Jim Folsom, Jr. speaks in Anniston

By RANDY HARTLEY

Jim Folsom, Jr., slowly made his way thru the crowd at the grand opening of the Democratic headquarters in Anniston. He moved from the front of the room toward the back, stopping as he entered to talk with the people and shake hands. One old man smiled after he walked by and said with a touch of sentiment, "Big Jim." His father was once governor of Alabama.

FOLSOM

He was easily the most popular man in the room. The TV and hand-held cameras all turned his way, and the reporters flocked around.

The grand opening proceedings started, and Jim Folsom, Jr., got involved in listening, giving a speech, and talking to other reporters. I was waiting for a chance to get him alone. He started leaving the room the same way he had come in—stopping, talking, and shaking hands.

Jim Folsom, Jr., graduated from Jacksonville State University in 1974, with a major in Political Science and History. When asked how much, if any, of his success he would attribute to the fact that he's a Jacksonville State graduate, he said that Jacksonville is "very much a good school academically and culturally. I enjoyed my stay at Jacksonville State. It's the training ground of the world. Everyone seems to treat you fairly." And of course, he called it the "friendliest" campus in the South.

Jim Folsom, Jr., lived in Jax Apartments and Jamestown while in school. He didn't belong to a fraternity. He played tennis, and intramural basketball and football. He worked at the Union Yarn Mills and at the post office in Anniston and said that "work's easy to find" in Jacksonville.

After graduation Jim sold yellow pages, worked for the State Department of Industrial Relations for three years, worked with Reynolds Aluminum in Muscle Shoals, has served on the Public Service Commission for the past two years, and is presently running for the United States Senate.

Homecoming 1980 filled with new innovations

There is something special about Homecoming on a college campus. It's a time when old traditions seem new with the freshness of the autumn air and a brand new football team. Alumni return to their alma mater to participate in the spectacle and excitement of the Homecoming event—the beautiful Homecoming contestants decked out in the newest clothes of the season, the campus with its mixture of old and new, the Marching Southerners—better than ever, and, of course, the football team as it goes for its 35th Homecoming victory.

This year at JSU, the Homecoming Committee has combined traditions of old with some bright new innovations. Homecoming 1980 will include a barbecue on the "Quad" behind Bibb Graves. As students, parents, and alumni enjoy the "home-made" barbecue, potato salad, baked beans, dessert and coffee, they can also enjoy an arts and crafts exhibit sponsored by the art department. Between Hammond Hall and the Round House local craftsmen will be demonstrating and selling their crafts, including miniature houses, baskets, wooden bowls and toys, stuffed animals, quilts and other items. Also, in the Hammond Hall Art Gallery there will be a photographic exhibit with poems in a calligraphy showing a contemporary view of India by artists Bob Penney and Lakin Boyd.

There will be a lot of old friends united by the many reunions at JSU this year. The Music Department is sponsoring their first reunion at Mason Hall following the Homecoming Parade. All faculty, including the new department chairman Dr. James Fairleith, will be present. It is sponsored by the music fraternities, Delta Omicron and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia.

The Class of 1955 will be holding a reunion this Homecoming. Activities will include a class dinner and a social in addition to other Homecoming events.

These are just a few of the activities planned, the rest are printed on the schedule. Tradition is important, newness is important, Homecoming 1980 will prescribe to both.

Casual Comments ... Southerners need your support

Can you imagine a football game without the colorful and exciting group of supporters seated in the end zone that calls themselves the Marching Southerners?

Leanne
Daniel, Editor

Many times the Southerners are taken for granted and not given credit for all they do. It takes a special kind of person to be a musician. One with stamina, determination and especially dedication.

Band people have a rigorous schedule to follow. Many long hours of full band practice a day, called sectionals, and practice time on their own to memorize music all adds up to a hectic week. Don't forget Thursday night practices and pep rallies either.

Free weekends are almost unheard of. Even if the football team has an open date, the Southerners still perform.

The band along with the famed Marching Ballerinas, traveled to Fort Walton Beach, Fla., this past weekend to be the exhibition band at the Gulf Coast Marching Band Festival. Other activities of the Southerners during fall 1980 include hosting the Music Bowl in Gadsden on Oct. 25, marching in homecoming parades and the Veterans Day parade in Birmingham and performing during the halftime at an Atlanta Falcons game.

Southerners are oftentimes stereotyped as "weird" people and I think it is time they were seen from a different angle. This special group of students should be looked at with respect and appreciation, respect for what they do to help better this institution. They alone are one of the biggest recruiting departments at Jax State.

Southerners should also be appreciated by the students. They do a lot for the student body and get very little in return except the feeling of self-satisfaction of knowing they performed a good show.

At the next ballgame or pep rally, instead of hollering rude remarks at this talented group, why not give them your support. Let them know that you enjoy watching their drills and listening to their music.

After all, a football game without the Southerners playing "Dixie" would be like Christmas without Santa Claus.

Kay's Korner...

This year we have created several new branches within the Student Government Association to better or instigate programs in areas in which students voiced complaints.

Deborah Kay,
SGA
President

And one of our new additions is the Intramural committee. Due to the nature and complexity of the Intramurals on campus stemming from the large number of participants and the departments involved, it is very difficult to make a lot of visible progress in this area, although I feel we have accomplished many things.

First of all, we have established a formal channel through which complaints, compliments, etc., can be voiced concerning the Intramural department as well as the various fraternities, independents, etc., who participate in the games. Therefore, the SGA provides an established entity for voicing corrections as opposed to a small, distinct group or individuals.

