Senate endorses Stewart's alcohol fuel program

U. S. Sen. Donald Stewart's month-long fight to achieve a federal commitment to alcohol started to pay dividends Thursday night, as the Senate voted unanimously to adopt his far-reaching plan to develop fuel from the nation's agricultural and forestry products.

Stewart, who had waged successful legislative battles to attach alcohol fuels proposals to every major Senate energy bill, saw his colleagues accept a measure that he says "will put the world firmly on notice that we are serious about breaking OPEC's grip on our economy."

The legislation, which was added as an amendment to the Senate's main energy bill that eventually passed later in the evening, provides a $1.2 billion commitment to the commercial development of alcohol fuels.

In addition, he said, it includes a five-year program authorizing $850 million annually for on-farm production of alcohol fuels, which represents a significant boost to the nation's farmers and small businessmen.

"One-third of the program would be set aside for small-scale producers such as family farmers and other small businessmen," he explained.

"At a time when certain U. S. policies and the federal bureaucracy are taking their toll on those folks, it is refreshing that we have taken a positive step to assist them.

"And, of course, there can be no question that this move will put the world firmly on notice that we are serious about breaking OPEC's grip on our economy. Given the choice, I would prefer to follow the ingenuity of our farmers and businessmen as our path into America's energy future."

The senior senator explained that the funds authorized in his measure would include money for loan and price guarantees that would be distributed through an independent Office of Alcohol Fuels to be established in the Department of Energy.

Additional funds for research and for technical assistance to farmers and small businessmen would be provided through the agricultural extension services.

Stewart has long been an advocate of alcohol fuels. His agricultural subcommittee on research and general legislation held hearings earlier this year on the matter, and he has sponsored or cosponsored a number of measures aimed at encouraging the production and marketing of gasohol, a high-octane, clean-burning mixture of alcohol and gasoline.

And in addition to the alcohol fuels amendment, a

YAF faces issues

By GENE WISDOM
Are you upset over Cuban troops? Does America's declining strength concern you? Do you worry about the future of America's free enterprise system? Are you angry about the insolence of the insane Ayatollah?

Don't worry - you're not alone in your concern. Thousands of college students who are alarmed at the growing centralization of power in Washington, the increasing dependency on Big Brother and the pursuit of an elusive friendship with the Soviet Union have joined the ranks of Young Americans for Freedom and made it the nation's largest conservative youth organization. In its short and active 20-year history, YAF has come to be a prime nemesis of most liberal organizations.

It has done this not by attacking these organizations directly but meeting them head-on in the war of ideas and issues. YAF has challenged its opponents not with the rocks and bottles reminiscent of the leftist student rebellion of the 60's, but in the battlefields of Congressional committee hearings, the chambers of the Supreme Court and scholarly debate. On all fronts, this organization has fought for political and economic freedom from our own government and those abroad.

Perhaps the best example of this effort is in the fight against the recent Panama Canal treaties. YAF fought the agreements on all fronts and must be counted in any enumeration of those responsible for mobilizing public opposition to the treaties, though the Senate later ignored its angered constituency.

Presently, YAF is active in the campaign to defeat the SALT treaty and the opposition to the actions in Iran. The organization has testified before Congress, and published several major treaties against the treaties and through its chapters on different college campuses has demonstrated against both.

These are only a few examples of an active and successful history of Young Americans for Freedom. If you are interested in joining the 60,000 other students across the country in the drive for a free and strong America, you may simply send $3.00 to Young Americans for Freedom, Rt. 1, Box 1002, Woodland Road Sterling, VA 22170.

mixture of alcohol and gasoline.

And in addition to the alcohol fuels amendment, a modified version of Stewart's Rural Energy Independence Act also gained Senate approval Thursday evening.

Stewart said he was equally enthusiastic about the other portions of the Senate's energy bill.

"I believe the comprehensive and well-thought bill that passed the Senate last night will decisively move this country down the road to energy independence," he said.

He added that he was pleased with the energy mix achieved by the Senate, saying the decision to fund such diversified alternatives as solar energy, alcohol fuels, coal gasification and conservation measures would allow the country to reduce its dependence on foreign oil suppliers as quickly as possible.

"All along the Senate and the country have had to listen to those skeptics of solar energy who said it was a technology of the far-away future, and those who said conservation and alcohol fuels couldn't make a significant contribution," he said.

"But last night, common sense prevailed and the Senate recognized the potential that all these alternatives offer us."

The Alabama Democrat contended that the decision to move ahead on all feasible energy fronts would encourage maximum participation from all segments of society and from all parts of the country.

"I expect Alabama, with our fertile farmlands and our rich coal deposits, will play a significant role in the energy future of this country," Stewart said.

He added that he would continue to work for the establishment of a TVA coal gasification plant in Alabama.

Eugene McCarthy, former Congressman and Senator from Minnesota, will speak in the Student Commons Auditorium on Monday, Nov. 26, at 8 p.m. There will be no admission fee.

McCarthy rose to national prominence in the early and mid 1960s when his opposition to the war in Vietnam led him to oppose President Lyndon Johnson for the Democratic nomination for President in 1964.

Retiring from the Senate at the end of his second term in 1970, McCarthy took up a career as an educator and writer. He has taught courses in politics, literature, and history and has given lectures throughout the country. His writing assignments have included articles and essays for "The New Republic," "National Catholic

Omega Psi Phi sponsors fifth Miss Black Culture Pageant

The fifth annual Miss Black Culture Pageant will be presented by Theta Eta Chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc., on Thursday, November 29, 1979 at 8:00 p.m. in Leone Cole Auditorium. The Miss Black Cultural Pageant became an annual event after its successful trial run in 1975. As a result, each year's winner has exemplified Black awareness, a sense of cultural welfare, and social stamina here at Jacksonville State University.

Ms. Jaycelyn Johnson was the first to proudly display a sense of "black beauty" by winning the title of Miss Black Culture in 1975. The second talented winner was Ms. Reba Henson, and the third winner was Janice Thornton. Last year's winner Ms. Christine Maxwell exhibited a wealth of skill, talent, and expertise as she moved the audience to a standing ovation after a dramatic performance of Langston Hughes' "The Negro Mother."

The men of Omega believe that, with continued success, Miss Black Culture will be able to represent Jacksonville State University and Omega Psi Phi as a candidate in the Miss Black Alabama Pageant.

Famine planned for students

Before you go to bed tonight, some 12,000 human beings around the world will have died of starvation or diseases related to malnutrition.

