Despite increase

Tuition still lowest in state

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Despite the fact that student tuition was increased this year, JSU still ranks as the least expensive in the state, Ben Kirkland, University comptroller, said.

Kirkland said tuition accounts for 19 percent of the University's operating budget. The rest of the budget is derived from state appropriations (67 percent); auxiliary services (10 percent); and miscellaneous services (4 percent).

"We are able to operate with lower tuition rates because our administrative costs are lower than the other state schools, and we have fewer people working in administrative positions. That means we are more efficient and more effective at doing our job than the others," he said.

Kirkland sees the future of JSU as very bright, and predicts that the situation will get better instead of worse.

"We have hard-working employees, good programs established and good students who are determined to achieve a quality education here. With the new president and the new ideas he has planned, I believe we are heading in the right direction," he said.

Plans underway to upgrade dorms

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

For those students who continue to complain about conditions of the male and female dormitories, things are looking up.

A special planning committee, headed by Dr. Bascom Woodward, vice president of university services, is now underway in an effort to improve campus housing. Funding for the project is coming from a $3 million state bond issue allocated to University dormitories.

The committee, composed of Woodward, Anniston architect Julian Jenkins, and other administrative officials, is holding weekly meetings to discuss ideas.

Miriam Higginbotham, dean of housing and a committee member, also plans to visit each dorm so that the students can present their opinions on how to improve dorm life. One such meeting will take place tonight at 7 p.m. in Pannell Hall.

"Our main purpose is to upgrade the dorms in a long-range plan that would benefit the largest number of students living on campus," Higginbotham said.

The number one priority on the committee's list is the removal of asbestos from the dormitories, Higginbotham said. Other changes they hope to achieve include the rearrangement of rooms, the addition of new furniture, and new treatment of the floors, walls and bathrooms.

In all, twelve dormitories will be included in the upgrading project - Daugeette, Fitzpatrick, Weatherly, Rowan, Curtiss, Sparkman, Logan, Dixon, Pannell, Abercrombie, Crowe and Luttrell Hall. These twelve dorms account for 1,887 students attending the University this fall. Only Salls Hall and the International House will be excluded.

"Our goal is to make dormitories the place to live for our students. I'd like to see students feel that dorms are safer, more economical, more active and enable them to meet more people. But most important, I'd like to see them happy with where they live," she said.

The committee also plans to visit other universities in order to discover the national trend in dormitories and how to best meet student needs.

"Any students who have suggestions on how to improve the dorms are welcome to come see me or can contact me at ext. 5297," Higginbotham said.

Task forces established

As the first step in developmental planning for Jacksonville State University's future, a 1986 - 87 academic year project has been initiated to establish "New Horizons for Excellence." The project will be conducted by several task forces appointed by President Harold McGee.

The membership of these committees will include faculty, staff, students, alumni, and community representatives. The charge given to each task force will be to initiate feasibility studies for the salient issues for their area of responsibility and to report recommendations and priorities for accomplishments that will contribute to the quality and excellence of the University.

The task force areas and chairmen are presented in the lists that follow:

Academic Programs - William A. Meehan, chairman

Admission, Recruiting and Retention - Dr. Jerry Smith, chairman

Advancement, Alumni and Community Services - Pete Brooks, chairman

Athletics and Recreation - Jerry Cole, chairman

Graduate Studies, Continuing Education and Outreach - Dr. William Cart, chairman

Institutional Purpose and Goals - Dr. James Reaves, chairman

Professional Development - Gary Dempsey, chairman

Student Life - Dr. Don Schmitz, chairman

Support Services - Claude Gaddy, chairman

University Campus - Dr. Dan Marsengill, chairman.

In the 1987 - 88 academic year, McGee hopes the findings and recommendations of the "New Horizons" effort will be utilized to develop an "institutional model" for JSU's future growth and development.

Financial reporting conference showcases leading journalists

By Marti Hamilton

A Pulitzer Prize winning journalist and a former federal budget director will address business reporters from across the region during a conference Friday, October 3, from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. on the 11th Floor of the Houston Cole Library.

"Financial Reporting in the Sunbelt South" is the title of the conference sponsored by the JSU Center for Southern Studies, Sigma Delta Chi, and the Alabama Press Association.

James Polk of NBC News will deliver the opening address, entitled "Financial Reporting is Really Political Reporting". Polk, a Pulitzer Prize-winning investigative reporter based in Washington, covers political corruption and crime stories for NBC.

Polk's assignments have included Abscam, the Raymond Donovan investigations and indictment, the Geraldine Ferraro-John Zaccaro finances, the Bert Lance case, the Billy Carter payments, the John Hinckley assassination attempt and various bribery cases in Congress. He has also reported on the Tylenol murders in Chicago, the children's murders in Atlanta, the Jonestown tragedy, major Mafia cases in New York, and baseball's cocaine scandal.

He received the 1974 Pulitzer Prize for national reporting for his Watergate coverage while with the Washington Star. He has received the Sigma Delta Chi award for national reporting and the Raymond Clapper Award twice for Washington investigative reporting. He was honored by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for his murder and insanity series on "NBC Nightly News." Polk received a degree in political science from Indiana University.

The keynote address at noon will be delivered by Bert Lance, former Georgia banker and, in 1977, director of the Office of Management and Budget under President Carter. Lance received degrees from the University of Georgia and Emory University. He went on to do graduate work at The Louisiana State University School of Banking of the South and the Stonier Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University in New Jersey.

Alan Pulsipher, Chief economist for the Tennessee Valley Authority will deliver an address in the afternoon. Pulsipher served as a senior staff economist with the Council of Economic Advisers under Presidents Ford and Nixon. He is a graduate of the University of Colorado and holds a Ph.D in Economics from Tulane University in New Orleans.

Other participants include the following: Jane DuBose, Chris Welles, Bill Brown, Dallas Lee, Luke Stanton, Randy Henderson Carol Nunnelle, Stephen Bradley, Chris Waddle, Tom Roberts, John Woods, Alan Kianoff, and John Maynard.

Both the window and screen, far left, were badly damaged International House window broken

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

A male JSU student was arrested by University police and charged with criminal mischief and reckless endangerment last Thursday night in connection with a bedroom window broken at the International House, Dr. David Nichols, chief of University police, said.

Shortly after 3 a.m. on Sept. 25, the suspect allegedly threw a concrete block at a first floor bedroom window located on the far left of the International House. The impact shattered the window and awakened the two residents of the room.

One student, whose bed was underneath the window, awoke to find herself and her bed linen covered with glass fragments. However, she received no injuries.

The suspect was taken to the Jacksonville city jail where he was released shortly following his arrest.

•On Sept. 6, an area male was arrested and charged with the third degree assault of a female student at a University dorm.

•On Sept. 18, an area male was arrested and charged with trespassing in the third degree after his refusal to leave the grounds of Rowan Hall.

