Need a date?

By JANA MOON

If you need a date for that big game or concert, and as of yet, have not found a great date, the Student Government Association (SGA) has found your answer, a computer dating system which begins Sept. 26.

This system is headed by Universal Systems Associates from Gadsden. Taylor Edwards, a junior at Jacksonville State University, will be the on-campus consultant.

The cost is $2.50 per person and the student has to fill out a personal form and one of the assistants will fill out a private opinion form of the student (on his personal appearance) so that the computer can match students both mentally and physically.

"Of course, the computer is not fool-proof, but we will try our best," said Taylor Edwards.

Students can sign up at 10 locations with the main one at Gamecock Cafeteria.

Edwards also says, "the system is made for someone who wants a statistical date and if there is enough participation, it will happen every semester." He also adds, "If you are a shy person, bring a group of people to sign up with you."

SGA discusses new security policy

By JANA MOON

In the Student Government Association (SGA) meeting Monday, Sept. 18, the senators discussed the new security policy and approved committee chairman.

President Pantazis stated that three new security officers are in the process of being hired to patrol the women's dormitories on foot. He also stated anyone trespassing in women's or men's dormitories after visiting hours will be arrested. A judiciary court con-

The new chairmen for the 1979-80 school year were approved by the senate. They are as follows: Traffic-Anthony Johnson; Lyceum-Cedric Fuller; Constitution-Gene Wisdom; Entertainment-Tom Young; Ring-Jason Klonsuski; Elections-Jerry McCormick; Vending-Jim Triplett; Alabama Student Lobbying Association-Richard Thom; Dormitory-Olivia Spooner; Food-Jason Williams; and Liaison-Gary Orr.

In other business the motion was made to get a non-voting student on the Board of Trustees. The senators also discussed the possibility of having the pep rallies at the amphitheater; the fact that as of yet, no definite date is set for the appearance of Average White Band; that students must have their JSU decals on their car or they will be ticketed and the blood drive is set for Oct. 24 and 25.

Circle K selects new theme

The 1979-81 Circle K International theme is "Caring . . . Life's Magic." The new theme is centered around children, with emphasis placed on the lonely or abused child, and the child in crisis.

Here is your chance. You can work magic in your community by teaming up with the JSU Circle K Club. The organization meets every Tuesday night at 7:30, in Room 101, Student Commons Building. Also, if you would like to know more about Circle K, call 435-7774 and ask for Cindy or Kathy or come by Room 117 Dixon Hall.

Look around your community. How many children are being raised with only one parent? How many teenagers are addicted to drugs or alcohol? How many youngsters are in trouble with the law? How many kids are being abused? Maybe you know kids that are in these situations. If you know of kids like these, you have a chance to help.

Because our society makes life a challenge, the road to maturity or adulthood is rocky and full of nasty curves. Today's youth face many problems. Peer pressures are great and nearly every community has a drug problem.

It has often been said that "Today's children are the leaders of tomorrow." In fact, the future of every nation and the world depends on the solid growth and development of our youth. As a result, Circle K and other service organizations, including the Key Club and Kiwanis, have an obligation to help children and teenagers survive the difficult years of growing up.

You and the JSU Circle K Club are in an excellent position to relate to children and teenagers. By working with others, you will have a positive life experience as well as increasing your skills for later professional endeavors.

Homecoming constitutional rules amended recently

Strike from Art. VII, Section 2, Par. E: "and Miss Homecoming."

Add Paragraph F to Art VII, Section 2, which shall consist of the following:

"F - Elections for Miss Homecoming will be held at the discretion of the Legislative Branch and the Elections Committee. A runoff will be held, within five days of the preliminary election, between the five candidates receiving the highest number of votes. The person receiving the highest number of votes in the runoff will be declared Miss Homecoming. The remaining candidates shall be first, second, third and fourth alternates, respective to the number of votes received."

Constitution Committee: Chairman, Gene Wisdom, Members, Jason Williams, Lynn Cordle, Anthony Johnson, Jerry McCormick and Patrick J. Delmas.

Puryear to speak to pre-law students

Dean John M. Puryear, director of Admissions of the University of Alabama Law School, will be on the JSU campus Monday, Oct. 1, 1979. He will address the Constitutional Law class at 10 a.m. (Room 333 Martin) which will be open to interested students as well as members of the class. He will also be available to counsel pre-law students in the conference room, 236

Martin Hall, from 11-12 and 1:30-2:30. All students interested in attending the University of Alabama Law School should talk with Dean Puryear while he is on campus.

JSU is a one-way campus

By JANA MOON

Students, Jacksonville State University is a one-way campus. The main circle is a one-way out of necessity and for your safety and others' safety. You had better observe it, especially during the crowded hours, which are from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

It has come to my attention that many students are having harrowing calls because they meet someone in the circle going the wrong way. I know that it is aggravating to have to go a complete circle to go from building to building or across the highway. The best solution is to park it and walk. Less time will be wasted between classes having to drive out of the way and finding a parking place.

We have to face the fact that the circle around campus cannot allow two cars to pass in many places and cannot without an exorbitant price, be widened. Do everyone and yourself a favor by driving the right way in one way places. That also goes for the parking lot in front of Bibb Graves. During class time, it is too busy and dangerous to cut across the parking lot to get back on the circle. Contrary to popular opinion, it is not legal to cut across after 5 p.m.

Also, do the ground keepers a favor and stay off the grass with your cars. It kills it and they have enough to keep neat around this campus. The campus police will also tow it away. Also, I am proud of the beauty and neatness of the campus.

Support family activity cards

By CHUCK AVERY

This summer the Chanticleer asked the SGA to look into the idea of creating an activity card system for the families of J.S.U. students. Since we have not had any response from the S.G.A., we have decided to let the student body know about our program.

The family activity card would enable the families of students to attend campus events at the same cost as the student. It would pertain to married students and their immediate families only. This program would give the S.G.A. another way of raising money by collecting a $25 fee for the card.

With the card, the family would be able to attend all sports events for a fee as students do. You have to admit, charging a three year old child five dollars for a football ticket is a little too much.

We feel that this program would aid not only the married students, but the student body as a whole. It would encourage the family unit to participate in university activities and put more money in the S.G.A. budget.

The college years are the best years of our lives even during times of inflation. These good times should be shared among the married students and their families without additional cost.

Please give us your support with this program and let your S.G.A. senator know that you are in favor of it.

Eddytorial

By MIKE MOON

Every week I have the dubious honor of reading through the letters to the editor to help select those to be published. The number one problem listed in the letters has been the same for the past two years, parking. However, the complaints have not always been about the lack of spaces.

done except to raise the cost of parking stickers. Student complaints poured in and the administration, spurred on by the SGA and, not to be immodest; this publication, took action. Bike racks were installed and resident's spaces were added, further it was agreed that only one student sticker, red, would be issued for the 1979-80 students started raising the roof because the grassy field, they used for playing frisbee and other activities, was being destroyed. They claimed they were given no prior warning by the SGA or the administration. If they had picked up and read the paper, or listened to WLJS news, or bothered to take time to talk to their SGA

So those of you who were here last year, before you start beefing about parking, remember last spring and all the heat the administration and the SGA took last year when they tried to do something about it. This year let's try to be a little more farsighted. The SGA and the administration are

You may request that your "name be withheld" and it will not appear in print in the paper, but we must have your signature. For the last two weeks many of the letters to the editor have contained questions about something on campus that had the writers confused or bothered. It is not standard newspaper practice to answer letters to the editor, (it is more common for magazines); however, recognizing that many students who write want and need a response to their letters and further recognizing the difference in the needs of the college community as opposed to those of the average community, the editorial staff has decided to respond to those letters which ask questions or those which otherwise may deserve a response.