Secondly, the SGA Intramural Committee was designed to be the voice for the independents who are not represented in the Inter-Fraternity Council. I might add that I urge individuals who are not a member of a fraternity, but would like to submit input, to consult with the Intramural committee.

Thirdly, the Intramural committee was designed to better coordinate the program by working with IFC, and the Athletic Department as an unbiased party. Presently, this function is off to a good start under the Intramural Chairman Joe Henderson who is diligently working to coordinate ideas from IFC, the Athletic Department and the SGA, to adopt working solutions to the problems of the program. The IFC Council and Dick Bell have been very open to our suggestions and we appreciate their cooperation on this program.

Intramurals probably involve more students in active participation and support than any other single activity on campus. The enthusiasm generated from the games makes college life much more exciting, much more exciting and gives one a chance to engage in "healthy" competition.

However, the program definitely has serious problems. If we wish to continue this program, it will take a concerted effort on everyone's part, especially the players. In the past few games, there has been unsportsmanlike conduct portrayed by several players. Contrary to the probable belief of some of these individuals, this will only stigmatize the entire team as "roughnecks." And, pretty soon, the entire program of intramurals will be abolished due to these excessive injuries.

When someone injures one of your players, it is easy for you to become vindictive and fight fire with fire by injuring opposing players. But this is not the method to apply! Although it is hard not to entertain such thoughts, please try to hold back for the sake of the entire program.

I realize that we are not watching or participating in these games for mere fun and exercise. We are out there to win. But if we do not get the program in shape, we will not be able to win or lose, because there will not be a program.

There are many problems which can only be eliminated by the administration. And we are certainly aware of this and are trying to persuade them to implement some of our suggestions which are badly needed.

In closing, I can only ask you as a fan and a team member to try to make the system better and bear with the problems until we can try to eliminate them. If we complain enough, maybe we will incite some action. In the meantime, let's show some class and make the best of a bad situation.

Dormitory life: a new experience

By CATHY WILCOX

Living in a dorm is a new experience. Whether one knew his roommate or met them for the first time upon arriving at Jacksonville State University, the two must learn to live together. The two must not only live together, they must accept and respect the policies of the dorm. Along with these policies there are many rules, regulations and services. Included among these are quiet hours, visiting hours and the intercom system.

First, quiet hours are supposed to be a time when the people on the hall can study, sleep or just meditate. Even though stereos, radios and television have to be turned down, there is still the freedom to listen and enjoy them. Although things are not always quiet, this is a time when each person learns to respect the needs of others living in their dorm.

Another important factor in dorm life is visiting hours.

Persons of the opposite sex are allowed in the rooms during the allotted time on the allotted days. Although there are no specific rules that must be followed while a visitor is in the room, one is required to sign in and out at the monitor's desk.

The intercom system is one of the services provided by the dorm and monitors. When someone receives a telephone call or a visitor the monitor notifies them over the intercom. Of course, the respective person must reply to this page—which could be confusing to a person who doesn't know how the system works. Anyone knows that to talk, the button must be pushed, but the person must also wait till it beeps. Then, their response will be heard by the monitor.

These are just three things involved in dorm life. Each poses a new experience. Along with meeting new people, each person must learn to respect the rights of others and the policies of the dorm.

Right of Center

By Gene Wisdom

Fearfully yours, The Statue of Liberty

Dear Americans,

I have stood out in your New York harbor for almost a century beckoning to those "yearning to breathe free." In droves they came, with the cold wind of tyranny at their backs, many wondering if they would make it in this New World, but all hopeful of the opportunities. You have long held the promise, not of prosperity for all, but of this chance to be a success. How much longer my torch will burn bright, not only in this harbor, but in your hearts also, is a question only you can decide. Already, the flame flickers.

Those who would choke out this fire have grown in number and the power to do so. The closest threat to your rights of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," is your supposed guardian of them—the federal government. You have not only allowed it, but encouraged it, to grow much larger than your Founders had intended. With this growth, has come a contraction of the sphere of your own liberties. In the name of the poor, it has robbed the productive, stealing the initiative of both. In the name of justice are convicted murderers loosed again to prey upon the law-abiding. In the name of economic rights are unions turned loose on the consumers, businesses, and non-union workers to extort higher wages. In the name of sundry other causes are businesses penalized, harassed, driven out of business, and their workers out of jobs, by crusading regulatory agencies. In the name of equality has freedom suffered and, as my torch grows dimmer, you will, as in the past, measure freedom by the size of government, not realizing, as Thomas Jefferson did, that, "The natural progress of things is for liberty to yield and government to gain ground."

While your lack of concern over freedom worries me, your treatment of many of those who have responded to my call is an embarrassment. Thousands have dared to cross barbed-wire and shark-infested waters in order to escape from under their Red shrouds. Others have braved persecution and faced the threat or reality of concentration camp imprisonment in legal efforts to emigrate to your free shores. Many, however, most notably the recent Cuban immigrants and the Vietnamese "boat people" arrived in the land of the free only to face your anger and quotas. Those cruel numbers designed to free the conscience in telling some they are not welcome to partake of and contribute to this miracle called "America." Did not your own forefathers seek refuge here from often less harsh regimes? Do not the words inscribed on my base beckon just as clearly today as only decades ago?

"Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses, yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore."

That many see your glowing ashes of declining liberty as a still-brilliant blaze is a sign of hope. Do not deprive them of that.