•On Sept. 19, a male student was arrested and charged with harassing communication after he allegedly made several obscene phone calls to other male students in Pannell Hall. Nichols said the suspect was apprehended as a result of the campus police using a special system that enabled them to trace the source of the calls.

served as vice president of the Afro American Association and as a disc jockey at 92-J.

His hobbies include playing basketball, practicing karate and martial arts. He also enjoys 'rappin' and spinning records, a talent which caused Jackson to be nicknamed 'Mr. J' by his friends after using his talent at several sorority and fraternity parties.

"Since Jerry is such an outgoing, active student, I thought he knew he had an excellent chance at being selected. I'm proud of him," Mallisham said.

Jerry Jackson, a 22-year-old junior from Talladega, was recently selected to appear in the 1986 volume of Outstanding Young Men in America.

As stated in its organizational brochure, the purpose of the Outstanding Young Men of America Awards Program is "to honor young men throughout the nation who have achieved success in their fields, are heavily involved in community activities and provide services to others.

This award is bestowed upon less than two percent of the eligible young Americans.

"I'm very appreciative of this award. I want other people to be able to look at it as a sign that hard work does pay off," Jackson said.

He also extended his appreciation to Dr. Ivy Mallisham, CDCS counselor, who nominated him for the award.

Jackson, who is majoring in management and minoring in drama, has been involved in several activities on campus.

In the 1982-83 school year, he was a member of the Rangers, parliamentarian of Phi Beta Lambda (a national business fraternity), and an SGA senator. Last spring, he

ROTC Week

Cadets return from summer camp

While most JSU students were vacationing this summer, 36 JSU ROTC cadets spent six weeks at Fort Riley, Kansas, where they were mentally and physically tested on their ability and willingness to become officers in the U.S. Army.

This proved to be one of the most intensive training they would experience in their quest to become commissioned officers in the U.S. Army.

Leadership skills demonstrated at camp, coupled with graded performance on the training objectives, were the deciding factors in the final platoon rankings at camp, as well as the overall camp performance standings.

Essentially, camp performance, along with ROTC performance and the Professor of Military Science evaluation determine the type of military careers, whether active duty or reserve duty, and the branch or job specialty each cadet receives.

While at camp, students were exposed to a stimulating variety of training.

Camp was conducted in a progressive manner beginning with basic military skills, leadership reaction, weapons training, individual tactical training, patrolling, combined arms and squad training, tactical application exercises, platoon tactics and the ultimate challenge - a four-day, three-night tactical exercise which tested all the acquired knowledge of the cadets.

Each student received performance evaluations throughout camp in each leadership position held in their military proficiency. In the areas evaluated, 58 percent of JSU's cadets finished in the top third of the cadets at Ft. Riley, Kansas.

Rounding out the summer, 28 cadets also qualified for the coveted RECONDO award by successfully completing the Army Physical Fitness test, Land Navigation course, the "slide for life" 40-foot rope drop, and 35 and 50 foot rappels from a tower.

Back in the classroom this fall, as MS IV's, they will continue to polish their skills in anticipation of commissioning in the spring. One of their missions as MS IV's will be to assist in preparing the new MS III's for their attendance at Advanced Camp next summer.

ROTC cadets finish first in region

This summer 35 ROTC cadets from JSU finished first in the Third ROTC Region, surpassing all schools sending 26 or more students to Ft. Riley, Kansas which includes the University of Alabama and Auburn University.

These standings were determined by their overall performance in Land Navigation, the Physical Fitness test, Job Performance, Tactical Exercise Lanes and Rifle Marksmanship. In all areas evaluated, JSU exceeded the camp averages.

JSU also finished number one on the Army Physical Fitness test. The Physical Fitness test consisted of pushups, situps and a 2-mile run. Out of the 90 universities attending camp, JSU exceeded the camp average of 267 points with 288 points out of a possible 300. This brought the Camp Commander's Physical Proficiency award to JSU for the second year in a row.

ROTC Proclamation

In recognition of the contributions of the United States Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps to the preservation of freedom and safeguarding of our nation throughout our history, we are proud to honor the Army ROTC Program at Jacksonville State University.

This year marks the 38th anniversary of the Army ROTC Program at JSU. Over 1050 officers have entered military service through the Army ROTC Program since the first group of 14 officers was commissioned in 1950.

This year, as in the past, the military science department has dedicated itself to professionalism in the army through excellence in the classroom. Scores of prior Jacksonville State ROTC graduates are serving well and proudly in the active army, the Army Reserve, and the Alabama National Guard.

It is for continuous exemplary service to our state and nation, and for support of our citizen-soldier concept, that the week of September 27 through October 3, 1986 is proclaimed as Army ROTC Week at Jacksonville State University.

For student loans

Life insurance is not necessary

Students and their parents do not need to buy life insurance policies in order to gain access to guaranteed student loans. Alabama students already enjoy access to the Guaranteed Student Loan Program through over 100 banks, savings & loan associations, and credit unions that participate in the Alabama Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

The Alabama Guaranteed Student Loan Program has been receiving an increasing number of inquiries concerning a sales technique in which students and parents are being told that the purchase of a life insurance policy will guarantee them a student loan when they attend college.

The basic feature of this proposal is to package an insurance policy with a conditional commitment for a guaranteed student loan from an out-of-state insurance company. The implication is that the purchase of an insurance policy will make it possible for the student to borrow a student loan which he or she might not otherwise receive.

The eligibility for a guaranteed student loan is determined on the basis of a student's family income, financial need, cost of education, and other criteria that may have nothing to do with the purchase of life insurance.

Students and their parents should be cautioned to be very careful in dealing with the out-of-state insurance companies claiming to be lenders participating in the government-sponsored loan program. Insurance companies that participate in the program must follow the same rules and regulations for student eligibility as banks and other lenders.

Claims by insurance agents to guarantee access to a student loan should be closely examined to determine if the loan will be made available to the student regardless of whether the student qualifies for the federal interest subsidy or not. If the insurance company makes unsubsidized student loans, as well as the federal subsidized student loans, the promises of eligibility by the insurance agent are not illegal but may be misleading.

If a student qualifies for a subsidized guaranteed student loan, he can receive the loan from Alabama lending institutions regardless of whether or not he purchases the life insurance policy.

If the student financial aid officer at the institution the student is attending determines the student is not eligible for a subsidized loan, it is possible for some students to obtain unsubsidized guaranteed student loans from out-of-state insurance companies.

Such unsubsidized student loans are a resource and must be considered by the student financial aid officer in awarding other forms of financial aid or delivering other award dollars.

Only the State Insurance Commission has regulatory control over out-of-state insurance companies and agents doing business within the State of Alabama.

However, if anyone has information relative to insurance companies or agents providing inadequate or incorrect information to elementary students, high school students, college students, or their parents, they are urged to notify Larry Smith, director of financial aid or Richard Takacs, University liaison, at 269-2700.

