'Old South' homes

By JANA MOON

Jacksonville Heritage Association will sponsor the third annual tour of historic Jacksonville. The tour hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 6 and 1 p.m.-5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 7. The admission charge will be $5 for full tour, $1 for single house, pre-school children will get in free and grades 1 through 12 will be charged half price.

The landmarks shown on the tour will be the Dr. J. C. Francis Museum, the Old Jailhouse, the Snow-Felgar Home, "Ten Oaks," Forney - Burton - Green Home, "The Magnolias," The Roebuck House, the Lester - Jones - Nisbet Home, "Boxwood," The First Presbyterian Church, St. Luke's Episcopal Church and Aderholdt's Mill.

Two of the homes are being sponsored by student organizations. They are "Boxwood" sponsored by Sigma Nu Fraternity and the Forney - Burton - Green House sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority.

"Boxwood," named that because of the number of boxwood shrubs planted on the grounds, is formerly called the Clark-Ide Home and is being rented from Mr. Knox Ide by the Sigma Nu Fraternity. Antique furniture is being brought back into the home and chamber music is being played during the tour. Sigma Nu has functionally renovated the house at this time and hopes to get a national loan from their fraternity to do some major final renovations.

The home is unique in the architectural structure which is of Adams design in the woodwork, vaulted room ceilings and five mantels. It also has a large attic dating back to the Civil War. The chandeliers are thought to be around 50 to 60 years old.

The history of "Boxwood" is fascinating. It was built by Courtney J. Clark in 1837 and used during the Yankee occupation. J. C. Francis said, "A Yankee garrison, the first was in Dr. Clark's residence on top of the red hill in front of Andy Adam's blacksmith shop... then in the Dr. Anglin home next the present... P. O. Johnson was in command, a brute, succeeded by a Capt. Heidburg, a Swede as I remember and quite a gentleman."

The home was then bought by George P. Ide of...

AWB cancels

In the Student Government Association (SGA) meeting Monday, Sept. 24, the senators discussed the arrest of four male students in women's dormitories and passed a motion calling for an election of all vacant seats in the student senate.

Election chairman Jerry McCormick stated that elections for senators would be on Oct. 10 with a run-off Oct. 11, if needed. He also said that the amendment on the election of the Homecoming Queen would be voted on by the student body on Oct. 10.

Other discussion included the possibility of Chanticleer staff members receiving scholarships and of students getting left-handed desks. It was announced that the Average White Band cancelled their concert here; the blood drive will be Oct. 24 and 25; Charles Grassick will be here to speak on Oct. 18.

Students' complaints answered

Eric Hill of SAGA Food Service wanted to answer the letters students have written concerning the food service here on campus.

Hill said that, "Students don't understand the value of their meal plan. Charles Rowe, vice-president for Financial Affairs, conducted a survey among six universities in the state. They are the University of North Alabama, Auburn University, University of Alabama, Troy State University, University of South Alabama and Jacksonville State University. Rowe found that JSU had the cheapest meal plan offered and if the best with their meal tickets had a higher academic performance."

In the first week after the introduction of the new campus security plan four arrests were made by the campus security force.

Four men were charged with trespassing and held in the Jacksonville City Jail. The four were arrested in women's dorms after visiting hours were over.

H. Bascom Woodward, vice president for University Services, stated that those arrested will face criminal charges for trespassing in Jacksonville City Court. Further, any student arrested will face disciplinary action by the Student Judiciary Panel, under the university code listed in the Student Handbook. According to University Attorney Hugh Merrill this does not constitute double jeopardy for the defendants.

On the towing away of vehicles by the university, Woodward stated that only those vehicles that are obstructing traffic will be towed away. This included double parked vehicles which prevent other cars from leaving their parking spaces. Cars parked on yellow curbs which do not block traffic, or those parked in handicapped spaces without proper stickers will not be towed away, however, they will be ticketed.

Mr. JSU, please step forward

Can JSU men possibly compete with JSU women's record of four, count 'em, four, Miss Alabamas?

Find out Friday, Oct. 19, at 6 p.m., at the Leon Cole Auditorium. The entrance fee to what promises to be a "stimulating" event is 50 cents at the door. Children will be admitted free.

The Student Council for Exceptional Children, the student group sponsoring the "talent, legs, and swimsuit" contest, will use the proceeds for future humanitarian activities dealing with exceptional children in the area.

Each campus club (sorority, fraternity, social, service, or academic group) is asked to sponsor one candidate for an entrance fee of $5. Individuals independent of a campus group may sponsor themselves. For further details, contact Ms. Wanda Wigley, SSEC faculty advisor, or Rusty Madison, SSEC president, at extension 329.

College of his major area at his scheduled time and present advisement sheets, approved trial schedule and student ID card. The student must be sure that enrollments are cleared before attempting to register.