What is most alarming about the fate of freedom is the increasing vulnerability of its showcase exhibit. Were the United States surrounded by peaceful neighbors, there would be little reason to arm; reality, however, draws a not-so pleasant picture. Instead, you are in a world constantly endangered by the ideological tyranny of Communism, which every day forces the question in the subtle tones of a ploy called detente: Would you "purchase peace at the price of chains and slavery"? An answer any less resounding than Thomas Paine's "God forbid!" may not be adequate in this world of choices.

I now leave you with many such choices. Is this attractive light of freedom worth saving? Is your choice for security and equality rather than freedom? Shall I hold it aloft for all the world to see? Or shall I hide it from those eyes searching in darkness? Do you have the willpower to save it from its "protector"—a club-wielding Robin Hood in red-white-and-blue garb? Do you have the courage to risk your very lives to preserve it. This torch of freedom can slowly die out from lack of attention or be snuffed out in military defeat.

Or it can be re-kindled and burn brighter than ever before.

Which way, America?

TRUTH comes to Jacksonville

By RANDY HARTLEY

TRUTH came to "the Party Capitol of the South" Thursday, Oct. 9. Unlike most road groups, when I talked to them they knew where they were today, yesterday (Gann Memorial Baptist Church in Charlotte, N. C.), and where they were going to be days in advance. To tour with this group, "You better be well rested" I was told.

I interviewed Kim Noblitt, one of the group's six singers and a native of Denver, about the purpose of the group as they prepared for the 8:00 concert at the Leone Cole Auditorium. He said, "In a world today where there's lots of philosophies, lots of choices of religion, I think our main goal is to convince people that Jesus Christ is the answer.

"The fact (is) that a lot of people feel that they have to work their way to Heaven, or be involved in fanaticism. Christ offers a hope, and Christians work for a common purpose—to spend eternity with Christ.

"Jesus was one of the most contemporary people of his time. (He) changed things for the good. TRUTH . . . thru

Freshmen are remarkable people

By DELISA RUTLEDGE

As a dormitory counselor in a freshman dorm, I am constantly seeing people going through the same things I went through as a freshman. I don't believe that people should pick on freshmen. They are experiencing a drastic change, and they need somebody to listen to their problems and to give them encouragement to climb the mountains that block their way.

Freshmen are really remarkable people. They have shown their maturity by making the decision to further their education. They know that it will allow them to go a step higher in life. I admire the spirit and enthusiasm that most of them have, and at times, I must admit that they are an inspiration to me.

Freshman, I would just like to tell you that you have only begun what will probably be the four most memorable years of your life. I know it can be trying at times, but hang in there and you will become one of the few and proud people to be college graduates.

Letters to the editor— Participate in homecoming activities, you're the only one who can make it happen

Dear Editor,

We need more lighting on campus. The road going to the Jacksonville State Coliseum is much too dark for safety. Girls cannot walk that winding road at night without an escort. Someone could get hit by a car.

If we had about five street lights starting at the Jacksonville State Maintenance Department and ending at the Coliseum tennis courts, this would be enough light for pedestrians to travel safely.

Yours truly,
Keith Angles

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to the article which appeared in the "Right of Center" column by Gene Wisdom in last week's Chanticleer.

The United States has vital interests throughout the world which are threatened by Soviet aggression. This threat is greater today than ever in the past. The Soviets are slowly but surely achieving a strategic advantage over U. S. This is evident with the Soviet troops in Afghanistan not to mention the combat ready Soviet troops in Cuba just 90 miles off the coast of Florida. These moves would never have been made had the Russians not perceived Jimmy Carter as a weak and ineffective leader. Now, the Panama Canal is being returned to the government of Panama which is a puppet regime at the Kremlin.

I just hope the U. S. will take measures before it is too late. Before we awaken and find this nightmare Mr. Wisdom spoke of to be a vast reality.

Tony Tucker

O. K. people, it's HOME COMING! It's parade time and Homecoming Queen time and victory for our football team time. It's time to bring out the winter clothes and the red and white shakers and shout our team on to victory. Sure, it sounds corny but why not? Why does everything have to be sensible and formal. What's wrong with getting out and campaigning for a Homecoming Queen and making a float for the Homecoming Parade? Nothing! Nothing is wrong with it. It's fun and it's tradition and it is Jacksonville State. Other universities get out and really raise some sand during Homecoming. Participate! Or Homecoming will be chalked off another failure like class officers were and the "A" Club was. Traditional events can be fun if people would just participate. It's a shame that a University of our size and quality is enjoyed by so few. Come on, people— PARTICIPATE!

ICC sponsors blood drive

By SUSAN IRWIN

The Blood Drive, sponsored by the ICC (Inter-Club Council) and co-sponsored by the IFC (Inter Fraternity Council) in cooperation with the Red Cross is one of the most worthwhile projects held on JSU campus. The event will be held Oct. 21 and 22 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the third floor of Theron Montgomery Building.

Donna Broome, spokesperson for the ICC, says the Councils hope to exceed last year's count of 400, making the goal this year 500 pints. The ICC has decided to sponsor the drive annually with different co-sponsors each year.

Prospective donors may receive a donor card, to pledge a contribution, from members of the clubs or organizations anytime before the drive. To promote their policy of interaction between the different campus groups, the ICC will have members from the clubs and organizations working in shifts with the Red Cross during the drive.

The club or organization with the largest number of pints registered in their name will receive, from the IFC, a keg or the equivalent cost. A person does not have to be a member to donate a pint of blood in the group's name. Also the Red Cross will award a plaque to the club or organization with the largest percentage of their members donating a pint of blood in their name.