While such staggering figures of misery and suffering give many of us a feeling of hopelessness, a group of Jacksonville State University students have decided to do something about it.

The JSU - Baptist Campus Ministry will begin a PLANNED FAMINE on Friday, Nov. 30. Famine Coordinator Barbara Vann explained that the 30-hour fast will have a two-fold purpose.

"We plan for the students participating in the program to stay together during the fast so that while we share the experience of feeling hungry, we can also learn why hunger exists in the world and what we can do about it," she said.

Miss Vann explained that many factors contribute to hunger - lifestyles, population, the energy crisis and others included. "We'll learn about them through audiovisuals and other program materials and discuss how we can be part of the long-range solution."

The PLANNED FAMINE hunger program also has a very practical side, Miss Vann pointed out. The students will each contribute $6 of their own money—$2 for each meal missed—to participate in the program. They'll seek out Famine Supporters to contribute $6 donations. The Famine Supporters will also be asked to read a fact sheet on hunger so they, too, might become involved.

"We hope to be able to raise $600," said Barbara Vann. "The money we raise may help feed many families, or even an entire village, for a month or longer."

The funds will be channeled through World Vision International to help the hungry people. The interdenominational Christian humanitarian agency is presently supporting a number of hunger-related relief and development programs in two dozen Latin American, Asian and African countries.

No single group or organization can help all of the millions of men, women and children who are hungry in the world. But the BCM believes that people become hunger statistics one at a time and that they can be helped the same way. They're determined to make a difference.

Books too easy to steal

By JANA MOON

I walked into the library the other day looking for some color pictures and you know what? I walked out with three expensive color plated books without checking them out. I know it was close to ten that night, but I was under the impression that the library stayed open to 10:30 that night or at least that's what the sign said.

The reason I walked out with the books is that when I went to check the books out on their respective floor, there was no one to check the books out. As a matter of fact, the check-out desk was closed and locked up.

This, however, is not the first time. Last spring, I went in the library in the middle of the day and waited around for at least ten-minutes and no one showed up. So, I left with the books and was not even stopped at the first floor.

No wonder so many students, or anyone else for that matter, steal books from the library.

Another complaint deals with the book depository. It is supposed to be used only when the library is closed. That is not very convenient for people in a hurry. It takes a while for someone to return books to the tenth floor when they have five minutes to be in class.

I don't like walking out with books that don't belong to me, nor do I have the time to waste hunting for staff to check out books.

The United States should mark well the actions of many of our "friends" during the Iranian Crisis when it comes time for foreign aid, military aid, and preferential trade in the future. The only European nation to publicly speak out in our support has been Britain. Germany has said nothing and France has even been critical.

If the only thing that comes out of the Iranian mess is a long energy program, it will have been worth it.

A declining nation?

By MAURICE BOWLES

If the actions of the Iranians against the United States make you mad, be prepared for bleeding ulcers and the like as the result of much anger and frustration in the years ahead. These trespasses by a third-rate, skirt wearing religious fanatic and his band of angry zealots are just one sign of what columnist George F. Will calls a declining nation.

What is a "declining nation"? It is a nation that considers using an enemy like the PLO, or a traitor like Ramsey Clark to bargain with an irrational mind called Ayotollah Khomeini. It is a country whose international respect is so weak that an irate mob has the guts to overrun our embassy and hold 62 of our citizens hostage.

This same country must bargain with a Communist government to give "humanitarian" aid to interrupt the starvation process in what is left of the population of Cambodia. This country took no action at all until over

Advanced Camp, because "we need the numbers."

... a nation with a President that would cancel the B-1 Bomber, the Neutron Warhead, and the world's most sophisticated aircraft carrier. A President that would pay Panama to take the Panama Canal, permit Russia to have combat troops in Cuba, and, at the same time attempt to have a grossly unfair treaty passed by Congress.

... a nation that has a crime rate that rises as fast as its inflation rate, whose dollar is worth only one-fourth of what it was 10 years ago.

This same nation would have a congress that can't wait to pass itself another pay raise, whose only answer to the energy crises seems to be to tax the oil companies, who has stretched the "necessary and proper" clause of the constitution so far that beaurocrats control most main efforts of the government.

A nation whose people are dissatisfied, disgruntled and

Right of center

Apathy state university

*Gene

The events of the past few weeks in Iran have stirred the soul of a benumbed America. Watching a mob of students led by a new Fuehrer in religious garb threaten the lives of American citizens has angered a population which practically ignored such tragedies as the betrayal of allies in Vietnam and Taiwan, the seizing of the Pueblo in 1968 by North Korea, and even the recent murder of two American ambassadors by terrorists. It is truly heartening to see Americans who only weeks ago were caught up in life's jaily struggles unite in seeing that the name of America and the lives of those hostages are not endangered. One need only witness the refusal of dockworkers to load or unload those ships destined for or arriving from Iran.

This revival of unabashed patriotism is even happening here at "Apathy State University" (also known as "Don't Care College") where a regular event seems to be trying to get drunk before the evening news on Friday. It is now very unusual to walk down the halls without hearing some discussion of the Iranian situation. Students who would show no respect at football games for the raising of the flag or the national anthem, are now getting upset at seeing a mob of crazed zealots burning that previously ignored "Old Glory."

Two weeks ago in an empty parking lot across the street from Subs'n' Suds this new found patriotism and feeling of outrage over the criminal acts against us in Iran exploded in a peaceful demonstration. At 9:00 on Thursday night about 100 students gathered at this dark spot and after the organizer of the protest, James Glenn, read a statement, based on the following rough written draft by two campus conservatives, an Iranian flag was burned.

"We students of Jacksonville State University are protesting the actions taken by the Iranians in their disrespectful behavior taken inside the United States and their seizure of hostages in the American Embassy.

"This seizure is a violation of international law and all civilized codes of conduct. The dissatisfaction of an angry mob should not involve innocent American citizens. Such behavior reflects the cowardice of a government which would not deal directly with our own, but chooses instead to hide behind an unorganized group of zealots.

"We view the burning of the United States Flag as a insult to our nation and a slap at our pride in it. Such an opinion of our flag is therefore mirrored in our treatment of their own national banner."

The statement went on to say that "the desire of Iranian students to obtain a superior education is respected but that their abuse of this privilege, through radical protests would not be tolerated, "especially if harm comes to one single American citizen now in Iran." Following the statement, the flame was put to the flag as the students cheered and chanted, "Down with Iran!"