The student will then proceed to registration terminal and present trial sheets. The operator will then enter all courses into the computer. If some courses are unavailable, the student will inform the operator of alternate choices. If the student is unable to complete registration, but has succeeded in registering for some course work, he may leave the terminal and talk to advisor. The courses already registered for will be held until the completion of regular registration period.

The article next week will cover payment of fees.

It's about time!

By JANA MOON

I have some comments to make about the new registration system. It is all for it. It won't be helpful for me and many others, because this year, we graduate, but for the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, it will do wonders. Just think, no more mind-blasting delays of the Leone Cole Auditorium. Instead of two days of registration, we will have one month of registration. We will have certain days to register, not appointed times as in the past. You can sleep late.

A point to remember is that tuition will be due Jan. 2 and if you haven't paid by then, your registration will be voided and you can't attend classes. If this happens, however, you will be able to register Jan. 3-4. Your tuition would then be due Jan. 14. The Business Office will not send out bills for you. Just be sure you pay by the 14th.

Financial aid will also be stepped up. Remember that bills are due by the 2nd of January, so all paperwork and other forms will have to be done early. During the registration periods, if you get lost, don't panic. Students will be around to guide you through.

Good luck!

On any given evening during the week, one can go to the library and find a social gathering taking place by some of the younger students.

First of all, the library is not a hangout as it is apparently considered to be by some of the freshmen who live on campus. We feel that a total lack of consideration is being expressed by these small groups.

The library is for studying and should be kept quiet so everyone has the opportunity to do so. Maybe these groups of youngsters are not old enough to get into bars or don't have any means of transportation to go somewhere else to meet. Whatever the reason, we know that they aren't at the library to study because of the amount of noise that is produced.

But the students are not totally to blame. The library staff is also at fault for letting this situation get out of control. The staff is supposed to keep the noise down to a minimum so everyone can study in peace and quiet.

We ask for your cooperation in this matter by helping to keep the library as quiet as possible. Who knows, one day you may truly need to study when you go to the library.

We should now take a stand

There is no simple solution for the world's problems. Many wise men have attempted sound remedies, some being successful, some not so successful. The problem these people were faced with was the method of reform. How to go about changing a system which has been in effect for such a long period of time that may, in fact, be obsolete is often questioned. Changing the whole system may not be what the reformers are after, although altering certain outdated concepts to revise the overall plan may be their objective. Changing the world is not everyone's goal; however, improving it should be.

Reforming the world or this nation is taking on a large complex group of problems and involves a great deal of time. The process of reform to better society begins at a grass root level such as the local community or even more local than that would be on campus. The future society is the cradle of reform and this cradle is found in schools of America. When people learn to show interest and involvement at this yearly step, they will continue to show interest and involvement in their civic duty to their community, state and nation.

Organization is the key element to get action from the people. Once the people are organized, they must form units among individuals. Everyone possesses individual freedom although we must unite ourselves to work as a group. Our society is a melting pot of individuals from all over the world. These individuals have made our country what it is today although we still face many internal problems. Sen. Humphrey once stated that "This country will never be worth a damn until we are all brothers and sisters."

Unity is the main characteristic which any group should strive for as its goal. The youth should stick together because as one or two of us can't change anything; however, if we all band together we can change minds all across the state and surely here at Jacksonville State. We are all taxpayers contributing our funds to finance our educational institutions. We all have a voice in the actions these institutions take, therefore, we should organize and unit these voices to distribute our ideas among the whole body of students.

Letters to the editor

I am scared; they really got to me this time. I was sitting in my chair watching the late news, waiting for Starsky and Hutch, when they told us about the cancer rates. They said that the average rate is 2%, and that the rate has been on the rise for the past year. Unfortunately, they didn't tell me if my favorite brew was on the list. I'm sure I heard the words "gamma" and "liver" on his phone. Then I started thinking some more. Maybe, there isn't anything to give you cancer in beer, or if there is, it's something like hops which they wouldn't take out if they wanted to. Could be the whole thing is just a plot to get people to quit drinking. HEW couldn't break smokers, so, distance calls on his phones.

It is not standard newspaper practice to answer letters to the editor, (it is more common for magazines), however, recognizing that many students who write want and need a response to their letters and further recognizing the difference in the needs of the college participate as much as possible and do try to keep up with what's going on in all aspects of campus life. They are really a mixed up bunch of people. Little do they realize that most of their parents would have given an arm and a leg to have the things we have at our disposal when they were our age. And think of people who only: but blacks successfully make it appear that way. Half of them don't even know if a club for their chosen major exists.

And service organizations such as Circle K and Alpha Phi Omega would be glad to have blacks participate in the worthwhile projects they take on. But if one wants to get technical; and do

Never has the world seen a generation of adults who have tired of the century's apathy. It has been a century of intellectual, social, political and economic gains, which have been more than all ideologies, philosophies, or religions in history. Yet, due to the weaknesses of those who would stand in its way, like its other opponent, Christianity, it remains. Whether or not communism lives on long as Christianity may depend on the devotion of its proponents to the ideas of one of the figures in its Trinity-Vladimir Lenin.

