric Indian sites? Sound like the interests test you took as a freshperson? Actually it's only some of the diverse and exciting courses some JSU anthropologists and sociologists are planning for you this mini-mester.

Dr. Adrian Aveni, an interesting fellow who likes auto racing and Chinese cooking, will be teaching "Friendship Linkages (SY 327)." "What are friendship ties, what types of people have many friends, and what goods-services are unchanged in the friendship process" are some of the questions considered. The class will actually investigate friendship linkages in the Jacksonville - Aniston area. Perhaps you'll even find out who your "real" friends are!

South Africa was the site of Dr. Susan Middleton-Keirn's anthropological research, and she has chosen to teach about this in "Human Rights in South Africa." Sue uses films, slides and discussions to really make this an authentic guided tour.

Ken Adams, a genuine Harvard graduate, will teach "Nightmares and Realities: The Social Structure of Terror in Popular Culture." Sexual terror is focused upon as a means of exploring the underlying social-psychological problems which nurture it. Films, novels, and TV will be used, and don't forget to bring your horror comic books!

Gwen Mulder, a true friend of those faculty and college students who know her, will help you better understand yourself through her "Young Adulthood: The Novice Years." The ages 17 to 25 will receive primary focus. Opportunities for self knowledge, development stages, and critical life choices will be considered.

Dr. Lester Hill, a native Alabamian who attended University of Texas at Austin will be teaching "Social Psychology of Attitudes." This was the topic of Hill's doctoral dissertation so he "knows his stuff." How our attitudes are formed, changed, and the relationship between attitudes and behaviors will be studied.

City and country dwellers alike should be interested in "Urban Sociology" taught by an Atlanta native. Dr. Hugh McGain, an Emory University graduate, is offering this course.

How about "locating Indian sites?" Well, that's Dr. Harry Holstein's "Principles of Archaeology." Harry is from Pennsylvania and has been digging on occasions in West Virginia, Illinois, and Pennsylvania.

Dr. Jon Karr's "Etiology of Crime" should capture the attention of students from several fields—LE, Sociology, and Psychology, as well as the many of us with "criminal type" friends.

The Aging Studies Program is offering a practicum course working with the elderly in Northeast Alabama. Dr. Douglass McConatha is the professor in charge.

In case nothing has grabbed you yet, how about "Deviant Sexuality?" Dr. Jack Howsden, a native of the Virgin Islands who likes racquet ball and belly-dancing, is the professor. The realities, myths, and

Nursing center offers many health services

As you enter the Nursing building at Jacksonville State University and follow the red striped line half way around the building, you notice a colorful sign with the following, Nursing Center Hours—Monday-Thursday, 9-4 p.m. and Friday, 9-12. As you step across the threshold, you are greeted by the secretary, Mrs. Diane Marshall, and at once you feel comfortable and accepted as she requests your name, address and any previous records.

The waiting area is typical; it displays semi-circled chairs, a table and popular magazines such as Better Homes and Journal. But this is where typical ends. You are just becoming acquainted with your surroundings when Lucy Hitchman, the coordinator professionally greets you, but casually discusses with you, your reason for coming to the clinic.

Mrs. Hitchman proceeds to give you a complete or partial physical—whichever

Social workers sponsor awards

Though there are intermittent short-term freezes on social work hiring, the Federal Department of Labor projects an increasing long-term demand for professionally trained social workers paid on a scale from 10 to 45 thousand dollars. To communicate this and the fact that social work is a diverse profession ranging from psychiatric to legal fields of practice, the Social Work Program is sponsoring a Careers Program on Wednesday, March 28, from 9:45 to 12 in the Roundhouse.

A current film which dispels the myth of the Middle-aged female who hands checks to poor folk will be shown. The color film soberly follows the failure and eventual success of a professional social worker in providing psychotherapy and other services for a family with a child abusing parent.

The president of the Alabama Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers, Jack

Sellers, will introduce a panel of professional social workers representing medical, legal, substance abuse, industrial, psychiatric, child and family, and school social work. These specialists will make themselves available to students after the film for informal discussions of the respective fields of practice.

Awards will be made for Social Worker of the Year and Citizen of the Year by the Coosa Valley Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers. This will be the highlight of a meeting designed to include university students interested in human services such as nursing, criminal justice, law, exceptional education, psychology, an aging studies, sociology and social work. Ann Jenkins, a member of the prestigious Academy of Certified Social Workers, and president of the Coosa Valley Unit of the National Association of Social Workers will introduce the award winners.

Violence discussed

Domestic violence was the topic of discussion at the second of six symposiums during the month of March at Jacksonville State University. Sponsored by the Human Services Department at the University, other symposiums are scheduled on March 20, 2-4 p.m.; March 22, 2:30-3:30 p.m.; March 28, 2:30-3:30 p.m. and March 29, 2-4

Teague will be missed at JSU

By Jeanne Jordan

Perhaps Dr. Patricia Wingo said it best--"Professor George Teague is as totally unique as any human I've ever known." And after interviewing JSU's devoted foreign language teacher, and talking with his friends, colleagues and students, one is in complete agreement with Dr. Wingo.

Here is a man, unassuming and refined in manner, who began his college career as a student of science and medicine, later flew dangerous spotting missions during World War II, and after much study, both in the United States and abroad, has an enviable command of several languages and an admirable teaching career.

Most well known as a teacher of French, Mr. Teague first studied that language in grammar school in his hometown, Montgomery, Alabama. He says that he has "always loved French" and that his grandmother spoke it.

He decided to become a language teacher only after receiving a degree in another field and spending several years in military service.

Teague, a graduate of Auburn University with majors in chemistry and biology and a minor in German, spent a year in New York at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons. He also studied bacteriology and German in Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

Drafted into the Army in July 1941, Teague completed Officer Candidate School and became Adjutant of the 44th Division Artillery in Washington. He then trained as a pilot and flew artillery spotting missions in Europe. Every day from September of 1944 until the end of the war, he flew the unprotected, cloth-covered plane back and forth across enemy lines. In this small, vulnerable craft he was subjected to hostile air and ground fire at considerable risk to his life, often returning with bullet holes in the wings of the plane. Although Teague quotes the ground soldiers as saying, "If you knew what was being fired at you, you wouldn't go," his own estimate of the experience is that "it was a very pleasant way to spend the war. We were our own bosses, the masters of our own planes."