Anyone who has written in the past wanting such a response please feel free to write again, but if you want help in your love life, try Dear Abby.

Dear Editor,

In reference to Mr. Williams' letter concerning rape, I agree that rape is a serious crime that deeply disturbs me. That is the only point on which we concur.

Your diagnosis of the crime and the means to prevent or discourage a rape from occurring again is faulty. First, rape is a crime of violence. Sex is the tool, and only a tool, the rapist uses to perpetrate his act of violence. The basis for a rapist is not derived from the sex act per se but in that he is terrorizing his victim using sexual means.

Mr. Williams calls for either a "physical metamorphosis" by women or to accept a protected status in life absurd. The physical change is of less importance than the attitudinal changes necessary for women to participate fully in this society. Rather than teaching a woman that she will be cared for and protected all her life by someone else (i. e., her father, brother, husband or son) teach her the same basic survival skills we teach the males in this society. Why not offer training in rape prevention.

culture realizes that part of the pleasure of living is the knowledge that we can survive pain and hardship possibly we will allow women the liberty to grow.

Dear Editor,

I think that the college is run the way it should be in my opinion. There is one exception though, and it is about the prices of the food. I think that the prices are too high in cost and the meal plan is still too much to pay. The rest of the college is ideal in the way of dorms, classes, teachers, and etc. Thank you for listening to my opinion.

Dear Editor,

I am writing to comment on the article concerning Rat Run.

Although I am only a freshman, I have heard so much about past Rat Runs, and what they meant to everyone. I tend to agree with your article on this. Rat Run could be a great thing, not only for the upperclassmen, but for the freshmen, too. We freshmen classes. This was no unusual occurrence; the problem is that some of these students plan never to return.

The reason is that these students are being taken advantage of by unknown forces. They met in their Monday evening classes, Sept. 10, for the first and only time, tried to drop the classes for various reasons (three students mentioned the horrible personality of the instructor), or substitute the class for another but found none offered, and ended up having to pay a higher percentage of tuition at a penalty rate.

Two teachers from Georgia who travelled twice a week round trips of 100 miles, had the following choice—to drop one class, stay in the second class, and pay $99 or to pay 20 per cent penalty (about $33) and withdrew from both classes. Their choice was to withdraw and enroll at another university next semester.

If the administration at JSU forgot that Monday night classes met for the first time after the authorized add date, then hopefully only fall '79 students will have to pay penalty fees for administrative incompetency. If the administration neglected to deal with the problem, desiring to gain profit and hoping no one would notice or bring it up,

I know that more than likely, you get the honor of listening to everyone's complaints, but I think that you should also be told occasionally that your time and diligence are appreciated.

Sincerely,
Penny Colvin

Dear Editor,

thought the article by Chuck McCarty, "A Sense of Belonging," in the last issue of the Chanticleer was very touching. It is very easy to get the "blues" when you have studies piled high and a good share of other things to do on top of it. I, too, know that that college degree is worth it all so you just sort of hang in there and take each day as it comes.

I hope that the article caught many other students' attention because your own personal yearbook to look back on in years to come is one too that I will not be without.

Ms Moon,

I have never really cared for reading a newspaper before I came to Jax State as a result of lack of interest in my surrounding. I wasn't really concerned with world news much less my own local news because it really didn't affect me personally, or if it did, I couldn't do anything have not always been about the lack of spaces.

Last fall, the parking problem became acute as JSU, refusing to follow the pattern of other universities, continued to grow at a record pace. The preceding Spring, '77-'78 school year, the SGA and the administration agreed to certain actions to help the parking shortage even then.

Still when school began last year, little had been student sticker, red, would be issued for the '79-'80 school year. Last, but not least, new parking lots would be built in the area of the men's dorms.

That last one stirred a hornet's nest. Now, these actions were decided on in the fall and were duly reported to the students by "The Chanticleer". Still, when the bull dozer started rolling in the spring, male news, or bothered to take time to talk to their SGA senator, they would have known of the planned parking lots when the rest of us found out back in September.

This, however, is old hat—that debate raged last spring. What is important, is that if those students who preferred their grassy field to a parking lot had won out, then imagine the problems we would face today.

and the administration are working on the problem. It is hoped the opening of the new Liberal and Fine Arts building will help some by relieving the congestion around Bibb Graves and Student Commons, also a new ladies' dormitory is planned and with it more parking lots.

Only this year, let's try to decide which we want—a place to throw a frisbee or a place to park our cars.

By
MAURICE BOWLES

Sometimes it takes a while for a mood to hit you. Sometimes, no matter how hard you try, your mind can't catch up with your body long enough to become involved in what your body is experiencing.

Such has been the case of my return to this campus this fall.

Many times this summer have the thoughts of my newly adopted home comforted me. It has been a longer, hotter and lonelier summer than was anticipated. But always, the knowledge that my love affair with this campus and its people would soon be free to continue produced great satisfaction. I have thought of the sweet fragrance of the lush green trees and scenic mountains while standing on a barren plateau in Kansas. While standing in formation in the hot Georgia sun, my soul has cried out to be renewed with such anxieties as Biology and English.

I thought that as soon as I returned I would be satisfied with life again. But yet, it took several weeks for the precise moment to occur when my soul and body became meshed once again.

It occurred while sipping lukewarm coffee and pouring over my criminology notes. It was the same kind of feeling that hits a person at, say Christmas time, when he suddenly stops long enough to realize that "Wow, it's Christmas!"

Then the thoughts of the cold, pink cheeks, the hustle and bustle, and the reunion with loved ones produce a sudden warm, unexplainable escalation of the soul.

It is so good to be back. So good to know that time is once again mine. Once more I can experience the reality of carelessly walking barefoot to class. Again, I can flirt with a co-ed in the hallway, to search for an "issue" to write about, to again dare to be someone that counts.

And yet, after being once more reunited with my friends, there is always the potential to meet someone new.

Many times this last few weeks this writer has sat down to attempt to write an appropriate "Welcome Back" column, and just as many times the trash can has been filled with so many notes that "just don't have the feeling." The pen cannot operate effectively without the inspirational breath of the soul.

Maybe a freshman or sophomore can't quite understand all of this. And maybe some seniors are reading this with a slight smirk. But if that is so apparently this person either hasn't seized all the opportunities available to him here or doesn't appreciate what lies before him.

The feeling haunts me that all too soon I will have to leave. That maybe before I'm ready, the realities of life: paying bills, fighting with the boss, owing your life to something else, will hit me. No longer will I have the opportunity to "not give a damn," or to fall asleep in class. Suddenly I will be an adult, responsible for my actions.

This isn't to say that all has been roses. The pressure, anger and heartache, that have been revolved around this place and time in life have at times seemed unsurmountable. But that is the price one pays accompanied by eager naivete rather than cautious experience.

In a future, more sensible time, I will look back on such experiences as being put down by a sorority girl or chastised by a professor with bitter-sweet memories. And while I fight that traffic jam or pay on that mortgage, if I think that I was lazy enough to have missed any adventure, those memories will surely be tainted by that knowledge.