The flag-burning was probably inspired by yet another expression of anger—a banner which hung in front of the cafeteria exclaiming "Iranians Go Home!" This sign stayed there until after 7:30 a.m. in the morning but may have been the spark which inspired the class discussion from which the flag-burning idea was born. It is still not widely known who put this inspirational symbol of disgust in front of the Gamecock, but their action should not go unnoticed as it very likely crystallized the most vocal gathering of students here at JSU since the Vietnam War.

But will this patriotism die out after the crisis has passed? Your pessimistic editorialist must unfortunately predict that it will; that a couple of months after those hostages hopefully come home Jax State students will again resume their between-class debates over who drank the most beer at the last party, how hard the next test will be, and how easy that girl walking down the hall is. While the United States slowly grows even more inferior to the Soviet Union and radicals around the world discuss another opportunity to embarrass us, most of us will wait while partying.

starvation process in what is left of the population of Cambodia. This country took no action at all until over four million had starved to death in the name of "peace with honor."

A declining nation could be one whose veterans get only token observance one day out of the year, who must depend on poorly run and understaffed hospitals, and who have such a stigma placed on them by society have a difficult time finding employment.

It is a nation with a Congress that pays the Army so poorly they must lower their already laughable education requirements, who can no longer call a "recruit" a recruit, or give them white-wall haircuts. The same Army can no longer compete with the civilian world for competent officers, thereby having to drop standards at efforts of the government.

A nation whose people are dissatisfied, disgruntled and embarrassed with their government.

When a person loves someone else, they hurt inside when that person is sick, or hurt.

Sometimes, when I'm all alone, I go into my room and close the door. Then I put my head in my hands . . . and cry.

My sincerest gratefulness is extended to all those who have expressed concern since my column about Gulf Shores and Cool Sam. I am now happy to report that Cool Sam now has a job in Birmingham, and is thankful of the possibility of a new beginning.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor,

History has experienced times of persecution, even in the most modern of societies. From the Romans to Hitler and now Khomeini's Iran. Even though this leader has ended a reign of terror, in his own country, he has created another.

Persecuting innocent people for the crimes of another seems to be more of the workings of a religious dictator rather than a religious leader. This man has threatened the lives of innocent people by approving of the terrorist actions of the overly radical students and condemning the American hostages to death. How can a civilized society allow this free terrorism? How can a man who has hardly an education and has terrorist thoughts of his own, be a leader of a civilized nation? How can his people and people of the world let this reign of terror continue; also, what about some sort of diplomatic sophistication?

Also, is it Khomeini that is behind this or is it someone that is using his power?

Pat Barber

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my viewpoint on the pre-registration system, specifically, why the athletes are allowed to register before everyone else.

This is clearly a violation of one of the rules in the class schedule that says, "No exception to registration times listed will be allowed," yet and still, the athletes were allowed to register before everyone else. If this is not a clear out and out violation of the aforementioned rule I don't know what is.

Why are the athletes being allowed to play God? They are no different from the rest of the students here at JSU. The athletes are students first, and then athletes. They should be forced to follow the rules just like everyone else. After all, if it wasn't for the students there would be no athletes.

Because of the royal treatment of the unillustrious athletes about 90 per cent of my classes are closed to this day, not to mention what it will be like when I do register Friday. I know it is too late to do anything about this problem this semester, but it can be prevented from happening in the future. The people who devised this system should have taken this problem in mind before it was installed here. Not taking this problem in mind before installing this system was a ~~error~~ and mistake on the part of JSU.

They say that people learn from their mistakes. Too bad that the people here at JSU don't hold to this old adage.

Maybe next year they will see their mistakes and go back to the former registration system or by correcting the aforementioned problem.

The student consumer

By MIKE MOON

This week's student consumer will deal with the price of "beverages" in the immediate area around the JSU campus. The six-pack price of ten leading brands were checked in three stores, Crossroads Package and Gas, the Red Rooster Package and Pub, and the Quick Shop.

The beverage prices checked were for the four leading brands, Miller, Budweiser, Schlitz, and Pabst, their "light" counterparts, Lite, Anhauser - Bush Natural Lite, Schlitz Light, and Pabst Extra - Light, and two premium brands, Michelob, and Lowenbrau.

On the ten brands tested, Crossroads was from twenty to thirty cents lower on each one. The Red Rooster was second on most brands. One thing consumers should check for is to see if the posted prices include sales tax or if the tax is to be added. The Red Rooster and Crossroads include the tax on their advertised prices. The Quick Shop and many other stores do not.

The lowest price for any brand was $2.40 per six pack for Pabst at Crossroads. Pabst was also the cheapest name brand offered at the other two stores, $2.65 at Red Rooster and $2.85 plus tax at the Quick Shop.

Case prices were not checked. Only six packs were. However, this does give a fair indication of the overall price structure at the three stores.

The widest gap in the prices was for the highest priced "beverage" Lowenbrau. The price at Crossroads was $3, at the Red Rooster $3.85 and $3.30 plus tax at the Quick Shop.

Pictures scheduled to be made for yearbook

Officers should come prepared to fill out an information sheet and be willing to assist with identifying each group. Advisors are encouraged to participate.

Co-op...the extra dimension

By N. KARLOVICH - SMITH

This spring, JSU will offer a new program to undergraduate students who are serious about career goals. Connie Means, the Co - op Coordinator, has positions available in government, business and industry.

Cooperative education, or Co-op, allows students to alternate a semester of school with a semester of professional on - the - job training directly related to career goals. Ms. Means, who said that Co-op is a perfect "blend of theory and practice," suggested that interested JSU students, particularly sophomores and juniors, visit her in Abercrombie Hall (Career Development and Counseling Center) for more information.

Co-op, which started in 1906 at the University of Cincinnati's School of Engineering, today comprises over 1000 programs nationally and more than 200,000 participants. Alabama presently offers 17 Co-op programs.

How many times do students ask how relevant course material is to their lives? Co-op, an educational process relating what the student studies to his or her work experience, is a good way to find out. Unlike student teachers who are only paid non-monetarily (self - satisfaction, pride, perseverance), Co-op students are often paid the equivalent of already employed workers during Co-op assignments.

Ms. Means stressed that the personal, financial, and professional advantages more than off-set the extra year it would take to complete the BA or BS under the Co-op program.

The 128 weeks of academic work and 85 weeks of professional work experience give the Co-op student both career experience and a college degree, a marketable combination in an increasingly competitive world.

Ms. Means said, "JSU students who participate in Co-op will have definite advantages over other students. According to studies conducted by the National Commission for Cooperative Education, career - oriented work experience, earnings which cover the cost of college education, and valuable exposures to professionals already in the field, all help the student to gain confidence and a sense of responsibility and independence. Employers often use Co - op to identify potential employees."