Shaw to assist Mimosa

By VICKY WALLACE
Editor-in-Chief

Marvin Shaw, who is a full-time professor in the JSU art department, has been chosen to serve as director of graphics and layout for the Mimosa.

Shaw, who is currently teaching several commercial art and design classes, received his bachelor and master's degree in fine arts from the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa. He has been a member of the Communications Board for the past 10 years. He is currently working toward a doctorate degree at the University of Alabama.

"From my experience in commercial art, I've learned to produce and illustrate any kind of book and layout anything from newspapers to yearbook," he said.

In his free time he "keeps in the mainstream of what's going on in the media" by doing freelance art and layout for books and advertising, he said.

As a "practiced artist, he says he enjoys sculpture, pottery, water colors, and repairing and restoring old or damaged paintings.

He said the changes in layout and graphics will be limited in the 1986-87 yearbook because of deadlines and proration. He said the yearbook in the next couple of years will concentrate more on design, work and photographs "dynamic presentation."

He said he hopes the yearbook will someday be regarded as good as any of the top 10 in the country and that students would see it as "a memory book telling what they did."

"I would hope this book would be regarded as a showbook - a book you wouldn't mind showing to your friends and one the students would see in the same round as a prize possession, not just a yearbook per say, Shaw said.

His appointment calls for working closely with Glenda Harris, the newly-appointed adviser of the Mimosa and The Chanticleer.

Shaw lives in the Jacksonville area with his wife, Joyce, and their three children.

Something To Think About Seating at ballgames should be redone

This is not intended to be sports column, but being the sports enthusiast that I am, I say with prejudice that our winning game against West Georgia was something you had to see. If you weren't there, you missed out. By merely watching a college football game, one can learn about life and human nature.

One thing that could be said about the game last Saturday is it was both GREAT and STRANGE. It was great because not only did we 1) beat them 53-34 but 2) set a new conference record of 29 rushing first downs - beating the old record of 23 by UNA in 1982 by two downs.

Think about this fact concerning human nature and sports: When the team wins, we say, "We beat them." But when the team loses, we say in defense, "They lost the game."

As I sat on the side opposite of the Gamecocks, I thought how deceiving the idea of getting into a homegame with only your validated ID card is. It sure makes an impression on the freshmen when they first arrive.

I remember my first football game here. I was really excited. Get into the stadium free? Man, you have got to be kidding.

As far as the game goes, sitting on the same side as the visitors is hard enough getting used because at least you know your team is the one in the red and white. Saturday's game was the exception.

Vicky Wallace
Editor-in-Chief

The West Georgia Braves wore white uniforms with red numbers and the Gamecocks' uniform was merely a reversal. Can you imagine how confusing this is? Imagine this: When first arriving at the game, you are extremely embarrassed after discovering that the touchdown you screamed and jumped out of your seat for was made by the OTHER team. Naturally, this has never happened to me, since I found out years ago, which way WE have to run to make a touchdown.

Half-time is a real downer. We only get to see the backside of all the action. The Southerners look good from the back, but it's irritating to see the pressbox crowd clapping and cheering at the bands performing while you, the home team crowd, can only tap your feet throughout both shows and grin with blind acknowledgement to whatever each band did that was so great. During half-time, we certainly use our imaginations to the fullest.

Think about this fact on the other side of the coin. Our football team is on the same side as opposing band and some of their fans. I'm sure many of our football players have had to bite their tongues and concentrate extra hard on what they're doing because of this mixed-up situation.

Talk about mean people? Football fans can be just that. Some can be downright nasty to you, especially if they're losing.

Why can't the students, faculty, alumni, and band sit on the side with the pressbox and red seats along with our cheerleaders and football team. Visitors sit on the visiting side. It makes sense to me, but I'm only using the common sense God gave me.

I remember in high school when things such as seating at the stadium was so simple - so self explanatory and common sense. Sit on the side that you're for. Now we attend a higher education of learning which handles the same simple situation totally illogical and confusing.

Cheer for your team. Cheer for your team. But remember your team is over THERE.

But what can we expect? We get in free. Most freebies these days come in one of three forms: 1) cereal boxes, 2) through junk mail we use to make fires or layer bird cages with or 3) with strings attached.

Attending the game as a JSU paying fan or regular student should not mean whoever pays gets the best side. It's too late and really unnecessary to reconstruct the stadium; however, we could switch to a more ideal seating arrangement.

College Offerings in South Africa this Fall

Studying

Good habits equal success

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Freshmen, beware. You are now at the big time - the college level. No more sitting around and breezing through school, rarely picking up a book. The time to develop proper study habits is now. A strong devotion to studying is essential for anyone who wants to succeed in college.

Several factors can have an effect on a student's ability to succeed in college:

•The number of hours the student studies. Students who achieved success in high school without studying much at all may experience considerable trouble if they use the same tactic in college. They will find it very difficult to maintain the grades they were accustomed to unless they begin to put more time into their studies.

College work is more complex and has fewer class meetings, thus requiring more concentration. The time that a person devotes to studying is also important. Do not wait until the last minute to begin working on a term paper. When a major test comes up, do not attempt to cram three weeks of class instruction into a one night study session. It just does not work.

•The type of studying you do. This is usually determined by the student's attitude and interest in the subject. If you have a "I don't care as long as I pass" or an "I already know this, why should I study" attitude, then you are missing the entire object of going to college. A student generally goes to school, and should put forth a strong effort in all classes.

•Where you study. Distractions, such as radio, television, friends, or outside noises can interfere with your ability to study effectively. Thus, students need to very carefully choose a place to study. And if fellow students in your dorm are making too much noise, just politely ask them to quiet down.

•Your health. A person who is feeling sick or "down in the dumps" usually finds it very difficult to concentrate on studying. If you feel ill, take advantage of the University infirmary, located between Mason Hall and Sparkman Hall. However, being physically ill is not the only health aspect that can prevent students from studying properly. Girlfriend-boyfriend, family or personal problems can also lead students to neglect their studying. Try to keep these types of feelings under control and keep up your studying.

•Extra-curricular activities. Outside activities provide students an education they are unable to obtain inside the classroom, such as work experience and dealing better with other people. They also help us to relax and deal with the pressures of college life. However, when a student becomes too involved in these activities, his grades tend to decline. Do not overcommit yourself and let your grade point average suffer.

Students need to utilize the support systems on campus. The CDCS (Career Development and Counseling Services) and Center for Individualized Instruction, located in Bibb Graves, are here for one main purpose - to provide assistance for students. Take advantage of the help these and other campus services can provide. But remember, do not wait until the last minute. Seek their help now, and, most importantly, do not be ashamed to ask for their assistance.

Letters to the editor

Wilson apologizes for campus crime

Dear Editor,
I would like to publicly apologize to the residents and administrators of the International House for breaking a window the night of September 24. This regrettable accident occurred as the result of excessive drinking and there was certainly no malice or mischief intended. I thank God that there were no injuries and I have vowed to stop drinking.