After his discharge from the Army, he graduated from the University with a degree in French. His pursuit of the

where he studied at the Alliance Francaise, the University of Poitiers, and the University of Grenoble.

Upon his return to the U.S., he went back to the University of Alabama and earned his master's degree in French. He then attended the University of California at Berkeley. He found many differences in that school and those in which he had previously studied. He remarks, "It was too large and impersonal."

In addition to French, Teague excels in Spanish. He spent eight months at the University of Mexico during the 1950's and says the experience was "perfectly delightful." He recalls the day when he and a friend were walking near the President's Palace in Mexico City when, to their surprise, they were invited to a diplomatic reception. He observed the "very impressive ceremony" in which the diplomats, including those from America and England, presented their official credentials.

After returning from Mexico and teaching at a boys' military school in Montgomery for three years, he retired to the Gulf Coast. After only two years of "retirement", the novelty of days filled with reading and walking on the beach began to wane and the time seemed to "lag and drag."

Teague learned that JSU needed a Spanish teacher. He relates the events of his first day in Jacksonville: "Dr. Jones, the head of the Foreign Language Department, along with Mrs. Jones, Dr. Montgomery, and Dr. and Mrs. Calvert, took me to lunch in the faculty dining room. Mrs. Calvert put me at the head of the table, explaining, 'so we can all look at you.'" Later in the day, he stopped on the square to ask about a hotel. "They laughed. I had to spend the night in Anniston."

Teague remembers a smaller, more close-knit campus. He regrets that the faculty members do not get together as much as they used to because they "learn from one another and enrich one another."

His love for teaching and for JSU is evident from the way he speaks of his students. "All students are a joy to have around." He has known many types of students and has observed the overall changes in student bodies as they have reflected the social and political situations of their complimented, "They are gentle and polite, and greatly interested in their languages."

A former student, Barbara Mackey, says Mr. Teague is "really concerned, patient and always willing to spend extra time with the students. If you were feeling sorry for yourself, he would get you out of that, too."

Dr. Theron Montgomery, Vice President for Academic Affairs, says Mr. Teague is "an excellent teacher with an incisive mind and has always been cooperative and committed."

Teague emphasizes that the administration has been "very supportive of the language program." Curricula at JSU, as at many other institutions, have changed and many courses of study no longer require a student to take a foreign language. At present, the only programs which require it here are English and history. He describes his goal for the language department as "idealistic;" he wants to see it "stand on its own two feet and grow."

Dr. Veldon Bennett, a fellow language teacher, says that Mr. Teague is a "very thorough, communicative administrator" who has worked continually to upgrade the department. He feels that the department members are a "close-knit group who appreciate each other." Teague made Bennett feel very welcome when he first came to Jacksonville by spending two days with him, showing him around and acquainting him with everything from the supermarkets to the race track at Talladega.

Teague is an avid gardener. Not only is he known for showing up at friends' homes with fresh tomatoes but his yard has been described as a "sylvan glade." He is also a gourmet cook and has been called an "excellent host."

His long-time neighbor, Dr. Virgil Benson, says he is "one of those good neighbors. He loves people and enjoys being around them. He is very friendly."

Teague's mother is an important part of his life. They spend vacations together and "he is very devoted to her," says Dr. Benson.

Professor Teague will be retiring from JSU this summer. His words are simple--"I shall miss it greatly," but the intensity of his voice and the look in his eyes express deep feeling for this school. JSU will truly miss the many-

Gov. James wins teacher support during AEA break

By Chuck Avery

Gov. Fob James won the support of many teachers after addressing the Alabama Education Association during spring holidays.

The governor told the AEA that more emphasis will be placed on elementary and high schools. Main objectives will be reducing the size of classes and improving overall conditions in the schools.

He also informed educators about the proposed new constitution and the unearmarking of education funds. "The new one says very clearly that those funds will remain earmarked, unless there is a legislative action that will unearmark them." He did not state that funds would not be unearmarked but that the Legislature could if they decided to.

The AEA also discussed issues concerning higher salaries and more cooperation between teachers and parents. In a recent survey, it was found that 573 teachers have left the ranks of education in the first semester of this year and as many as 1800 may quit teaching before the end of the school year. Mrs. Tyna Davis, President of the AEA stated, "The real problem is that never before have so many teachers had so much responsibility."

In a more recent development in education across the state, Pike County School Board announced that on March 28, they would be closing the doors on some 3200 students due to the lack of funds to meet their April 1 payroll. The closing of schools has now been remedied by a one percent increase in the county's sales tax.

Is this the trend of the future for education in Alabama? How will JSU be effected by educational funding cut-backs? We will keep you informed as more details are

Family planning arrives on Thursdays 1-4 p.m. with a minimal fee; immunizations are free; breathing classes are offered at announced times during the year; health education about any questions or problems is available at any time; and every month a special class

All in all, this Nursing Center encompasses quite a vast field of health care. So if you are the least bit curious or feel you need a checkup, venture out to the Nursing Center of Jacksonville State University, park around back, follow the red striped line, and set your mind and problems at ease.

This past week and weekend was the first sign of peace among the fraternities on campus. It seems that no vandalism occurred and that all the Greeks have finally come to a peace agreement. For the benefit of those who are uninformed, the past month has been a battle which some thought was endless. It resulted in the painting and egging of frat houses. There were gang fights in the streets, bad language passed, and a lot of uneasy brothers walking around. I hope this past two weeks will be looked upon by all Greeks as the time for uniting into one group that can cooperate and enjoy the company of each other through the rest of the year, and hopefully forever.

I hope that the warm weather and the beginning of softball season will bring about good sportsmanlike conduct from all the frats participating and hope at the end of the season we can all unite and have a friendly 'hell raisin' party.

Williams named Mr. UNCF

Lambda Phi Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., presented its first Mr. United Negro College Fund pageant Monday night. The pageant consisted of eight male Gamecock contestants sponsored by various organizations on campus. The contestants were judged on talent, poise, voice, eye contact, appearance, and reply to questions.

Mr. Marvin Williams was named Mr. UNCF 1979-1980. Mr. Williams is a senior majoring in Music Education. He was sponsored by the ladies of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Inc. Other winners of the pageant were Mr. Calvin Sledge, 1st runner up, and Mr. Anthony Johnson, 2nd runner up.

