Students organize HELPline on campus

By TZENA GIBBS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

An organization of concerned students on campus have formed a professional referral service HELPline in Room 128 of Rowan Hall.

Pete Bascam, Woodward, vice president of student affairs, and Dean Miriam Higginbotham, dean of housing, initially wanted a program for alcoholism on campus.

Higginbotham contacted Dawn Davenport, executive for Prevention of Substance Abuse in Aniston, who arranged a meeting open to all students to discuss sex, drugs, parents, money and any other problems students encounter.

A massive turnout of students met with Davenport and Higginbotham on January 8 in the library and expressed their major concerns. Basically, the group decided that the University needed an organization to help give information to students for referrals to professional help, according to Audrey Phillips, a volunteer HELPline worker.

Dean Higginbotham arranged for Room 128 of Rowan Hall to become the office. The room is equipped with one phone, two desks and two chairs. Two people will be on duty at all times to man the phone from 5 to 10 p.m. After this time, all calls will be automatically transferred to whoever is on duty that night. At 8 a.m., all calls will be transferred back to Davenport at the Prevention Center.

"This is strictly a referral service, not a counseling service. Any problem that you can think of from not having money to eat or pay bills all the way to suicide," Higginbotham said.

Because the service is free to all students, the workers involved with HELP are all on a strictly volunteer basis. The majority of the professionals the callers are referred to are already paid by the state and others have volunteered to render free services and full cooperation. However, paid professionals will be made available, also.

"The students working with HELP are doing this strictly for the satisfaction," Phillips said.

The training sessions for the HELP volunteers began last week. Dr. Joe Howell, a psychologist from Family Practice in Aniston, and John Cooper from Crisis Line in Birmingham, are training the volunteers how to handle different crisis situations and the problems of the logistics involved. For instance, how to spot a crank call from a real crisis.

"If someone calls with a real problem, getting a recording won't work (See HELPLINE, Page 3)."

Social Work Conference held

State SADD rally held March 28 in coliseum

By CYNDI OWENS

Friends don't let friends drive drunk.

That motto has become the battlecry for teenagers across the country, leading them in their fight to stop the leading killer of persons in their age group.

That motto also represents Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD), which held a statewide rally on campus March 28.

The rally, sponsored by the Weaver High School chapter of SADD, began with a meeting in Pete Matthews Coliseum. The crowd of approximately 1,000 students, parents and educators met the founder of SADD, Robert Anastas.

Anastas, a coach and educator from Boston, began educating parents and students about the dangers of driving drunk after two of his athletes were killed in alcohol-related accidents within a week of each other. One was 17, the other 19.

"He loved to live so much, he died from it," Anastas said of the 17-year-old.

Anastas founded the organization in 1981, and he gave the audience some startling statistics from that year.

"In drunk driving accidents, there was one person dying per hour." (See SADD, Page 2)

Jacksonville-Jacksonville-The next great outbreak of AIDS will be on America's college campuses where students comprise the most sexually active group in the county, according to Dr. Donald E. Williamson, director of the Alabama Department of Public Health's division of disease control.

Addressing more than 150 persons gathered for Jacksonville State University's annual social work conference, Williamson said, "The only reason gay men in America got AIDS first was because, at the time AIDS was introduced in this country, they were the single most sexually active group in society."

"Gay men are no longer the most sexually active. College students are. There's nothing unique about the virus that attacks only gay men; it is simply another sexually transmitted disease. Your risk of getting it is simply a function of the number of people you have sexual intercourse with."

"The people who're going to spread AIDS are going to be on the football team, they're going to be cheerleaders, social workers-they're going to do all the things you and I do every day. They are people who look just like you and I, have no symptoms, and cannot be picked out. And there are from 1.5 million to 3 million of them," he said.

Williamson said people become infected with AIDS because they are not in long-term relationships, because they engage in sex with multiple partners, or receive contaminated blood either through transfusion or the sharing of needles when using drugs. He said a person cannot be sure he is not infected unless he has been monogamous for at least seven years and has not used IV drugs.

Robert Anastos, founder of SADD, addresses students

when we started. Eighty-seven percent of kids were doing drugs before they got out of high school. There were 1,547 deaths in this age group in 1986-90, he stated.

