Capacity crowd honors McGee

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

A crowd of over 1,000 students, faculty and administration gathered at the Leone Cole Auditorium last Thursday to welcome and honor the new president, Dr. Harold McGee.

The student - faculty tea, organized by SGA president Vonda Barbour, was the largest social gathering of its type ever held on campus, said Barbour.

"We (the SGA) thought it would be neat for the student body to come together as a whole to honor Dr. McGee, instead of the University always being separated by Greeks, independents, faculty and staff. I'm real pleased with how it turned out," Barbour said.

She extended her thanks to all the organizations, clubs and individuals who helped to make the program a success.

"If we (the University) all work together, there is no limit to what we can accomplish this year," Barbour said.

The tea consisted of the following activities: (1) Alpha Xi Delta began the program with a slide show presentation. (2) The president of Phi Beta Lambda, the business fraternity, gave a welcome to Dr. McGee. (3) The JSU Marching Ballerinas performed to the Southerners' tune of "Quilting Party." (4) The JSU Cheerleaders did several cheers. (5) The president of SAM (The Society for the Advancement of Management) welcomed Dr. McGee and presented him with honorary membership to the club. (6) Delta Zeta sorority performed one of their rush skits, "The D. Z. Shuffle," a parody of the Chicago Bears' "Super Bowl Shuffle." (7) Scott Green of the Baptist Campus Ministry played the guitar and sang "I've Never Been Out of His Care." (8) Zeta Tau Alpha sang their adaptation of "Footloose." (9) Tzena Gibbs and Judy Bolton of Phi Mu sorority sang a medley of tunes they had written.

McGee, who attended the tea with his wife, Gayle, said that he was very

Harvard University; James E. Jacobson, editor of The Birmingham News; and Professor of Political Science William C. Havard of Vanderbilt University. They discussed how the South has changed during the half century that has followed publication of Wilbur Cash's book "Mind of the South," which delves into the regimentation and peculiarity of the region.

Music department receives national accreditation

By Roy Williams
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The JSU music department recently received national accreditation from the National Association of Schools of Music, becoming the third department at the University to receive such an honor.

"We feel ecstatic and honored to be accredited. This represents a culmination of many years of hard work by the faculty, students and administration," said Dr. James Fairleigh, chairman of the music department.

An accreditation is an honor bestowed only upon programs that have proven themselves as outstanding in their fields, Fairleigh said. Departments under consideration must undergo an intense inspection by national accrediting agents.

The music department received professional accreditation, which applies to a specific academic area. Two other academic areas, the colleges of education and nursing, also have professional accreditation.

The music department began its effort for accreditation in 1982, when it completed a self study and submitted it to the national agency, Fairleigh said. Two years later, an evaluation team visited the campus and a decision on accrediting until a later date.

In June, after the department had met such requirements as purchasing 12 pianos and making changes in the music curriculum, the music department was accredited.

The only other state schools whose music departments have received accreditation are the University of Alabama, Auburn University, Samford University, the University of South Alabama, and the University of Montevallo.

Three males arrested for series of campus crimes

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Three area males were arrested by the University Police Department last weekend in connection with several burglaries and thefts that have occurred on campus the past few weeks, Dr. David Nichols, chief of university police, reported.

Officer Shawn Giddy initiated the investigation after two pick-up trucks, located on the campus, were broken into during the week of Sept. 2. Two equalizers and other electronic equipment were taken from the vehicles.

On Sept. 11, a dual cassette player, video cassette recorder and other small items were stolen from Forney Hall and a Penn House Apartment.

"An ongoing investigation conducted by our department, with assistance from the Jacksonville City Police, resulted in the arrest of three suspects and recovery of the stolen merchandise, which we estimate to be worth nearly $3,000," Nichols said.

The three suspects have received felony charges ranging from burglary, to breaking and entering a vehicle and receiving stolen property. They are currently being held in the Calhoun County jail.

"I'd like to commend all the officers involved in this case for doing an excellent, professional job. I also urge everyone to be aware of any suspicious people on campus and look out for your neighbor's welfare," Nichols said.

Donation given to the Art Department

David Shaw of Saks, right, who received the Bachelor of Occupational Technology degree at Jacksonville State University in 1985, recently contributed $1,000 to his alma mater to help fund a favorite educational program -- photography. Carter Osterbind, left, instructor of art, who teaches the photography courses at JSU, said the money will be used to buy a color head for an enlarger and tanks for processing color paper. Shaw, who is now working on the Master of Business Administration degree at JSU, stipulated that half of his contribution should be spent on photography, with the remainder to be spent as the department desires.

Journalism workshop offered

Students who wish to participate in a journalism workshop should contact Ms. Glenda Harris at 231-5468 during the day or 435-5793 after 6 p.m.

The deadline for adding the course is noon, Friday, Sept. 19. Only students who are currently enrolled are eligible to take the course. Students should go to the office of Dr. Dan Marsengill in Mason Hall to add the course.

Three credit hours will be awarded for writing a series of assigned news articles. Participants will work in a professional atmosphere in which realistic assignments result in published articles carrying the students' bylines.

Ms. Harris said the course will offer a flexible schedule. There will be no assigned textbook. The students will receive one-on-one assistance with writing and editing. There will be ample opportunity for students to pursue specific areas of interest such as feature writing and general assignment reporting.

"We will be results-oriented. Students will be able to do the work largely at their own discretion, providing they meet the assigned deadline for each story.

"The objective is to produce portfolio-worthy clippings which the students can use in job interviews with editors. The stories will appear in campus publications. Anyone who has thought about journalism as a career option will find this course extremely valuable," Ms. Harris said.

"There are no prerequisites for the course. A wide background in the liberal arts is increasingly appreciated by editors, and we hope to attract students from across many disciplines."

Details concerning the time and date of the class will be announced to the students who call for more information.

touched by the show of support he has received from the University.

"JSU truly deserves its reputation as 'the friendliest campus in the South'. I appreciate all the warmth and welcome the organizations have shown me. And I assure you that we will sustain ourselves as the outstanding institution in the state of Alabama," he said.

At the conclusion of the program, SGA vice president Kelly McCress presented Dr. McGee with a gift of welcome.

Readers see progress in print

Chanticleer readers may notice something unusual about today's edition - two type styles are used instead of one.

As of this edition, the newspaper is changing over to a more efficient, up-to-date process. Many of the stories in this edition are transmitted by computer directly to a typesetting machine some 12 miles away via telephone.

Unfortunately, the transaction will not be complete until next week, when all of the news stories will be typeset automatically by computer.

Update

Economic impact of JSU remains high despite cuts

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Despite the loss of several million dollars in state funding, the University's economic impact on the surrounding areas will probably remain just as high, Dr. Bill Fielding, chairman of the finance department and co-author of a study on JSU's economic impact, said.

Though the state proration will cause a delay in University purchases and the number of persons employed will remain the same, President Harold McGee said that area economies will not be greatly affected by the shortage of funds.

"When you consider the amount of employment, expenditures and purchases the University accounts for, you see that JSU will still have a significant impact on the area," McGee said.