Alpha Kappa Alpha has accepted as a challenge quality education for all. In order to obtain this goal substantial support must be given to Black institutions of higher learning. As one means of providing this support, Alpha Kappa Alpha has set a goal of one half million dollars to be raised by the chapters throughout the country for presentation to the United Negro College Fund. Each year Lambda Pi chapter has pledged to give $500 to this cause.

Trophies for the occasion were donated by BALL FOUR SPORTING GOODS STORE, located in the Jacksonville Plaza.

Arbitrio

By MICHAEL REAVES
Entertainment Editor

Ask me if anything major is happening in the music industry this week and I'll tell you no. So this week's editorial is gonna hafta be about two minor issues I've been meaning to talk about, but didn't feel that they were worthy of an entire article. Here goes.

First of all, "special thanks" go to the scurvy little jellyfish who's allegedly been alerting the ABC (Alabama Beverage Control) Board of so-called "illegal action," i. ec., minors drinking alcohol on the premises of Jacksonville night clubs and package stores. All of these clubs were required to shut down for a certain period of time. All this does is initiate club owners and consumers alike. And show me a minor that can't get alcohol if he wants it, and I'll show you a basket case. Let's get real, now, these "minors" are at least 17 years old—probably freshmen who graduated from high school early (I know 'cause I did—you can imagine what it's like being a 17-year-old college freshman), and most of them are 18-years-old.

On the other hand, I realize the ABC people are just doing their job, right? Nothing wrong with that. But isn't it interesting to note that only one club inside the city limits was spared this "bust"? Why, one must ask oneself. All the clubs sold to my friend from Florida who visited me a couple of weeks ago, and he was just 18. Including the one that wasn't shut down.

The ABC Board refused to reveal sources of information connected with the closings. However, one person involved was overheard saying that, "a little birdie told them." Perhaps one from the barnyard, eh?

The second thing I'd like to say concerns the paper. Did you know that The Chanticleer is still published bi-weekly in the summer? That's right, you can find summer concert information, registration information, the like in the summer Chanticleer. It's a great way to keep in touch with your school between regular terms.

And about that other thing—don't let it get you down, the clubs are open again, and almost back to normal. There are also some liquor licenses pending, and by fall, we could all have a little pleasant surprise.

Gino Vannelli doesn't want to stop now

When Gino Vannelli walks onto a stage, there are more than a few sighs from the female members of the audience. And with his dark into the category of "rock star"—with the possible exception of his clothes: flowing silk shirts, knickers and knee-high boots. He's five years. Gino went to college to study music, but dropped out to concentrate on music through first-hand experience.

From 'Dire Straits' to Platinum

Dire Straits has sold out all 28 concerts of their current American tour. Their debut album has gone gold in the U. S., double platinum in Canada, double gold in France, platinum in Germany, and gold in Great Britain, Australia, and New Zealand. In short, the four-man British group has been tagged the hottest new rock band to emerge from the British Isles since the Beatles.

With such success, one might expect them to be luxuriating in the trappings usually associated with rock stardom—expensive cars, baronial estates, hordes of groupies. But that's far from light shows, exploding bombs or outrageous costumes. Instead, the four simply walk out on stage and play their music. Lead singer Mark Knopfler, who writes the music, wore a wrinkled blue shirt, buttoned to the neck, blue jeans and flat shoes for their first American appearance at the Paradise Club in Boston.

It was wrinkled when he unpacked it from the one suitcase he carries on tour and was unaware of its condition until he was questioned about it.

"What we wear is of little concern to us," the college professor-turned-rock musician explained. "We're that personal relationship with the people who buy our records and like our music."

The group also rejects the theory that touring is for the promotion of a new album. Their debut album, simply titled "Dire Straits," was released in October, and was already No. 4 on the billboard chart when they began their tour in Boston.

"What amazes us, however," John Illsey, the tall, dark-haired bassist interjects, "is that Warner's (their record company) claims we haven't begun to scratch the surface of the American market. That astonishes us because we have already sold close to a royalties from the sale of the album and hit single, "Sultans of Swing." But Knopfler and Illsey insist that the anticipated riches will not alter their lifestyle.

"There's no point in having a beautiful flat or home if we are never there," says Illsey. "And there's also no point in having possessions that we have to worry about while we're on the road."

Dire Straits' success story is nothing short of phenomenal. Two years ago, Mark was teaching his brother David, who plays rhythm guitar, was doing social work in London, Illsey had just graduated from David had grown up.

"Pick was the best drummer I had ever heard, and I kept him in the back of my head for the day I would form a band," Mark explains.

Each of the group had played with other bands and Pick had done considerable work as a studio musician. None of their other undertakings had amounted to anything until they united as Dire Straits.

The four pooled their resources, cut a demo. Phonogram heard it and signed them—it was as simple as that. The demo was incorporated into their first album and the album took off.

Since then, they have toured continuously—with three weeks' "time-off" to record their second album. Tentatively scheduled for release in July, it will be delayed if their current album is still moving at high speed.

The group is so over-awed by their international popularity that they dismiss their success as unreal.

"We really don't believe what's happening or that it is happening to us," says Knopfler. "It is just very gratifying to know that millions of people around the world have bought our music and come to see us. It must mean they like what we do college after clerking for a lumber company and as good looks, he's beginning to capture the attention of the fan magazines as well. But dare to suggest that Vannelli is becoming a sex symbol or could be a future star in the mould of Tom Jones, and you'll hear a sharp intake of breath from the man, closely followed by a fervent denial.

"No, no," says Vannelli adamantly. "Why should I have spent all this time and money... I could just have asked a pop writer to write me a song and I could perform in Las Vegas. No. As far as I'm concerned, Tom Jones and I are worlds apart."

Vannelli has certainly spent a lot of both time and money. He signed a recording contract with A & M Records at the end of 1972, but it's only in the last year, with his sixth album, "Brother To Brother," and hit single, "I Just Wanna Stop"—the latter earning him a Grammy nomination for Best Male Pop Vocal Performance—that Vannelli has started to get commercial recognition. His music is often complex, with involved orchestrations, but it still keeps a popular appeal.