But until that time comes, these sidewalk, these smiling faces, these carefree moments, are mine; mine again to criticize, to praise...and to enjoy!

society. Why not offer training in rape prevention, since we see a need to bolster this area of concern? Society must take the initiative to prepare women to survive in the real world on their own two feet. A course could and should be instigated to help women learn to fend for themselves rather than wait for a chivalrous man to arrive to protect them. The American notion of the rugged individualist able to deal with all facts of life must change to encompass women as well as men. The metamorphosis to which Mr. Williams refers needs to be mental not physical.

As an analogy, a parent must eventually allow a child to learn and grow, to gain the ability to survive on his own. This society must learn to stop trying to hold women back from their natural progress by "protecting" them from life's experiences. When this perclassmen, but for the freshmen, too. We freshmen wouldn't mind getting hit with a few eggs and water, as long as it was all in fun. And when it was over, at the coliseum, we could meet many more of the upperclassmen, and hopefully make new friends.

I definitely think this year's Rat Run was a flop. But I don't think it has to be considered a total loss for the years to come. We can make Rat Run what it used to be if we really try.

Come on freshmen, let's work to make it better!

Dear Ms. Moon,
I would like to commend you on your efforts as editor of the Chanticleer. For the first time, I really enjoyed reading a newspaper. Each article seems to catch my eye as I turned the pages; I think the titles are to blame. The pictures also made a good impression; even the cartoons were cute. Not only were the first two editions organized, they were helpful, too. The campus map was a tremendous help. I do not know what I would have done without it. Likewise, the Chanticleer was very informative about matters that I, for one, probably would not have known about unless I had read it.

Due to this fact, I passed by your papers not realizing that what was within it was very valuable to me. The Chanticleer informs me of what is happening in and around the school and what has happened. In reading The Chanticleer it has given me more interest in JSU, causing me to get more involved in my classes and social activities.

I would just like to thank the people who have anything to do with The Chanticleer for making me more aware of my surroundings. Being a freshman it hard enough. If it wasn't for The Chanticleer I would probably have never

Thanks be to Lenin

By GENE WISDOM

Never has the world seen such a century of advancements for mankind as the 20th century has wrought. It has been a century of intellectual, social, political and economic gains, which would amaze even the most vehement reformer of past eras. Virtually every 19th century "ism" in man's vocabulary was either born, purified intellectually, put to the fiery test of application to reality, or refuted: socialism, anarchism, syndication, interventionism, capitalism, and that most sinister of ideologies—communism.

But of all political and economic ideas, none has been given the attention as has communism. It has probably been defended, used as a weapon and been villified more than all ideologies, philosophies, or religions in history. Yet, due to its strengths and the weaknesses of those who would stand in its way, like its older opponent, Christianity, it remains. Whether or not communism lives as long as Christianity may depend on the devotion of its proponents to the ideas of one of the figures in its Trinity—Vladimir Lenin.

More than anything else in this century it is the ideas of this one man which influenced every person on this globe in one way or another. It is to such an historical giant that this writer must stand in awe and fear for the future of this country.

What other person or set of ideas has produced such diplomatic landmarks as the Korean armistice which still yields American KIA's (covered up by our military establishment), the SALT I Agreement, the Paris Peace Accords, and multitudes of other broken agreements? These treaties have led to more analyses, books and deaths than probably any period in diplomatic history. Diplomacy will never be the same.

If the nature of diplomacy has changed, then the idea of peace has undergone convulsions thanks to Leninism. We can thank the Leninist concept of peaceful coexistence for the American wrist-slapping of Soviet adventurism in Africa, Southeast Asia, and even in our Caribbean underbelly. This state erroneously known as detente by our leaders, has certainly saved us money on weapons as the United States unilaterally disarms, growing increasingly inferior to the Leninist "paradise" in the USSR of course, the Soviet ultimatum with which we may be presented as a result of this accommodation may be considered by many as preferable to war.

And sure, pacifists the world over can be grateful for a new concept of peace perfected by Lenin—the peace of the concentration camp. According to a recent report, smuggled out of the Soviet Union, five million Soviet citizens are presently in prison or in forced-labor camps for threatening the peace of the dictatorship of the proletariat. And to think that President Carter would even pretend (which it seems is all he did) to try to interrupt that peace by trying to free some of those inmates!

While the pacifists applaud, defenders of imperialism recoil at the growing strengths of the national liberation movements defending the Leninist "belief" in self-determination of nations. This fine upstanding principle has led to such hallmarks of terrorism as the war to "free" Angola, the unsuccessful attempt to "liberate" Zaire, and the subsequent actions immediately following almost every Communist takeover. All of this in the name of "liberation" and history's largest empire.

Dear Editor,

This letter is just another of the many examples, which have been published, that depict just how greedy and incompetent the people who run the oil companies are. Anyone would think that a city with a university or college will be needing more gas when classes get underway, especially with 7,000 students returning. I think the oil companies are missing something upstairs in the area of the brain. Because they are just wanting to fatten their bank accounts, and what better way to do this than to sell more gas. I hope the petition works and Jacksonville gas crisis ends soon, before a lot more people are a walkin'.

Dear Editor:

I'm a freshman to JSU, and so far I like what I see. When I was receiving letters through the mail from this school on the envelope it read, "The friendliest Campus in the South," and now that I'm here I found it to be true.

I'm living in Daugette Hall. It's really a great dorm, but it has a lot of improvements to be made. The dorm is very large. I stay on the west side and the telephone is on the east side and what they really need is an intercom system. I love the dorm because it's very peaceful and everybody is really friendly.

Here at JSU the teachers seemed actually interested in us and the courses look like they're going to be something besides the same old stuff.

I came to college to further an education that I have spent 12 years building. I know that studying is the basis of success in a college class setting. But when we load down with 12-18 hours of hard, work-filled classes, we still have to take time for a break.

I want to say again I'm really enjoying JSU and I really think it's the Friendliest Campus in the South and I want to continue my education here.

Sincerely yours,
Debra Huguley.

Dear Editor,

The newspaper is very good. I'm sure you have impressed many more freshmen and upper classmen like you have impressed me. I think you have an excellent paper. The write up on some of these columns such as the football game, tells the story just as though you were there. I am a freshman now and I play basketball for JSU and I'm hoping that things be this exciting in the newspaper.

I stay in Pannell Hall when I first got here and found out that it needs a little repair, but I was getting adjusted to it. Before I got here I just could not wait until Aug. 24 got here, I was looking forward to coming to the friendliest campus in the South. When I got here it was just like it was a dream come. So I am happy as ever now and I'm hoping to have a great season in basketball. So good luck and keep up the good work in your Chanticleer.

Dear Editor,

Often, leaders make a practice of providing a service to their constituents in an effort to calm any tension which may be present. This is the case at this university; a greater security has been provided to the women students. The flaw of many such programs is that the leaders will provide the service long enough for the constituents to regain their feeling of security. Disinterest subsequently prevails among the constituents, and the program becomes lax, in most cases to the point of inadequacy. The security of our women students is a continuous concern, requires continuous attention and it is hoped that the present attention given security will not become lax. Let us, the students, make sure this doesn't happen.

Dear Editor,

I would like to express my thoughts on Allison Womack's letter. He or she, is right about parking. There aren't enough places to park.

Last week I had to park my car at a friend's apartment, because all the places were filled up. The junior high school was having a game that night so I had to park my car at my friend's apartment part of the night.

I think they need more parking places, instead of giving people tickets they need to do something about the parking as soon as possible.

Sincerely,
Teresa Bogwell.