The 80-page economic impact study, completed last February and conducted by Fielding and Pat Shaddix, director of the Economic Development Center, shows that JSU has a staggering $123.5 million impact on the local economies in Calhoun and Etowah counties each year.

Expenditure questionnaires, institutional financial reports and secondary data were used to obtain the information needed to measure the University's impact.

The study had three main purposes: (1) to provide the University and the local community with a better understanding of the important benefits which accrue to the community as the result of having a university located within the area; (2) to help the local community make a comparison between the economic costs of the University and the economic benefits derived from the institution (3) to emphasize the importance of the mutually beneficial relationship that exists between the University and Calhoun-Etowah area.

Highlights of the study, based on the 1985-86 fiscal year showed: - The total impact of JSU on Calhoun and Etowah Counties in 1985 was $123,488,500. - JSU is a major employer in Calhoun and Etowah Counties, with 736 university employees - 6,011 jobs are created by JSU through direct employment and indirect effects of institution-related business activities.

- The University's gross payroll for the fiscal year of 1985 was $17.8 million.

- The initial impact of expenditures in Calhoun and Etowah Counties by the University, its employees, and students was $56.1 million. - $34.8 million of expansion in the Calhoun-Etowah area credit base resulted from the time and demand deposit deposits of JSU faculty, staff and students as well as business demand and time deposits required to support University businesses. - Average local expenditures by JSU for construction and major renovations totaled $2.3 million. - Personal income of local individuals from University-related jobs and JSU business activity was $53.7

million. - $7.3 million in revenue was received by local governments as a result of JSU faculty, staff and students. - The total value of local business property, both real property and inventories, due to the existence of JSU was $187.7 million.

In a survey of students that accompanied the study, approximately 70 percent of the student body indicated they would leave this area in order to attend college elsewhere if the University was not located in Jacksonville. Thus, if JSU did not exist there would obviously be an adverse effect on the Calhoun-Etowah area, Fielding said.

"We basically just confirmed what we already knew - that JSU has an impact on the area. We were able to put a dollar value on that, which is important. Now, when our administrators go to Montgomery to seek more funds from the state legislature, they can show our results and prove how influential JSU is. This can prove to be a very valuable promotional tool," he said.

McGee said that the programs offered at JSU indicate a bright future for both the University and the surrounding areas.

"The expansion of Self Hall itself has created more construction jobs and will lead to more employment in the future. The University anticipates even more growth which, in effect, will contribute to the growth of the local communities," McGee said.

SGA holds contest for Homecoming '86

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

In an effort to allow the students to have more input in homecoming festivities, the SGA has announced that it will sponsor a "Homecoming Theme Contest."

All organizations, individuals or clubs are encouraged to submit a theme for this year's contest, said Sheri Cochran, homecoming chairperson. The deadline for entering the competition is Sept. 25. A panel of judges will narrow the entries down to five finalists. The student body will select the winner from the top five.

"We thought this would be a good way for the students to have a direct involvement in deciding this year's homecoming theme," Cochran said.

The voting by the student body will take place on Sept. 30 and the winner will be announced on Oct. 1. A $100 prize will be presented to the winner.

The Homecoming Pageant is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 9 at 7 p.m. The entry deadline will be Oct. 2. To enter the pageant, girls must be enrolled for the fall semester and be sponsored by a campus club or organization. The sponsorship fee is $30. Rachel Jones will again serve as pageant coordinator. SGA senator Joey Harbison will be pageant chairperson.

Though the 1986 homecoming contest, scheduled for Oct. 25 against UNA, is still over a month away, the SGA is working steadily in preparation for the event.

"We have several projects planned that we're sure the students will enjoy," Cochran said.

"This puts us in a better position to compete with the other schools whose music departments have been accredited. It also will help us in placing our students once they graduate, because their degrees will carry much stronger significance," he said.

"The main beneficiaries of this accreditation will be the music students, but the University will also benefit because we're now in a stronger position for recruiting music students," Fairleigh said.

Honeywell offers essay contest

On Sept. 15, Honeywell launched its fifth annual Futurist Awards Competition, an essay contest that asks students to predict technology advancements 25 years from now.

Honeywell wants college students to imagine the year 2011 and write essays about the technological developments they foresee. This year's contest will offer 10 winners $3,000 each and the chance to work for Honeywell next summer.

Last year, 450 students, representing 325 colleges and universities in 47 states, entered the competition.

The contest is open to all full-time students at any accredited college in the United States. Students are asked to leap 25 years in the future and write an essay predicting developments in one of six technological areas: electronic communications, energy, aerospace, computer science, manufacturing automation or office automation. A second essay must address the societal impact of the technological predictions. Each essay must be no longer than 1,500 words.

Students can receive contest rules by writing Futurist Rules, Honeywell Telemarketing Center, Honeywell Plaza Mn12-4164, Minneapolis, MN, 55408, or calling toll free 1-800-328-5111, Ext. 1581. Requests for entry material must be received by Dec. 31, 1986.

Completed essays must be post-marked no later than Jan. 31, 1987.

In February, a panel of top Honeywell scientists and engineers will judge the essays on the basis of creativity, feasibility, clarity of expression and legibility.

Winners will be announced in early March, and each of the 10 winners will receive a two-day, all-expense-paid trip to Honeywell's headquarters in Minneapolis.

Honeywell is a Minneapolis-based international corporation that works together with customers to help them achieve their goals through the application of computers, communications and controls. The company has 94,000 employees worldwide, with 1985 revenue of $6.6 billion and net income of $281 million.

Something To Think About

Respect is a must for relationship to work

"Act your age, not your shoe size" is an adage we have all heard before from either our parents, siblings, relatives or friends. This expression might have been funny in elementary or high school, but we should be taking life seriously — and humorously — at the right time. If a university is to act like it is supposed to (and run smoothly) then mutual respect between administration, faculty, and students is top priority. We might as well face facts: We are all supposed to be adults, not children, attending a "higher institution of learning."

If an outsider attended one of our pep rallies, whether it be at the coliseum or stadium, would he be shocked at the disrespect shown to whoever was speaking?

Think about it. A student decides to go to the pep rally. When he finally arrives at Paul Snow Stadium, he has to strain his ears to hear what Dr. McGee, Coach Bill Burgess, the cheerleaders or anybody has to say.

Vicky Wallace
Editor-in-Chief

Is this the way college students should act?

Pep rallies serve a purpose. We can cheer, shout, play an instrument or show every ounce of spirit for the football team. But when someone is speaking, all of these things should come to a screeching halt. Please be courteous and grown-up enough to stop talking, laughing, and playing your instrument and LISTEN.

It should not be necessary for us to be given the evil eye before we know to keep our mouths closed. Remember when our parents used to tell us, "Don't talk when other people are talking? They were right.

Faculty cannot be left out. The respect each faculty member commands in his classroom is the same each student deserves when the roll is reversed.

The student-faculty tea for McGee last week was a success, but the rudeness displayed by some of the audience was definitely noticeable. The individuals and groups who participated should be commended - not every person is able to perform in front of people without falling apart. (Some of us barely live through oral communication class.)