Dedicated to his music, Vannelli doesn't fit obviously been living in the San Fernando Valley for the past few months, but not in a sprawling ranch house or funky hillside retreat. Inside, he lives in a two-story, Tudor-colonial house in a quiet cul-de-sac in a Country Club community. The house is furnished tastefully and is as neat as a pin. Vannelli chose the location because of its privacy and grounds—he likes to take his two gargantuan Russian wolf hounds for long walks. His ideal is to one day buy a large ranch and raise horses and dogs.

He shakes his head when the Hollywood "rock scene" is mentioned, commenting: "To be honest, I've heard of it, but I don't even know what it is."

"I'm a pretty devoted organizer," he explained. "That's why I haven't branched out into areas like writing film scores, or anything like that. I don't want to spread myself thin... just do what I do well."

Vannelli's background isn't too dissimilar from most other musicians. His father, who'd spent some time as a singer, coached him vocally, and Vannelli also studied percussion for

"It's probably one of the few regrets I have now," he comments. "I wish I'd stayed at school and got more musical knowledge." Not that his knowledge is scanty. On stage, his equipment includes 16 keyboards and seven syncost housing flats in London where many students reside—rooms the London Housing Authority determined were unfit for the welfare families that had lived there previously.

Their performances are not accented with glitter, music, nothing more."

While the tour is a total sell-out, the band anticipates losing money on it.

"We don't tour for the money," Knopfler says. "In fact, we consider ourselves lucky if we break even. We feel it is necessary to have

Warner Bros. Records has the group under contract for the U. S. only—world-wide, they're represented by Phonogram Records.

The group's financial situation will improve once they begin collecting the vast lumber company, and, according to Mark, "Pick Withers, our drummer, was starving to death."

Ilsey and David were sharing the tenement flat. Mark met Ilsey through his brother and had met Pick in Newcastle where he and mean they like what we do. It's not ego-gratification—

it's acceptance and recognition. We get a great thrill out of meeting people who like what we have done and tell us so. I guess that's why we tour."

thesizers, all of which are used during the show. On his fifth album, "A Pauper In Paradise," the title track cost nearly $70,000 alone to record because Vannelli used 99 members of the Royal Philharmonic.

Musical knowledge—or lack of it—is one thing that can induce emotion into Vannelli's normally quiet voice.

"I'd say far more of my reviews have been bad than good. That doesn't bother me—apart from the fact that I hate pity from my relatives," he laughed. "But a lot of reviewers plainly don't know much about music, don't know what an F-minor chord is. So I don't see how they can say anything objective."

"The other thing," he continues, "is mood. If an album should be listened to in a certain mood, it's no good, if it's listened to by someone in a completely different mood. And compassion... I think a lot of people, critics, lack compassion. I don't think anyone should be written off, and a lot of musicians, singers, are."

Vannelli obviously hasn't been written off. If anything, he's finally breaking through, but even recognition like the Grammy nomination doesn't come too high on his list.

"For me," says Vannelli, "the only important thing about my career is how I relate to myself as an artist and as a human being. If awards and gold records are important, then I think it's a pity, because what do you do when you've achieved those goals? I think you have to like what you're doing."

"I've just finished reading a biography of Montgomery Clift," he continues, "and look what happened to him because he wasn't happy with what was happening. At least if you're not completely happy, be satisfied."

Vannelli gives the appearance of being at least content. And, if he gets tired of doing what he does every now and then, he can always return to a recently discovered hobby: ballet.

"I wanted to try something with a different pace," explains Gino. "That first time though I was a little shy. All those 14-year-old girls doing incredible things, with me hardly able to walk. But after three months, I got the hang of it and really enjoyed it. I've had to stop the lessons because of our rehearsal schedule, but I'll go back to it."

Here's the answer

Potpourri

By MICHAEL REAVES
Entertainment Editor

The surviving members of the Lynyrd Skynyrd band were guests of honor at the Nashville Volunteer Jam earlier this year, making their first appearance since the fatal air crash in October, 1977. The group is currently making plans to resume performing some time this year, but will most likely appear under a new name.

Eric Clapton kicks off a huge, 47-city, three month tour in Tucson on March 28. It's Clapton's biggest North American tour, and special guests throughout will be the Muddy Waters Blue Band.

The annual rumors are back, but this time there seems to be some substance to them. Stevie Wonder is releasing his film soundtrack project, "The Secret Life of Plants" at the end of March, and is reported to be ready to tour North America and Europe later this spring . . . Brian Connolly, lead singer with the group Sweet, has left the band to go solo after 10 years . . . Blondie's next album is in the works, and should be released in June . . . George Benson sings the theme song from the new movie, "Boulevard Nights."

Donna Summer takes another step upward with the news that she'll star in her own musical special on ABC-TV either later this year or early next year. It will be interesting to see if Donna manages to avoid the pitfalls that seem to affect musical stars when they move into prime-time television. Let's hope so.

Steadily climbing the charts is a single called "What You Won't Do For Love" by singer-songwriter Bobby Caldwell. Taken from his debut album, the single is aptly named.

In the early '70s, Bobby had a one record deal with

Bobby Caldwell - 'What You Won't Do For Love.'

to go back and pick up where I left off. But that's one thing I won't do, not even for love."

John Belushi is a man much in demand these days. After all, not only is he one of the stars of "Saturday Night Live," but he's one half of the Blues Brothers and the star of "Animal House."

So it seems natural that to relax, Belushi likes nothing better than to play his new expensive stereo at full volume—at all hours of the night. Which is fine for everyone except the neighbors who had the police visiting Mr. Belushi the day after he moved in.

Belushi's solution was to Bangladesh," in 1972. Ten awards were given out that year.

With Rod Stewart's "Blondes Have More Fun" album going platinum, as well as the hit single, "Do You Think I'm Sexy?" his 10-week tour of North America seems a guaranteed sellout. The tour begins on April 14 in Edmonton, Alberta, and runs through June 26, where it ends with four days at the Los Angeles Forum.

In the wake of the violence attributed to the gang warfare movie, "The Warriors," movie companies are nervous about the reception their upcoming albums will receive.

Q: Can you tell me if there were hard feelings when Toto split away from Boz Scaggs? Renee Weiss, Petaluma, Calif.