Dear Editor,

Since arriving here at JSU (fall 1977) I have continuously listened to our radio station. I must say it's number one on my list. Not only does it add to our college culture, but the radio station offers valuable information for the students. Free announcements, means to voice our expression and some of the best and latest music around. WLJS also has some of the best student disc jockeys around in my opinion. WLJS has and is continuing to serve the student body well as JSU. Thank you, WLJS.

Dear Editor,

The recent letter signed "Name Withheld" which dealt with the SGA deserves some attention so that this student and others will realize the active role the SGA plays on this campus. One might get the impression if he didn't know better from Mr. "Name Withheld" that the SGA "confronts" students at orientation and after that remains a ghost on the radio. The record speaks for itself but I will try to correct any misconceptions which are seemingly still held.

First of all, the free concert at orientation was sponsored by SGA. Hotel didn't just call up the administration and say, "Hey, set us up a stage, we're putting on a free show." Tom Young, the SGA vice president, spends a lot of time working and in careful consideration over who performs in concert.

Also, the SGA Senate spends a lot of time with no compensation, considering and developing solutions for problems on campus and trying to improve student life. Senate meetings often last for at least two hours, not to mention committee work which often requires cutting classes.

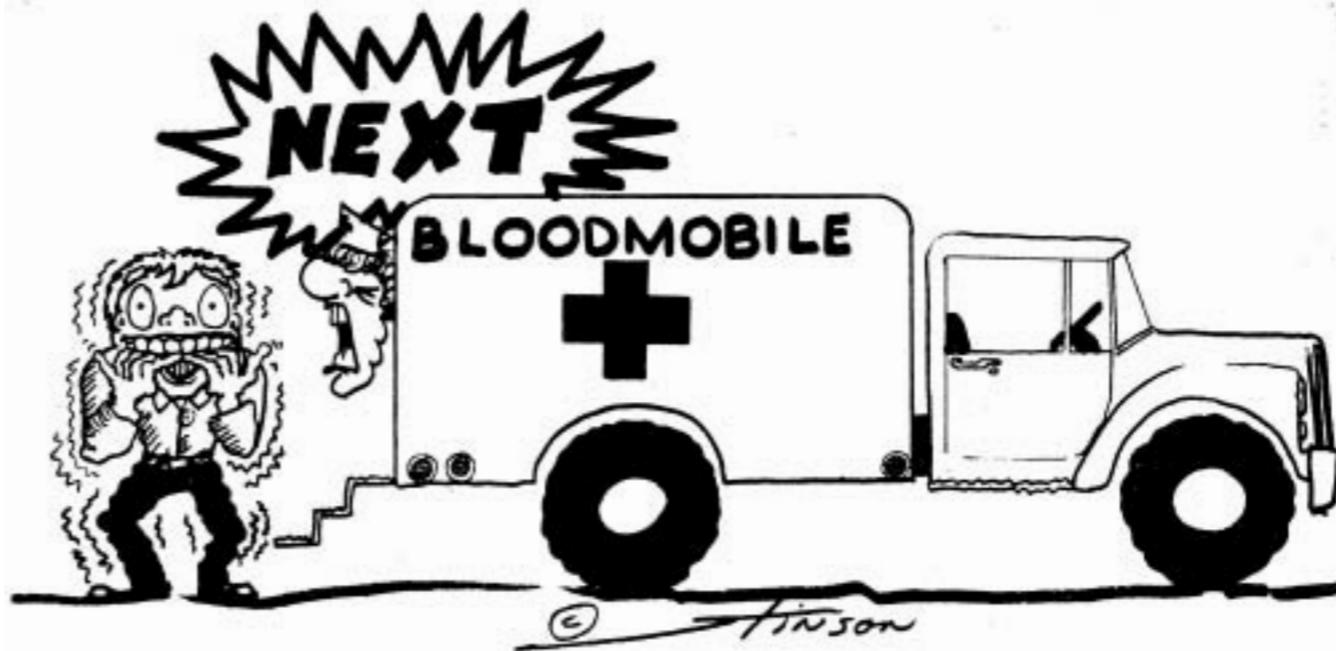

The bony finger of accusation is often pointed at the SGA by students who fail to realize that the Senate is elected to represent them. The students are in fact the government and the senate's effectiveness is only a mirror image of the level of the students' concern. I am not referring to Mr. "Name Withheld" personally, but often the same students who are quickest to criticize the SGA are the very ones who "don't have time" to vote and "have better things to do" than attend SGA meetings.

In closing, from the general message of his letter, it sounds as if the writer might be a freshman. If so, it is hoped that his concern was reflected by running for freshman class senator.

Thank you,
Gene Wisdom,
SGA Senator

Dear Editor,

I like to read the Chanticleer because it lets me know what's going on around campus as well as what's going on in other parts of the United States. I also like the Chanticleer because you don't have too many ads, but you do have enough to let us know about the different night spots and their special nights.

I also like the individual articles of football players. I think you should have more of these along with more pictures.

Dear Ms. Moon,

Many freshmen bought meal tickets this semester, not knowing that they wouldn't use most of the punches. Most of my friends purchased the seven-day, two meals per day tickets, and very few of them used more than half of their punches the first week. Our schedules do not permit time for the meals, and usually we don't feel like it anyway. Is there not a way that it would be possible to trade in unused punches, or just cash in the rest of our meal tickets? It seems that a lot of money not being used because of already purchased tickets could be put to better use. I would appreciate if you could look into this problem for my friends and I. Thank you very much.

Ms. Jana Moon,

I find the Chanticleer a very good paper. It had a wide range of topics. The topics are very well written and are interesting. I hope you will do your best to keep

Dear Editors,

I think the newspaper at Jacksonville State University is a very interesting paper. It is always complete with all of the exciting events that are taking place around the campus. It always has interesting articles about certain people or projects that are going on. I believe that the university would be lost without it.

Thank you.

Alabama librarian returns to her roots

By N. KARLOVICH-SMITH

Ms. Eugenia "Jean" Yeuell, a native of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, who has been living in New England and Europe for most of the past 17 years, has just accepted a position as head of the technical processing division at the JSU Houston Cole Library.

Jean, who just completed her MLS from the University of Alabama, is pleased to find that Jacksonville and the surrounding area is so historical. At the present time, the history buff is living with Mrs. Robert Felgar Sr., owner of the second oldest house in Jacksonville. According to Ms. Yeuell, Andrew Jackson once camped in the yard and one of the many trees has Davy Crockett's initials carved in its trunk.

She has done everything from being a librarian in a private girls' academy to working as a Civil Service librarian in Germany during the Hungarian crisis.

According to Ms. Yeuell, her first job as a librarian at the Westover School for Girls in Connecticut, was a "regimenting" experience. She said, "It cost more for a girl to go there than I got paid in one year."

She remembers wearing "sharp-looking" uniforms while a librarian in Germany. Despite the traditional lack of ice water served in European restaurants, Ms. Yeuell reminisced about the huge picture of ice water served to her by a sympathetic waiter during a heat wave in Austria.

During her employment with the Portsmouth Public Library in Portsmouth, Virginia, she had several exciting experiences. One was the bomb scare at the confederate memorial during the late 60s. Luckily, the bomb was found and disarmed, and all the local residents were evacuated.

The second incident she vividly remembers was being asked by one of the younger women working for her to locate the stalker in the stacks while the police were on their way.

Currently, during more peaceful times, Jean reads for relaxation. A child during WWII, she has read most materials dealing with all viewpoints of that era and is now reading in depth about the history of Japan.