Sincerely,
Dan Wilson

American is suddenly changing

Dear Editor,
After 200 Years, it's still "America, the Beautiful" but now appears to be becoming "America, the Bugged."

When our forefathers came to this young nation, their preoccupation was to make a living, raise a family, obtain an education, and pass on the American heritage.

The nation was especially united in times of war. Thankfully there has been no international conflict in decades but internal disunity is widespread. There is no overseas "bloodletting" but domestic struggle would make Karl Marx shave his beard with joy.

Now we see:

- Conflict between the law abiding and law breaking.
- Strife between labor unions vs. those desiring non-union workers.
- Differences between government entities; federal, state, county and city.

One of the manifestations of home-side hostilities is manifested by the magnitude and multitude of surveillance (bugging).

Big Brother seems to have an "electronic interest" in all Americans and this interest may extend to inner disagreements among other agencies. Taxpayers are being investigated by devices for which they have paid.

Big "Supernaturalists" are richly endowed by the Founding Fathers with privileged rights and some spiritual societies have departed from "surveillance by the Diety" to scarcely religious, home grown, intelligence systems. Has the "bug" replaced the Holy Bible? Has the computer bank substituted common sense? Or the sacraments? Or sanity?

Lady Liberty continues to be the symbol of freedom. However, the Beautiful Lady must be amazed at the strange variety of electronic frequencies buzzing around her embellished crown.

Dutch students adjust to America

BY STEVEN ROBINSON
Chanticleer Senior Editor

This university is fortunate to have one of the most diversified student populations in the state. Students from all over the United States and around the world have come here to academically prepare themselves for their chosen careers. During their brief stay here, these students also teach others about themselves. They deal with college life through humor and optimism, hard work and dedication.

Pieter and Jacob (Jaap) Leyte are two such students. Originally from Holland, these brothers crossed the Atlantic to pursue their academic aims at an American university.

Pieter, the elder of the two, has been in the United States since 1981. He is now a senior majoring in marketing. After graduation, he plans to get married.

Jaap, who lives in the International House, has only been in the United States for two months. He says that he will most likely pursue a career in business.

Both brothers are adapting to American lifestyles that are in many ways different from those in Holland, but their easy-going, friendly personalities have made the adjustment easier to accomplish.

"Everything here is really big and commercialized," Pieter said.

Though Pieter is six years older than Jaap, they both have the same deep voice, similar builds, and perhaps could even exchange student ID's without anyone really noticing. However, upon careful

"Old people are probably the worst...They ask me how I have adjusted to wearing sneakers, because they think in Holland everyone wears wooden shoes."

— Pieter Leyte

inspection, it is obvious they are not twins.

Pieter does have a twin sister, named Corrine, who is presently visiting with her brothers here in Jacksonville.

Last Friday, all three shared their views of the United States and how it differed from their native Holland.

Holland is a small country with many people. Coming to Alabama where practically everyone lives in rural communities took some getting used to.

"Holland is smaller than Alabama, but with almost three times as many people," Jaap said.

Distance is not a problem in Holland like it is in Alabama. Everything is within convenient distance from home. This diminishes the need for automobiles.

"In America, when a kid turns sixteen or graduates high school, he gets a new car. In Holland, he gets a new bicycle," Jaap said.

"One of the first things I noticed in America was the fact that there are usually three or four cars in every driveway," commented Pieter.

In Holland there are special roads similar to America highways for bikes alongside streets and highways.

The story of how the Leyte brothers came to be students is quite interesting. Their sister, Corrine, came to the United States in 1980 as an exchange student. She lived with a family in Tampa, Florida. While Corrine was living in Tampa, a Florida student was living with the Leita's in Holland. This student later became Pieter's girlfriend, and recently, his fiancee.

Pieter came to Florida to attend college. After one semester at a community college, he transferred to Jacksonville State.

Jaap came here this fall after hearing about the school from Pieter. Their parents had also paid a previous visit to the campus. They stayed at the International House, where Jaap now lives.

Pieter and Jaap Leyte

The Leytes explained how the Dutch school system differs from that of the United States.

In Holland, school children all attend the same elementary schools. These schools are for grades 1 through 6. They all take the same classes and study the same subjects.

After completing the sixth grade, the children are tested. These tests are designed to determine which career for which the students are best suited.

After the tests are evaluated, the students are placed in different secondary schools. Some are enrolled in schools designed similar to American trade schools, while others are placed in college preparatory schools.

In high school, students are not allowed to choose their own courses. They are handed down their schedules by the faculty and administration.

New officers join the University police force

BY STEVEN ROBINSON
and LISA EVANS

This fall students may have noticed new faces added to the University police department. The two new officers are Shawn Giddy and Nelson Coleman.

Giddy, a former Gamecock basketball player, joined the force as full-time officer on July 1, after serving nearly three months as a part-time student patrol. His previous work experience includes a two-year stint with the city of Winfield, Alabama where he worked as an auxiliary police officer.

While there, he had the opportunity to deal with several interesting cases, including a capital murder case involving a hired killer.

As a part-time student, Giddy is working to obtain twelve more hours he needs to graduate with a recreation major and a minor in law enforcement.

"I think he will relate well to students, and he has a good perception of what campus law enforcement is all about," said University police chief Dr. David Nichols.

Giddy is probably best known as a member of the 1984-85 and 1985-86 Gamecock basketball team. He played the previous two years at Western Kentucky University.

Nelson Coleman, a retired Washington, D. C., detective, also joined the force over the summer. Coleman said that his work on campus thus far has been quite different from the hustle and bustle of a city like Washington, D. C.

"Everything is so pleasant and quiet - compared to what I'm used to," he said.

Different might be classified as an understatement by most. In Washington there are about 177 homicides, 433 rapes, 6000 assaults and 5000 robberies each year. In addition there are hundreds of top political figures from the United States and abroad who require special protection from the police.

Coleman, along with the other 4000 Washington police officers, have assisted in arresting as well as protecting several high ranking officials. When questioned further about this, Coleman declined to divulge any more information.

Several years later, Coleman was moved up to detective. He specialized in the sex crimes field. This involved investigating rape, sodomy and child molestation.

"Almost half the sex crimes committed are against children under the age of 16, and these crimes can be committed by anyone from drug addicts to politicians to even priests," Coleman explained.

During his 20 years as a policeman, Coleman solved many cases. He was named "Detective Grade 1," which means he was in the top 35 of 100 detectives in Washington, D. C.

Although he saw a great deal of action, he was only involved in one shootout. After high school, Coleman attended Talladega College, then went on to serve for four years as a military policeman in the Air Force. Coleman said that because of his rigorous schedules in the past, he has not had time to develop many outside interests.