A: According to Steve Lukather, the group's 20-year-old guitarist, there was no dissension in the ranks. It just made sense, he said, to be an up-front band rather than backup musicians. Essentially, each of the members of Toto left Boz Scaggs at different times. It was neither a mass exodus nor a mutiny. There may not be hard feelings, but it's obvious from the results, that Toto has benefited from the change and Scaggs has not. Toto is at the top of the charts with their debut album, which is almost an unheard of feat in musical annals, while Scaggs has disappeared from the lists.

Q: I heard that Andy Gibb and the Bee Gees would be going on tour this year together. Is that true? Do you know if they are going to come to New Jersey, and if so, when and where? Thank you. Fran Signorelli, Barnegat, N. J.

A: A lot of people have heard the same thing, Fran, but the truth of it is that it just isn't so. Andy did say in an interview last year that he and his brothers would be touring North America together, but since then, older brother Barry has denied the story. According to Barry, there is a possibility that at some point in the future the Bee Gees and Andy might tour together, but that time isn't now. The Bee Gees, however, will be touring during the summer, but no definite places and dates have been arranged at the moment.

Q: Can you please tell me something about Rod Stewart—like where was he born and how he started out several years. Faces albums were released on one label, while Stewart recorded solo for another. He finally wound up leaving the Faces to devote himself exclusively to a solo career. After a lull in his career several years ago, he's now back stronger than ever with the disco-flavored "Do Ya Think I'm Sexy," currently on top of the charts—as is his album, "Blondes Have More Fun." You can write to Rod, in care of Warner Bros. Records, 3300 Warner Blvd., Burbank, Calif. 91510.

Q: I have all of Cheap Trick's albums, plus a large collection of articles on them. They are a very interesting group, both visually as well as musically. Can you tell me anything about these mysterious guys? -Joanne Dyck, Keewater, Ontario.

A: Well, depending on just how large your collection of articles is, Joanne, you might already know quite a bit about them, but here goes! The current lineup of the band has been together since 1974: Rick Nielson (lead guitarist, zany clothes); Tom Petersson (bass); Bun E. Carlos (drums) and Robin Zander (singer and rhythm guitarist). They all come from Chicago, Ill., and have played in various bands. The four met each other in Europe and played together for the first time in the Midwest.

Their current album, "Cheap Trick at Budokan," is their third, and the way it's leaping up the charts should establish them as one of the major bands of the year.

Although they look very different from each other—Rick favors the Huntz Hall of the Bowery Boys look; Robin has "poster appeal"—their music and stage act is tight amazing voice!

BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN

Q: My local radio station plays a great Bruce Springsteen song called "Fever," and I'd really like to get a copy of it. The trouble is, I don't see the song on any of his albums. It is a single? Where can I find it? -Lee Stone, Mobile.

A: "Fever" has proven to be one of Springsteen's more popular songs, and people often shout for it at his concerts. It doesn't appear on record, though. Springsteen and the E Street Band cut the song in the studio but never intended for it to be released. A tape of "Fever" slipped out to a radio station and it was only a matter of time before bootlegged tapes of the song were being played in several cities.

At first, the song wasn't even included in Springsteen's live set, but the popularity of the song was such that he now slips it in occasionally.

In the early '70s, Bobby had a one-record deal with Miami-based TK records, but the deal went no further because Bobby, living in Pasadena, was in love. "Every night for four years I would drive from Pasadena to San Diego to be with this particular woman, and then drive the 180 miles back in the morning. It took a lot of my time," says Bobby with a laugh.

At the end of the four years he decided to leave the woman and California and move to Miami—where he got a new deal with TK. The single and album are the first fruits of that deal, but when Bobby first looked at the songs he'd written for the album, he realized they were all about the woman he'd left behind.

"But now I'm really over it," he says with conviction. "Writing those songs exorcised that relationship as far as I'm concerned—although the women in question is now keen for me

Critic's choice

By KIM WEST

The large colonial house at 112 Ocean Avenue had been the scene of mass murder. This book tells of 28 days of terror in this house possessed by evil spirits. A true story told by Jay Anson, it is called "The Amityville Horror."

Remember back on the date of Nov. 13, 1974 in Long Island. In this house, 24 year-old Ronald Defoe took a high powered rifle and shot to death his parents, two brothers and two sisters. He heard voices and they told him to do this. It was weird, occurring at 3:15 in the morning and none of the neighbors heard a sound. This is where all of the horrors started about the house on 112 Ocean Ave.

This book is centered around a family. George and Kathleen Lutz plus their three young children. The Lutz family thought they had found their dream house but instead it was a house that filled their lives with 28 days of horror and terror.

Anson wrote the phenomenal best seller so well that you feel as you read that you are the one trapped in the Amityville horror. Each part of the characters played highlighted the story.

They did not have to play because this really happened to the family.

The priest was an unusual man in the story. He carried things a little too far, but he knew about the demons that were in the house.

The Lutz family didn't care that there was a murder in their new home just the year before they moved in. But after they moved in, they all became different people. The coldness of the home, the hatred toward the children, noises in the boathouse and the strange antics of a prize watch dog are among the oddities that brought change to the lives of the Lutz family. They were all going crazy. Just what happened on 112 Ocean Avenue?

Twenty-eight days went by. The Lutz family finally escaped the terror. It let them go. They never went back to get any of their possessions. Their dream house turned into a hell house.

Despite all of the scary happenings in the story, it was very exciting. You can't put the book down. I suggest you get "The Amityville Horror," and read it and remember, it's true and that it could happen to you!

First of all I'd like to tell you that I haven't put a column in the paper for the past two issues because of lack of space. I feel that there are a few more sport stories that are more important than my comments, BUT there is something that I feel is more important and has to be written about.

The fact that the athletic program is super improved, does not justify the vulgar mouths of some of our athletes.

I realize that at times of great pain, it is hard to stop some "comments", it's natural. What I'm talking about is the way that some of our big-headed stars think it really cool to cuss in front of audiences, especially children. If you so-called stars think it cool to explain in front of children how you went to the toilet but decided that it would be better to have a bowel movement later after the meet, of course said in an unusually crude terminology (believe it or not by a girl), then you are definitely so cool you're down right cold, if you know what I mean.