Unfortunately, more people chose to talk than listen. The Leone Cole Auditorium sounded like it had several hidden beehives, but sadly to say, these bees were faculty and students.

LISTEN. We just might learn something. We are all E.F. Huttons. We all have something to say and want people to listen.

Respect is essential in any relationship - big or small. Take off your hats at games. Stand at attention when the flag is raised and "The Star Spangled Banner" is being played.

Being respectful to your fellow man takes little time. Try it.

If we followed the Golden Rule: DO UNTO OTHERS AS YOU WOULD HAVE THEM DO UNTO YOU, respect would flow like the blood in our veins - naturally.

The picture showing the death and destruction of Vietnam was permissible

A poster showing a fat man's naked posterior was okay

A poster of the massacres of the Nazi Holocaust was in "good taste"

But when a group of Oregon State students belonging to Students for Life decided to display an anti-abortion poster, university officials said no.

The posters, which had been put in the Memorial Student Union, were taken down by university officials because they were not deemed to be in "good taste"

Now, three of the students who displayed the posters are suing several Oregon State University officials for violating their right to free speech.

The students filed suit in U. S. district court against the director of the Memorial Union Student Center, the associate dean of the university, and all members of the Oregon State Board of Higher Education. The students are being represented by the Rutherford Institute, an organization designed to fight legal battles on moral issues.

The poster in question contained two pictures - one of a 21-week-old baby born alive and the other of a baby the same age that had been aborted.

When asked why the abortion posters were removed but the ones of the holocaust, naked fat man, and the Vietnam carnage were not, the director said that they were governed by a "separate university policy."

The posters were removed by the director of operations after being in place for approximately four days.

Attorneys for Oregon State University said that the removal of the posters was in compliance with the university's right to set reasonable time, place, and manner regulations for free speech activities.

The students were not satisfied with this response and proceeded with the lawsuit. They claim that the university's policy failed to establish any definite criteria for what was to be considered suitable for public display. The students' attorneys argued that such obscure content restrictions on the free speech rights of students left the door open for discrimination on the part of those staff members given the discretion to judge the suitability of student exhibits.

Whether or not these students are right or wrong in their stand against abortion, they should still have the right to voice their own opinions - in a reasonable manner. What is to be deemed reasonable is open to debate, but once that line has been drawn, there should be no discriminatory actions taken by officials who perhaps do not agree with the viewpoint of the students. If the guidelines set forth by Oregon State in this case were too vague and left room for biased judgements by those in authority, measures should be taken immediately to rectify the situation.

Freedom of speech is a First Amendment right and cannot be prohibited by policies so broad and misleading as to apply favoritism to certain issues while neglecting others.

If the abortion posters were too disgusting to some individuals for public display, they should have been removed, but only if the other posters were removed as well, as the probably also offended quite a number of people.

The students are within the rights in seeking legal action against the university officials who acted on their own "discretion". The university should have provided guidelines for students to follow. This would have nipped in the bud all the controversy that ensued.

Former editor wishes staff luck for new year

Dear Editor:

I would like to wish the new Chanticleer senior staff well as it begins another year of covering the news events at Jacksonville State University. A mere four months have passed since I graduated from the institution, but after having served as editor of the paper for two years and as a staff member for almost four, I know the responsibility you all have.

You begin the year with many changes, most of which will be hard to fill. Gone are Mr. and Mrs. Opal Lovett, two fine people who have so much of themselves to the students of this university. Their respective roles with the student newspaper will be virtually impossible to fill. After having worked closely with both of the Lovetts, I know what it means to have a friend and a teacher. No other faculty members know the long hours newspaper advisors have to put in each week and few, if any, will even give it a shot.

As you begin the year, remember those who have gone on before you. They have tried to teach you the ropes, but you must use your own skills now. I know that you all, even the newest staff members, will succeed at making the Chanticleer even better than it was under my editorship. Good luck to you all, Greg Spoon

Frat house is catching 'Nu wave'

Fraternity finds new home

By Steven Robinson
Chanticleer Senior Editor

One might say "getting a 'Nu' start" could be the slogan of the Sigma Nu Fraternity this year.

John McEwen, Sigma Nu president, said this new start began on September 1, when the brothers of the Iota Lambda chapter of Sigma Nu moved into their new house. Since that time, they have been bustling with activity; cleaning the yard, painting the inside walls, and "fixing up the place" have been priority activities.

Located on Mountain Street, the recently purchased fraternity house has everyone there enthusiastic about the 1986-87 school year.

"The house is a new start for us, and I believe we have that in our favor," said McEwen about the fraternity's move.

The Sigma Nus have been looking at the house since the middle of the summer, he said.

During the next couple of weeks, they plan to finish the yard work and complete the task of renovating the interior. Future projects include putting on a new roof and adding a deck, McEwen added.

He said the previous Sigma Nu house, known as the Knox Ide House, or the Boxwoods, was in need of repair. He said everyone felt the move was in the best interest of the fraternity.

At the new house, the Sigma Nus are busy doing what can be done at present, but are hard pressed for time due to involvement in little sister and pledge rushes.

McEwen believes the house will help during rush by making the fraternity more appealing, thus adding extra incentive for rushees to pledge Sigma Nu.

He also feels that the new house will make a positive impression on approximately 160 Sigma Nu alumni who return to campus each fall.

There are no plans as of yet for a housewarming celebration, but the brothers said they are inviting everyone to "come by and check out their fraternity house."

Regular activities will go on as scheduled this fall, with major emphasis being placed on Homecoming week festivities.

The Sigma Nus believe the change will bring stronger cohesion to their brotherhood, providing more unity as a whole and renewed enthusiasm to the individual fraternity member.

"I believe the house gives us the opportunity to have one of the best semesters Sigma Nu has ever had at Jacksonville State," said Dalton Smith, a Sigma Nu brother.

Sigma Nu was founded on January 1, 1869, at Virginia Military Institute. The Iota Lambda chapter was founded at Jacksonville State University on April 5, 1975.

The brothers of Sigma Nu are active in the community as well as on campus. They participate in various fund raisers and community projects throughout the year.

Handwriting unlocks hidden personality traits

By Steven Robinson
Chanticleer Senior Editor

It can reveal things about an individual that they did not know themselves. The job of exposing sides of one's personality that he or she may prefer to hide is often its specialty.

The science of handwriting analysis, or graphology, is gaining more and more credibility as a tool in unlocking hidden traits that may cause people to act the way they do, some graphologists believe.

Graphology operates on the same principle as the Rorschach psychological tests. In the same manner that a psychologist would analyze a person's interpretation of ink blots, the graphologist studies the way a person writes. How one forms his letters, the way the letters slant, and the size of the letters are all valuable clues for the graphologist. Other clues include the amount of pressure applied to the pen or pencil, and the legibility of what is written.

Perhaps the most revealing item of all is the signature. This is the individual's creation. He originated it on his own without help from either parent or teacher.

Usually over 300 different aspects of a person's handwriting sample is examined.

"Your handwriting will tell an expert things that your best friend or mate wouldn't know after a full ten years," said Dr. Carlos Pedragel, a leading graphologist.