According to Ms. Means, orientation programs for Co-op will begin this spring. Students must be recommended by a faculty advisor, have a GPA of 1.5 or above and a composite score of 18 or above on the ACT, and have Connie, who calls herself an "embryonic student," briefly discussed her philosophy of life, an outlook which is congruent with her new job.

She said, "We all want happiness and success. Success is to be happy with yourself. All else will fall into place. Most people never reach their potential, but we should always strive to increase our capacities of learning and loving. The qualities it takes to truly be a loving person are the same ones it takes for a person to grow in character and reach his or her 'success' potential. Therefore, being dedicated to learn to love more is the realization of life's greatest joys. Happiness should be a day-to-day journey, not a destination."

JSU students who participate in the Co-op experience under the direction of Connie Means will definitely have a "successful" journey.

THE COOPERATIVE EDUCATION COMMUNITY is encouraged to use this logo to bring about an international understanding of what cooperative education really is. All institutions and employers are encouraged to use the logo in any material published pertaining to cooperative education

LOGO DESIGN — The logo was designed by Fred Hausman, in 1964, for the Cooperative Education Community. Hausman was at the time art director for a New York advertising firm. The logo was first used in National Commission for Cooperative Education publications in 1964; Cooperative Education Association publications; and co-op programs throughout the country were encouraged to make use of it.

RECOGNITION — The logo is recognized by many employers, educators, and even some members of the Congress as the logo for "Cooperative Education." It is recommended that all cooperative education programs make use of the logo on printed material pertaining to cooperative education to keep the image of co-op before the public with a recognizable logo for identity.

In addition, students must be willing to commit themselves to a minimum of three work assignments, as they will alternate a semester of work with a semester of academic study until their senior year.

DEFINITION OF LOGO — From Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, "An identifying symbol." The name LOGOS is the Greek word for "Word." In classical Greek, logos never meant just "word" in a grammatical sense, but it stood for the word or outward expression by which the inward thought is expressed. In this latter sense we can find such reference in the Bible, Gen. 49:18, and John 1:1.

England study program offered

JSU will offer a program of study in England again this year if there is sufficient demand. Tentative dates for the trip are May 26 to June 26. Of this time, three and one-half weeks would be spent in Stratford-On-Avon and the remainder in London. Six hours of graduate or undergraduate credit in English can be earned.

In Stratford students attend plays at the Royal Shakespeare Theatre, hear lectures on the plays at the Shakespeare Institute, visit the Shakespeare Trust Properties (the Birthplace, Anne Hathaway's Cottage, and Mary Arden House, and others), and make excursions to such nearby places of interest as Warwick Castle, Kenilworth, and Oxford.

The cost of the program will be approximately $1,000. This includes airfare from Atlanta, accommodations with two meals a day in Stratford, theatre tickets, tours from Stratford, transportation from London to Stratford and back, and room and breakfast in London.

It does not include lunches in Stratford, meals other than breakfasts in London, sightseeing other than that arranged from Stratford, or other incidental expenses. Tuition must also be paid to JSU.

Deadline for application is February 15. At that time the applicant must make a $50.00 deposit. Other payments are to be made as follows: $300 on March 1, $300 on April 1, and $350 on May 1.

Anyone interested in the trip should get in touch with Dr. Evelyn McMillan, 211 Pannell, for further information.

through the Guatemalan Red Cross.

According to Warren, the project is designed to accomplish three main objectives: First, the volunteers are to teach Basic First Aid and Health Care using a curriculum designed with the specific needs of the local people in mind.

Second, the volunteer instructors are to recruit and train the most qualified Guatemalan volunteers as instructors of basic first aid and health care. This will help assure a continuation of the teaching program.

Third, the instructors should conduct classes for the general community, not just Red Cross personnel, in order to firmly establish the local Guatemalan Red Cross delegation as an agent of health related services.

To obtain more information and applications, interested individuals may contact the college language department. Additional questions may be directed to the American Red Cross, Alabama Division, "Friendship Guatemala 1980," P. O. Box 11003, Birmingham, Ala. 35202, 322-5661.

Phi Beta Lambda will have its next meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 20, at 6:30 p.m. in Room 220 Merrill Building. Anyone interested please attend and take part in all the activities.

Flight course to be offered

During the minimester, Mr. Robert MacRae, a pilot and member of the JSU Physics department, will teach a 3-hour general elective credit course called Principles of Flight. The course will be offered in the morning hours and satisfy the textbook requirements needed to pass the FAA test which upon conclusion of the course will be given to all qualifying students.

The general course of study will give the student an introduction on why an airplane flies, operations of aircraft and engines, navigation, weather and FAA regulations. No actual flying will be required.

Principles of Flight will prepare the student for further flight courses through the instruction of a certified commercial pilot and the extensive use of audio-visual aids. Successful completion of this course will also be beneficial for discounts of flight instruction courses offered world-wide.

For more information on PHS-325 and becoming a pilot, contact Mr. McRae at EXT. 318.

and study with Scandinavians of diverse backgrounds. At the Seminar's Midyear and Final Courses, students and staff meet to discuss the year's studies and experiences and to review individual progress and language ability.

An independent study project provides a focus for an in-depth study in each participant's own field of interest. On the basis of a detailed written evaluation of their work, most college students receive full or partial academic credit for their year.

The fee, covering tuition, room, board, an all course-connected travels in Scandinavia, is $4,900. Interest-free loans are granted on the basis of need, as are a few partial scholarships.

Travel and basic living expenses incurred by "Friendship Guatemala" participants are financed through the Alabama Division of the American Red Cross. Room and board for the volunteer instructors is provided by families in the Guatemalan communities.

All systems were go for "Friendship Guatemala 1980" after an identical program proved successful in 1979. 'Hotel' performs at Brother's

By LISHA BROWN

Due to the overwhelming popularity of Birmingham's Hotel in this area, they're a common attraction in local concerts. Monday and Tuesday night, Nov. 12-13, we enjoyed Hotel in a more casual manner at Brothers.

If you liked Hotel in concert, you'd love them at Brothers. The "laid back" friendly atmosphere made the evening that much more entertaining. Hotel didn't come onstage until after 10 and by that time everybody had pretty much lost their inhibitions making them good and Night," Hotel entertained the audience to many new numbers, all which were fantastic.

Marc Phillips, lead singer and keyboard, is a remarkably talented performer with a strong voice that stays strong throughout the entire show. He has a wide range of ability enabling him to sing anything from love songs to "Mack the Knife."