"I can't come in here or frighten you today ... If the problem lies with you, the solution lies with you," he said.

He pointed to some of the factors that cause the problem:

"Death has been camouflaged in two ways. First, there is a lack of communication between parents and teenagers. Second, there is the peer pressure you are under," he said.

The up side to all of this is that in 1985, the number of alcohol-related deaths had dropped to 2,120 from 2,170 across the country," he added.

He related an incident that happened when he was awarded special recognition at the White House.

"Nancy Reagan said, This is absolutely a miracle. How does it work?" he said. "I don't have the answer," he said.

The major element of the SADD program involves a "Contract For Life," a document that teenagers and parents sign. It is an agreement that if either party is in a situation where they have been drinking or must ride with someone who has been drinking, they will make arrangements for sober transportation home.

After Anastos spoke, the students were dismissed to lunch, and in the afternoon seminars were held in Martin Hall.

Program provides tips on job hunting and interviewing

By REBECCA FROST
Chanticleer Staff Writer

In 1986, approximately one million students graduated from U.S. universities with a bachelor's degree. Added to the present total of 40 million already in the work force today, the task of finding the perfect job is very difficult.

On March 3 and 4 the New York team of Nancy Blacker, Carol Balthazar, and Frank Pietrucha presented a program at Merrill Hall entitled “Roads to Success.” It was sponsored by the Plymouth Career Search Workshop and Business Week Careers magazine.

In order to be a successful interviewer, Blacker and Pietrucha stress that the potential employee should pay attention to small details concerning his attire, his resume, and his interviewing techniques, because the first ten minutes of the session are what the interviewer will remember most.

Before the actual interview, the prospective employee should do extensive research on the company or corporation that he is applying for.

The three main sources for such research are the campus career planning center (Career Development and Placement in Bibb Graves), the campus library, and through networking with school alumni, members of professional organizations and others who might know someone who knows someone.” Blacker said.

With the resume, the experts noted that statements and accomplishments should be written concisely in order for the employer to read quickly through them during the interview.

“If you can ask, ‘so what?’ after a resume statement, then it has no business on the resume, therefore, items of achievements or school (See PROGRAM, Page 5)

Symposium to celebrate birthday of Constitution

As part of the yearlong celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the United States Constitution, the College of Humanities and Social Sciences is sponsoring a symposium on the Constitution. The symposium will be held on Tuesday, April 7, at 3:00 p.m., on the eleventh floor of Cole Library.

The panelists for the symposium are Dr. Daniel W. Hollis, Dr. Ronald Caldwell, and Dr. Mary Martha Thomas, all of the JSU department of history, and Dr. Lee Gilbert (Whartenby) of the JSU department of economics.

Dr. Hollis, whose paper is entitled, "The Commonwealthman, Religious Liberty and the U.S. Constitution," will explore the influence of an early group of Republicans in the 17th century known as the "Commonwealthman." The "Commonwealthmen," as a result of their experiences in the English Civil War, were committed to religious liberty as well as to political liberty; their writings were among those from which the Founding Fathers gained many of their ideas and ideals.

Dr. Gilbert will discuss "The Economics of the Constitution," focusing on those economic factors which led to and influenced the writing of the Constitution, and the effectiveness of the Constitution as a framework for United States economic progress.

In his presentation entitled "The Influence of the U.S. Constitution on the French Revolution," Dr. Caldwell will emphasize that the Constitution was a framework for United States economic progress.

In his presentation entitled "The Influence of the U.S. Constitution on the French Revolution," Dr. Caldwell will emphasize that the Constitution was a world-wide impact, specifically on the French Revolution in its early stages.

Dr. Thomas, in her discussion of "Women and the Constitution," will point out that when the Founding Fathers met in Philadelphia in 1787, they were not concerned with the rights of women; the concept of natural rights, in that day, applied only to men. Abigail Adams' plea to her husband, John, to "remember the ladies" fell on deaf ears. Only gradually, and with great effort, have women gained constitutional legal rights.

The purpose of the course is to give students a chance to find out about commitments and family relations. The grade for the course is determined by attendance and class participation. The films tentatively scheduled for the course include: "Terms of Endearment," "On Golden Pond," "Ordinary People," "Kramer vs. Kramer," "I Never Sang for My Father," and "The Great Santini." For more information on the classes, see the summer schedule book or contact the home economics department.