Even the person being studied can gain further insight into their own personalities and possibly discover things about themselves that they never knew before.

Graphology has even been used to solve mysteries. Several cases of adopted children searching for their parents have proven successful after graphologists were brought in to examine some writing samples of the parents that the children had discovered.

Some graphologists have attempted to predict future events in peoples' lives by studying their own handwriting samples. Some startling evidence has shown that such activity might be legitimate.

For example, a young couple, recently engaged, had handwriting samples taken by a graphologist just prior to their wedding day. They had been high school sweethearts for years, and both families thought the marriage was made in heaven.

The results from the graphologist's studies were not what the couple expected. He told them that because of differences in their personalities that were reflected in their handwriting, the marriage probably would not last more than six months.

They ignored the advice and were married. Five months later, they were separated.

Coincidence or scientific analysis? More research and testing will have to take place before this question can even begin to be answered. Until then, handwriting (or "brainwriting" as graphologists like to call it) will continue to intrigue and fascinate both scientist and layman alike.

Contacts clearly seen as viable alternative today

BY ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

No more four eyes. No more losing glasses during a game of touch football. No more being unable to see at the swimming pool.

This is what wearing contact lenses means to the 23 million Americans who wear them. And the number rises each year as more and more people toss aside their glasses and switch to contacts.

The increase in the popularity of contact lenses can be attributed to many advancements in technology. Contacts today are more comfortable and correct even more vision problems, said Anniston optometrist Gary Murrell.

Murray feels that contact lenses are an excellent alternative to glasses, but stresses the importance of proper care and maintenance.

Without proper care, contact lens wearers run the risk of losing their vision altogether as a result of eye infections, doctors said.

The contact lens industry is indeed a booming business. In 1985 alone, Americans spent a half-billion dollars on cleaning solutions and other accessories, according to the Contact Lens Institute (CLI), an organization of 10 leading contact lens manufacturers based in Washington, D.C.

Contact lenses fall into four basic categories -- hard, soft, gas-permeable and extended wear.

"Rigid (hard) contacts are the old-fashioned hard lenses that were popular 20 years ago. They're made of a plastic material (PMMA). We fit very few of these now because we have much better materials available today that are much healthier for the eye," Murrell said.

Many of the problems associated with hard lenses are due to the fact that they serve as a barrier to oxygen, he said. Though a well-fitted hard lens does allow a perderneath the lens, no oxygen is able to penetrate the lens.

"Gas permeable lenses have solved that problem. They are rigid lenses, but made of a type of plastic that allows oxygen to pass through to the cornea. Now if a person needs rigid lenses, we fit them with gas-permeables," Murrell said.

By far the most popular lenses worn today are soft contacts. Made up of a mixture of a soft, flexible plastic and water, these lenses are best for active people because they are initially more comfortable than hard and gas-permeable lenses, stay in place better and do not pop out of the eye nearly as easily, Murrell said.

Extended-wear contacts are a type of soft lens that maximize the amount of oxygen transmitted through the plastic. These lenses are made of either a thinner plastic or higher water content to aid in comfort, allowing the wearer to keep them in while sleeping or even swimming.

"It's very important that patients comply with the instructions of their doctor. Anyone who wears contact lenses must share the responsibility of keeping their eyes in good health. If they do that, the risks from wearing contacts are absolutely minimal," Murrell said.

Marvel comics creates new animated universe

By Steven Robinson
Chanticleer Senior Editor

A quarter century after Marvel mastermind Stan Lee converted conventional comic book content into compelling entertainment with a cast of complex, colorful characters including The Fantastic Four, The Amazing Spider-Man, and The Incredible Hulk, the Marvel Comics group is celebrating its silver anniversary by staging a second revolution: "The New Universe."

A creation rooted in science and technology, like the best science fiction, "The New Universe" brings the comic book medium to a new level of sophistication.

They accomplish this by offering incredible stories with characters who exist in the real world of the eighties and affect the lives of others.

The first eight titles under "The New Universe" banner are as follows: "Star Brand," "Spitfire and the Troubleshooters," "Psi-Force," "Nightmask," "Kickers, Inc.," "Merc," "D.P.7," and "Justice." They arrived on newstands, in comic book specialty shops, and in selected bookstores this summer as Marvel turned 25.

The eight interrelated titles in "The New Universe," each of which as 32 pages and a cover price of 75 cents, have been created by many of the top talents in contemporary illustrated fiction. Leading the roster is Archie Goodwin, editorial director of Marvel's Epic Comics line. He has been twice cited as best writer by the Academy of Comic Book Arts. He created "Psi-Force," "Nightmask," "Merc," and "Justice."

Other writers and artists include Eliot Brown, Sal Buscema, Peter David, Tom DeFalco, Ron Frenz, Mark Gruenwald, Rick Leonardi, John Morelli, Gray Morrow, Steve Perry, John Romita, Jr., Paul Ryan, Tony Salmons, Jim Shooter, Walt Simonson, Mark Texiera, Herb Trimpe, and Al Williamson.

The Marvel Comics Group, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary as the nation's premier comic book publisher, is a diversified communications concern also engaged in juvenile book publishing, domestic and foreign merchandise licensing, and television feature film production.

Illiteracy in America is growing at rapid rates

By Steven Robinson
Chanticleer Senior Editor

It has become a national problem. While robbing both young and old of the chance to reach their fullest potential, it often forces them to become second class citizens. The problem causes people to discriminate against others, which makes society extremely hard to cope with.

Is this problem drug abuse? Alcoholism? No. This dreaded enemy is illiteracy.

Gov. George Wallace has declared September as Literacy Month in Alabama. This proclamation urges all Alabamians to support a new literacy program that hopefully will improve social, educational and career opportunities in the state.

This new program is called Project Literacy U. S. (PLUS). It is a never before attempted television public service project utilizing both the national media and local community programs. Its main focus will be on adult illiteracy in the United States.

Public Broadcasting and ABC television will team up to bring national focus to this menacing problem. This effort began Wednesday, Sept. 3, and will continue throughout the remainder of the year.

Illiteracy in America is growing in rapid proportions. Each year, the number of adults who cannot read their own birth certificates, recipes in a cookbook, or a job application increases at alarming rates.

According to the latest statistics, there are 202,000 functionally illiterate citizens in Alabama, and 27 million nationwide.

This costs the state and federal governments billions of dollars annually. Without basic reading skills, illiterates must resort to welfare or some other form of government support, as they have no viable skills to propel them in today's competitive job market.

The program PLUS was created to make the American public aware of the problem and to get them involved in a nationwide movement to stamp out illiteracy.

PLUS has three major goals:

- Raise the national awareness of the illiteracy problem in America;
- Develop and encourage volunteer action to address illiteracy;
- Encourage those needing help and those who can help to get involved.

By the use of mass media and community efforts cooperatively, PLUS aims to bring illiteracy down from crisis levels and eventually eliminate as much of it as possible. The final results at the end of the year will prove the success or failure of the program, and should make for interesting reading.

Fasting brings fulfillment to students' lives

BY STEVEN ROBINSON
Chanticleer Senior Editor

It has been called the "ultimate diet" by many of its staunchest supporters.