Musically, her interests range from Beethoven and Tchaikovsky to Gilbert and Sullivan, the latter in which she was theatrically involved as a community theater volunteer.

In her professional future, Jean would like to spend time substituting the present card cataloguing system for an updated and more efficient terminal cataloguing system, one in which professors would have branch terminals within immediate reach.

Once Jean gets settled, she hopes to travel to New Orleans and visit friends. Her long-term plans include a trip to Panama. Hopefully, this competent new JSU staff member won't stay away too long!

Afro-American Association holds September meeting

By OVID WYNN

In the Afro-American Association (AAA) meeting on Tuesday night, September 18, black participation in school and community events was discussed and new officers were nominated for the 1979-80 school year.

Current President, Calvin Sledge discussed black representation in the SGA and also encouraged student participation in the SGA meetings.

Also discussed in the meeting was student apathy on campus, disunity of black and white organizations, and last year's accomplishments of the AAA, which included a professional talent show, the first AAA Awards Banquet with such distinguished guests as Dr. Ernest Stone. The AAA co-sponsored, with the SGA, "Voices" from New York, a multi-cultural theatrical group.

Calvin further commented, "These events from last year should not go unnoticed. It's high time unity was put into action instead of just talked about at JSU. It takes both black and white students and administrators working together to make this dream of AAA come true."

Black students were also encouraged to vote in the AAA officer elections to be held in the Student Commons Auditorium on Tuesday, September 25.

Nominations for AAA officers were—Lawrence

Sharp, and Anthony Johnson, President; Vice-President—Myron King and Joe Long; Secretary—Inell

Cleveland and Vanessa Jackson; Treasurer—Pearl Patillo; Secretary of Cultural Affairs—Sherman Stantan; Secretary of Public Relations—Stanley Allen; and SGA Representative—Vanessa Coleman and Eddie Dadell.

Rev. Moon married a follower in order to keep her away from her parents

Rev. Syung Mung Moon, head of the controversial Unification Church, in an apparent attempt to keep one of his devotees from being returned to her family, quickly married her off, violating his own strict rules concerning courtship and marriage, it was disclosed today in the current issue of McCall's, just published. The newly - married couple, Wendy Helander and Frank Fastiggi, do not live together.

In an exclusive, copyrighted interview in October McCall's, Mrs. Caroline Helander, mother of the bride, said that she had received a surprise phone call from her estranged daughter, telling of the marriage. "She didn't sound like herself," Mrs.

Helander said. "It was Wendy, but it wasn't our Wendy." The Helanders have not seen their daughter, outside of a courtroom, for three and one-half years.

Wendy Helander, whom Rev. Moon has publicly referred to as "a very important person, important because she is a symbol of our freedom and our rights and our cause," became engaged on May 14 of this year. Just four weeks earlier she told a McCall's reporter that she was not "ready" for marriage since she was "preparing herself for growth to perfection." Wendy, then 22, was two years younger than the 24-years strictly required by the Rev. Moon to marry or become engaged. One month later she told the same reporter that she was now ready because Rev. Moon told her she was.

The controversy over the Moonie convert began in 1975 when her parents, Caroline and Elton Helander, attempted to retrieve their daughter from the cult after Wendy, then 18, quit school and gave away her possessions in order to join the Moon organization. The Helanders visited Wendy at that time and told McCall's that the experience left them "in a state of utter shock. Not only did we find complete suppression of thought, but we observed one young man leaving (a) lecture hall only to be chased after by five leaders and bodily dragged back into the room."

The Helanders twice attempted to "deprogram" their daughter, but failed. On one occasion Wendy escaped from her parents' home on a pretext and rejoined her Moon family. Presently she is the plaintiff in a $9 million lawsuit against the deprogrammers. Her parents are also named in the suit in order to restrain tempted to "deprogram" them "from further interference with the excuse of her civil rights and civil liberties."

Wendy Helander described to McCall's the horror she felt at the hands of the deprogrammers. "They (See FOLLOWER, Page 8)

Davy Jones appears in Gadsden concert with new 'Monkees'

By MARSHA AVERY

Twelve years ago I wrote Monkee, Davy Jones, requesting his presence at my 11th birthday party. September 17, 1979, I met Davy (David to his friends) at Zel's Disco and Lounge in Gadsden, Alabama, where he and the new Monkee band performed a two-day four-show club appearance.

Zel's kitchen was small, but private, so our interview took place there. My adrenin flowed! I wanted to slip the 33-year-old Davy Jones in my pocket and keep him there 'till we were safely home in Jacksonville. (I wonder what Chuck would have thought about that!)

While talking to my preteen idol, I noticed he was as handsome now as a decade ago. He explained that he believes in keeping healthy and judging by his appearance, he does a good job of it.

Davy Jones is touring the U. S. for approximately three more weeks. The new Monkees will swing through Little Rock, Los Angeles, and several other cities before Davy returns to his home by the sea and two great danes in Sussez, Ehngland.

Divorced now and the father of two girls, Talia and Sarah, Davy still takes time to fulfill his promises. He recently sent them a seven-month-old puppy they'd asked for. Talia and Sarah live with their mother and attend public schools in Santa Barbara, Calif. When asked how he would inspire his children to appreciate music, Davy briefly stated, "Children now know more about music than we (adults) do." It's true, they buy more records and one can always hear young people singing, word for word, the songs broadcasted on local radio stations.

I could see that Davy would have liked to talk more about his little ladies, but time was short and I felt compelled to hear about the "new" Monkees.

Monkees II consists of five members (including Davy) and at least four musical instruments. Jay White on bass guitar, Dennis Larden on lead and rhythm guitar, Skip Reed on drums, and Arlan Green (the most vivacious of the new group) on electric piano back up the 5' 3" giant Davy Jones.

Their musical format consisted of a Scottish Ballad, "Down By Your River," Punk Rock music "Nice Legs, Shane," "About Your Face," disco music "Can She Do It Like She Dances!" new Monkee music "All You Want To Do Is Dance" and of course Monkee fan favorites such as "Last Train to Clarksville," "I Wanna Be Free," "I'm Not Your Steppin' Stone," and "Cheer Up, Sleepy Jean." Not included in the musical line up was a song Davy wrote and his favorite, "Hard to Believe."

Former Monkee teammates Peter Tork, Micky Dolenz and Mike Nesmith are all alive and well. Peter teaches school and tours in California (rumor had it 10 years ago he'd committed suicide). Micky directs commercials and television shows in England now. Mike produces other recording artists through his own record company in California. The four are still friends and keep in touch with each other.

Monkee fans, I'm pleased to submit the facts and feelings of Davy Jones. My feelings are apparent. Davy's attitude and personality are the characteristics of the gentle warm young man I'd cried for so many years ago. I'd like to find the utopic sun swept island of his fantasy and present it for his next birthday.

Catch the show next summer or in other cities on this tour. Who knows, you too may have a dream come true after 12 or 13 years.

It is well worth the wait. I hope one day he'll ask me to call him David. Perhaps on my 24th birthday.

BCM sponsors fall festival

By LISHA BROWN
The JSU Baptist Campus Ministry is sponsoring a fall festival Saturday, Oct. 6, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. behind Salls Hall. This is a great opportunity for any organization to raise needed funds.

The purpose of the festival is in the words of the Dale Ledbetter, is "in an effort to unify the campus and show the campus that we care about them."

The festival will be set up like a fair with booths and games. There will be a dunking booth with your "favorite" professors and name people on campus and a BB gun turkey shoot among many more.