The blood donor must be between 17 and 66 years of age, weigh in at least 105 pounds and must not have given blood in the last six weeks. Any healthy person can give up five to six times a year. The Red Cross advises the giver to have eaten before coming to donate blood.

Open to the public as well as JSU students and faculty, the Blood Drive will be held Oct. 21 and 22 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the third floor of the TMB.

Live from Jax... it's the Moon Pie Players

By JEFF SPEEGLE

At the beginning of the fall semester, Doug Moon and fellow drama students, Sam Marsh, John Musk, Cliff Hannon, Lori Tate, Emily Tearrey, Olivia Spooner, and Becky Scoggins got together and decided that they needed an outlet to display their acting talents, thus, the Moon Pie Players were born. They gave their second big performance Tuesday night at a local nightspot in Jacksonville.

The show opened after Doug came out and thanked the Anniston Community Theatre for the lights which were of no charge to the students, the players then treated the crowd to an hour of comedy and musical satire.

The first skit was written by Doug Moon entitled, "The Yearning," depicting amusing events that took place after a guy (Cliff Hannon) arrived at a girl's (Lori Tate's) house and finds out her parents won't be home for hours.

Lorraine Newman-like Laura West took center stage next and described misfortunate events that a chap named Meilss Bush experienced because of his failure to continue a chain letter.

Afterwards, Meel Choute

(Alias "Tea") sang a ballad which he had written about "Friday Night in Jacksonville," that hit home to more than a few guys among the audience. A two-minute intermission followed during which donations were taken to aid the Drama Department.

The second half of the show featured the two performances which seemed to satisfy the crowd at the Red Rooster Pub and Package Store the most.

The first starred Sam Marsh as a frustrated movie director working with two bungling, leading men, the villain (John Musk) and the hero (Doug Moon), who attempts to save a "fair damsel" (Emily Tearrey).

The entertainment came to a big finale with a trio of female players, accompanied by Hannon on guitar in another Choate masterpiece, "Jacksonville Is Calling Me," satirizing college life, with the rest of the Moon Pie Players joining in the last chorus. Special thanks was handed out to technical director T. J. Campbell for his hard work. Doug hopes to make the performance a weekly event, and is hoping for a standing room only crowd next Tuesday.

their music tries to communicate that Christianity is not a bunch of dos and don'ts. It's a life of freedom."

All the people involved in the organization are Christians, from different denominations. Besides the six singers there are five rhythm players and four horn players. They come from all over the U. S.—with the most being from California—and are based out of Mobile.

Kim said he "enjoys (what he's doing) very much," and it shows. "I'm so glad that it's not a drag to be a Christian," he says, as the group and the audience spend about two hours together rejoicing.

The concert started off with a Barry Manilow tune, "One Voice"—where a solo singer began the song and was joined by a harmonic chorus. The crowd was subdued on the quiet numbers and participant on the more upbeat tunes—clapping their hands and singing along as they did on the old traditional dinner-on-the-ground hymn, "I'll Fly Away." The group sang a Jamaican number, "Jesus Is Lord of The Way I Feel," where four "volunteers" were good-naturedly plucked from the audience to provide island choreography.

Musically the range went from disco to traditional, including some jazz influenced saxophone solos, and presenting the relatively new sound of synthesized drums—plus the crowd's favorite—tricycle horn.

TRUTH has been nominated for a Grammy—the highest award in the music industry—and their Christmas album has been picked up and will be distributed by Columbia.

"Good gospel groups are dying," Kim says. "For every good thing, Christ has, Satan has a counterfeit." What the world and every individual in it needs is love, "Not the love the world has to offer, but the kind of love God has to give. (It) can break the hardest shell." Jesus Christ—the problem solver—the way, the truth, and the light.

As president of the Interfraternity Council I would like to remind everyone of the purpose of the intramural sports program. We should not go on the football field with the idea or the intention of hurting another player. Since the beginning of this season there have been no less than three ambulances called to the IM field. These accidents are totally uncalled for and for the most part avoidable. If a solution to the problem is not arrived at as soon as possible the intramural program may be stopped all together.

As director of the IM Program, we believe Coach Bell should take a more active role in the prevention of these violent acts through whatever means he deems necessary. We also feel that one of the major causes for the games getting out of control is the lack of experience of the officials and their inability to make a decision and stick with it.

The University administration should be aware that a major deterrent to these "problems" would be experienced licensed referees. And we urge the president to consider budgeting this with school funds. We can live with old sidewalks but we can't live with our fraternity brothers (all fraternities) seriously injured because an official does not have the guts to throw a redneck out of a game.

Everyone please remember to control your tempers and try to play a clean game, if the program is to continue.

Bill Morris,
IFC President

ALPHA WEEK OCT. 20-24

Monday, Malcolm X, movie; Tuesday, Alpha program and speaker; Wednesday, black and gold pageant; Thursday, Creek mixer; Friday, Creek show.

The brothers of Xi Xi chapter ask that the whole campus support Alpha Week.

DELTA CHI

By BOB BUTLER

Delta Chi began the week on a good note by evening their IM football record at 2-2 with a 31-0 rout of Sigma Nu. Good offensive line play by Mark Huskey and Tim Weaver enabled Cody Witt to throw four touchdown passes. Steve Trent led the defense with ten stops.

Thursday night, Delta Chi along with the Copper Penny threw an open Western party. Prizes were given away for the best dressed cowboy and cowgirl. Thanks for this party go to the Copper Penny and our own Chi Delphia in making this event a big success.

The Chis have been hard at work this semester. This is evident with a first place in the Miller Drive. With homecoming not far away, plans are now in the works. Our alumni are important to us and we intend to make them feel this way during homecoming.