Bringing new vim, vigor and vitality to the lives of thousands of people, it has recently gained widespread attention all across America.

This weight-loss and health maintenance method has the capacity to help a person lose 20 pounds in one week, and improve general health at as rapid a rate.

Is it some new wave, high-tech fad diet? Not a chance. It is a physical fitness aid dating back to ancient times—fasting.

Records from ancient Egypt reveal the fasting techniques of the Egyptians—a group of people well noted by the ancient Greeks as being very healthy.

In the Bible, there are over 74 references to fasting. Moses, Elijah, Daniel and Jesus Christ are examples of biblical fasters.

The disciples of eastern religions embrace fasting with fervor and enthusiasm. Yogis fast to receive mystical revelations. In Japan, buddhists fast to improve spiritual and physical awareness and conditioning.

"Religious ascetics, who led their lives abstaining from food, came to the conclusion that fasting improved not only their spiritual state, but also their physical condition, and through fasting, many diseases were cured," said Dr. Imamura Motoo, who has supervised many fasts in Japan.

Pope Paul VI has said fasting would be a symbolic expression of support and sympathy for the world's poor and hungry.

"Man must through fasting deprive himself even materially to allowing his neighbor to share his prosperity in spite of the claims of self-love," the Pope said. Today, Americans fast for all kinds of reasons, but the usual excuse is that of losing weight. Other reasons for fasting include:

- To feel better
- To cope with high food prices
- To gain new and better eating habits
- To cut down on smoking and drinking

The first question most people ask about fasting is, "Is it safe?"

Yes, fasting is safe for most people, but everyone's body is unique and adapts to fasting in its own way, Dr. Allan Cott, author of the best-selling book on fasting, Fasting: The Ultimate Diet said.

"However, in today's society, most people believe that three square meals a day are essential for the preservation of life itself," said Cott.

Actually, the human body easily adapts to fasting. It contains within itself ample resources to nourish itself and carry out daily body functions for extended periods of time without food intake. The body continues the process of nutrition just as if food was being consumed.

Most people mistake fasting for starving. They are two completely different phenomena. Starving occurs only when the body's nutrient reserves are totally depleted. Fasting is mere abstinence from food for brief periods of time.

Fasting is not a cure-all for anything, including obesity, but it has been linked in innumerable cases with recovery from various illnesses.

Hippocrates, "the father of medicine," prescribed fasting as a means of combating illness.

"To eat when you are sick is to feed your sickness," he said.

Hippocrates followed his own advice and fasted. He lived to the ripe old age of 90.

Another problem faced by many would-be fasters is that of initial hunger. Surprisingly, hunger disappears during a fast. Of course there is the initial feeling of hunger as the body adjusts to lack of food intake, but this feeling soon leaves.

There is a logical explanation for this. As long as one is eating anything at all, the palate is in a constant state of stimulation. But when the palate no longer "remembers" food, due to not eating, hunger leaves. Hunger pangs usually subside completely after the second or third day of fasting.

Employment opportunities can vary with job

By Steven Robinson
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Continuation of a steady, modest growth in hiring plans was the conclusion of Manpower Incorporated in its fourth quarter Employment Outlook Survey after talking to 12,725 companies throughout the country.

"Hiring plans will remain close to those of the third quarter and the fourth quarter of last year, although there is the traditional slight slippage between the third and fourth quarters," said Manpower President Mitchell S. Fromstein.

Employment increases for the October-November-December quarter are planned by 24 percent of the firms interviewed. This compares to 25 percent last year and 27 percent last quarter. A total of 11 percent anticipate staff declines, compared to 10 percent last year and nine percent last quarter.

The employment gains predicted in our new survey, while slightly lower than last quarter, follow the general trend of moderate change that has been with us for over a year. The anticipated hiring pace will be strongest in the wholesale retail sector, which reflects an expected seasonal increase for the holiday period."

He added that the weakest hiring predictions come once again from the energy-related states of Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana and Colorado.

The survey shows evidence of a looming decline in construction hiring, as 20 percent of those firms stated an intention to reduce staff as cold weather attacks Northern states. The hiring outlook among manufacturers appears to be stable, with durable goods manufacturers reflecting as much optimism as their nondurable goods counterparts, although both sectors show approximately the same planning levels as last year.

Regionally, the Northwestern states were the clear leader for the second consecutive quarter. The South closely follows, despite absorbing the difficult conditions in energy-related areas. The cold winter weather places less burden on Southern employment.

Manpower Inc. conducts the employment outlook survey on a quarterly basis. It is a measurement of employer intentions to increase or decrease the permanent workforce, and during its ten-year history has been a significant indicator of employment trends. The survey, conducted during the last two weeks of August, is based upon telephone interviews with over 12,725 public and private employers in 389 U. S. cities.

Manpower Inc. is the world's largest temporary service firm, annually providing employment to more than 700,000 people through its 1,300 offices in 32 countries. Office services account for more than half of the assignments at which its temporary workforce is engaged.

Review

'Black Warrior' captivates all

By TZENA GIBBS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

"Black Warrior" is a moving, tongue-in-cheek satire on the lives of three friends and how each one touched the life of the others.

Randy Hall has skillfully written an outstanding script that brings to life three graduate students at the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa, and artfully develops each character so that by the end of the play, each one has poured out his very soul to the audience.

The action takes place in the evening in Woods Quad on the campus of the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa. The setting is an old office with boxes piled high and old desks stacked with papers, shared by the three graduate students.

The three friends, better known as the "unholy trio" by the faculty, were Eddie King as Julian Moore; Peter Thomasson as Doug Townsend; and Nita Hardy as Rosemary Coleman.

Doug Townsend had returned to the University after ten years to give a reading of his recent Pulitzer Prize winning story, "A Field of Doves." As he rested on the deck of his old office after the reading, his imagination took him back to the night Julian tried to kill himself. Although this attempt did not kill him, Doug received word a few years later that Julian had burned to death in his parents home in Mississippi.

The narrative is excellent; clear, clean and precise. Hall delves in to the minds of his characters and is able to create real people with definite personalities without the use of exposition.

Doug tells his friends at one point during that fateful night, "Nobody actually lives here. This is just a place to stay until you decide what you want to do next.

And what does come next? Does anybody really know what they want to do for the rest of their lives when they are so young, unsure and dreading the future? And it is so easy to make the wrong decision and screw things up for good.

The characters in this play are all very gifted writers. They want to write. That is it. What makes this so hard?

Family, marriage, commitment, and practicality stand in the way, like a mill stone. Doug was willing to throw away his teaching career and take a chance with writing in New York.

"Writing, that's the real world. The rest is what you have to go through to get a few hours to write," Doug said.

Reception for McGee showcased talent

All endings bring new beginnings, and at the same time new beginnings bring endings. New beginnings of classes can bring an end to a fun-filled social life if you let the latter interfere too much. But if you budget your time efficiently, you will have time to make the dean's list plus make your mark on campus. Don't you hate it when school interferes with your social life?