"All your spare time is dedicated to your work," he said. As a personal goal, Coleman hopes to take courses in law enforcement to complete his degree. He said he wishes to stay in Jacksonville for a while.

Both Coleman and Giddy are welcome additions to the University police force. "We feel fortunate to have them with us," Nichols said.

Fencing adds a new cut to campus recreation

By MARLO GEORGE
Chanticleer Staff Writer

Fencing is perhaps one of the least recognized art forms in this part of the country. It is often referred to as "the historic art of offense and defense with the sword."

Although it has not been well publicized, Jacksonville is privileged in having its very own group of fencers. They meet every Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Pete Matthews Coliseum. The group, headed by Robin Byrom, and assisted by Mark Knoll, a JSU student, is not associated with the University, but all interested students are invited to come and see what fencing is all about.

The instructors, Byrom and Knoll, start their new pupils from scratch. Theories, rules, stances, and the weapons for fencing are the first things a novice is taught.

The sport of fencing is set apart from most of today's sports because it is steeped in history and tradition. Although it may appear to be a dangerous sport, the objective of fencing is not to hurt the opponent but to outmaneuver him and score a "hit".

A "hit" is achieved when the weapon touches certain parts of the opponent's body. That means a person must not only out-think an opponent, but be quicker and more aggressive. This makes for very fast-paced and exciting bouts.

Three different weapons are used in fencing. These are the epee, sabre, and the foil, though used to teach beginners the art, is probably the most difficult of the three weapons to master.

Though all of the weapons have guards on the points, they could be potentially dangerous. As protection, the fencer wears a heavy mask, padded white jackets, and usually a glove on the sword hand.

The jacket plays a dual role for the fencer. Not only do they provide protection, but they also provide for visibility. The white color makes it easy for the judges to see when a "hit" has occurred.

Fencing tournaments organized by the United States Fencing Association (USFA) are often held in this area. The group has had four people to participate in such tournaments in the past with Byrom and students Matt Knoll and Mylane Perry taking top place. They hope to have about eight competing in the tournaments this year.

The fencing group began when Knoll heard of Byrom and persuaded him to begin fencing with him. According to Knoll, the University had its own fencing team about six years ago, but it folded due to a lack of student interest.

Attendance this year looks good for the group. Knoll said about twenty people attended a previous Wednesday session.

Elaina Riley is a young woman who enjoys the thrill of competition.

The 20-year-old sophomore from Rome, Ga., winner of the 1986-87 Miss Afro American Association (AAA) Pageant, is a veteran of many beauty contests. Last October, Riley won the Miss Black and Gold Pageant, sponsored by Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity. Before transferring to JSU in September '85, she was selected as Miss Floyd Junior College, becoming only the second black to win that award.

Now, Riley has set a goal of winning the 1986 Homecoming Pageant next week, in which she will represent AAA.

have been in several pageants before and I have an innovative spirit that tells me to keep on going," Riley said.

Riley said she feels extremely honored to be representing AAA in the homecoming festivities, describing the organization as one "that tries to educate others about black people and gives the black students an equal voice on campus."

Her major, clothing and fashion merchandising, and minor, marketing, are exhibited in her daily lifestyle. Riley enjoys wearing the latest in fashions and utilizes such hobbies as modeling, aerobics, tennis, swimming, disco skating and dancing to stay in shape.

She is currently in Alpha Phi Alpha Little Sister. While at Floyd Junior College, Riley served as a senator in the student government and as president of the Black Awareness Society, the only black organization on campus.

"I was not only competing for myself (in the Miss AAA Pageant), but also for the Alphas and my other Little Sisters. What really made me feel proud when I won was the fact that my parents were also in the audience," Riley said.

Riley said she was disappointed at the number of female students who participated in the Miss AAA Pageant, and hopes that more girls would get involved in future pageants.

"I think everyone should set goals in life. And even if you do fail, never give up your search for that dream," Riley said.

Many of these Dutch high schools are extremely advanced. For instance, those students planning to enter the medical profession attend high schools equivalent academically to many American universities. After graduation from high school, these students enter directly into medical school. Medical school requires six years of study. Thus, Dutch students are completing their educational requirements needed to practice medicine by the age of 24.

Colleges and universities in Holland are supported by the government. If students' parents cannot afford to finance their children's educations, the government pays for it. The amount of government support each student receives is dependent on how much the parents can afford.

This arrangement works well. The government can afford such expenditures due to high tax rates in Holland. Through the imposition of higher taxes, the government is able to provide many social services not available in the United States.

Holland has a constitutional monarchy form of government. The queen is supported by the taxpayers, and serves as ceremonial chief of state. The Dutch do not seem to mind supporting their queen. The Dutch monarchy is such a tradition, the people do not think of it as an expense.

"The money it takes to support the queen is no more than you spend on your presidential elections," Corrine said.

Taxes are not as big an issue in Holland because of the many social services provided that more than compensate for the loss of income.

In high school, students are required to take three foreign languages. They are required to take four years of English, three

PPSI explores the many sights and sounds of the campus

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor
This week marks "Deaf Awareness Week." And no campus program has done more to aid the cause of deaf and blind students than the Postsecondary Program for the Sensory Impaired (PPSI).
This unique program, the only one of its kind in the Southeast, is designed to enable deaf or blind individuals overcome their handicaps so that they can attend college.

The PPSI, located in the Ramona Wood Building under the College of Education, was established last October. Thirty students, who are all either visually or hearing impaired, now participate in the program.
"The reception we've received has been most encouraging. The student body and administration has gone out of their way to help our students," Dr. Jamie Flanagan, assistant director of the PPSI, said.

Dr. Susan Easterbrook serves as director of the program. Dan Miller works as a PPSI research teacher and Georgia Brown serves as administrative clerical assistant.

students. We also teach some learning skills classes usually taught at the Center for Individualized Instruction because our students have special needs," Flanagan said.

are provided for the visually impaired. The PPSI also provides mobility instructors who help train blind students how to navigate the campus.

Flanagan said that many people have misconceptions about the deaf and blind. She feels that interaction is the key.

"People need to become more aware of blindness, deafness and their implications. Most people don't know how to act around deaf and blind individuals. But they are no different than we are," Flanagan said.

"If you see sensory impaired students on campus, introduce yourself and treat them just as you'd like to be treated. They need the same things that sighted people need - friendship, understanding and someone who cares," she concluded.

To meet their needs, she said, the PPSI utilizes special equipment, courses, materials and approaches to help the students gain an education.

For deaf students, sign language interpreters attend classes and interpret the instructor's lectures, while notetakers take notes. In the dormitories, special telephones, called TDDs (Telecommunication Devices for the Deaf), special flashing light fire alarms and other adaptations are available.

For blind students, brailled books, materials and texts are available upon request. Large print materials years of German and three years of French.