KAPPA ALPHA ORDER

The brothers of Kappa Alpha would like to thank everyone who attended the party Thursday, Oct. 16, at the armory. The party, which was co-sponsored by KA and IM, featured Cruisomatic and was a huge success.

We would also like to congratulate our football team who, after three games, remains undefeated. The Rebels overcame a tough Kappa Sigma team in a hard fought game 13-7. We would like to wish our team continued success throughout the remainder of the season and during the playoffs.

Wednesday, Oct. 15, nine young ladies who pledged our little sister program in the spring became Southern Belles. These young ladies have served the Delta Phi Chapter faithfully in the past and we are looking forward to their continued support.

The highlight of our fall semester came this past weekend when the brothers and pledges embarked on a brotherhood weekend for our annual fall retreat. Everyone had a great time and the weekend as usual was one to be remembered. This year the retreat was held at Riverside.

Plans are now being made for homecoming which is only two weeks away. Homecoming is always a special time for the KAs because of the great JSU tradition involved with homecoming and also because of the parents and alumni participation during the homecoming week. We are looking forward to this year's homecoming. We would like to wish all the girls in the court the best of luck and we hope to see campus-wide participation in this year's festivities.

KAPPA SIGMA

We would like to announce our new little sisters for this year. We have an excellent group of girls and we look forward to their participation in the fraternity:

SIGMA NU

The brothers of Iota Lambda Chapter of the Sigma Nu Fraternity are having an open casino at our house on the evenings of Oct. 22 and 23. We encourage everyone to participate during the Wednesday and Thursday night parties.

We would also like to take this opportunity to congratulate our new little sisters. We feel we have the finest group of little sisters in our chapter history. They have many activities planned for the fall including a hayride and participation in the homecoming display.

The brothers would like to thank John Hendrix for his hard work as Little Sister Coordinator. His efforts have played an important role in the success of our current little sister program.

Also we would like to thank Zeta Tau Alpha for their participation in a recent mixer. The theme was MASH and refreshments from the Swamp were served.

DELTA ZETA

By DEBBIE HOLT

Everyone is invited to attend the Delta Zeta - Phi Mu powder puff football game Tuesday, Oct. 21, at 3. There will be a beverage bust Tuesday night at the Copper Penny sponsored jointly by the two sororities.

Homecoming nominations have been turned in and the girls selected by the pledge class are Tina Grant and Julie Ross. Vickie Page and Tammy Ellison are representing the active class.

The Officers Club at Fort McClellan was the setting Thursday night for a mixer between Delta Zeta and Scabbard and Blade. A disco system was used and it served to make a more enjoyable time for everyone. This was the first mixer for Scabbard and Blade. The sisters of Delta Zeta thank them for all the effort and thought they put into this event.

Another event on the social calendar is an upcoming mixer with Alpha Tau Omega on Oct. 28.

Delta Zeta will sponsor an open party Thursday, Oct. 30. The sisters encourage students to come out and party before homecoming.

They are looking forward to breaking a new record for attendance.

If someone should knock on your door Halloween night with customs and UNICEF badges, don't panic, it's only the Delta Zetas trick or treating for UNICEF. Please help them in their project.

PHI MU

By DONNA MORRIS

Phi Mu pledges have been active with a car wash held last Thursday at Hammett's Amoco. They also sold donuts Friday morning as a fund raiser.

Eleven Phi Mus will be initiated the week of Oct. 20-25. The sisters are proud of these girls and of all the hard work they did during their pledgship. The Phi Mu-Delta Zeta powder puff football game is being held today at 3. Everyone is welcome to come join us at the Copper Penny afterward for an open party.

Phi Mu would like to thank everyone who supported our open party featuring Cruisomatic last week. A special thanks goes to Kappa Alpha Order for co-sponsoring the event. A good

How to study and learn

By RANDY HARTLEY

If anybody ever needed to attend a seminar on "How to Study," I'm the one. That's exactly what I did last Wednesday (8) at the Center for Individualized Instruction, located on the first floor of the Ramona Wood Building. I had been up late the night before cramming for a history quiz. That's not the way to study.

Four sections of the topic, "How to Study," were being discussed by Dr. Claudia McDade, director of the center, graduate assistants Sherrie Blanton, Jean Grimsley and Loni Willanzheimer, and undergraduate Jenny Smith. The section topics were "How To Take Exams," "How To Pick Out Key Ideas From the Text," "How To Psyche Out Your Professor," and "How To Develop A Study Schedule and Stick to It." Each section lasted for only 25 minutes, and in that short span of time, the lecturers were able to convey some valuable information.

You should devote two hours to studying for every hour you spend in class. Spread out your subjects to study for in a week.

This may seem like more time than you think you have available, but if you budget your time and stick to a rigid studying schedule, then you'll find you have more time to do what you want to do, and less time to worry about failing. Don't wait until the last minute to do what has to be done—studying. The best way to discipline yourself for studying is by rewarding yourself immediately when you get the job done, but make sure the reward is proportional to the accomplishment. Ten pages of reading does not rate a ten-inch pizza—a Coke maybe, or a listen to a cut from the latest Queen album, but not a pizza. And punish yourself if you don't get it done. Settle for a swallow of water and get back to work.

Don't try to study on an empty stomach, or after eating a big meal. Sugar, as you may know, will give you a burst of energy, but it will bring you down as quickly as it picks you up, and will ultimately tend to make you drowsy. And you don't want to be asleep while you're trying to study. Well, you may want to, but you'll never learn anything that way. It's best to munch on something that contains protein just before you study.