More than anything else in this century it is the ideas of this man which influenced every person on this globe in one way or another. It is to such an influential greatness that this writer must stand in awe and fear for the future of our country.

What other person or set of ideas has produced such a lasting and overwhelming concept of peaceful coexistence for the American public? What other person or set of ideas has produced such a lasting and overwhelming concept of peaceful coexistence for the world? What other person or set of ideas has produced such a lasting and overwhelming concept of peaceful coexistence for the world?

We college students comply and agree with the constant injustices of our country and its laws: But the injustices of the real world are of a greater magnitude. It is fortunate that we have a chance to learn how to cope with these injustices of life in college, where all that is at stake is a grade.

It is up to us to learn to adjust to these unfairnesses of life while in school, so we may overcome these barriers when we get to the real world.

Unfortunately, I didn’t tell my favorite beer was on the list. Fine, I’ll drink that.

The idea terrified me. Could you imagine going to a doubleheader in Atlanta and having Coke with your hot day? Who could want the braces on? Their attendance would drop 50 percent and it’s already so low you can buy a general admission ticket and sit in a box seat. Next month they’ll announce that the same cancer causing agents are in some liquors, without telling which ones, and how we will keep warm at nightgames in November.

So you crum and cram. Your seat becomes one with the chair. But the end results are never satisfactory. The grade report will say three ‘C’s’ or maybe two ‘D’s’ and a ‘C’.

What it doesn’t say is that, beyond the classroom, the story is much different. It is a story of love, loss, and life.

The whip of knowledge at once. At least you aren’t alone, seen like everybody else is walking around with the caffeine quivers and red-rimmed eyes. It always brings a smile to one’s face.

So many things that we take for granted.

The story of life is not just one we tell before mid-term. This usually act like their course is the only one being offered on campus. And even if it isn’t, it’s the only course that matters.

group of fantastic musicians who are never underserving of high praise. But, there are quite a number of fantastic Black musicians on this campus who, had they any "get up and go," could perform just as effectively as those Blacks who are already band members. (By the way, more power to them!) But oh no, the Southerners don't go charging onto the field and start hogging, freaking and poppin' from one end of the field to the other while tearing out a very crude imitation of Parliament or Blue Oyster Cult—so nobody wants to take part in something as "TIRED" as that. Dig this, it's the prestige baby, not whether or not you're being "hip" enough, that's going to get you over in this dog eat dog world.

When you've finally gotten that degree and go out looking for a job, they're going to look at your grades, true enough, but they'll also be checking out those extracurricular activities. Your resume' is going to look pretty damned impressive with "professional card player or pool player in the 'gym' for six hours a day" on it. Or deeper, still, that you received special recognition for partying every night, and getting dog drunk and/or sky high along with it—and still making it to class on test day even though class was over five minutes ago. Yeah, that's KOOL alright, but where's it going to get you in the long run? Look, it's not always what you know but who you know that can take you places once you leave the shelter of your parents and good ol' JSU. If you don't get involved and get to know people and let people get to know you, you're going to be pitching yourself strikes from the start. And when you're turned down for every "worthwhile" job part of it may be because you're black but the majority of it will be because you're just plain STUPID. Sure, some of the black students will say, "I'll just cool out until my senior year, then I'll bust out and be instantly popular. No comp baby." Well, that's a bunch of jive talkin' bull! - - - ! The time to bust out is now—from stop—full speed ahead—until you graduate.

I know this letter has many a Black extremely "p---- off" (for those who had enough dignity to even bother picking up this week's paper), mainly because the truth always stings in the right spot, but if they are that's good. Maybe it will entice most of them to get of their live boxy and super macho "you know what?" and look at themselves for what they're really worth. I'm sure most of them (if they level with themselves) will find that they're the ones who are "TIRED."

To the Editor,

So, they're finally doing it, uh! When I left high school I thought my prison days were over, but here I am in college with the same reaction, guards to protect my room. I think I might have found an answer to this problem of security. We say that there is already a housing problem with all the new students now and the ones we are looking forward to in the future, so why not build new dorms, co-ed dorms. Several other campuses have them so why males per hour. He also built the first cotton mill in the city.

The second home is the Forney-Burton-Green House which will be shown by the Delta Omega Sorority.

This house boasts of an eight-piece wicker furniture set and the original pine floors. The house structure remains the same except for some interior changes for the life style of the family living in the home today.

The history of the home is also fascinating. It was built by Judge Thomas A. Walker in 1836 and in 1855 was taken over by William H. Forney. The Forney Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was named after him. In 1894, the house was purchased by John Earmington and given as a bridal present to his daughter, Mrs. Lee Burton. Mrs. Barbara Green is present owner of the house.