Tommy Calton displayed his outstanding talents of the huitar. If you've seen Hotel in concert you're familiar with his guitar solo.

On Nov. 29th and 30th

BSO continues season

The Birmingham Symphony Orchestra continues their regular season concerts on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 29 and 30. Special guest artists will be Mary Costa, the famed American soprano, and Jerome Pruett, the widely acclaimed young tenor. The concerts, conducted by Amerigo Marino, will be at 8 p.m. in the Birmingham - Jefferson Civic Center Concert Hall.

Mary Costa was born in Knoxville, Tenn., of an Italian and Irish background. Both her parents were very musical and she began private lessons at an early age. The family moved to California where she finished her high school education and enrolled in UCLA with majors in voice and languages. Graduating from the Los Angeles Conservatory, she gained her first accolades at a national level for her singing and speaking voices in Walt Disney's Sleeping Beauty.

Miss Costa's career took a dramatic turn in 1958 when she replaced Elizabeth Schwarzkopf at the Hollywood Bowl — other triumphs soon followed. Her worldwide operatic career has included acclaimed appearances with virtually every orchestra and opera in the United States. In the summer of 1973, Miss Costa received the honorary Doctor of Music degree from Hardin - Simmons University in Texas for her many and varied musical activities.

Jerome Pruett was discovered by the guest Swedish tenor, Nicolai Gedda, while teaching at Iowa State University. He made his professional debut one year later in March, 1974, in Carnegie Hall with the New York Opera Orchestra. For the past four years, he has lived in Vienna with his family where he was leading lyric tenor with the Vienna Volksoper and was in demand for guest opera and orchestral performances throughout Europe. In July, they returned to the United States again and made their home in the New York City area.

The program for the Nov. 29 and 30 concerts will feature the Strauss family of composers. Tickets are available at the Birmingham Symphony Office (326-0100) located at 2114 First Ave., N., Birmingham, 35203.

Movie star to appear on campus

Cary Guffey, young film star of "Close Encounters of the Third Kind", will be on campus in connection with the showing of the film November 27. Guffey, who is a resident of Douglasville, Georgia, plays the four-year-old boy who is enraptured and then captured by alien beings. His parents, both JSU graduates, will accompany him. Guffey will be signing autographs at the 4:00 and 7:00 showings only. Everyone is invited to meet Guffey, the first film star sponsored by the SGA Cinematic Arts Council.

Lee Bargeron is probably the most versatile of the group. A multi-talented singer, keyboardist, guitarist, etc., Lee really attracts a lot of attention with his exuberant style.

For the undecided career check Photomat

After nearly two years of college I'm among those who are "undecided" on a career. I mean, heck, I really don't have much choice—my talents are quite limited, I don't have any! Anyone, I think I've come up with the answer — an occupation extraordinary. This job is perfect, great, terrific!

You know those little yellow photomat places? Well, I've had my eye on them for a long time and the more I think about it, the better it looks. Just think about it. You sit in a cozy little yellow building with your own little air conditioner, telephone, desk and radio. You sit there and look out the window, play the classic, "See how many blue cars go by" game, or now days you could play it with Trans Ams. You could wave at neat little old men walking down the road and invite them up to your little yellow framed window for a chat.

Every once in a while a car would pull up to pick up their photographs or put them in. You could smile and be so cheery.

I love the idea. You could read and write short stories or draw. It sounds great to me.

Every time I drive by one of these places, the person working in there seems so contented in their cozy little yellow building.

Well, now that I've decided on my career, I guess I'll need some training. Couldn't you see it? Photomat Management 101?

AAA hosts talent show

By SAMMY JOHNSON

There was a large crowd in the Student Commons Auditorium last Tuesday night for the fourth annual Afro American Association talent show. The talent show is one of the major fund-raising events of the year for the AAA.

A variety of talent appeared in the show including singers, dancers, and comedians. The acts were judged by Dr. Cherry of Human Services, Dr. Holmes of the Art Department, and Dr. Mulraine of the English Department. Clyde James, accompanied by Derick Macanaco on the piano, won the first place award by singing the gospel song, "I Don't Feel No Ways Tired." Clyde won the $50 first prize for his effort, another singer, Greg Pittman won second place and a $20 prize. Toni Long then danced away with third place and a $10 bill.

The crowd really enjoyed the acts and everyone had a lot of fun. For anyone interested in joining the Afro American Association there is a meeting in 203 B-G every Tuesday. For more information contact Anthony Johnson, president of the association.

So you want to be a rock star?

By JOE BRYAN

Many bands are discouraged in their early days by the apathy and total lack of interest of many prospective fans. The band begins to feel that all of their efforts have been in vain, the process they have followed has failed them, and that the industry they have worshipped has betrayed them. They may even curse the fickleness of the American record-buying public for its inability to perceive quality in music and begin divorce proceedings against the dreams that have led them far. Then, one day, a sign may be given by the rock messiah that motivates a rebirth in the spirit of that particular band as they find that many groups have trod the same path they are now on. Among them is the Birmingham based Hotel.

A recent interview with Marc Phillips, key boardist and lead vocalist for the rising rock band Hotel, confirmed many prevailing theories on how to reach the road to success. According to Phillips, Hotel began as a and created jobs playing street dances, talent shows, school activities, etc. . . . often for free or for small fees. When a dance wasn't available, they held their own. Eventually, they would hope to be major national headliners, but at this point in their career, the members of Hotel just wanted an opportunity to play. The band meandered along like other small groups, playing through PA speaker horns, using a Christmas tree for lighting effects, employing a projector screen for a mike stand, or whatever other equipment was available.

A major break came for the band while playing the Cobblestone in Birmingham when Capital Records promoter Dane Eric was on hand to watch the band perform. The performance, along with the aid of demo tapes, was enough for Eric to see that Hotel was destined for more than just the night club circuit. As a result, he quit his job at Capital and went to work promoting Hotel after much time and money was spent. Mercury Hotel is, as recognized by the band, not enough. Phillips realizes that the band must sell records or face the possibility of being chopped. According to Phillips, "The key to success in the masses." The executives in the major record companies are looking for hits and if a young band wants to make it they will have to produce a commercial sound. This does not mean, however, that Hotel will turn disco for big bucks, unless as Phillips sees it, the band can produce a disco sound with which the group is satisfied. Phillips also feels that there should be a reason for the songs, and that the lyrics should be relevant. A new album (with a proposed March release) is, according to the Hotel vocalist, better from a lyrical standpoint than the first.