Study as soon after class as possible. Find a place—one place—where you can always study. And study. Don't goof off. Good lighting, good ventilation (you don't have to stop breathing while you study), no visual distractions (don't sit by a window where you can watch the Southerners practice), and peace and quiet are conducive elements to studying.

Study your hardest course when you're most awake. It helps to scan the material before you start, and review for the last five or ten minutes of study. Make sure you're retaining something. Don't study similar subjects back-to-back. There's a chance it could only lead to confusion. Take a break for five or ten minutes at the end of each hour if you plan to study any longer than one hour.

Take the time to acquaint yourself with your instructors. Most of them tell you at the beginning of the semester who they are and where you can find them during office hours. At Jax State we have a low student-teacher ratio, and the opportunity is there to get to know your instructors. They don't bite—not during office hours anyway.

Ask questions if you don't understand something. Try asking specific, intelligent questions, but remember, "The only stupid question is the one you don't ask," says Dr. McDade. Ask the professor how to study for his course. Tell him how you do it, and see if he has a better suggestion.

Attend class. Be attentive. Smile and nod when you're in agreement with what's being said. Don't fall asleep in class. That's being tacky.

You should know that professors are not allowed to use a student as a bad example by humiliating him in class, and any instructor who's exemplifying such tasteless behavior should be immediately reported to the department chairman, and the department dean. Something can be done about it. Remember, you are the consumer here. If you don't get what you paid for it's your fault.

I've only scanned a portion of the surface of what you can learn by taking a course called "Academic Survival Skills." An indepth study of this material offered by the Center for Individualized Instruction. They also offer other courses on an individualized format that allow you to work at your own pace, in chemistry, biology, psychology, history and math.

Is that all there is to it?

Starting in January they'll have micro-processors that allow you to practice for such tests as the LSAT, MCAT and GRE. But go by and see for yourself. If you're that interested you'll find somebody there who's interested in helping you.

Outlaws pick up two more wins

By TRACY PFANNKUCHE

The Outlaws defeated BCM 27-25 and CIA 32-14, but lost to Solid Gold 28-25 in their games this week, while BCM defeated CIA, 20-12.

Outlaws started things off with a touchdown by Kevin McGee, but the PAT was no good so they led 6-0.

The next score game from a pass to Benjie Duvall from Steve Willingham, however, the conversion was stopped. The score was 12-0.

BCM got things going with a pass down the middle to Bill Wilks who ran it in. The conversion was stopped and they trailed the Outlaws, 12-6.

It was the Outlaws turn again as they scored on another pass from Willingham to Duvall, again the conversion was no good so they led 18-6.

BCM came back to score on a pass to Greg Rosser from Darrell Hill, the PAT was good so they then trailed 18-13.

The Outlaws scored again on a short pass to McGee. The conversion failed so they led 24-13.

But BCM came right back on a great run by Bill Wilks, the PAT was blocked and that left the score 24-19.

BCM scored again on a pass from Darrell Hill to Myron King, the conversion no good, so they led by a point 25-24.

In the last minute of play Benjie Duvall kicked a field goal to lift the Outlaws over BCM 27-25.

In the BCM-CIA game, BCM got the first score on a touchdown pass from Darrell Hill to Darrell Kirk. The PAT was no good so they led 6-0.

Campus Inn came back with a 75 yard touchdown pass from Greg Kesterson to Mark Cosper, the PAT failed so it was tied 6-6.

BCM got the lead on a touchdown pass from Hill to Kick again, and again the PAT failed so they led.

In the second half a 60 yard punt return set up a touchdown for CIA, who scored on a run by Greg Kesterson that tied up the score 12-12.

BCM then scored on a 3-yard run by Bill Wilks, the conversion was good on a pass from Ken Pugh to Darrell Hill and gave BCM a 20-12 victory.

The Outlaws then played CIA and defeated them 32-14.

Their first score came from Mike Monnett who ran up the middle 65 yards for the score.

Then the Outlaws got a safety and led 8-0. They scored again on a pass from Steve Willingham to Kevin McGee and made the point after conversion on a kick by Benjie Duvall. They led 13-0.

Willingham passed to McGee again who sprinted down the left sidelines for the score. Benjie kicked the point after conversion and they led 20-0.

CIA got things started with a 50 yard run by Dennis Easterwood. Bobby Watson's kick was good so they trailed 20-7.

A punt return by Easterwood set up their next touchdown which came on a pass from Kesterson to Mark Cosper, Watson again got the point after as they closed the gap to 20-14.

The Outlaws were able to get into the end zone on a hand off to Mike Monnett who ran it in the conversion failed, so they led 26-14.

An interception by Tracy Billings set up their final touchdown. This time it was Benjie Duvall who scored. The fake conversion failed and left them with a 32-14 win.

Solid Gold almost had their first loss of the season as they held on to defeat the Outlaws 28-25.

Dennis Sheffield got things going for Solid Gold on a touchdown run on a pitch out from Sammy Davis. Davis then connected with Chuck Gill for the conversion to give them an 8-0 lead.

The Outlaws then came back to score on a pass that was tipped up and caught by Chris Leaks who ran it into the end zone, the PAT was good so they trailed 8-7.

Their next score came from Ricky Lundy on a 70 yard break, the PAT was no good so they then led 13-8.

Bob Shofield then intercepted and pitched it to Tony Taylor who ran it in for Solid Gold. The conversion was no good so they took the lead 14-13.

But the Outlaws battled back and scored on a pass from Steve Willingham to Mike Monnett, their conversion failed so they led 19-14.