I personally cannot respect any athlete who makes it a point to prove to the world that he or she can keep up with the newest vulgarity. If you can't speak in a civil tongue, then keep your mouth shut. If you coaches are reading this, then please think seriously about keeping a tighter rein on this very unsportsman-like conduct. People come to our sporting events to watch our athletes in a physical contest, not a bad-mouth contest!

As for you "vocally active" athletes, why don't you ask your folks down for your event. I do believe you'll conduct yourself differently than when they're not here.

Maybe you don't respect yourself. What do you think? Some of you will simply say that this is just a bunch of bowel movement. To those I can only say one thing: why don't you go eat your words. ++++

Some people here feel that the coaches that have left us didn't appreciate Jax State, but that is not the way life is. Those who left are going to advance themselves as any person should do. They will look back on their time at Jacksonville which has served as a beneficial time of their lives. My compliments go to Coach Jim Fuller for producing some really outstanding coaches (not to mention some fantastic athletes).

The Gamecocks didn't let the cold, the mistakes or Wisconsin - Whitewater stop them from tying the NCAA Division II record of 27 straight wins without a loss this past Sunday as they socked it to the Warhawks 9-8.

With near freezing temperatures, it took the Gamecocks nine VERY long innings to catch up after falling behind 6-0. Five of those first six runs for Whitewater, were due to five errors from Jax State. But, as has been the case the entire season so far, Rudy Abbott's game plan, good pitching and those big, big bats kept the team on the winning streak at 27-0. The Gamecocks scored six runs in the ninth inning to win it.

The Gamecocks started the season with the big score of 10-1 over Albion. After that impressive win, the 'Cocks whipped up on Division I UA-Birmingham 13-2.

The Gamecocks shut out Alabama A&M in the two games following, 3-0 and 7-0, and then they totally stunned Division I Georgia Tech, 17-9. Jax State followed with wins over W. Georgia (5-0), Athens College (11-2) Illinois

Benedictine (6-3, 15-0, 10-2, 13-0), Huntington (11-1) and Tiffin College (16-0) before they defeated perennial powerhouse Valparaiso in two games 3-2 and 7-2.

Coach Rudy Abbott's team was carrying an impressive 15-0 record when it came time to play the next three games against Division I teams Cleveland State and the University of Tennessee. The pitching staff of Jax State proved its worth by shutting out Cleveland State in the first game, 5-0. In the second game, the Gamecocks held Cleveland off to win it, 2-1. It was a slug fest in the game against Tennessee that went down to the last inning; Jacksonville won it 12-11.

It looked like the pressure slacked off for the Gamecocks in the next five games as Jacksonville made it look easy with wins over Union College (7-0), Taylor College (9-3), Trevecca College (7-0), and two shut-outs over Baldwin-Wallace, 5-0 and 6-0.

Saturday the GSC opener against Livingston was tough but Jax State took both

Lady gymnasts win the state title

By KATHY SHEEHY

It has become somewhat of a tradition with the JSU women's gymnastics team. For three consecutive years they have gone to the state meet, and each year their supremacy has come through. They defended their title again on March 3 and reign once more as Alabama State champions. The team traveled to the University of Alabama campus to participate in one of the more rigorous encounters on this year's competitive schedule. Regionals and Nationals are yet to come. The final top three team scores of the meet are as follows: JSU, 131.95; Auburn, 125.00; Alabama, 122.00. In the all-around, Jacksonville gymnasts hold four of the top six places, an honorable and commendable achievement. Ann Wood of Alabama captured the first place title with a total of 33.30, and JSU's Susan Puckett came in second having accumulated a 32.95. Janilyn Jones of Auburn scored a 32.85 for third. Fourth, fifth and sixth place were awarded to members of the JSU team; Lynn Bruce (32.75), Leslie Hill (32.65), and Lisa Santucci (31.10). As a result of their success, Susan, Lynn, Leslie and Lisa have won places on the Alabama All-State AIAW Women's Gymnastics Team. The Jacksonville women hold the majority of the state titles on the individual events. In vaulting, Lynn Bruce became the state champion when she scored an 8.65 for her handspring full. Susan Puckett executed two excellent Tsukaharas for an 8.60 and second place. Lynn Bruce's uneven parallel bars routine received an 8.30 from the judges thus giving her the third place title. On balance beam, Lisa Santucci and Leslie Hill scored an 8.20 and 7.95 to take second and third place respectively.

Jacksonville gained three additional state ratings on floor exercise. Susan Puckett (8.60) finished second, Leslie Hill (8.50) third, and Lisa Santucci (8.35) fourth. JSU competed in the AIAW Regional meet on March 15-17 here at Pete Mathews Coliseum. Those doing well in this meet qualified for the AIAW National competition to be held March 28-30 at Penn State. Judging from the women's past performances this year and from the depth and talent present in the team, Jacksonville has a definite chance of a prominent showing in Nationals.

Men gymnasts 7th in the nation

By KATHY SHEEHY
It's been a long, hard year. A year filled with anticipation, tiring workouts, a series of victories, and a few losses; a time for setting new team records and a time for learning and perfecting new skills never before thought possible. Then on March 2-3, the summit was reached. All the efforts of the year were to be put to the final test; the NAIA National Gymnastics Championships. And so it was that the JSU men's gymnastics team traveled to Menomonie, Wisc., with dreams of conquest and hopes of gaining recognition as one of the finer teams in the country. As a whole, the team finished seventh with a 180.80 total. The University of Wisconsin at Oshkosh became the nation's number one team as they scored a 202.00. For three Jacksonville men, the competition provided national ratings in the all-around as well as in individual events, and for one, Mark Lee, it furnished the title of NAIA All-American. Mark is the first male gymnast from JSU ever to earn such an honor. Mark also secured three additional titles, placing in two events and coming in fifth in the All-Around with a total sum of 49.05 points. In floor exercise, he took sixth place with a score of 8.6, and on parallel bars, he finished a high second with an 8.7.

Sophomore Jeff Robinson made the finals in the vaulting event and was awarded the sixth place position when the judges rated his handspring full at 9.2. Steve Martin, who did not compete all-around earlier this season but rather specialized in three events, came in 10th overall having scored a 44.95. Steve also placed ninth in floor exercise, receiving an 8.59. And so, the season has ended, and it has been a good year. Next year, who knows? Maybe no one will be able to triumph over this team. They could be the national champions. It's entirely possible.