There will also be an antique show and sale in the old ROTC Building on West Francis Street, admission will be $1.

In addition, there will be the Calhoun County Stamp Show held in the recreation building on East Lodge Street and an exhibition of basket weaving on the square. Three local businesses have planned window displays. They are Lou's Dress Shop, Bob's Campus Shop, The Country Shoppe and the Feathered Nest.

Delta Omicron Chapter of Delta Omicron Music International Fraternity will provide music at some of the houses.

Issuing too much ampicillin?

By JASON WILLIAMS

First, I think it might be helpful for me to briefly explain the background of my article. During the Spring Semester of last year, the SGA received numerous complaints concerning Williams Infirmary. These complaints occurred mainly during a period of increased virus infection among the students. The president of the SGA therefore instructed the Executive Council to construct and administer an opinion poll among the students, in an effort to find out the students' specific complaints. The results of that opinion poll contained two overwhelmingly apparent complaints of the student body: 1) the students felt that the doctor was not on duty for an amount of time needed to satisfy his responsibility; 2) the students were very displeased because of the overabundant issuing of a drug known as ampicillin.

The results of the opinion poll were never, in detail, provided to the students. Therefore, this article, in effect, is an explanation of that opinion poll's results and of the interview with the infirmary nurse.

The most controversial issue was decided that of the ampicillin. The complaint voiced by the student body was that the infirmary was issuing ampicillin to anyone who walked through the door claiming they were sick. It must be remembered that at that time, the American Medical Association issued a warning about the overuse of ampicillin, which was spreading rapidly through the student body. As explained to me by the nurse, ampicillin was an antibiotic which was used to eliminate a wide range of infections. Amoxicillin, as compared to penicillin, is the most effective treatment; therefore, ampicillin was widely issued to the students because it has such a wide range of applicability, and because of its high probability of effectiveness.

The second most controversial issue concerned the hours that the university doctor was spending at the infirmary. On discussing this issue, it must first be remembered that the doctor is providing his time as a vacation, in addition to his regular practice. To this, many students have suggested that the university hire a full-time doctor. The answer to this proposal is simple and rational: do you know any doctors who are willing to give up their practice for the salary they would receive here? To clarify this, understand that the infirmary's purpose is not to treat any major injuries or to provide long-term medication programs, but to simply cure any immediate illness or injury which a student may incur. All of these duties are within the responsibility of the nurse who is a full-time employee.

This leads to the next point. If a student should have an illness or an injury which is serious, such as a heart attack or a broken bone, the infirmary will immediately notify the patient to the hospital which that student may prefer. In light of the recent criticism of neighboring hospitals, the nurse has assured the students that she will not convey a patient to that hospital unless the patient needs immediate attention.

Also concerning the nurse, these individuals alternate nights on which to be on call. If a student has a sickness which he feels the nurse should immediately attend to, he should call the campus security police, who will in turn call the nurse and advise her of the situation.

There were also a few complaints about the student nurses attending to student patients. Student nurses are enrolled in this program as a part of their learning experience. They are under the constant supervision of the nurse, and are not allowed to perform any medical complaints which they have not been trained for. If the student nurse has any questions, they are to consult (Sign HEALTH, Page 4)

'Nothing succeeds like success'

By N. KARLOVICH-SMITH

George Patton, Nelson Rockefeller, Thomas Edison, and Albert Einstein all had at least one thing in common besides being white, male and famous.

Jimmy Lindsey, a former resident of Louisiana, received his Ph.D. from the University of Georgia and his M.Ed. from East Texas State University. He is now coordinating a book with a fellow professional through Harper and Rowe.

Presently, he is working toward the idea of “nothing succeeds like success. Calling himself a “realistic idealist,” Lindsey is working with Dr. Green Taylor, dean of Education, and Dr. Greg Frith, Department Chairman of Special Education, to create the “best L.D. program in the Southeast.” As well as teaching classes, Dr. Lindsey also supervises student teachers in the learning disabilities program.

When he’s away from professional duties, Jimmy Lindsey likes to spend time with Christiana, his 11-year-old son. Named after Dr. Christiana Barnard, Christiana enjoys outdoor activities such as camping with her dad. When asked what has been the most interesting experience since he’s lived in Alabama, Dr. Lindsey replied, “Collinsville Trade Day, of course. Turkeys and dogs for sale. The works.”

According to Ms. Bobbie Grammer, a JSU student interested in learning disabilities, Dr. Lindsey is very aware and up-to-date. He relates well to the students and is realistic about teaching us how to handle a classroom. I am impressed by his friendly, sincere and helpful manner.

Speaking of up-to-date, what other JSU professor would have an office picture of Shaun Cassidy speaking out for learning disabilities?

Dear Editor.