Solid Gold came back on a long bomb from Davis to Sheffield for the conversion to retake the lead 22-19.

It wasn't that way for long as the Outlaws came up with the ball on an interception by John Harper. Their touchdown came on a pass from Willingham to Monnett, Benjie Duvall kicked the PAT and they led 25-22.

But Marty Dockins was to save the day for Solid Gold as he ran a flip pass from Sammy Davis for 70 yards to score their final touchdown, the conversion was stopped and enabled Solid Gold to pull out a 28-25 victory.

ROTC adventure trip exciting

By MARK HOWARD

The annual ROTC fall adventure trip took many students to Mentone, home of the Cloudmont Winter and Summer Resort. The sponsors provided a cook out and dance for everyone on Friday night. Everyone had the chance to sleep on the ground, that had never slept in a small two man floorless tent. Many of the girls felt a little bit of nature that night with the rustling leaves and creepy spiders crawling over them. Sitting around the big campfire was enjoyable.

The night was forgotten the next morning. Although it was a crisp morning, everyone was up getting their things together and tearing down camp. The days activities took many students to DeSota Falls. There was a rappel set up at the falls and many students rappelled beside the falls 120 feet to the canyon below. To say the least everyone was exhausted after the 2 hour hike to the site, then rappelling, and the 2 hour hike back to the pick up point.

A few students enjoyed their day exploring Little Mountain in search for caves. They finally found some but they were a little disappointing because they were so small. No one regretted the exploration. They found the scenic hike and the fire tower on top of the mountain worthwhile. From atop the tower, the countryside was unbelievable. It was a real nice weekend for the trip. Good weather was enjoyed, wish I could say the same for this weekend's activity.

The Rangers and Juniors will have a cool, maybe cold, wet FTX. A field training exercise would not be appropriate without the cold and rain. It's a great experience to be in the field. It gives cadets a brief introduction of what patrolling and maneuvering in a real combat situation would be like.

Kenny Stokes, sophomore defensive back from Covington, GA., has been named the Miller Sports athlete of the week for his contributions in Jacksonville State's 7-3 victory over Tennessee Tech last week in Cookeville, TN.

Stokes blocked a field goal, intercepted a pass and recovered a fumble deep in Gamecock territory to stop a late drive and save the win for Jax State.

Defensive line, a big asset

By TIM STRICKLAND
The Gamecocks' five and one record cannot be totally attributed to any one section of the team, but the defensive line has certainly played a key role in the success.

"Our defense is carrying us right now," commented head coach Jim Fuller. And at the heart of the Gamecock defense is a stalwart line that seems to enjoy breaking opposing runners into. "We have been doing well against the run but we do need to improve our pass rush," Fuller noted.

Starting at JSU's defensive tackles are Mike Inman, a 247 pound senior, and Frankie O'Dell, a 229 pound junior. Playing time at the noseguard position has been split between 191 pound Billy Dillard, a junior, and Alvin Wright, a 240 pound freshman. By now these names are common to the avid Jax State fan, but be listening in games to come for the less conspicuous names of Dana Kahele, David Ford, and Wade Stone. "We expect all three of these men to see action this year," Coach Fuller said. "In fact," he added, "Wade Stone played in Inman's place in the Tennessee Tech game and did a good job." Inman was sidelined due to injuries.

STONE

Ford and Kahele are putting in their licks on the special teams right now, but their chance may come soon if the starters don't stay healthy.

"We've had a real problem with injuries this season but this long break should give us time to heal our wounds," commented the coach. The break is indeed a long one—three weeks. When the Gamecocks return to the playing field on Nov. 1, they'll face Delta State in JSU's homecoming.

While the spotlight has shone brightly on the defense, the Gamecock offense appears to still be groping for the lightswitch. But Coach Fuller is hoping to step up the offensive attack for the remainder of the season. "When the offense doesn't perform well, two people share in the blame—the head coach and the quarterback," Fuller said. "But on behalf of quarterback, Ed Lett," Fuller added, "if all of Ed's catchable passes had been caught things might be different. But that's not the way it is. To quote a friend," Fuller summed up, "If ifs and buts were candy and nuts we'd all have a merry Christmas."

Delta Chi shuts out Sigma Nu with 31 - 0 score

By BOB BUTLER
Delta Chi defeated Sigma Nu 31-0 behind the passing of Cody Witt and a stubborn defense led by Steve Trent. On the first play of the game, Eddie McKelvey took in a pass from Witt and ran 80 yards for a touchdown. The conversion was no good and Delta Chi led 6-0.

Early in the second quarter, Delta Chi scored again on a 50 yard touchdown pass by Witt to Greg Boatwright. The conversion was again no good and Delta Chi led 12-0. After a Sigma Nu fumble at their own 21 yard line, Delta Chi scored again on another pass from Cody Witt to Eddie McKelvy, good for 15 yards and a 18-0 lead.

With only 16 seconds left in the first half, Witt threw his fourth touchdown pass of the game to Steve Trent. The conversion was good and Delta Chi led 25-0. A 20 yard touchdown run by Greg Boatwright ended the scoring in the third quarter. Delta Chi led 31-0 and the game was called at the end of the third quarter because of the IM 30 point rule.

Pi Kappa Phi defeats Delta Chi

By TRACY PFANNKUCHE
Pi Kappa Phi defeated Delta Chi by a score of 24-7 on Thursday. David Strickland made all three touchdowns for Pi Kap.

David's first touchdown came on a 65 yard screen pass, his next one on an eight yard off tackle run, and his last one on a 12 yard option. Besides his touchdowns, David accumulated 166 yards. Pi Kapp's only other score came from a 25 yard field goal by Russell Andrews.