A big hand goes out to Vonda Barbour and the entire SGA for a successful student-faculty tea last Thursday honoring Dr. Harold McGee. After the reception, the entertainment turned into a talent show.

Daphne Sims, representing Campus Outreach, performed a lovely gospel song, and Scott Green from the Baptist Campus Ministry sang a Dallas Holmes song to the music of his guitar.

Alpha Xi Delta presented a slide show down sentimental street, Zeta performed one of their rush routines to the tune of "Footloose," Delta Zeta shuffled on down to the "DZ Shuffle," and Phi Mu performed an original variation on Barry Manilow's "Very Strange Melody" taken from their Circus Extravaganza rush party.

David McAllister, president and spokesman of the Society for the Advancement of Management, presented Dr. McGee with an honorary membership into SAM.

Pi Kappa Phi's Gary Como spoke on behalf of the fraternity.

Phi Beta Lambda, a professional business fraternity, participated in the ceremony and discussed the goals and objectives of their club.

The Marching Southerners performed many heavy brass songs as the Ballerinas formed a kick-line in front.

The Cheerleaders led everyone in a cheer and did a dance routine to the Gamecock fight song.

At 24 or 25 years old, what does one have but choice? The choice to do what makes one happy, take a chance and go against practicality. Doug accused Julian of not wanting to teach. Why does he want to stay at Tuscaloosa?

On the other hand, Julian had married at the age of 21 and had a young son. He argued that, "It's practical. Running off is not practical."

And so, is there life after graduate school? And if so, then why has anyone not come back to let them know about it.

Julian's wife had not allowed him to grow. He needed someone to feed his mind, support him and nurture his creativity. She was a choke on hope. She had become a trap and he had grown to resent her, almost hate her. Tara Bennett played an outstanding and convincing Cathy, Julian's wife.

Cathy had given her entire life to Julian, and on this night, Julian released all of his pent up resentment. She was not enough for Julian. Nobody's ever enough. What happens when two people in love outgrow each other?

Just as Julian felt smothered by Cathy, Doug felt smothered by Julian. Doug felt he was inferior in talent to Julian and half hated-half worshipped him for it.

Rosemary was in love with Julian and had been for years. When she finally expressed her feelings to him, he felt that their friendship had been betrayed with sexual lust. Julian could not accept that her feelings of love were real.

Julian had been abandoned by his father when he was a baby and had delusions of abandonment all of his life. He had begun to see his dad in the face of every stranger who looked his way, and in the ghost of the black warrior hiding in the quad at the Alabama campus.

His decision to leave Cathy meant abandoning his son, and Doug's decision to go to New York alone meant abandoning Julian all over again.

"Black Warrior" is a story of betrayal, distrust, jealousy, pride, hate, love, and disconcerted souls. These people were friends on many different levels, and one of those levels grew into intense hate through jealousy. The irony of the ending is that Doug had won the Pulitzer Prize after he changed his story the way Julian told him he should.

The acting was superb. A poem called "Black Warrior" was chanted by Julian throughout the play. The last line of the poem read, "What will you leave for me to keep, when you go the warrior's way?"

After the big build-up, McGee took front and center and was welcomed by warm applause.

Dr. Fred Gant, professor of chemistry, said he really enjoyed the reception and the cake. On his way to get seconds, Gil Turley, an accounting instructor, said he wouldn't have missed the reception.

Howard Brewer, a mathematics instructor, was reported to have shuffled his feet along with the DZ's Shuffle. Carol Smith, College of Commerce and Business Administration Advisor, said the faculty who were absent missed out.

Other familiar faces at the reception included Larry Smith, director of financial aid; Dr. Reuben Boozer, Dean of the College of Science and Mathematics; Dr. William Fielding, head of the finance department; P.J. Forrest, associate professor of marketing; Jack Hopper, director of institutional advancement; Dr. Clyde

Campus radio station lists top 10 hits

By SCOTT KEEFER
Chanticleer Staff Writer

Welcome to TUNED IN—a new column designed to keep you up to date on what's happening in music, both locally and on the national scene. Fall is here and that usually means a fresh crop of new releases is due.

One of the new albums that has just come out after a long wait is the latest from TOTO. The band enjoyed their biggest success with the TOTO IV lp, with such hits as "Rosanna" and "Africa."

Early in 1985, they came out with "Isolation" album. Not a real smash for the band, but they did have one hit—Stranger in Town."

Since that time, the band has made several personnel changes.

Lead singer Bobby Kimball and Bassist David Hungate left the band, so TOTO added Michael Porcaro on bass (he's the brother of drummer Jeff and keyboardist Steve Porcaro.) Joseph Williams joins as the new vocalist.

David Paich, keyboards, and Steve Lukather, guitar, are still with the band.

The result is a sound a lot like their older material like "Hold the Line" and "99." The new album is FARENHEIT, and features the single "I'll Be Over You—which you can hear now on 92-J.

This song features mellow background vocals from Michael McDonald. Also on the album is an interesting jazz cut with sax work by David Sanborn (who plays on several cuts) and an awesome trumpet part by Miles Davis.

FARENHEIT is available in record stores now and makes a great addition to any record collection.

Another new big release is the first album by Don Johnson from "Miami Vice." Although most radio people thought he was just pulling a publicity stunt, after hearing the entire album, I must admit the guy has talent.

Johnson DID get a lot of help with the album from some real pros (i.e. Stevie Ray Vaughn, Bob Seger, Tom Petty, Willie Nelson, Dweezil Zappa and many others.) His voice is as good as any other pop singers, and with a heavy first single, "Heartbeat," the album should be a dream-come-true for Don Johnson.

Those are just a few of the new things to listen for, like the long-awaited BOSTON lp, new TINA TURNER, CHICAGO 18, and more. Details about those later.

As far as singles go, Huey Lewis and the News are on top of Billboards HOT 100, and at 92-J, the top ten looks like this: 1. Heaven in Your Eyes—Loverboy 2. Dreamtime—Daryl Hall 3. Throwing It All

Away—Genesis 4. Heartbeat—Don Johnson 5. I Didn't Mean to Turn You On—Robert Palmer 6. Stuck With You—Huey Lewis and the News

7. Missionary Man—Eurythmics 8. Money$ Too Tight (to Mention)—Simply Red 9. A Matter of Trust—Billy Joel 10. Love Walks In—Van Halen

That's what's hot on the radio locally.

As always, the staff of 92-J wants to hear from you. Our business office number is 231-5571, and our P.O. Box number is 3009.

Until next week. . . Stay TUNED IN.

Knox Concert Series announces 1986-87 season

"The Knox Concert Series—A Musical Landmark for 41 years" will again present the finest nationally and internationally acclaimed artists available in the world with the opening of its new season.

The "Kick-Off Party" for the 1986-87 Season was held on Tuesday, August 12th at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Roger Buck. At that time, the Season was announced and ticket

Cox, head of the English department; and Teresa Cheatham, student recruiter.

Everyone who attended the reception seemed to have an enjoyable afternoon.

The Executive Officers of the Student Government have appointed Buddy Spradley as chairperson of the Inter-Club Council for the 1986-87 school year.