I am a freshman and I like it here at JSU. The only thing I hate the most is when I go into one of my classes I get stuck with a right-handed desk. I am left-handed and it is kind of hard to write left-handed on a right-handed desk. I read in this paper where SCA motioned to have three left-handed desks in every classroom, and it was passed. About Time!!! But I would like to see them put a left-handed desk in Room 332 at Martin Hall. All of the desks are nailed to the floor. If they do decide to put some left-handed desks in this certain room, please, let the nurse or let the nurse continue the treatment.

Student nurses, you must remember, have a great burden on their minds that they are taking care of the sick and injured, and therefore are hardly going to allow themselves to make a decision as rash as to further injure a fellow student. Furthermore, all critical decisions to be made are

Album Review

By RANDY GRAVETTE

The latest released album from Bonnie Pointer, entitled simply, Bonnie Pointer, has something for everyone. This album, from one of the sisters of the most talented singing families, the Pointer Sisters, has the sound that only Bonnie Pointer could make. From the 1930s sound of scat singing on her hit single Heaven Must Have Sent You to the love ballads Any Everything and I Love to Sing to You, you see the versatility of Ms. Pointer's style. If the style of the 1930s or love ballads don't turn you on, you could try the easy listening style of More and More or the easy dance to beat of Ah Shoot. On a scale of 1 to 10, I would have to rate this new album by Bonnie Pointer a big plus 10.

Eugene Fodor opens BSO's 16th season

The Birmingham Symphony Orchestra opens its 16th season under the direction of Music Director-Conductor Amerigo Martino on Tuesday, Oct. 9, and Friday, Oct. 12. The featured guest artist at the 8 p.m. concerts will be violinist Eugene Fodor. The concerts will be held at the Birmingham-Jefferson Civic Center Concert Hall.

In the five years since capturing the top prize at the 1974 Tchaikovsky Competition, Fodor has established himself as one of the most popular violinists of our day. At home in every medium, the 27-year-old Colorado native is as commanding on the stage of Carnegie Hall as he was appearing in a major Christmas Special on ABC. Tonight Show alone.

Eugene Fodor has been winning competitions since the age of 11, when he made his debut with the Denver Symphony. He has won four U.S. competitions, and in 1972 Fodor won the first prize at the International Paganini Violin Competition. He will be playing the Paganini Violin Concerto with the Birmingham Symphony.

Also included in the Oct. 11-12 performances will be Barber's "Third Essay for Orchestra" and "Symphonic Fantasque" by Berlioz.

Season tickets are still available for the 1979-80 Birmingham Symphony "Season to Treasure" which include the Fodor concert as well as 10 additional programs. For ticket information, call 922-2440.

The 'Dolls' practicing for 'Guys and Dolls'

By RANDY GRAVETTE

With only one week till opening night of the Drama Department's presentation of the hit Broadway musical, Guys and Dolls, things are starting to get hectic on stage at Self Cafeteria. There are cast members asking for lines and the stage crew members asking about where the friends, and a group of Salvation Army Missionaries which come together on the streets of New York to make some very enjoyable entertainment.

Guys and Dolls will be presented on Oct. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 at 8 p.m. at Self Cafeteria. If you are looking for a evening festival and UA develop joint program

Martin L. Platt, founder - artistic director of the Alabama Shakespeare Festival, the state theatre, and Dr. Edmond Williams, chairman of the Department of Theatre and Dance at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa, announced today the results of a year's planning on the part of the two institutions toward future cooperation.

The cooperation has grown out of the festival's development at its permanent Anniston residence of a professional training program. The Festival Conservatory, and from the re-examination by the University of its MFA programs in theatre.

University graduate students enrolling this fall in the MFA acting program will spend the summer between their second and third academic years in the Festival Conservatory where they will receive additional coaching and professional experience, designed to augment their academic training. The Festival Conservatory offers training as specifically related to classical theatre in the areas of voice and speech, fencing and stage combat, acting, text, movement, auditioning, Shakespeare, etc. In addition, students perform in small roles in mainstage productions in the resident season in Anniston.

Those students will then have the opportunity to audition for the Festival's fall and spring tours, thereby rounding out a full year of experience with a professional company. The experience and professional credit will be invaluable to a student's career in professional theatre.

Students enrolled in the MFA programs in directing and costume design will also have the opportunity to spend summers working with the Festival's professional staff, getting both additional training and professional experience in their areas.

In addition, Festival Artistic Director Martin L. Platt and Managing Director Anne F. Zimmerman have been appointed adjunct professors in the Department of Theatre and Dance and as such will be involved in graduate and undergraduate seminars and courses, such as design and costume design will also have the opportunity to shape and direct the joint venture.

Mr. Platt and Dr. Williams agree that this cooperation will benefit both institutions. The university's MFA program, by being associated with a professional theatre, will be able to attract students from all over the country, and the professional exposure, training and experience will add a valuable dimension to the students' education.