Marc Phillips offered some advice to bands getting started in the Jacksonville area. He felt that although places like Brothers, both here and in Birmingham, have excellent reputations, the band must go to places

In regard to demo tapes, Phillips stressed that the band should take a very serious attitude towards the demo. Because studio time is limited and expensive, the band should go in and try to get to work. They should treat the demo as if it were the band's first album and produce the best tape possible.

Phillips also felt that exposure was vital to the life of a rock band. On the recent tour in which Hotel fronted for the LITTLE RIVER BAND, Hotel made considerably less than they would have playing night clubs, yet the exposure and response was very beneficial to the band's image as well as album sales.

When asked what Hotel is, Phillips replied, "Variety." He feels that Hotel offers everything and perhaps educates the listener. Hotel, he claims, is "trying to present a variety of styles in one sound the Hotel sound." To the listener who thinks Hotel has done less you've got another thing coming.

NOTE: Due to the fact that

Christmas Heritage to be celebrated

The annual Christmas Heritage Celebration of the West Jefferson County Historical Society opens Saturday, December 8 with a Carol Sing and continues December 9 & 10 with tours of historic homes and churches.

Visitors will relive Christmases of yesteryear on the tour, which consists of the Society's three historic homes, McAdory, Sadler and Owen Plantation Homes, as well as Trinity Episcopal and Pleasant Hill Methodist Churches. Hours for the December 9 tour are from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on December 10.

Tickets for the tour may be purchased from any of the 36 branches of the First National Bank of Birmingham or at the Owen Home for $2.50.

At McAdory House, visitors will be greeted by Society members in pioneer costume who have prepared the old home for a traditional Christmas celebration. Dulcimer and banjo music, craftsmen, and the McAdory family auto, a Duer, will be on hand to lend authenticity to the occasion.

Sadler House will feature a display of antique china, bluegrass music, candlemaking, quilting and butter churning exhibits, and hot sassafras tea.

Owen House will be decorated in keeping with the 1840's period when it was built, with Christmas trees covered with wild-flowers, gilded walnuts, popcorn and other traditional decorations.

Trinity Episcopal Church, known for its exquisite stained glass windows and decorated for its traditional Christmas Eve mass, will also be a part of the tour, as will Pleasant Hill United Methodist Church, a church built in 1832, and which served as a worship place for the Owen, Sadler and McAdory families.

Refreshments will be served at all locations and tourists may visit each historic site in whatever order they choose.

The Annual Carol Sing, which officially opens the Christmas Heritage Celebration, will be held at First United Methodist Church of Bessemer on December 8 at 7:30 p.m. Over 150 musicians will sing traditional Christmas anthems and the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messiah." The audience will be invited to participate in congregational singing. This attraction of the Celebration is open to the public without charge.

13^c Theatre sets show

Are you looking for some good entertainment at a reasonable price? If so, you can find it right here on the Jacksonville State University campus, thanks to the JSU Drama Department and Alpha Psi Omega fraternity for drama students.

Alpha Psi Omega will present the "Incredible Thirteen Cent Traveling Theatre" again this month with three fabulous one act plays. Admission to the shows, as indicated by the name of the theatrical group, is a paltry 13 cents per person (or two for a quarter for bargain hunters).

On Thursday and Friday, November 29 and 30, the fraternity will present the three plays in Self Cafeteria. The program will begin at 8 p.m. sharp each night.

Each semester, Alpha Psi Omega stages a totally student-produced show for the enjoyment of the JSU student body. Each play presented is student directed and is made up of cast members who are JSU students. In addition, all back-stage and technical work is done by JSU drama students.

The first of the three shows to be presented this semester is directed by Holly Brock. It is a comedy dealing with a hilarious case of mistaken identity. Cast members include Mitzi Meers, Lori Tate, Johnny Self, Steve Pritchett, Laura West, Mike Poland, Jennie Glasgow and Joe Martin. Terry Williams serves as stage manager.

The second play is a short comedy, depicting four men in a very unusual poker game. It is directed by Regina Mathis Tubbs and cast members are Rick Tubbs, Doug Moon, Jeff Brizee and Tom Hall. Mike Poland serves as stage manager.

The third play is a serious one dealing with the relationship between a dying middle aged woman and a gentleman friend who has trouble communicating with everyone but her. Mike Doug Moon is serving as Meyers is directing cast producer for the three plays members Holly Brock and and Mike Scoggins is Sam Marsh. John Musk is technical director.

Enjoy some Mexican flavor at El Palacio

Senora Dora Martinez and Senor Megal Martinez invite you to dine with them. Their El Palacio Restaurant is a recreation of the haciendas they've known in their home - Ciudad Auna, Coahuila, Mexico.

Beyond the heavy carved doors, you'll find a relaxing world of soft lights and stucco walls. You'll think you've stepped into a large Mexican home. And that's just what Senor and Senora Martinez want.

But the atmosphere is just the beginning. The real pleasure comes with the food. The menu features a tempting array of Mexican specialties as well as steaks, chicken and seafood dishes. There's something for everyone. Even a children's menu with smaller portions for junior appetites.

While deciding on your order, you'll enjoy a complimentary basket of crisp tostado chips served with a side dish of hot sauce for dipping. This is the same sauce that's served along with Mexican dinners for people who want south-of-the-border dishes with extra tang. (In spite of the common belief about Mexican meals, El Palacio's food is NOT spicy. It's the extra sauce that adds the hot, tangy flavor.) Individual diners can use as much or as little as they like according to personal preference.

To insure authenticity, every dish at El Palacio is prepared by a native Mexican chef who uses only fresh (never frozen) ingredients. Each item on the menu tastes just as if it had been prepared at a real Mexican hacienda.

Cool, refreshing special drinks are part of El Palacio's fare too. The Jumbo Marguerita (tequila, triple sec and lime juice in a salt-rimmed glass) and Pina Colada (pineapple juice, coconut milk, fresh fruit and rum) are two favorites. Also popular is sangria (red wine mixed with orange, lemon and lime juices) which is served by the pitcher or glass. El Palacio also offers a good selection of moderately priced red, white, rose and sparkling wines in addition to draft on tap.

Take a trip to Mexico—right here in town. Visit the Martinez family at their hacienda for an evening of real Mexican hospitality. At El Palacio, the atmosphere, food and chefs are really Mexican. The restaurant is on McClellan Boulevard next to the Anniston Plaza Cinema.

Pinning it down

Southerners battled it out with Troy

By ALLEN CLARK

There's a group of people here at Jax State that definitely is the most impressive bunch of fans that a team could ask for. That bunch is no other than the "Marching Southerners".