Every club and organization is required by the SGA Constitution to be a part of the Inter-Club Council. According to Spradley, the ICC plans to be a part of each club this year by helping to bring clubs together in activities, promote and publicize upcoming events, plus much more.

Each club and organization should appoint a representative to attend all ICC meetings. The ICC will meet every two weeks on Monday at 6:00 p.m. on the third floor of the Theron Montgomery Building. The first meeting of the school year was September 8th, and a follow-up meeting was held this past Monday. Starting with the second meeting, each club and organization which has three absences will be fined $10.

The Communications Club will meet every Wednesday at 3:30 in Room 207, Self Hall. Anyone wishing to join (soon to be) Sigma Delta Chi is welcome and encouraged to attend.

The brothers of Delta Chi had their little sister acceptance for the ladies of the White Carnation. Delta Chi sends out thanks to all the young ladies who came by their house during little sister rush.

Tonight is the last night of formal rush for men. Rush is dry again this year.

"By not serving alcohol, the fraternity already has an idea of which guys are interested in joining distribution was made to the members of the Ticket Committee, who actively volunteer their time to sell tickets to the Series.

Artists for this 41st Season will include internationally renowned pianist, Vladimir Ashkenazy appearing with the equally renowned Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London; Ballet de France, the elite new French ballet ensemble; Country singer, songwriter, the Greek system and which ones are not. Greeks do not need alcohol as a promotional tool for rush," said Pat Ryan, Delta Chi brother.

A candle light was held in the Delta Zeta Chapter room recently announcing the engagement of Casey Caradine to Bill Godfrey. Congratulations.

Delta Zeta welcomes the following pledges into their sorority: Starr Allen, Susan Arnold, Geri Burgess, April Dillard, Amy Henderson, Patti Hipp, Susan Keel, Sunday King, Adrienne Page, and Cris Taylor.

Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity held their annual fall rush "smoker" September 15. According to Bill Bauman, public relations chairperson for Phi Mu Alpha, the following girls are new little sisters: Jill Barnocki, Linda Austin, Angela Brague, Sherri Gilbreath, Rachel Cook, Terry Lawler, and Tanya Clark.

The following guys are new Phi Mu Alpha pledges: Kevin Garrett, John Maines, Bart Sorrells, Steve Perry, and Blain Callaway.

The participation at last week's pep rally was very impressive once more. Don't forget there will be no pep rally tonight.

The sisters of Phi Mu have been very busy this week with big sis-lil sis week. Tonight after formal pledging-in, the new Phi's will discover who their new big sisters are. Pledge of the week is Amy Myers.

Tomorrow night, the Phi Mu's are off on an adventure to the University of Alabama to have a social with the Kappa Sigma's. The girls will travel on two buses and are scheduled to arrive in Bama Land around 8:00 p.m. The theme of the mixer is "Whip Creme and Cherries." A whip creme battle and a pie throwing contest are on the schedule for the night.

producer and television celebrity, Roy Clark; and one of the greatest opera singers of all time, Leontyne Price.

The Knox Concert will also present its Christmas Program The Nutcracker, to be performed on Saturday, December 6th by the State of Alabama Ballet.

All performances of the Knox Concert Series are at the Anniston High School Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

A&M ends streak, beats Gamecocks

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Alabama A&M defeated Jacksonville State 14-7 in a college football game in Huntsville. Saturday night, in front of an overflow crowd at Joe Davis Stadium.

The game marked the first win over the Gamecocks for A&M in the 12 year series.

During the first half of action, the two teams settled to a draw, 7-7.

Alabama A&M scored a go-ahead, and the ultimate game winner, in the third quarter. Then in the fourth quarter, the Bulldogs forced three Gamecock turnovers, two interceptions and a fumble.

However, the game was still in doubt until the final play.

Jacksonville State got the ball back with :57 remaining in the game. David Coffey then hit four straight passes - to Ronnie Oliver, Solomon Rivers, Darrell Sanders, and Monte Coats - for 63 yards.

But the game ended as Coffey threw incomplete into the end zone from the A&M 17 yard line.

A&M scored the winning touchdown after an 80 yard 10-play drive. Rodney Davis, who led A&M with 142 yards rushing, scored from the 11 to give A&M a 14-7 lead.

In the fourth quarter Coffey was intercepted twice, and one of the turnovers led to an attempted field goal which was missed.

After the miss, with only 4:35 remaining in the game, JSU drove to midfield before fumbling the ball to the Bulldogs.

A&M held onto the ball until the :57 mark, and it was then that the Gamecocks mounted their comeback attempt.

The two teams played a scoreless first quarter, then A&M took a 7-0 lead halfway through the second period.

The Bulldogs drove 60 yards in nine plays as Timothy Austin scored from the one. There were two big A&M plays during the drive, 24 and 40 yard passes from quarterback Terrance Brown. The first pass went to the JSU 41, and the next one carried A&M to the Gamecock one yard line. Austin scored two plays later.

Jacksonville took the ensuing kickoff and drove to the A&M 39, then punted. However, A&M fumbled and Keith Henderson recovered for JSU at the 14 yard line.

On the first play after the turnover, Pat White rolled out left and kept the ball for the Gamecocks' only score.

Statistically, A&M dominated the game, played before a crowd estimated at 9,000.

A&M had 411 total yards compared to 311 for Jax State. The Bulldogs passed for 232 yards, and showed the ability to move the ball at will.

Shaun Massey led the Gamecocks rushing attack as the senior half-back totaled 59 yards on 12 carries. Terry Thomas added 45 yards with his 11 carries. Monte Coats added 24 rushing yards, and Pat White chipped in with 21.

Quarterback David Coffey completed 16-27 passes for 149 yards. He threw three interceptions. Coffey had at least five passes dropped or his numbers would have been even better.

Coffey's favorite target was Solomon Rivers who caught eight balls for 41 yards. Darrell Sanders and Keith McKeller each caught two passes.

Jacksonville State is idle this week. Their next game will be September 27 against West Georgia. Game time is 7:30 and the game will be played at Paul Snow Stadium.

Here is how the scoring went in Saturday night's NCAA Division II football game between Jacksonville State University and Alabama A&M at Joe W. Davis Stadium in Huntsville.

Intramural play starts

By MARK KIRKPATRICK
 Chanticleer Sports Writer
 Wednesday kicked off a new 1986
 Intramural football season. The new season brought about some rule changes: (1) No line contact will be allowed. (2) only screen blocking will be permitted. (3) Punt and kick returns will be allowed this season.
 (4) Another change is that only seven men will be on the field per team. However, all of these men will be eligible receivers, including the linemen. (5) Field goal attempts will be free attempts this year, with no pressure from the defense.

These rule changes coupled with an excellent team turn out could translate into more points scored and this provides a very exciting football season.

Today is the last day to sign up for golf and co-rec softball. Anyone interested in these sports should come by the intramural office for more information.

Men's basketball rebuilding

To say the 1986-87 basketball season will be a rebuilding one at Jacksonville State University would be an understatement. Head coach Bill Jones must replace four-year starters Keith McKeller and Robert Spurgeon, two-year starter Pat Williams at guard, and last year's second-leading scorer in forward James Dudley.