Susan Balk recovering

By CHUCK AVERY
After spending two weeks and two days in the hospital, gymnast Susan Balk is on her way to recovery following a truck-bike accident.

Susan is in good spirits even though she still does not know for sure if her injuries will hamper her gymnastics career. She plans to stay in school if possible this semester and continue during mini and summer. After undergoing some therapy for a leg injury, Susan hopes to resume training in about two months. When asked about her injuries, she replied, "Physically my leg bothers me more than anything, but emotionally my back injury is my main concern." Susan was a top contender in every meet she participated in this year. Everyone here at JSU is glad to have her back on campus and is wishing her a full recovery.

Track and field

Ladies beat Berry

The Lady Gamecocks came into the spring, storming on March 7, as they took on the ladies of Berry of Georgia. It was a close meet till the final event, the 1600 meter relay, when Georgia Barnett, Yvette Spillman, Threatt and Coco Collins blew the Berry four off the track with a fine 4:11.64 clocking.

Jax State dominated in the field events taking in firsts in long jump (Georgia Barnett) high jump (Coco Collins), shot put (Gail Umphrey) and javelin. In the track events, those placing for Jax State were: 5,000 meter, Tingley, 2nd; 1500 meter, Bruner, 3rd; 100 meter, Georgia Barnett, 1st, C. Collins, 2nd; 400 meter, Y.

Spillman, 1st, Best, 3rd; 800 meter, Threatt, 3rd; 200 meter, G. Barnett, 1st; 3000 meter, Tingley, 2nd, Bruner 3rd; 100 meter hurdle, C. Collins, 1st, G. Umphrey, 3rd; 400 meter hurdles, C. Collins, 1st; 400 meter relay, G. Barnett, Mitchell Roberts, and C. Collins.

Robert Clements 2nd team all-GSC

For the second time in three seasons, Nicholls State's Larry Wilson has been chosen as the Gulf South Conference Player of the Year.

Wilson's selection heads the 1978-79 all-GSC basketball team picked by the league's coaches and announced this week through the office of Commissioner Stan Galloway.

The GSC's leading scorer was joined on the first team by North Alabama's Otis Boddie, Mississippi College's Hilton Harrell, Livingston University's Cheyenne Jones and another Nicholls standout, Rogers Washington. NSU Coach Don Landry, who guided the Colonels to the GSC championship was named the league's Coach of the Year.

Second team selections included Jacksonville State's Robert Clements, Nicholls' Sonny Charpentier, Livingston's Tony Andre, Delta State's Charles Cole and Troy State's Paul Bussman.

The other individual singled out in the balloting was Southeastern Louisiana University's David Williams, cited as the Freshman Player of the Year in the league.

Wilson and Boddie, who led their teams into the NCAA Playoffs, were the only unanimous selections. Wilson pumped in points at a 27.0 clip while Boddie scored at an 18.6 pace.

Both Boddie and Jones were second team selections a year ago. Jones improved his status by hitting 14.2 points a game and pulling down 8.9 rebounds a contest.

The other first team selections included the league's number two scorer in Harrell, who averaged 19.4 points a game, and Washington, the loop's top rebounder with 33.0 average. Washington also averaged 15.8 points a game.

The second team selections included the league's rebound runner-up in Clements, who sported a 12.4 norm and the all-time GSC assist leader in Nicholls' Sonny Charpentier, who averaged 9.8 per game this season.

Also included on the second team were Bussman, an 18.6 point per game scorer for Troy; Andrew, whose figures matched teammate Jones at 14.2 points and 8.9 rebounds and Cole, who averaged 16.0 points a game for the Statesmen.

The league's top freshman was Williams, who scored at a 15.6 point per game clip and was the second highest rookie scorer in SLU history.

Landry gained the accolade as the league's top coach for the second time. He was previously honored after the 1975-76 season.

Wilson became the first player in the eight-year history of the GSC to win the Player of the Year title twice. Along with his 27.0 scoring norm, he ranked among the league's leaders in field goal percentage, set a new free throw record and was fifth in rebounding.

Special Olympics need students

By WENDY MARTIN
The district Special Olympics will be held Friday, March 30, from 8:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Pete Mathews Coliseum. Student volunteers are desperately needed. Approximately 1000 children are expected to attend, and students will be needed to help keep events running.

This year, Glenn Roswal, a professor at JSU, is in charge of the Special Olympics. He has put the organization into the hands of the students. Mr. Roswal is very enthusiastic about this year's olympics. He hopes that the games will be much more than competition for the kids and stresses the importance of fun.

With this idea in mind a new committee has been set up, the Sports Entertainment Committee. This committee has set up sports clinics which will run all day. Hopefully, there will be a carnival air to the olympics as other entertainment will be going on also; such as, a dunking booth, an animal farm, and art and music activities. For more information or suggestions contact Tracy Knutson at 435-3966 or Wendy Martin at 435-3361.

This year's olympics will be very special. It is not only a day when these children have a special outing, get to participate in activities, and have a lot of fun, but it is also a day when the students can contribute to a worthwhile cause. The joy is that the job is self-rewarding.

The success of the games depends on the volunteer turnout. All students and faculty are invited to attend and participate. For further information contact Glenn Roswal, ext. 336 or Dr. Cherry, ext. 398 at the university.

Road Atlanta has announced a record purse for the April 7-8, 7th Annual IMSA Weekend. Over $100,000 has been posted as prize money for the competitors of the International Motor Sports Association. When the Winston GT drivers compete in the April 8 event at Road Atlanta, they will be competing in the richest race per mile thus far this season. With close to $40,000 up for grabs in the 100-mile race, the winning driver will get over $6,000 for his effort.

A breakdown shows the winning driver being assured of receiving $60 per mile or $150 per lap around the 2.5-mile Road Atlanta course. Depending on lap prizes and contingency awards, that amount could be much greater.

Winston GTU drivers will be competing for close to $15,000 in their 75-mile event. It will be the first race which the GTU drivers will be racing strictly among themselves for the posted prize money.

Posted awards in the amount of $22,000 are at stake in the 75-mile Champion Spark Plug Challenge event.