Symposium to take place April 7

Participating in the symposium will be: from left to right, Dr. Lee Grant (Whartenby), economics department; Dr. Mary Martha Thomas, history department. Back row, from left to right, Dr.

Peter Robinson, chairman of the department of biology, will be moderator. Audience discussion of the topics will be welcome. Refreshments will be served.

Sociology Club visits three mental hospitals

By REBECCA FROST
Chanticleer Staff Writer

On March 9, forty-six sociology and social work students visited Bryce Hospital, Taylor-Hardin Secure Medical Facility, and Partlowe Hospital, three mental institutions located in Tuscaloosa.

Each semester the sociology club plans a field trip for students to visit their future job settings. In the past, JSU students have visited shelters for the homeless, the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Tutwiler State Prison for Women, and Atlanta Couples Together (an organization for monogamous gay couples).

According to Dr. Hugh McCain, sociology professor and director of the trips, these excursions are designed for the students exposure to their career choice and the problems that are involved with the occupation.

Penny Stover, a junior from Ft. Payne, along with Melba Flowers, a sophomore from Section, AL, recounted their experiences at Partlowe, a hospital for the mentally retarded. According to Stover and Flowers, they were touched by a young male patient's recitation of the Lord's Prayer, making their trip worthwhile.

The group continued their trip with Taylor-Harding Secure Medical Facility, a new hospital for the criminally insane, housing 90 men and five women. Afterwards, the students toured Bryce Hospital.

Summer courses in marine biology available for JSU students

By CYNTHI OWENS
Chanticleer Staff Writer

Two courses in marine biology will be available to JSU students this summer, Dr. L. G. Sanford, advisor of the program, said. The courses, offered at the Dauphin Island Sea Lab, located within 45 minutes of Mobile, offers something for everyone majoring in biology, he said.

"You don't have to be a diver or even a scuba fan to get needed credit in biology and enjoy it at the same time," Sanford said. Summer offerings include biology core courses in the areas of ecology, invertebrate and vertebrate zoology, botany, geology, biology, and climatology. Each course emphasizes field work and cruises into the Gulf of Mexico, conducted aboard the research vessel A.E. Verrill.

Many professional biologists feel that an academic program can be made much more effective by including an off-campus field experience for undergraduate or graduate majors in biology.

"The Dauphin Island Sea Lab is a facility of our department (biology) and its resources are available to complement our program," Sanford said. Dormitory and cafeteria services are provided on the campus at Dauphin Island and a variety of recreational opportunities are available.

Two separate five-week terms are being offered this summer, the first from June 15 to July 17, and the second from July 20 to August 21. Up to six semester hours credit may be earned during each term. For further information, contact: Dr. L. G. Sanford, 202 Ayers Hall, Department of Biology.
Students ‘strut their stuff” during fashion show

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and the Alpha Sweethearts, in collaboration with the Masonic Order and O.E.S., presented their first annual Spring Fashion Show last Wednesday, March 25, featuring twenty-five JSU students. The theme of the program was “Starting a legacy by striving to do more.”

“I think the fashion show was a success. It goes to show how much we (Greek organizations) can accomplish when we work together. We need more unity on this campus,” Casey Holloway, president of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, said.

Serving as mistresses of ceremony were Millette Miller and Jacqueline Sommerville. The students modeled in the following six categories: casual wear, swimsuit, sports wear, winter wear, Sunday’s best, and After Five wear.

Participating in the fashion show were the following students: - Robbie Bowers, Mark Romaine, Zenobia Pettway, Elaine Riley, Cheryl Bevelle, Bridgett Eatmon, Lisa Nicolle McRae, Tracie Lee, Tabitha Datcher, Monica Jones, Tara Cunningham, Juanita Austin, Yolanda Andrews, Chandra Gates, Towanda Carr, Darlene Stanford, Monica Jones, Kim Pearson, Francesco Russell, Wanda Steward, Pamela Porter, Towanda Tolbert, Carla Foreman, and Alisa Lavert.

Holloway said he would like to express his appreciation to all the students for their support.