Of the three, English was the easiest to learn, they said. Perhaps this is because of the influence of American television. The Dutch watch many of the same shows we watch here in America. Miami Vice, The Cosby Show, Dallas and Dynasty are just a few of the favorite American programs viewed in Holland.

American programming is not dubbed with Dutch voices. Instead, subtitles are used. By reading the subtitles and hearing the words, the Dutch soon pick up on English words and phrases.

"Jaap knew some English when he was just in elementary school," Corrine said.

American movies have also influenced Dutch culture, but they have one major drawback. They arrive in Holland anywhere from six months to a year later than they do in America.

Even though Dutch culture has been influenced by America, there are many differences still. For instance, the legal drinking age in Holland is 16.

"The legal age is 16, but anybody can get it," Jaap said.

The Dutch are more liberal than Americans in many aspects, but do not seem to have the problems we do.

In addition, the crime rate in Holland falls far below that of the United States. This may be attributed to strict handgun control imposed by the government, or it may just be a reflection of different cultural values.

Social life in Holland is different from that in America, and Corrine says she prefers the former over the latter.

She will soon finish teacher's college and plans to remain in Holland.

Jaap says he will return to Holland after he completes college. Pieter, however, plans to remain in the United States.

Both Jaap and Pieter are very athletically oriented. Pieter competes in intramural sports on campus. They are both fans of football, baseball and basketball, even though these sports are not as popular in Holland as they are here.

They said that they have enjoyed living in America thus far, even though they have had to put up with many Americans who are completely ignorant of Dutch society.

"Old people are probably the worst," Pieter said. "They ask me how I have adjusted to wearing sneakers because they think that in Holland everyone wears wooden shoes."

This cultural ignorance knows no national boundaries, however. In Holland, they visualize American tourists as wearing bermuda shorts, Hawaiian print shirts and having cameras strapped around their necks, the Leytes said.

The Leytes have learned to take notice of cultural differences and to try and look at them objectively. They have become more open-minded and try to refrain from being too judgemental.

AAA holds annual beauty pageant in Leone Cole

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Elaina Riley, a sophomore from Rome, Ga., was crowned Miss AAA at the association's annual beauty pageant held Tuesday, Sept. 23, in Leone Cole Auditorium. She will represent the Afro American Association in the Homecoming pageant and parade.

Lisa Nicole McCree, a freshman from Bronx, NY, was selected as the first runner-up; Tabitha Embry, a freshman from Dallas, Ga., was selected second runner-up; and Loraine McKinney was chosen as Miss Congeniality by the other contestants. A fifth student, Mary Elizabeth Royster of Birmingham, also participated.

The contestants were judged in four areas: (1) casual wear, (2) sports wear, (3) formal wear, and (4) question and answers. Henry Looney, Kim Vice and Glenda Griffiths served as judges.

The pageant, coordinated by University police officer Pearl Williams, was attended by over 200 persons, who were treated to a wide variety of entertainment. Among the audience were the 1986 Miss Northeast American Princess, Kimberly Griffiths of Oxford, SGA president Vonda Barbour, and the proud parents of the new Miss AAA, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Riley.

Kaye Johnson, a JSU graduate, was an effective mistress of ceremonies, while Jerry Jackson, a junior who served as the master of ceremonies, amused the audience during intermission periods by telling jokes.

Robin Robinson, accompanied by Russell Gibbons on the piano, delighted the audience with a song during an early break in the pageant. Later, they returned and received a rousing applause after they sang "My Endless Love."

One of the highlights of the pageant was a powerful dramatic monologue, "The Negro Mother," performed by LaRitha Smith, a senior who is a member of Delta Sigma Theta sorority.

Following the presentation of the two runner-up trophies, Riley was crowned by last year's Miss AAA, Sandra Welch.

Officer Williams extended her thanks to Fantasia, which contributed flowers for the pageant, Debbie McKendree and Liz Stephens of "Facets", who assisted contestants with makeup, and all the others who helped with the pageant and with the special workshop held before the event.

Tomboy rocks Brother's Bar with new sound

'Tomboy'

By TZENA GIBBS
and C.A. ABERNATHY

The danceable-rock sounds of Tomboy returned to Brother's last week. Since last year, the band has evolved with a slightly heavier sound. The band consists of Eddie Pontiac - guitar, vocals; Kim Hallmark - keyboards, vocals; Bill Gore - bass, vocals; Robb Ezell - guitar, vocals; and Todd Daniels - drums.

"We don't have a road crew, so when we do one-nighters, we have to drive to the show, set the equipment up, play, change back into our clothes, work breaking down the equipment and then drive to somewhere else. So it's like a 24-hour day," Hallmark said.

"Jacksonville is like our home base now. We get more of a response and turn-out here than just about any other place we play," said Gore.

And so was the case last week at Brother's. The crowds were packed in so tight there was standing room only. Dan and Dub Nolan, owners of My Brother's Bar, were glad to welcome back Tomboy, a real crowd pleaser.

Tomboy brought the house down with Gore singing lead on "And We Danced," by the Hooters and "Love Me to the Max." The enthusiastic crowds stood on the bar stools and danced on the tables as Hallmark sang lead on "I Want Candy," by Bow Wow Wow and "Johnny Are You Queer," by Josie Cotton.

Tomboy has a definite stage appeal with their college-oriented music. On a lighter, outrageous side, Hallmark and Gore sang lead on the theme song "Green Acres."

A definite crowd favorite was "Blister in the Sun" by the Violent Femmes with Gore on lead vocal. People began diving off bar stools into the linked arms of people in the audience. Just as everyone was getting over the excitement of the Femmes song, Pontiac went right into Modern English's "Melt With You." Fans began screaming and crowded around the stage to slam dance.

Hallmark and Gore sang lead on "I Got You Babe, a remake of an old Sonny and Cher song by Chrissie Hynde and UB40 as the crowd swayed together. Hallmark's voice rang out clear and strong on such songs as "I Don't Know Why He's So Shy" by Katrina and the Waves, "Middle of the Road" by the Pretenders, "One Way or Another" by Blondie and "All the Love in the World" by the Outfield.

As a surprise to the audience, two guest musicians joined Gore on the classic Chuck Berry song, "Johnny B. Goode": Bill Owsley, guitar, and Joey Ledbetter, drums, two new members of Baghdad.

The steady beat and rhythm of Daniels on drums and Gore on bass are the foundation of Tomboy. Many songs lend themselves to synchronized steps and swinging guitars. Pontiac is not only a singer and guitar player, but also played bass on "I Will Follow" as Gore put his heart into this U2 song.

With such dedication, giving every song all their energy, Tomboy's popularity can only grow.

"I'm not just saying this, Jacksonville is our favorite place to play," Gore said.

Tomboy has long been a Jacksonville favorite and will be for a while.

'Rocky Horror' comes to TMB next Wednesday

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

It has been described as the oddest, most off-the-wall cult film ever to be presented on the silver screen. And now, in only six days, it makes its return to the campus.