I've watched the Southerners at every home game and they were always "in" the ballgames just about as much as the team itself, if you go on spirit.

The show they put on at half-time is only half of their participation. They sure do blow them horns, up in the stands. The drummers have to be one of the most coordinated "beat those skins" bunches in any university in America. It's got to be admitted that they keep the crowds going even more than our fantastic cheerleaders, well as much at least. (You can't take anything away from the amount of spirit that the cheerleaders generate, so let's call it about fifty-fifty.)

The only thing I would wish personally, is that every student had the chance to see their performance down at the Troy State game. You see, the Troy band members believe that they are better than the Southerners. Can you imagine that? Well, our Southerners went down there and not only put on a super show at half time, they kept it up the entire game.

Half time was as competitive between the bands as it was between the football teams. The Southerners were first up, and it was something to see. For the first time during the game the fans stopped booing and started cheering for our band. Can you believe that Troy fans cheered for anything from Jax State?

You know that the Troy band had to do something about that. They must have realized that this act was going to be hard to follow, because they came out and put on, what was probably, the best performance for them this year.

Which band was better? I really couldn't say. They were both super and if every half time was as good as that one, we should start a new program that sponsors the bands from both schools at half time for every game.

Something else I would like to mention about that game at Troy is that when the football game was over, both bands stayed in their respective stands and kept dueling it out, with fans from both sides (JSU and Troy) gathered around in front of their band. It was just super, and I really don't know how long it lasted. I just know that the press box was closing down and they were still getting it on.

UNA scored first in the first quarter after the Gamecocks fumbled on their own 35 yard line. Defensive UNA Coach Wayne Grubbs took time out to ask his team how their pride stood.

The Southerners' contribution to sports doesn't end with the football season. You'll see them at every home basketball game playing up in the end stands and you'll notice that they'll be the ones cheering the loudest and the longest.

Saturday, and it ended with what began to seem like a Gamecock victory after the first half, turning into a UNA victory in the second half.

Lions were just too much for the Gamecocks to handle in the second half as they came charging back from a 14-7 deficit in the first half and scored three TDs to hand JSU its first losing season since 1969.

The first half of the game belonged to Jax State with the Gamecocks scoring two touchdowns to UNA's one.

Lady Gamecocks drop opener

The Jacksonville State Lady Gamecocks fell to Shorter College, 75-65 Tuesday in a turnover-plagued basketball season-opener.

Jax State turned the ball over 33 times, while Shorter had 14 turnovers. "The biggest difference in the game was those turnovers," said Gamecock coach Ron Akers. "Shorter's press was also a big factor.

"For us, Jill Collins had an outstanding game shooting. We were able to take the ball inside."

Collins pumped in 31 points, and teammate Felicia Kendrick hit 14.

Leading the way for Shorter were Pat Wortham (26 points) and Pat Hines (20).

Jax State led in rebounds (30-26) and in shooting percentage (52-43).

Shorter led at halftime by a score of 38-31.

Jones counting on Keith and three other starters

Jacksonville State University, its hopes for a successful season riding on the return of four starters and a talented cast of recruits will open its season on Dec. 1 against Shorter College in Rome, Ga.

The Gamecocks, who finished last year with a 17-8 record, return guards Todd Smyly and Tommy Bonds and forwards Al Lankford and Tommy Keith. Only starter missing is center Robert Clements, the Gamecocks' top rebounder for the past four years.

Coach Bill Jones' outlook has brightened somewhat the past two weeks as JSU prepares for its opener at Shorter and a JSU tip-off tourney the following week at JSU.

"Our first two weeks were very intense and everyone has worked extremely hard, but we are progressing at a slower pace because we have so many new faces," Jones said when asked about the first two weeks of drills. "The team appears in good shape at this stage and if their mental outlook remains at a high level we should be ready for our opener.

"Several players have looked good, but it is too early to single out any starters. We expect to play eight or nine players every game." Jones is looking at newcomers Arnold Veasley (6-5), Don Phillips (6-6) and Theodis Moore (6-6) along with Letterman Steve King (6-0) to provide a strong challenge for playing time this fall.

JSU's tip-off tourney will include Birmingham Southern, a team that played in the NAIA national playoffs last year; North Georgia, and Steed College, a team that is fielding its first club this year.

The 1979-80 schedule is: Dec. 1, At Shorter; 7-8, JSU tip-off tourney; 10-at Athens College; 15-at Birmingham - Southern.

Jan. 3-at Livingston, 5-Shorter College (H); 7-Dominican College (H); 10-at Troy State; 12-Delta State (H); 14-Mississippi College (H); 19-at North Alabama, 21; at UT-Martin; 23-Athens College (H); 26-at Delta State; 28 at Mississippi College; 31-at North Georgia.

Feb. 2-Livingston (h); 4-Spring Hill (H); 6-Montevallo (H); 11; at Spring Hill; 14-Troy State (H); 18-at Montevallo; 22-UT-Martin (h); 23-North Alabama (H).

Gamecocks fumbled on their own 35 yard line. Defensive tackle Danny Hayes recovered for the Lions.

It took the Lions only four plays to go ahead 6-0 and 8:45 left in the quarter. Otis Green capped the drive with a four yard run up the middle and Nelson McMurrian was good on the PAT to make the score 7-0.

The Gamecocks took over possession after UNA attempted a 34 yard field goal (UNA missed two in the first half) and marched 66 yards in seven plays. Quarterback Mike Watts passed 21 and 20 yards in the drive to set up the 11 yard TD pass to Derrick Whitely with 12:31 left in the half. Rocky Riddle was good on the PAT and the game stood 7-7.

After UNA missed their second field goal from 24 yards out, the Gamecocks drove 76 yards with Watts passing four yards to Terry Stephens for the score with only 15 seconds showing in the half. Watts hit on passes of 17, 13 and 26 yards in the drive.

During the first half, UNA got inside the 40 four times and came away with no points, other than the one TD after the JSU fumble.

"I didn't think there was any way we could lose at halftime," said Coach Jim Fuller. "Things were going our way. We were getting the breaks and we played well offensively and defensively."

While Fuller was thinking about victory at halftime,

M.C. clinches GSC

Mississippi College won the 1979 Gulf South Conference Football Championship with their 17-10 win over North Alabama last Saturday. For the Choctaws, 5-1-0 in the GSC and 9-1-0 overall, it is their first football championship. The nine wins represent a school record for most victories in a single season, breaking the old mark of eight wins set by the 1959 squad.