And the Festival Conservatory will gain a degree of stability by having a core of students from which to draw. Such cooperation will also help the Festival to fulfill its commitment to making its resources and services accessible to the state and the region.

Persons interested in the University MFA program or the Festival Conservatory are invited to write Mr. Platt at:

The cast of Guys and Dolls has been working hard for the past month looking forward to the night the show opens on campus. Along with the hard work the cast has also shared the fun and excitement of working on a show. After the fun and laughs the cast quickly becomes serious again and ready to work hard.

Guys and Dolls is a musical that takes place in the early '50s in New York. It is a comedy about gamblers, their girl friends, and the consequences of their lives. The cast consists of young and talented actors who have been working hard to bring this show to life. The music, dancing, and acting are all top-notch, making this a show not to be missed.

Guys and Dolls is running October 3rd and 4th at 7:00 and 9:30 p.m. at Self Cafeteria. If you are looking for an evening of entertainment I would suggest you catch Guys and Dolls.

ASF's "Twelfth Night" off on eleven week tour

The Alabama Shakespeare Festival fall production of "Twelfth Night" is off to a rousing 11-week tour of Alabama and nine other Southeastern states, having opened to an enthusiastic audience of over 400 people in Cullman Monday night, Sept. 10. Before closing in Anniston Nov. 24, the company of 22 will have visited at least 35 cities and towns in 10 states, given over 50 performances and countless hours of workshops, and will have traveled over 7,500 miles.

ASF Artistic Director Martin I. Platt directed the production and cast it from the summer company. The play, a rollicking comedy involving identical twins, mistaken identities, practical jokes, and a lot of good fun, features Charles Antalashy, ASF veteran of seven seasons, in the role of Sir Toby Belch (which he played at the festival in 1975). Festival audiences will remember Mr. Antalashy's highly acclaimed portrayal of King Lear and his many other festival roles, including Skylock, Pinchwife, Joques, Claudius, Harpagon, the Miser, and Falstaff.

In fact, Festival audiences will see many very familiar faces on the stage in "Twelfth Night." Mark Varian (Feste) has been with the festival since 1975 and will be remembered for his portrayal of Dromio of Ephesus, Rosencrantz, Lebeau, Launcelot Gobbo, Pompey Bum, Tranio, and Bardolph. Judith Marx, playing Olivia, is also a five-year Festival vet, playing Cordelia, Ophelia, Louise, Lady Macduff, Mistress Ford, Isabella, Jessica, and Kate the Shrew. Elizabeth Schuette returns to the Festival after an absence of two years to recreate the role of Viola. Audiences will remember her as Regan, the Princess of France, Angélique, Juliet, Miranda, Titania, and Queen Isabel.

Others newer to the Festival Company include Dennis Bateman as Orsino who delighted audiences this summer as the lovesick Shylock in "As You Like It" and the befuddled Dromio of Synecdoche in "Comedy of Errors," Douglas Nielsen as Malvolio who this summer portrayed Duke Frederick in "As You Like It," Sturdy Ross in "Macbeth," and the drunken Balthasar in "Comedy of Errors," and Kerry Phillips as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, whom tour audiences will remember as Hortensio in the Festival's 1978 tour of "The Taming of the Shrew."

The company also includes three members of the Festival Conservatory who spent the summer in the intensive professional training program started in 1978. Bruce Cromer plays Sebastian, Sandy Masie is Maria, and Stuart O'Steen is the Sea Captain.

Costumes for the production are by Festival Resident Costume Designer Lynne Emmert; the set is by Festival Resident Designer Michael Stauffer; and the lighting is designed by Lauren Miller, who designed lights for three of the Festival's summer programs. The company audience will remember her as Regan, the Princess of France, Angélique, Juliet, Miranda, Titania, and Queen Isabel.

The tour is funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency, the Alabama State Council for the Arts and Humanities, and is part of the Southern Arts Federation Regional Touring Program.
Perhaps it's because they have a tradition of being the best and they want to continue being the best. After talking to some Southerners, I think I can safely say that the pride comes from a feeling a Southerner gets when he's performing.

A Southerner practices long and hard every day, and for what? A 15 minute show. It hardly seems worth it. I talked with a few Southerners, and tried to get a few adjectives to describe this feeling they talk about.

"I can't describe it. It's hyper, it's exciting." Another Southerner had this to say. "It's a sense of accomplishment. You can't describe it. You've gotta feel it."

One member of the trumpet line said, "It tingles consuming being a Southerner. Is it worth it?" I asked. Without hesitation they all said yes.

For frustrated people who want to let out aggressions through relating to a movie, this flick is a must. Clint Eastwood's Harry Callahan, a detective who decides not to conform to the police department's corrupt norms. His adventures take him from the pilot's seat in a jetliner to a aircraft carrier. The shoot out scenes are bloody and gory and the violence is plentiful. Eastwood is still magnificent at blowing people away with that miniature cannon that he somehow manages to hide under his left arm.