The SGA and Cinematic Arts

Council will proudly present, in separate performances at both 7 and 9:30 p.m. next Wednesday night, "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."

"Rocky Horror" presents the story of the sexual confusion of two middle American "Ike Age" kids confronted by the complications of the decadent morality of the 70's, represented in the person of the mad "doctor" Frank N Furter, a transvestite fro the planet Transsexual in the galaxy of Transylvania.

SGA vice president Kelly McCreeless describes the outrageous 1975 classic as "a rock 'n' roll science-fiction fantasy and a spoof of horror movies. But what makes it great is audience participation."

For instance, she said, there is a wedding scene in the movie during which the audience instantly throws rice into the air.

In association with the movie, the SGA and Cinematics Arts Council will be sponsoring a costume contest between the two showings. The contest, entitled "Don't Dream it, Be it," will begin at 9 p.m. Participants must purchase a ticket in order to enter. Three cash awards will be presented to the winners.

Gamecock special teams caused West Georgia problems

Gamecocks roll, destroy Braves

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The Jacksonville State University Gamecocks opened Gulf South Conference play in fine fashion Saturday night, by beating rival West Georgia College, by the score of 52-34, in front of 10,000 fans at Paul Snow Memorial Stadium.

Jax State scored on four of its first five possessions in the first half to take a 24-6 lead at intermission.

Quarterback David Coffey opened the Gamecock scoring parade by running two yards for a score at the 10:03 mark of the opening period. Ashley Kay followed with the conversion, and the Gamecocks had a quick 7-0 lead.

Pat White took the Gamecocks 75 yards in 15 plays on their next possession to grab a 14-0 advantage over the Braves. White capped the drive with a five-yard run. Kay's PAT was again good.

The Gamecocks stretched the lead to 21-0 with 3:10 left in the half when Coffey hit senior tight end Keith McKeller with a 51-yard strike, as the former basketball standout raced past the West Georgia secondary.

West Georgia put their only points of the first half on the board with 1:15 left before intermission when quarterback Cater Pierce tossed a 20-yard scoring pass to wide out Hal Lamb. Dave Head's PAT was blocked by special team wizard Tracy Allen.

Jax State capped the first half scoring when sophomore Ashley Kay kicked a 34-yard field goal with only one second left in the half. The kick gave Jax State a 24-6 lead at the break.

Jax State added to their advantage at the 5:23 mark of the third quarter as quarterback White scored from 14 yards out. Kay's PAT boosted the score to 31-6.

Third team quarterback Steve Patrick led the next Gamecock scoring drive. The freshman from Pinson took the team 34 yards in six plays and he scored the touchdown from the one. Kay's PAT made the score 38-6, and the route was definitely on.

West Georgia drove 78 yards in only four plays to trim the JSU lead. Pierce hit John Strickland with an 18-yard strike. Stevie Young ran for the two-point conversion as the Jax State lead was cut to 38-14.

Jacksonville State scored after an interception by preseason ALL-GSC performer Reggie McCord. From the 39-yard line, Coffey hit Darrell Sanders with a strike to boost the lead even more. Sanders made an unbelievable catch, as the freshman from Florida was sandwiched between two defenders. Kay once again was perfect with the PAT, and the score stood at 45-14.

West Georgia then scored on consecutive possessions within a span of two-and-a-half minutes. Pierce hit Strickland and Young with scoring passes which cut the JSU lead to 45-28 with 11:40 remaining in the game.

Jax State scored its final touchdown after an 11 play, 78 yard drive. White scored his third touchdown of the evening, from three-yards out, to give JSU a 52-28 lead with 5:56 remaining in the contest.

The Braves were not done however, as they flew 97 yards in only three plays. The score came on a 70-yard pass from David Pleasants to Nick Neal. West Georgia's try for the two-point conversion failed.

Jax State rolled up 600 yards of total offense, with a whopping total of 460 of that coming from the rushing attack. Senior halfback Shawn Massey gained 113 yards on only 13 carries. Pat White added 81 yards to the rushing game, and Terry Thomas chipped in with 77 yards on 11 carries, and Monte Coats and Brian Stevenson added 54, and 52 yards respectively to the attack.

"Our offensive line came off the ball all night long. We ran the ball very well, and that is due to our line play," Bill Burgess giving credit to his offensive line.

The offensive line blocked very well against the Braves, and for that reason Jax State was able to mount their impressive offensive numbers.

Gamecock quarterback David Coffey continued his good play by hitting on six of 11 passes for 140 yards. Coffey contributed two long touchdowns to the offensive show.

Tight end Keith McKeller played an outstanding game. McKeller not only caught two passes for 63 yards, including his first scoring play, but the 6-6 senior did a great job of blocking all night long.

Although the Jax State defense gave up 480 yards to the Braves, Burgess was pleased overall with that group's play. "Our defense played well. We had three breakdowns that cost us 21 points, and 178 yards on defense, but overall our defense was good."

Jax State travels to Valdosta State, this Saturday, for a big GSC contest. The Blazers are also 1-0 in conference play, and should prove to be tough opposition for the Gamecocks. Gametime is 1:00 (CST).

Jax State is ready to take on GSC

Yes, ladies and gentlemen, the Gamecocks of Bill Burgess ran over, around, and through the visiting Braves of West Georgia. Talk about inhospitable hosts. The Gamecocks controlled the game from the opening kickoff. It never seemed to be a question of if, it was a question of how much.

The Gamecocks have arrived.

When a man who has coached as many fine football teams as Burgess has, you pay attention when he tells you that he has never been associated with a team that had as good a game offensively as his team did Saturday night.

Thomas Ballenger

Sports Editor

The Gamecocks were led by an interior line that mangled the Braves. Rogers, Henderson, Barefoot, Billingsley, and Dutton. These players very seldom get the recognition that the so-called "skilled players" get, but without their efforts, the "skilled players" would not get to show off their talents.

Once the holes were opened by the line, backs Massey, Coats, Holliday, Thomas, White, and Stevenson ripped off many long runs against the hapless Braves. These backs break long runs occasionally, but they have made the six-yard run an art form.

And what about Keith McKeller.

The former basketball standout is seemingly right at home on the gridiron. McKeller, who was written up very nicely in a Birmingham paper this week, is turning into a major force for the Gamecocks. The feature on McKeller revealed a side of him that no one was aware of, and it showed how sensitive and caring a person he is.

Keith's older brother Dedrick is blind, and Keith draws his strength from his brother. Keith is truly a special athlete, but he is also a special person. This is a side of McKeller that few people would have realized, but a very caring young man is residing in that 6-6 frame.

The Gulf South Conference race is going to start getting interesting. Four teams are tied for the GSC lead, and our own Gamecocks are right in the fight. Call it a hunch, but JSU will be in the battle all year, and perhaps even win the whole shooting match. If the Gamecocks can win their road GSC games, you have to like their GSC title chances considering that all three of their biggest obstacles for the title have to travel to Jacksonville to play this year.