If any organization would like to set up a money raising booth, all profits to be kept by the organization itself, contact the BCM at 435-7020. There will be a $5 entry fee. The deadline for entering a booth is Tuesday, Oct. 2.

There will be games open to everyone's participation. The games will consist of a three legged race, a sack race, a wheel barrow race, a frisbee throw with distance, accuracy and distance categories, and a tug of war. Only eight contestants per organization will compete in the tug of war.

Ribbons will be given to each individual or team winner. 1st place, 10 points; 2nd place, 7 points; 3rd place; 4 points.

Trophies will be given to the organization with most accumulated points at the end of all events. The last booth that has the most originality, participation and last prizes will win a prize also.

The booths are growing in number and originality each day, so be sure to enter by the deadline Tuesday, Oct. 2. Look forward to a fun filled day from your BCM!

Community Concert a huge success

The benefit concert for the Community Concert Association of Jacksonville Tuesday night, Sept. 18, was a tremendous success.

Mrs. Dorothy Nisbet, publicity spokesman for the association, said that the concert was well attended with a full house. The entire concert was beautifully done.

Performances by Jane Rice Holloway, the JSU Faculty Brass Quintet, Patricia Walker and the Jacksonville High School Barbershop Quartet were well received by the audience.

The highlight of the evening was Patricia Walker at the piano. The audience was overwhelmed with her remarkable talent.

The Chanticleer urges the student body to support the Community Concerts. The next performance will be Nov. 8 at 8 p.m. in the Leone Cole Auditorium featuring the Prague Chamber Orchestra.

TRIP THROUGH TIME—Malcolm McDowell, as H. G. Wells, stands beside the time machine that will transport him from 19th Century London to modern-day San Francisco in his relentless pursuit of Jack The Ripper, in this scene from "Time After Time." The romantic thriller was written and directed by Nicholas Meyer and produced by Herb Jaffe. The Warner Bros.-Orion Pictures release through Warner Bros. also stars David Warner and Mary Steenburgen.

Jack The Ripper persued in 'Time After Time' flick

H. G. Wells, who we know as the author of "The War of the Worlds," "The Island of Dr. Moreau," "The Invisible Man," and "The Shape of Things to Come," was a futurist who predicted many of the developments of the 20th Century, including space travel, moonlandings, socialist societies, and women's emancipation. In his novel, "The Time Machine," he foresaw the day when man would be able to travel backward and forward in time.

premise that Wells actually constructed the time machine which he wrote about. The film is a romantic thriller in which Wells, the scientific genius, tracks

Jack the Ripper, the criminal genius, from 19th Century London to 20th Century San Francisco in order to bring the Ripper to justice.

When he is transported in his time machine to modern San Francisco, Wells seems to be more of a babe in the woods than a sophisticated Victorian gentleman. What he finds is that some of his predictions have come about, while others, like a utopian society, have not. And, some real surprises also wait him—such as comic encounters with see-through pants, escalators, TV commercials, MacDonalds and a very romantic encounter with a very liberated lady.

Some of the film's most suspenseful moments were filmed by director Nicholas Meyer on location in San Francisco. The locations include the turn-of-the-century Palace of Fine Arts. The ultra-modern Hyatt Regency Hotel and the Muir Woods. Meyer, who authored both the novel and screenplay for "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution," based his screenplay for "Time After Time" on a story by Karl Alexander and Steve Hayes.

"Time After Time" stars Malcolm McDowell, David Warner and Mary Steenburgen and was produced by Herb Jaffe. The film's score was composed by Miklos Rozsa whose other credits include "Spellbound," "The Thief of Bagdad," and "Quo Vadis?"

The big escape

By CHUCK McCARTY

Dusk was slowly melting into darkness. Night was enveloping the buildings, transforming them into large dark masses of shadow speckled here and there with tiny dots of light. Inside one of the larger buildings a man slowly creeps from a dark chamber.

He proceeds ever so gently through the silent passageway, alert and tense. His palms are moist and clammy and his skin is pale with fear. His heart is thumping like a sewing machine and adrenalin rapidly pumps through his veins. He has one and only one objective—escape.

He finally reaches a stairwell and pauses to regroup his thoughts. There is no moon out tonight, the watchmen are in their quarters, but the outside guards are on their rounds, keeping a close vigil throughout the night. This last thought sends chills up his spine. Peering carefully over the rail he listens, then starts his descent. At each window he crouches and creeps under to avoid being spotted from outside.

Finally he reaches the bottom of the stairs and makes his way to the exit. Outside, inches away, stands two guards quietly conversing. He moves over to the edge of the door and peeks out at them. One of the guards pulls out a cigarette and lights it. The sudden flash of the lighter startles him. The guards were smiling now and the one with the cigarette laughs and turns to stroll away. The other one remains fixed in front of the door.

Now he begins to worry about the lone guard. He thinks of luring him inside the building and jumping him but quickly discards that idea. He has no weapon Sneaking quietly back up the stairs he reaches the same passageway and goes to the latrine. He cracks the door and listens to make sure no one is inside. Stepping in, he goes across to the window. Slowly, he opens the lower pane and climbs up on to the sill. The night air is cool and refreshing on his traumatic body. He slides effortlessly through the opening and out onto the narrow ledge. He hangs briefly to catch his breath then drops with a quiet thump into a clump of bushes.

Checking himself for injuries he begins to plan his next move. After crouching in the bushes for almost an hour, he is satisfied that no one heard him. He then turns and creeps quietly around the back of the building and heads for the edge of the compound, keeping low the whole way. Suddenly, he spots a flashlight bobbing along in the dark like a cork. It is a guard making his rounds and worst of all he is coming his way. As the guard approaches, the escapee flattens himself out on the ground in the shadows. The thumping of his heart is like a drum. Fear swallows the man and makes him shake like a leaf. For an insane moment he wants to jump up and scream, to lash out at the guard, to provoke him to shoot hoping that the bullet would tear into his flesh and end the mental torment of trying to escape. The guard passes and turns the corner. All is quiet and still now.

Slowly, the man gets to his feet and bolts towards another building on the perimeter of the compound. His feet carrying him in a panic run and his lungs burning from the now man stumbles onto the frozen ground. He quickly recovers and resumes his struggle towards the building. Upon reaching it, he heaves open the heavy metal door and falls inside.

He utters a sigh of relief at the sound of an engine passes by without stopping. Tired, cold, but happy he realizes that once again he has eluded the campus police and successfully escaped from the women's dorm.

What is it like to play trumpet for the Southerners?

What is it like to be a trumpet player in the Southerners? How much work does it take? How much time will be devoted to it? Is it really worth it?

The question, and others like them are ones that go through a high school senior's mind during the summer after he makes up his mind to come to Jacksonville State and try out for the trumpet line here.

The prospective freshman will work over the summer keeping in shape physically and musically. Then, in August, he says goodbye to the security of home and comes to a Southerners band camp, where he is completely on his own, and his abilities put to a test. The first noticeable feeling he encounters is fear, because of the tremendous amount of competition. The brass section of the Southerners has a great drawing power, partly because of the fine brass instructor here at the school, and also because of the fact that many brass players are drawn from not only Alabama, but also Georgia, Tennessee and other area states. When the freshman arrives, he realizes that, although he may have been the best at his high school, he now must encounter and compete with other top-match players from these other states.