Challenge race at Road Atlanta. Drivers competing for this posted prize money will be driving in a six-hour race the week prior at Alabama International Motor Speedway in Talladega, and a driver who wins both events could claim more than $7,000 for two days of driving.

Additional prestige and dollars will highlight the Kelly Girl Challenge for the IMSA American Challenge cars at Road Atlanta. Kelly Girl recently announced sponsorship of the series and at the April 8 race, a posted purse of over $20,000 will generate a great deal of interest and competition in the event.

As an added incentive for women drivers to compete in the 75-mile Kelly Girl Challenge race, the top finishing woman driver will receive a bonus of $1,500 in the race.

Racing action for the IMSA weekend of racing will get underway Saturday, April 7, with qualifying for all classes of competition and two heat races to set the starting field for the Champion Spark Plug Challenge event.

Larry Wilson top scorer in GSC

For the fourth straight year, Nicholls State's Larry Wilson has captured the Gulf South Conference scoring championship and for the second consecutive season has shattered the league's free throw record.

Wilson produced points at a 27-point - per - game clip for the campaign, matching his single season record of 647 set last year. The NSU standout led the league in free throws for the second straight year, with his .886 mark from the charity line topping the .883 figure he set a year ago.

Two of Wilson's teammates also captured individual championships. Rogers Washington led in rebounding with 13.0 average and Sonny Charpentier averaged 9.8 assists to pace the league for the third consecutive season.

The GSC's other individual leader was North Alabama's Gerald Lavender who shot

.637 from the floor to easily pace the league in field goal shooting.

Runners-up in the various departments included Mississippi College's Hilton Harrell in scoring (27.0), Livingston University's Tony Andre in field goal percentage (.600), North Alabama's Perry Oden in free throw percentage (.848), Jacksonville State's Robert Clements in rebounding (12.4) and JSU's Todd Smyly in assists (5.5).

Nicholls State, the regular season champ, led the conference in team offense with an 85.3 mark with Mississippi College's 69.7 figure the best defensive effort.

Nicholls also led in free throw shooting with a .737 effort, North Alabama was tops in field goal percentage at .515 and Delta State was the leader in rebounding with a 43.7 average. Jacksonville was runner-up in each category.

Georgia Edges Jax State

Jacksonville State's girl gymnastics team came so close to winning the Region III AIAW Gymnastics Championship here Saturday for the second time in as many years. Georgia, which won last year, edged JSU 135.1-134.3 points.

JSU held a 1.55 point lead over Georgia until the Gamecocks met disaster on the balance beam

"THE PRESSURE GOT to us and we blew the balance beam," said JSU Coach Robert Dillard. "Georgia is hard to beat on the beam."

Jacksonville's Susan Puckett, a very pretty 18-year-old from Bristol, Va., collected 34.75 points to capture the all-around individual honors for the second consecutive year.

I'm very pleased, but I'm also disappointed," said the very competitive Puckett. "It would have been more exciting if the team had won."

Susan excelled in her bar and vault routines where she captured first place in both events. She also finished second in the floor exercise but failed to place on the balance beam event.

"I guess I'm most happy about my bars' routine," said Puckett. "I'm least pleased about the beam."

"EVERY MEMBER OF our team did something good," Dillard was quoted. "This was by far our best score (134.3) this year." Jacksonville's previous high score was 132.60.

Jacksonville placed three athletes in the top four of the all-around awards: Puckett, who finished first; Leslie Hill finished in third place and Lynn Bruce took fourth place honors.

"We had more depth this year than we've ever had before, but we were injured," said Coach Dillard. Two very fine gymnasts were sidelined due to injuries, and Cindy Frank was limited to only two events because of injuries.

"We've had a lot of shocks," said Dillard. "One kid (Susan Balk) was hit by a car, another, (Linda Gordon) breaks her leg and the third (Frank) re-injures herself."

IN THE INDIVIDUAL events, Bruce placed second in the vault, third on the bars and fourth on the beam. Hill took third place honors on the beam and floor events, fifth in vaulting and sixth on the bars. Cathy Balk placed fourth in vaulting.

"We kept telling them (the others) we could do it," said Dillard. "I think we almost convinced them."

Jacksonville State's Puckett, Hill and Bruce placed on the All-Region team.

"I'm disappointed for the whole team," said Dillard. "We all wanted to win and go to the nationals. But I'm not going to hang my head and I told them not to hang their heads. I told them to smile and be proud."

All winners of the regional meets have an automatic spot in the national competition and seven teams are chosen to round out the competition. JSU still has a slight chance of competing in the nationals, says Dillard.

DILLARD ALSO SAYS JSU's 1978 All-American Susan Puckett may have a chance to go to the nationals in the individual all-around competition. Twenty-four gymnasts are picked on the basis of a season's average to compete in the meet.

"We are recruiting for next year," said Dillard. "We want to go to the nationals, but we haven't been able to get over the regional hurdle. To have a good year (next year) we have to do a good job recruiting."

"I think this meet will make them (the team) stronger for next year. They know what they'll have to do. They know they'll have to execute the beam better."

I HEARD HE IS SO FAST THAT HE DOESN'T SHOW UP ON INSTANT REPLAY!!

games of a double-header 2-1 and 3-1.

With the win Sunday, the Jacksonville Gamecocks now stand with the record tying 27-0 record. The Gamecocks will try to beat that record today when they travel to Huntingdon (they beat Huntingdon 16-0 last time they played).

The "big bats" for Jax State are Jerome Coleman, Steve Gamble, David Crawford, Gil Bruce, Dave Simonetti, all batting over .400 with more than 45 times at bat.

The pitching staff is led by David Evans, who after 25 innings pitched is holding an incredible 0.00 earned run average, giving up only five hits so far this season. David also has 32 strike-outs to his credit and has a 3-0 record.

Vanessa Churchwell has helped Jax's women to a record blemished with only one loss.

Defense looks mean

As spring training drags on for some of the players, the Jax State defense looks nothing but mean. If the injury count holds down like it has for the spring then the team can look forward to another fantastic season in the fall. Compliments are especially due to that tough defense seen in spring training.

Receives honors

Jacksonville State University football player Lowell Preskitt kept a family tradition intact this past week when he was named as recipient of a ROTC scholarship. Lowell is the third brother from the Preskitt family to earn ROTC scholarship honors at Jax State. Howard Preskitt was a