Mississippi College, North Alabama, and Troy State all have to play in the confines of Snow Stadium this year, so the Gamecocks will definitely play a factor in the GSC outcome in 1986, and perhaps even win the thing.

This past week Troy State opened its GSC season with a 28-6 win over Livingston. The Trojans are still running the wishbone, and with Mike Turk at the helm, they are as dangerous as ever.

Mississippi College defeated non-conference foe West Texas State, by the score of 34-24. The Choctaws appear loaded, and they already have a win over defending conference champ UNA to their credit.

North Alabama was idle last week, and they appear to have problems on offense. But with their talent, they may correct their problems in a hurry.

Valdosta State opened up their conference slate with a 49-24 mauling of Tennessee-Martin. The Blazers are undergoing changes in changes in coaching philosophy, and they appear to be a true GSC team now. They are very explosive, and they play good defense. The Blazers do not look like they will be an easy touch any longer.

Delta State is 2-1 on the season, and an indication of just how good they may be could be Saturday. UNA travels to Delta, and it will be interesting to see what transpires in that contest.

West Georgia, Livingston, and Tennessee-Martin have all shown flashes of brilliance, but in this league occasional brilliance is not enough.

Jax State has a good shot at the GSC title this season, and it should be enjoyable watching them make their run.

Gamecocks take on Valdosta State

Jacksonville State University, fresh off its most productive offensive output since the 1982 season, travels to Valdosta State Saturday afternoon to take on the defensive minded Blazers.

The Gamecocks rolled up 600 yards in total offense last weekend when they bombed rival West Georgia College, 52-34, in the Gulf South Conference opener for both schools.

Valdosta State, 2-1 on the year, put on a little offensive fireworks of its own Saturday night, clubbing Tennessee-Martin, 49-24, on the road. But it's the Blazer defense, which is allowing only 45 yards rushing and 11.3 points per game, that concerns JSU head coach Bill Burgess. "They are very aggressive on defense, but then again, they have eight seniors over there, so they sure know what they are doing," said Burgess. "Their secondary is about as good as we'll see all year. Our offense made a lot of progress between the A&M and West Georgia game, and we'll have to do the same thing again this week in practice if we're going to be successful at Valdosta."

In the West Georgia game, six different running backs gained 50 yards or better, with senior Shawn Massey's 113 yards on only 13 carries leading the way. Senior quarterback David Coffey scored one touchdown himself, on a two-yard run, and threw for two others, including a 51-yard strike to senior tight end Keith McKeller. Junior quarterback Pat White was equally impressive, rushing for 81 yards on 10 carries and scoring three times.

"We knew our offense was better than it showed against A&M," Burgess said. "It was just a matter of time before they put it all together. But the big test will come this week against one of the better defensive teams in the GSC."

Jacksonville State has never lost to Valdosta State in a series that began in 1981.

Kickoff is set for 1 p.m., CST.

Alabama-Notre Dame heads week

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor

This week's college football action will be highlighted by the Alabama-Notre Dame contest, but there are several other good games on tap for Saturday.

This past week saw fewer upsets than in previous weeks, and for that reason last week's record was 10-4-1. That good week raises what had been an otherwise forgetful record to 4-17-4, but that mark is still very mediocre.

Well, on to this week.

NOTRE DAME vs. ALABAMA (at Birmingham)

The Fighting Irish won their first game of the season last week, and they should be fired up for this contest. The only failing that "Bear" Bryant had as Alabama's coach was his inability to beat NDU. Ray Perkins has his first crack at the Irish, and look for his record to be 1-0 against the Golden Domers after Saturday. ALABAMA 28, NOTRE DAME 17

JACKSONVILLE STATE at VALDOSTA STATE

Jax State is 1-0 in the GSC, and if the Gamecocks are to contend for the conference title, they need to beat Valdosta State to keep up with the other GSC contenders. JSU was fantastic on offense last week, and Valdosta will be hard pressed to stop their momentum. The Blazers have a fine defense, but the Gamecocks should solve it. JACKSONVILLE STATE 34, VALDOSTA STATE 24

IOWA at MICHIGAN STATE

Iowa has put up some very impressive offensive numbers so far this year, but the Hawkeyes have yet to play a good team. Michigan State is a good team, and Lorenzo White appears to be untracked after his slow start. Iowa won 35-31 last year as Chuck Long led a remarkable comeback. However, Long is now in the pros, and this year the Spartans will roll. MICHIGAN STATE 31, IOWA 24

ARIZONA STATE at UCLA

The Sun Devils appeared to be looking past Washington State last week, and due to that fact they were lucky to escape with a 21-21 tie. UCLA is still rebounding from the thrashing Oklahoma gave them, but they have improved. UCLA's top two tailbacks missed the Bruins last game, and the prognosis for their return by this weekend is not good. If they cannot play, it may well be a long day for the Bruins. ARIZONA STATE 27, UCLA 20

LOUISIANA STATE at FLORIDA

What has happened to the Gators? Florida has dropped to 1-3 overall and 0-2 in the SEC. The only team the Gators have beaten is division I-AA Georgia Southern. LSU played well against Texas A & M, but the Bayou Bengals stumbled against Miami of Ohio. Florida has something to prove to the home folks, and they had better start this week. FLORIDA 21, LOUISIANA STATE 17

Arkansas 28, Texas Christian 24, Baylor 35, Houston 21, Southern Methodist 45, Boston College 17, Washington 28, California 17, Duke 24, Vanderbilt 17, Georgia 35, Ole Miss 17, North Carolina 28, Georgia Tech 17, Ohio State 30, Illinois 17, Kentucky 21, Southern Mississippi 17, Mississippi State 30, Memphis State 14, Michigan 45, Wisconsin 14, Purdue 28, Minnesota 14, Nebraska 45, South Carolina 24, Oklahoma 56, Kansas State 7, Southern California 28, Oregon 14, Penn State 28, Rutgers 20, Pittsburgh 28, Temple 17, Tennessee 45, Texas-El Paso 14, Texas A&M 35, Texas Tech 17, Troy State 45, West Georgia 28.

Golfers getting ready

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The golf team at Jacksonville State will be young this season, but the program should be in good shape for the next few years.

"We are looking at a team that will be short on experience, and long on youth," Coach James Hobbs said.

Only two players return for Hobbs this season, but the two of them should lead the team. Chris Gray, a sophomore, was All-GSC as a freshman.

"Chris is a good player to build a team around. He is very talented and he has the perfect temperament for golf," Hobbs said.

The other returnee is Mike Williams, who played in the fifth and sixth slots last season.

Several recruits as well as transfers have joined the program and Hobbs said this should put the program in good shape.

"We will be young this year, but we should be strong for the next three to four years," stated Hobbs.