However, he doesn't start off playing his horn. He must first learn the basic marching style of the Southerners. The new freshman trumpet may have marched in a completely different style at home. He must learn to constantly hold his horn straight-out, have a "ram-rod" back posture, and never let up during the eight-10 hours of marching a day. The freshman is taught that he is now in the Southerners trumpet line, and to make the final cut he must bring himself up to their standards and level. This is mostly what constitutes the excessive pride of a Southerners' trumpet, and keeps that pride going from one year to the next.

After he has proved that he can maneuver well enough in marching, then he is tested on his playing abilities. The pressure is really put on the freshman here, for now he must march well, and play at the same time. There at the end of the week, the freshman trumpet must experience "try-outs," usually on three pieces of music. One, to prove his tone and melodious playing qualities, another, to demonstrate his techniques, and the last one, which he has never seen, to see how well he can play a piece of music sight unseen.

After this tryout, 60 per cent of the total number of people trying out actually make it.

After the freshman makes the final cut, the pressure is intensified. He must now memorize all music he is to play, keep learning more basic marching, and there is the constant threat of being pulled out, and replaced with an alternate who is working harder than he, should he slack-up.

However, this is not all done on his own. The trumpet section-leaders, who must mold this freshman in one week into a Southerners trumpet, gets help from the older members, who have had to go through all this before. But it is still up to the freshman whether he wants to work hard enough for it. Many people quit even after the final cut, because they feel it is not all worth it, for a one hour course.

But the freshman who makes the trumpet line and stays, is a freshman to be admired. In some ways it is hard to describe him and the older members. Two to three hours of marching a day, plus practice on his own, the constant pressure of learning three to four different shows in a year, the griping and yes, even sometimes profanity displayed, or uttered under the breath for mistakes made, the hazing and being called "rat" for the first year, and fear of being pulled out for missing practice or a slack-up in work, and all for a 15 minute show. But if one could only feel the anxiety, excitement, pride, and spine tingling thrill of being up front, and being the best for those 15 minutes, then he knows that it was all worth it. He has proven himself, and no one can take away that inexpressible pride for the rest of his life of being a trumpet player in the Jax State Southerners.

Giving blood is important any year and many benefits are derived from it, foremost being free blood if you are ever hospitalized. This year, however, giving is even more important due to hurricane Frederic.

Many JSU students have family and friends in the Mobile area and giving blood is one way to help those in need. If JSU can be the number one University in the Southeast region in raising beer cans for the Miller drive, then it can certainly be number one in raising blood for the Red Cross.

According to Mrs. Helander, during the time they had Wendy back in their home they were "terribly harassed and threatened by members of the Unification Church." ## Search for perfection.....

By ALLEN CLARK

Dieting has not only become fashionable for the every day gorgeous women, it has also become the obsession of just about every person around. Well, in the last couple of years, dieting has become important to most every type of sport in America, also.

The good old days of huge fat linemen in football are just about over now, and a coach is more apt to get a lot more out of the big, but not fat, player than he would out of a fat one. It's obvious that most fat people cannot last as long as a well conditioned person can in a football game or any other game.

The best way to find out just how fat you are is through the very "unsimple" method of measuring your body-fat.

Mac Gillam, previous coach turned professor, decided that Jacksonville State was getting behind the times on their weight control of the athletes, and took it upon himself to purchase and learn, with exactness, how to use the equipment needed to measure the amount of body-fat a person has.

The first group of athletes that Mac measured was the wrestling team, and since then he's taken care of just about every other athletic team in the university, which includes tennis, volleyball, golf, track, soon the football team and of course, as you can see, the women's gymnastic team.

would be a marathon runner or a basketball player.

"With this categorizing we can help a coach find the right type for the right position, especially for football," Gillam added.

The entire program that Gillam is working on is not something that'll soon be finished. This is going to be an extended research that will take years.

"We're working toward a better attitude towards health," Gillam said. "Dieting itself isn't enough, because when you eat you cannot consume more calories than what your body can burn up anyway. It takes some kind of physical exercise to burn up the calories eaten. Eating too little is not healthy."

...what fat?

Gillam's plans are set up to include not only keeping a record of the athletic teams but also for the students at the university. An announcement will be made of the exact time that Gillam will measure every student interested in their own body-fat count. The examination will cost the student $2 for the measurement and an additional $5 for an evaluation fitness level and an individual exercise prescription. Proceeds will go towards the Carl A. Ormand Academic Scholarship for P.E. majors and also towards a research grant.

UT-Martin Pacers slide by JSU

The Red Bandit defense of JSU played a whale of a ballgame Saturday night, but couldn't stop UT Martin's second only TD of the night that set up the winning, but controversial, two-point conversion in the last minute of the ballgame, ending the scoring at UT-Martin 15, JSU 14.

JSU's defense has been called upon to win the last two games and only the controversial two-point conversion kept the big "D" from winning Saturday.

The Gamecocks came out fighting in the first quarter and picked up the first score when Mike Watts lofted a pass to tight end Ray Brock in the end zone with 6:30 left in the quarter. Rocky Riddle was good on the PAT.

Minutes later, defensive back Jerome Coleman picked off a pass from Pacer quarterback Jimmy Welsh and scampered 31 yards for the Gamecocks' second score in the first quarter. Riddle was good again on the PAT.

The Bandits held the Pacers scoreless in the first quarter, but with 13:34 remaining in the half. Bart Dalday dove in from the one yard line to pick up the Pacers' first score. Mike Poteete added the PAT to make the score 14-7.

Two missed field goals several scoring attempts that failed kept the 'Cocks from building the comfortable lead that most had expected before the game.

"It's quite obvious our defense has carried us in the past two games. It's been too long," Coach Jim Fuller said of the game. "We've got problems with our offense, and we've got to do something. I really thought we would win the ballgame but I just don't know what happened."

After the final score by the Pacers, JSU tried to regroup, but could not pull out the win. Quarterback Mike Watts threw a string of incomplete passes as the final seconds ticked off.

"I will contribute the loss to a poor offense and a poor kicking game," Fuller said. "And I will also contribute it to poor coaching. I thought we had corrected some things in practice, but I guess we didn't. It's awfully hard to take this loss. The kids are pretty down."

All-State quarterback Ed Lett has yet to play this season. Ed is the brother of former JSU quarterback Doc Lett, who set several records while at Jax State. During the game the fans were continuously chanting for the former Glencoe standout.

JSU has an open date next weekend. Their next game will be in two weeks against Tennessee Tech here at Paul Snow Stadium.

The loss dropped JSU's record to 1-2.

Whitely picked player of week

The Gulf South Conference has chosen wide-out Derrick Whitely of Jacksonville State and defensive back Keith Rowell of Mississippi College as the offensive and defensive players of the week for their outstanding play in Saturday's games.

Derrick Whitely, a sophomore wide-out from Birmingham, was instrumental in Jacksonville State's 28-21 win over Alabama A&M as he snagged four passes for 107 yards and scored two touchdowns.

His final TD, a 65 yard bomb from quarterback Mike Watts, proved to be the winning points for Jacksonville. Whitely

School in Birmingham. Rowell, a 6' 171 pound sophomore from Pace, Fla., had six solo tackles, two assists and picked off three

Settle down Leslie, you won't feel a thing

"What we're doing is basically looking at body composition and structure and comparing it with people classified as "world class" to help a coach in recruiting" Gillam said. "It will also help in getting the athletes already on the teams to find their optimal body weight."