Delta Chi's scoring came from a Beatwright run of 50 yards, their conversion came from a pass from Cody Whitt to Beatwright again. Their next score was from Eddie McKelvy on a punt return, the conversion was no good.

Final score Pi Kappa Phi 24-Delta Chi 14.

Kappa Alpha squeezes by Kappa Sigma

By TRACY PFANNKUCHE
Kappa Alpha defeated Kappa Sigma by a score of 13-7 to remain the only undefeated team in Greek play.

Kappa Alpha got the first score with a touchdown from Mike Fleming who rolled in on the right side on some good blocking by the Rebels. The PAT was no good however, so they led 6-0, and that's the way it ended at the half.

In the second half after the teams had switched possessions, KA got started again. After several penalties the Rebels capitalized on a long run by Bill Bolt. Then Mike Fleming again rolled in on the right side, but this time, David Smith shot it through the uprights to give the Rebels a 13-0 lead.

Kappa Sigma finally got things going late in the second half when Dennis Alverson flicked the ball to John Cooper who broke down the left sideline for the score. The point after was made by Gary Rayburn—leaving the score 13-7.

Late in the fourth period the Sigs tried to score but were held on fourth down when Frank Norman penetrated the line and got to Sig's quarterback Ken Frasier.

KA rolls toward another win

O'Kelly ... an All American golfer

By JEFF SPEEGLE

Last May, Butch O'Kelly went to Houma, La., to play in the NCAA Division II Championship Golf Tournament. Before he teed off to start the tournament, he had problems telling people where Jacksonville State was located. Four days, 72 holes later, they knew. Butch shot a 72-hole total of 292, just three shots behind the champion—quite a feat, since there were 120 players competing in the tournament. The performance earned his first team All American honors, one of only three in the South to do so.

Butch was born in Madison, Tenn., just outside of Nashville, the second of three children. While he was at Madison High School his interests, as far as sports are concerned, were not limited to golf alone. He was on cross-country, wrestling, baseball and basketball teams also. His interest in golf was sparked at the age of 13, when he and a friend played for the first time. Butch cannot remember his exact score, but it was in the "100s range," he confesses. The reason he gives for pursuing the game is the individualistic aspect of the sport. "If you make a bad score, it's your fault, nobody else's, while on a basketball team, blame can be shifted." This is not to imply that Butch is not a good team player. On the contrary, as JSU golf coach Steve Bailey cites, "Butch is a good team player, the best I've had. He's more interested in the team than in himself."

As he progressed through high school, Butch began to give more attention to golf. He entered tournaments and steadily improved his score and got over his anxiety of playing in front of spectators. The significant effort that brought him much attention was the two under par 70 he shot in a district tournament his senior year in high school to take championship honors.

Butch gives much of the credit to his mother for guidance and encouragement through the years. She paid for transportation to a few out-of-state tournaments that Butch participated in, the most memorable being the one he played in Florida on the days of final exams. "I told my principal that I was going down there to represent the school and that it would bring the school much attention. He fell for it and excused me from final exams." Butch and two of his friends teamed up to win the tournament.

Butch played his first two years of collegiate gold at John C. Calhoun Junior College in Decatur, where he held the number one spot and led his team to a respectable finish in the state tournament. "I feel we could have won if we had had more team unity," he stated. After his stay at Calhoun, he came to Jax State. "I like the friendly, relaxed atmosphere and I thought a lot of Coach Bailey when I first met him."

Apparently, Coach Bailey thinks a lot of him, too, as he says, "Butch is very coachable. I wish I had 12 like him. He's a fine leader and a fine young man. The other members respect him very much." Bailey goes on to say, "I think he'll definitely be one of the top players in the country again this year. It's good to have an All-American on the squad. It gives us a base to work with this year." Bailey harbors no doubts that Butch will want to try the minitour with the pros after graduation. The golf coach declares that the reason Butch did so well in the National Tournament is because, "He plays in the toughest district in the nation. Our district has produced a national champion three out of the last four years."

Butch's plans for the future are to work with the team toward a national title as well as take another crack at championship dignity himself and graduate from JSU with a degree in Management.

He has some thoughts about joining the pro minitour, but right now he insists that's far off in the future. "I have to concentrate on this season before I worry about professional golf. I still have an obligation to my team."

Even after Butch has graduated, the O'Kelly name will live on at Jax

State. His younger brother, Mickey, is a freshman on the JSU golf team this year. Butch finished by saying that Mickey and the other freshmen have a lot of desire and really want to better the team this year.

Teamwork: key to success

"Teamwork," according to JSU's head volleyball coach, Janice Pace, is the key ingredient for winning volleyball games.

The girls boast a 18 and 6 record.

"Our losses are due to inconsistent team efforts," contends the attractive coach. "We are just now beginning to play as a team."

"The Martin, Tenn., tournament helped us a lot in regard to team effort," she continued.

The girls made a good showing in the tournament by placing third in a field of 12. Teams competing were of divisions one, two and three.

"We're a fairly young team," coach Pace said. "Of our 12 players, only two are seniors."

One of the seniors, 5 foot tall Ana Recurt, was named to the all-tournament team in Martin, Tenn. (Apparently, good things do come in small packages.)

"For us to go to the state tournament we must finish at least fourth out of the six teams in our district," coach Pace concluded.

The girls will play a double-header on Oct. 25 at home against Livingston at 11:30 and Tuskegee at 3:00. Let's go watch 'em!