Mississippi College, ranked fifth in the latest NCAA Division II poll, also has the distinction of being the number one rushing team in the nation (Division II), averaging 341.1 yards per game. The Choctaws rank fourth nationally in total offense with an average of 400 yards per outing, while standout tailback, Calvin Howard, is the second leading rusher in NCAA Division II, getting 136.7 yards per game.

The Chocs, who travel to Hammond, Louisiana on Saturday to take on tough Division I-AA foe Southeastern La., will have little trouble getting up for the game as a probable post season playoff bid awaits them.

Showing the strength and balance of the Gulf South

Conference, it is possible that four teams could end up in a tie for last place. Wins by Livingston and Jax State would mean that they, along with UNA and Delta State, seasons, the GSC champ was unable to complete the demanding conference schedule with an unblemished record.

This season, as in past with UNA and Delta State, seasons, the GSC champ was unable to complete the demanding conference schedule with an unblemished record.

Things to be thankful for

By Rick Bragg

Editor's Note: Rick Bragg, a sportswriter for The Anniston Star and The Jacksonville News, consented to allow The Chanticleer to re-run this Thanksgiving story which was published in the News Wednesday, Nov. 14. We at the Chanticleer enjoyed the story and the idea behind it, and thought you would, too.

The other day I sat down and made up a list of all the things that either caused me trouble, made me unhappy or just plain got me mad. It was quite a list.

THEN I THOUGHT about doing something Wayne Hester, Sports Editor at The Anniston Star, had done about this time last year. It involved making up a list of all the things a person has to be thankful for. This time I ran out of paper before I ran out of items, and I thought I would share it with you.

You no doubt have your own list, even if it's just somewhere in the back of your mind, but mine goes something like this:

People who read the things I write and like them.
People who don't like them but read them anyway.
Worn-out Converse tennis shoes.

Talking about newspapers.
Pine trees, fence posts and cotton fields.
Being back home.

Mothers.
After-game interviews in Billy Bryan's office.

WATCHING THE WORLD Series with my grandma.
Wayne Hester for a chance.

Three aces.
My purple and gold basketball suit from Roy Webb.
Good hops on hard grounders to third base.

Basset hounds.
Redbirds.

Finding surprises at Holiday Inns.
The past 20 years I've been around.
The years, however many they might be, I've got left to be around.

MALCOM STREET ASKING me what I thought of the first half.

Finding a seat close to Bear Bryant so you can make out what he's saying.
Watching basketball practice at JHS or JSU.

Low-interest loans and high-grade advice from somebody I can count on for both.
Legion Field, after they turn all the lights out.

A GOOD WRESTLING match, not the kind where they moan, groan and push at each other.
An 8-pound bass.

Talking at Lou Scales.
Touchdown bombs, dive-plays, faked punts and 50-yard field goals.
Seeing By RICK BRAGG over an article.

DEXTER WOOD'S GRIN when they won one.
The "mens" in the sports department of The Anniston Star.
A very short, very aggravating and very loveable person from Weaver.
Making deadline.

Hearing "Role Tide," "Go Gamecocks" or "War damn Eagle" each and every weekend somewhere, even if it's in Mississippi.
Getting ink on your fingers from a fresh paper you just put a little piece of yourself into.
The little red house north of Jacksonville, south of Possum Trot and right across the road from Germania Springs.

Walking on artificial turf.

GOOD STORIES, ESPECIALLY if they're yours.

Advice from the inside of Joey Kennedy's curly head.

they were willing to lay it on the line and sacrifice for the football game."

Whether or not it was the talk or fear of ending the season on the note of six straight losses, the Lions responded the last 30 minutes. (UNA had five consecutive losses before the win.)

The Lions took their second possession in the third quarter and drove 78 yards in 11 plays. UNA quarterback Rusty Towery passed 20 yards with UNA facing third and 21. On fourth down, Lawson Fletcher picked up the first down with a four yard run.

Four plays later, Fletcher swept around left end, from one out, to score the tying touchdown.

Fletcher finished the game with 162 yards and he finished the season with 988 yards on the ground.

Early in the fourth quarter, UNA's Manuel Walker picked off a Watts pass on the UNA five, and returned it to the UNA 38 yard line.

The Lions needed only five plays for the score with Fletcher runs of 27 and 35 yards and the final three-yard TD run. The PAT by McMurrain was good and UNA went ahead 21-14.

William Bowens put the game out of reach for the Gamecocks with 3:35 left in the game when he picked off another Watts pass at the JSU 35 and returned it the distance. McMurrain was good again on the PAT.

UNA evened its Gulf South Conference record at 3-3 and its season record 6-5. The win enabled UNA to put together their first back-to-back winning seasons since the early 1960s.

The loss meant that Jax State had its first losing season since 1969 at 4-6. JSU finished the season with a 1-5 GSC record.

JSU girls qualify for championship

The Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (IAAW) Region III Cross Country Championships were run at Florida State University Saturday.

Region III consists of all the colleges in four states—Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. Division I winner was the University of Alabama with 24 points followed by Florida State in second with 33 points and Auburn took third with 64 points. The Division II champion was Berry College with 17 points, second was Alabama A&M with 58 points and third was Jacksonville State with 74 points.

Cindi Strum from the University of Alabama was the Division I first place individual over the 5000 meter course in 18:02.

Tina Buce of Berry College was the Division II winner in 20:22. The top 15 individuals in back divisions qualified for the national championships and the top two teams in Division I and top three teams in Division II qualified, also. Jacksonville State's team qualified by virtue of their third place finish. Three of JSU's women finished in the top 15, they were Sharon Poczatek from Acworth, Ga., 12th, Becky Threatt from Pell City, 13th, and Liz Darby from Sylacauga, 14th. The other women who make up the team that qualified for nationals are Cheryl Owsley, from Huntsville 18th and Lillie Pearl Crook, from Ohatchee, 19th.

The national meet was held on Nov. 17 at Florida State University, but the results were not available by press time.

The JSU Varsity Rifle Team started off its 1979-80 season with a solid victory by soundly defeating a visiting team from Tuskegee Institute 1005 to 818 last Saturday. Team Captain Bill Puckett and Randy Beers tied for top individual honors by posting scores of 259.

"This match is a good start to what could be the best season our rifle team has had since we won the Southeastern Championship in 1972," said Capt. Al Ohlstein, the team's coach.

"In addition to our experienced firers like Bill Puckett, Randy Beers, Rick Ward and Danny Johnson, we've got great potential in our new firers, Gail Umphrey, Lisa Hanvey and Brian Webb," said Ohlstein.