Only one starter-- sophomore guard Jeff Smith-- returns this year. Smith, a native of Gadsden, averaged 7.9 points and 2.9 rebounds a year ago, but closed the season with a 16-point effort against West Georgia and a 25-point performance against Delta State.

The only other veterans Jones can call on are 6-4 senior forward Kevin Riggan, who averaged 5.1 points per game; 6-4 sophomore forward Charles Page, who tossed in 1.6 points a game; and 5-10 junior guard Robbie Barnes, who averaged 1.5 points in limited playing time.

"We will be young and inexperienced, to say the least," said Jones, who led the Gamecocks to the 1984-85 NCAA Division II National title. "And, we will start the season without a proven big man or rebounder. We will have to rely on our overall team speed and quickness and our full-court pressure."

To off-set the lack of experience, Jones brought in our junior college players this season. They are 6-2 guard Gary Campbell, who averaged 20 points and 8 rebounds last year at Brunswick (Ga.) Junior College, 6-5 forward Derek Hicks, who tossed in 16 points and pulled down an average of 8 rebounds at Middle Georgia Junior College, guard Orlando Ledyard, a 6-0, 185-pounder out of Mary Holmes Junior College in Mississippi, where he averaged 18 points-per-game, and 6-4 forward Vernon Zimmerman, who tossed in 13 points and pulled in 7 rebounds a game at Brunswick Junior College last year.

Freshmen signees include 6-5 guard Paul Gaffney of Benham, KY., 6-6 freshman forward Evan Riddle of Virginia Beach, Va., and 6-4 forward Henry Williams of Bibb County High School in Centerville.

Jones will also have the services of a couple of red-shirt guards 6-2 guard Randall Holmes of Fairfield, and 6-0 sophomore Richard Robinson of Birmingham. Robinson sat out last season after transferring from Arkansas-Little Rock.

All-Around Sports

Bad night in Huntsville

Huntsville, Alabama. Not too friendly a place for Gamecock fans last Saturday night, or for Chanticleer Sports Editors for that matter, but more on that later.

The Gamecocks lost a tough game, but let's stay behind the team. This year's team is awfully young, and young teams make mistakes.

Jax State will now enter the GSC part of the schedule, and the conference race kicks off for Bill Burgess' team on the 27th of this month, as JSU will host West Georgia on that day.

The GSC race officially started this past week as defending GSC champ North Alabama was upset at home by Mississippi College, by a 21-6 score.

A team on the rise is apparently Valdosta State. The Blazers, under new head coach Mike Cavan, defeated, usually offensively strong, Ft. Valley State 17-0.

Livingston also appears to be a team on the rise as they took care of Division I foe Western Kentucky, by a 23-21 score. Livingston will get a stern test as they travel to Hamilton, Alabama, to take on North Alabama. This game will not count in the GSC standings, but it should indicate just how strong Livingston is.

Back to the Gamecocks. Terry Thomas and Shawn Massey continue to do the majority of running out of the Jax State wishbone. Thomas has rushed for a team high 140 yards, and Massey follows with a total of 109. Thomas and reserve quarterback Pat White share the team lead in rushing touchdowns with two each.

Senior quarterback David Coffey has passed for 305 yards, and has completed 58 percent of his tosses. His percentage could be higher if not for a few dropped passes. Coffey has played well in the first two games.

Solomon Rivers continues to play well, as the redshirt freshman works in the backfield, and returns both punts and kickoffs.

Defensively, the Gamecocks gave up too many yards this past week, but only 14 points were scored against them, and I would think that any coach would like his chances of winning if his defense only allows two touchdowns.

Offensively, the team needs to become more consistent. But, considering the youth of the offense, this phase of the effort should get better each week.

Do I think that Jax State will do well in the GSC race? Well, in the first issue of the Chanticleer I picked the Gamecocks to finish second in the conference. If the team improves, which it will, then I see the fact that we host Mississippi College, North Alabama, and Troy State as a decisive advantage for the Gamecocks.

I think the team is too young to win the GSC this year, but I expect the Gamecocks to be one of the favorites to win the conference next year. And who knows, Burgess' crew may pull it off this season.

Huntsville. A place unfit this past week for Gamecock players, fans, and for yours truly. I do not care to ever return. Let me explain. On the way back from Huntsville, my car decided that it was tired and did not want to go any further. Well, to make a long story short, I did not arrive back in Jacksonville until 7 a.m. Sunday morning, and then I had to have my car towed in. Why do these things always happen so far from home? Anyway, I would like to thank Vihn and Brian, Brian for putting himself in danger of great bodily harm, and Vihn for driving back to Huntsville to pick us up at 5 Sunday morning.

Everyone should plan to attend the West Georgia game, which will be the 27th and will be held at 7:30 in the cozy confines of Paul Snow Stadium. Come out and support your Gamecocks.

College season starts to heat up

Florida vs. Alabama, and Georgia vs. Clemson. These two contests headline what should be a very exciting week of college football.

Last week's games provided quite a few surprises, and due to that fact a record of 7-6-2 was the result of the picks a week ago.

CHANTICLEER team of the week is Mississippi State. The Bulldogs raised their record to 2-0 as they defeated Tennessee 27-23, in Knoxville.

CHANTICLEER player of the week is TCU running back Tony Jeffrey. Jeffrey rambled for 343 yards and scored five touchdowns in the Horned Frogs win over Tulane. Jeffrey's yardage figure is the sixth highest single game total in NCAA history.

ALABAMA at FLORIDA
This contest will be a major test for Ray Perkins' Crimson Tide. If the Tide is to win the SEC, a win over Florida at Florida Field would place Alabama squarely in the favorites role. However, Florida was embarrassed at home by Miami, so look for Kerwin Bell and his friends to make it a long day for the Tide. FLORIDA 23-20

CLEMSON at GEORGIA
These teams have a true dislike for each other. This game is spurred on by the proximity of the two schools and by the fact that each school recruits against the other. The Bulldogs are 4-1-1 in the 80's against Danny Ford's troops, and look for that record to improve in Georgia's favor. GEORGIA 20-17

NOTRE DAME at MICHIGAN STATE

The Irish came very close to knocking off mighty Michigan, while Michigan State lost a tough game at Arizona State. The Spartans need to get Lorenzo Thomas untracked, or they will lose to the Irish. Lou Holtz appears to have instilled new pride in the Irish, and they should be too much for the Spartans. NOTRE DAME 24-21

SOUTHERN CAL at BAYLOR
The Trojans appear to have a good team, but they must travel to Waco to take on the Bears. Baylor has a fine team, but the Bears struggled in their opener, and pasted outmanned Louisiana Tech last week. USC defeated a much better team in Illinois, and the Trojans should be the better prepared team. SOUTHERN CAL 27-23

TULANE at VANDERBILT
Why highlight this game you ask. True, each team is still in search of a win, but this game has more going for it than just the teams on the field. This is a battle of brothers, the Browns. Mack Brown will bring the Green Wave into Nashville to play his brother Watson's team. Both of the Browns are pass oriented coaches, so this one could last a while. VANDERBILT 35-30