Gillam classifies an individual under one of three categories; Roundness—example is a lineman in football. Greek type—example would be a running back or the Jim Thorpe type. Liniarity—the tall thin type and an example

The examination will include deciding your Somato-type (body shape, physique), your Anaerobic Power (explosive power) and your maximum oxygen up-take (amount of oxygen needed for various exercises and sports).

"What most people don't realize is that a person doesn't have to jog or work out to get a cardio-vascular effect (working the body enough to burn up calories and exercise the heart)," Gillam added. "A person can do something around the house, like raking leaves, mowing the grass, etc., and lose weight. People just have to get out and do something."

Well Dr. Mac Gillam has definitely got something started here at the university and it should be interesting to see just what comes of it all. I for one am going to let him check me out, because I really do wonder how fat I am. I hope to see you there too, when he starts examining students. It will help anyone who would like to see themselves in "perfect" shape.

Clark and Watts still tops

Calvin Howard of Mississippi College continues to lead the Gulf South Conference in two categories following the second week of action. Howard leads in both rushing offense and total offense with a 158.5 average.

His closest competitor, Lawson Fletcher of the University of North Alabama, is second in both categories picking up 138.0 yards per game.

In the scoring race, no individual player has surfaced as the leader, with seven different players tied for top honors averaging 6.0 points per game.

Mike Watts is again the passing leader in the conference hitting on 8.5 completions per game for Jacksonville State and Des Ball of Delta State leads all receivers, hauling in six passes in his first two games.

Troy State punter, Mike Quinn, eased past Greg Lowery of Jacksonville State to take over first place in punting, averaging 41.0 on 14 kicks.

UNA's Emmanuel Young again leads in punt returns with an 11.7 clip while A. W. Clark of Jacksonville State heads the kick-off returns with a fine 31.0 average.

UNA dominates the team statistics for the second week leading in total offense (382.3), total defense (177.3), rushing defense (89.7), and scoring defense (8.0).

The Choctaws of Mississippi College hit opponents to the tune of 336.0 yards per game to lead in rushing, while Troy State is tops in passing, throwing for 152.5 yards a game.

Mississippi College and UT-Martin leap-frogged UNA this week to take over first and second place in scoring offense, averaging 22.5 and 19.0 points per game respectively.

"There Is A Party Coming"

Penthouse picks worst teams in nation for '79

Just in time to inject a note of reality into alumni hopes for a winning football season, Penthouse magazine's October issue identifies what sports writer Lawrence Linderman calls "The Penthouse 20 Worst Football Teams of 1979-80."

These teams are not obscure teachers colleges; they are, or have been, potential rivals of the best. But all have fallen on hard times in recent years, and Linderman sees little hope for the football season soon upon us.

The list:

1. Northwestern. Its 0-10-1 record set last year "figures to be even worse in 1979." Says the magazine: "Northwestern's major problems are offense and defense, in both of which they are deficient."

2. Wake Forest. Last season's 1-10 record may turn out to be better than 1979's likely outcome. "Wake Forest may well lose every time out in 1979, including its curtain raiser against unheralded Appalachian State."

3. University of Texas, El Paso. UTEP has won only one game per season since 1975, "and they won't do any better this time around. UTEP's gridiron specialty is the equal-opportunity defense, which allows opponents to score five touchdowns a game without regard to race, creed, color or talent."

4. Vanderbilt. Finishing 2-9 last year, "this fall Vanderbilt will again be atrocious and nothing new that head coach George MacIntyre can say or do will help the Commodores escape what seems to be paramount possession of last place in the Southeastern Conference."

5. Idaho. Last year's 2-9 record isn't likely to be much better this year, but Penthouse concedes that the team might be able to give us less than the 36 points per game it yielded in 1978.

6. Texas Christian University. "Defense will again be the Froggies' short suit, but the same can be said of their offense." Look for another 2-9 season this year.

7. Virginia. After 1979's 2-9 record, Linderman says: "I look for the Cavaliers to beat James Madison this year... and that's about it."

8. Columbia. "The doormat of the Ivy League" in 1979 after last year's 3-5-1 season. Graduations have made the outlook look dimmer.

9. Oregon State. This school had a winning season—in 1970. Last year's record was 3-6-1 and 1979 looks like the ninth consecutive losing season.

10. West Virginia. Another losing season after 1978's 2-9 record, but there is hope: the state legislature has approved a $20 million new stadium and "high school athletes always have an edifice complex. The Mountaineers will begin getting their share of blue-chip players quite soon and should show marked improvement within the next couple of years."

11. Rice. Rice's record for the past three seasons is 3-29. This year, says the magazine, "the Rice defense will again give up twice as many points as the offense can score, which is why the Owls can be expected to check in with a record that will approximate last season's 2-9 performance."

12. Army. The once-mighty football school hasn't been able to attack top high school players, many of whom don't find four years in the Army after graduation an enticing prospect. The loss of eight starting seniors from the '78 season won't help Army either. (Navy, incidentally, is not on the Worst 20 list.)

13. Illinois. Last year's 1-9-2 record foreshadows this year's results. Failure to take to the air with the forward pass was to blame last year, and likely will be again in '79.

14. Boston College. "Hollywood producers could do worse than to study Boston College's 1978 football season for possible adaptation as a movie comedy," Penthouse says. Head coach Ed Chlebek was fired last year—but rehired after his players pleaded that he be given a second chance. After last year's 0-11 record, Boston College "will improve, although not dramatically."

15. Kansas. "The Jayhawks are a decent enough college team, but unfortunately they're playing in a murderously tough conference." Last year's 1-10 record may be a taste of the current season as well.

16. Syracuse. Once the symbol of Eastern football power, the school of Jim Brown, Ernie Davis, Floyd Little and Larry Csonka, the Orangemen have fallen on hard times. This year, "the Orange will be mostly black and blue."

17. San Diego State. Used to winning seasons, this school found introduction to the Western Athletic Conference last year a sobering experience. For '79, "the team has been so depleted by graduations that its chances of finishing near .500 seem very remote."

18. Tulane. The Green Wave's last winning season was in 1973, and the next isn't likely to be this year. "One reason for Tulane's protracted decline is its somewhat steady offense," the magazine says. On the other hand, "the defense won't be able to stop a sneeze."

19. Washington State. Despite the services of the nation's "finest collegiate quarterback," WSU last year had a 3-6-1 record. "Since Washington State was the PAC Ten's easiest team to push around last season, look for their conference foes to really stick it to the Cougars this season."

20. Memphis State. Last year the Tigers were 4-7, their first losing season since coach Richard Williamson took over in 1975, "and this fall will seem like a replay of 1978. It's easy to diagnose what ails the Tigers: their defense has as much muscle as Bianca Jagger."

Why doesn't Band travel?

By CHRIS JACKSON

I talked to Dave Walters, director of Southerners, on why the Southerners couldn't travel with the football team. While asking band members to point me in the direction of his office, I was sure I had a controversial story. So I ran quickly to the top of the stairs and followed their directions to the first office on the right.

There I was greeted at the door by another striving musician who said Dr. Walters was headed downstairs. As we peered through the window, I caught a glimpse of the man and dashed back down the stairs and luckily found him before doing too much damage to property with my leather treads.

Dr. Walters told me everything but that was controversial. He spoke of just how expensive it was for the band to travel and how there just was not as much money to hand out with inflation. But he was also very understanding of the financial problems facing today's colleges and governments. He said there was a good chance that the band would travel to the Troy and Florence games, and he agreed that the time and money spent in the past visiting small colleges was a wasted expenditure especially when the field was more like a cow pasture and the town not much bigger.