Hal Holbrook plays the part of the corrupt lieutenant who is now out to discredit and prosecute Eastwood. Holbrook gets his in the end.

On Thursday, Sept. 27, at 4 p.m., 30 JSU students, your author included, boarded a bus at the coliseum with all the anticipation of a bull at mating season and drove south through the misty afternoon.

The aisles of the bus were lined with several large trash cans filled with a precious cargo: Schlitz in every form—regular, light, and malt liquor—all of which was consumed before we reached the Oxford, Highway 20 intersection.

Two hours and 12 cases later, we all fell off the bus and paraded into the Morris House in Birmingham for Schlitz Fest '79, a promotion (See FEST '79, Page 9).

Book review
'The Illusion of Technique'

Technology extends our freedom greatly in certain areas, yet it drastically threatens that freedom elsewhere. There is a nagging doubt that technical thinking cannot deal with our deeper human problems. "The Illusion of Technique" by William Barrett, to be published as an Anchor Press Doubleday paperback reprint on Oct. 5, helps us achieve a better understanding of this complex issue. In this beautifully written book, William Barrett demonstrates that we need only to look closely at the minds of those shaping our intellectual climate in this century for an answer. Their aspirations are a mirror image of the goals directing our society, their successes become our successes, and their failures become our failures.

Mr. Barrett has chosen three major philosophers to illustrate his theory—Ludwig Wittgenstein, Martin Heidegger, and William James. Through these great men, Barrett brings us a vivid picture of the main currents in modern thought. We explore, first in Wittgenstein, the limits of logic and logical thinking as a formal technique; then, in Heidegger, consider the ways in which we, as members of a technical society, could lose our primary relation to the core of Being. Finally, in William James, we come back to the stumbling block that no civilization, however dazzling its powers, can evade the question of the individual in his stubborn and lonely struggle to find meaning for his existence.

Barrett builds a forceful defense of human freedom against the technicians of behavior, and concludes with an aspiring and original expression of personal faith. Robert H. Gurland writes that "In William Barrett we are confronted by the last of a dying breed, a courageous and passionate renaissance intellect not violated by the overspecialization and myopic vision which has contributed to the bankruptcy of modern philosophy. In 'The Illusion of Technique' we are warned of the horrors of a world without freedom in a fashion which totally engages the reader by the strength and cogency of its argument and the intimacy of its very personal statement."

Five of Jax States
finest to change colors

By MAURICE BOWLES

Five of Jacksonville's finest football players will be wearing a uniform of different color in the near future. All are presently enrolled in the Advanced ROTC program here at Jax State.

Rod Greene, Dwayne Parker, Jerome Coleman, Lowell Preskitt and Ken Roberts have all "signed the dotted line" to become future officers.

Rod Greene wears number 42 for the Gamecock defense. He became a standout when he blocked a punt and fell on it in the end zone against Alabama A&M. He has also chosen a future in the Army Reserve or National Guard.

Dwayne Parker
"It's been a good and rewarding experience. I have learned a lot. I can apply it to every day life, or football or anything."

As for ROTC, Dwayne says, "It's been a good and rewarding experience. I have learned a lot. I can apply it to every day life, or football or anything."

The Rome, Ga., senior has applied for a commission in the Armor Branch in the Regular Army. "I know it's gonna be for me," he confirms.

Dwayne Parker has been a star in the JSU defensive backfield this year. Dwayne, one will recall, intercepted a pass and ran it in for a touchdown in the closing minutes of the A&M game.

Dwayne Parker
"It's been a good and rewarding experience."

Lowell Preskitt is a sophomore from Selma. Joining ROTC has been a family tradition for him. Lowell's two older brothers were ROTC graduates, and like Lowell, were selected for three year scholarships. If that isn't coincidence enough, they also played football at JSU.

Ken Roberts is a backup quarterback for the 'Cocks. He is utilizing the early commissioning program. Although only a junior, Ken will then serve as a 2nd Lieutenant in the guard or reserves his senior year. Ken says ROTC has been especially applicable to his major, management. "I get to use my management courses in ROTC, because it deals basically with how you use materials, people and time. That's what you do at camp."

It is undoubtedly outstanding enough to wear a Gamecock football uniform. But for these guys, being outstanding in one uniform just wasn't enough.

Jerome Coleman, another player with a reputation for capturing stray passes, made his name a common word during the UT-Martin game. Jerome intercepted a pass and scampered 31 yards for a touchdown. The 6'2" 175 pound senior has chosen to go into the Army Reserve or National Guard.

Gamecocks idle this week, prepare for Tenn. Tech game on Oct. 6

An open date can be a blessing or a jinx, depending on injuries and the way your team is playing.

In Jacksonville State's case, an open date this week should be a blessing.

The Gamecocks, 1-2-0 for the year following a last-minute loss to UT-Martin last weekend, will use the time to get their offense in gear before meeting Tennessee Tech in two weeks. Jax State hosts Tennessee Tech on Oct. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in Jacksonville.

Jax State's offense, which has produced only one touchdown rushing and three passing in three games, will have to make quick improvements if the Gamecocks hope to post their 10th straight winning year. Jax State has fielded winning teams each year since going 10-0-0 in 1970.

"Obviously, we're not controlling the ball," a disappointed Jim Fuller said after the game. "Our backs are running hard, but we're just not getting the blocking."

"Our defense has only one fresh man in the starting line, so it is hard to figure out. Our defense had five freshmen in the starting lineup against UT-Martin and did a fine job."

Jax State's defensive unit has scored three of the seven touchdowns posted this year, two on interceptions and one on a blocked punt.

Quarterback Tony Bowen of Delta State has been named offensive player of the week for the Gulf South Conference and linebacker Mike Chinn of UT-Martin has been named defensive player of the week.

Bowen, a 6'1", 225 lb. senior from Laurel, Miss., had several key stops throughout the contest.

Johnny Grubb of North Alabama is the new passing leader in this week's Gulf South Conference football statistics released through the office of Commissioner Jim McCullough.

Grubb is hitting on 68.7 percent of his passing attempts.

Last week's leader, Mike Delta State's Des Ball and Mississippi College running back, Calvin Howard, set the pace in total offense and rushing offense with 165.7 mark.

Another new leader this week is Livingston's punter, Rodney Gordon. Gordon is averaging 46.7 yards per kick.

Other leaders include Delta State's Des Ball and Derrick Whiteley of Jax State. who are tied in receiving with 3.0 catches per game; Emmanuel Young of UNA in punt returns with a 9.9 mark; and Jacksonville's A. W. Clark in kick-off returns getting 28.8 yards per return.

Sam Killingsworth of Delta State and Keith Rowell of Mississippi College are tied for the league lead in interceptions with four apiece.

Mississippi College and UNA dominate the team statistics with each team leading three different categories. MC tops the GSC in scoring offense (26.7), rushing offense (346.3), and total offense (379.3). UNA leads in total defense (181.5), rushing defense (64.0), and scoring defense (7.8).

Troy State is the passing leader once again, raising their average to 173.7 yards per game.

Livingston moved from third place to first in pass defense over the weekend, giving up 85.3 yards a game.
Ladies split doubleheader

By ALLEN CLARK

Coach Janice Pace wasn't exactly satisfied with her highly ranked team last week as they split a three way match against Troy State and Judson College. The ladies lost the first match against Troy 5-15 and 7-15. They came back against Judson and beat them two out of three 15-11, 11-15 and 15-9.

"I don't feel that Troy State beat us we beat ourselves," Pace commented after the loss. "In volleyball, team unity is most important. Against Troy we had a unit." The lady Gamecocks had trouble through the Troy match with not only their spikes but also with their highly regarded serve.

"Our spikes just wouldn't go down," Pace said. "Our serves weren't good. We just simply had a bad game."

Coach Pace is new this year at Jacksonville State, but she realizes the frustration of losing to Troy, JSU's top rivalry, but it's also something to note that Troy finished number two in the state last year.

The ladies came back strong in their second match and played their best match so far this year, according to Pace.

"Against Judson we looked really good," Pace said. "The girls were moving real well together. We were a lot smoother than in the win against Stillman (JSU's first match of the new season)."

Pace considered the overall performance of the team good but she had three standouts in the match.

"Debbie Seales and Ana Recurt probably had the best night with spiking and net play of anybody," Pace commented. "Nan Jones had the best night at serving."

According to Pace, the team is full of potential compared to the other teams in the state. The only problem is putting the potential together.

"Our setters are really good," said Pace. "I'd put Karen Hester and Nan Jones against any setters in the state including Alabama."

"Our weakest area right now is defense," Pace added. "Although we have some real fine defensive players, we're not playing well as a team."

Coach Pace also mentioned she was not quite satisfied with her team's playing attitude.

"Their desire for team unity is not what it should be," she said. "Right now it's more of an individual effort instead of a team type effort."

Otherwise Pace considers the overall performance of the team good, and expects the team to come right back up after their fine win over Judson.

In Wednesday's game against Berry, Pace's line up will be:

Karen Hester-setter
Cassie O'Hearme-spiker
Jam Nicota-spiker
Tammy Snider-spiker
Ana Reuter-spiker
Debbie Seales-spiker

back-ups: Nan Jones-setter
Kim Hester-spiker
Carol Johnson-spiker

The team's record now stands at 2-1. The next home match will be against Stillman next Monday at 6 p.m.