“We just introduced our pledge line last Thursday night. They are as follows: 1) James Smoot, 2) Quintin DAVIS, 3) Tim Culver, 4) Michael Douglass, 5) Ted Bridges, 6) Jacques Jock Smith, and 7) Patrick Farmer. Reginald Richardson is serving as dean of pledges. I’d also like to invite everyone to our Spring Step Show on April 20,” Holloway said.

Although finding a job may be a daunting experience, there are techniques to conquer the “dreaded interview,” he said.

For more information on how to better one’s job hunting skills, contact Dr. Sandra Fortenberry at the Career Development and Counseling Office in room 105 at Bibb Graves Hall. Landing the perfect job may seem impossible, but with a little help the Jacksonville State graduate could become a valuable product on the job market.

Who needs a mechanic on campus?

By CYNDI OWENS

As promised, this is "Traffic Headaches. Part III: Is there a mechanic on campus?"

Ah, the readers say, those folks at The Chanticleer are really desperate for something to write about. After all, who needs a mechanic on campus?

Well, we all need some help once in a while. At some point, everyone is going to get into a jam. And if one is a female and commutes, it is a very emotional experience to get stranded on campus.

Letter to the editor
Enforced rules would improve dorm life

Dear Editor

"...after the third incident report you will be told to leave the dormitory." This is often the warning dorm residents hear at the beginning of each semester. This is a great rule but there is one problem with it—the rule does not exist at least not in the JSU Catalogue or the "JSU Rule for Dormitories". Why is the rule not clearly stated?

Well, it is my opinion that JSU administration wants to reserve the right to rule each "three incident report person" on an individual basis. The problem with this is that it leaves too much leeway for personal interpretation. JSU has, in my opinion, an excessive number of 2.3, and even 4 time incident report recipients. My point is simple, with many problem-causing students, the administration needs to have tough, enforceable rules—not individual interpretation.

My suggestion to correct the problem is this: Have in writing a "Three Incident Report Rule", which eliminates students from the dorm system completely upon their third incident report. Moreover, there should be the stipulation that:

depending upon the severity of the incident, a student could be eliminated on the first report if necessary. JSU is weak when it comes to dorm violators; when the administration does not enforce its warnings, it essentially takes away power to enforce rules from the RA's and Dorm Directors leaving them open to unnecessary abuse and hassle. This is our current dormitory situation. Administration, make and enforce dormitory rules. Remember this is our home—not yours.

Sincerely,

Todd E. Key
Special thanks to Sam Wright, Ronnie Daniel and Johnny Daniel for building the barbecue pit that will be used during Indian Party. They worked all day to construct the pit and the brothers really appreciate their hard work. It will allow the Chis to have a few weekend cookouts during the semester.

The yard sale was a huge success. The first ever Delta Chi yard sale was March 21 with Danny Koity, the committee chairman, in charge. The city of Jacksonville really came out to support the sale and all profits went toward the housing fund. They are planning another sale in the near future.

Congratulations to all the winners in Greek Week. Greek Week really stresses the Greek System and during this time emotions are high and the feeling of being a Greek is at its peak.

severe enough, one incident report should be sufficient. The rules should be clearly written so individual interpretation will not be necessary.

I've come to appreciate the value of dorm directors and RAs because their job is not easy. And some students like to make their job even harder.

If we would get behind our dorm directors and RAs in enforcing these rules, maybe the dorms would start filling to such a capacity because their job is not easy. And some students like to make their rules. Maybe the dorms would start filling to such a capacity.

This year’s softball team has not had a chance yet to play because of rain and Greek Week, but all of the players are anxious and very optimistic about this year’s team.

Dr. Gilbert named department head

By STEVEN ROBINSON
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Dr. Jerry Gilbert has been appointed acting head of the political science department after the retirement of past department head Dr. Jackson W. Selmans. He was appointed to the position last September by the Dr. James E. Wade, dean of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences.

Gilbert will serve as acting department head until the University begins the search for a replacement for the position.

"Right now there is no actual search going on. At some point there will be a search, but as of now there is no search due to the freeze on filling (faculty) vacancies," he said.

Gilbert's job involves many responsibilities ranging from budgetary requirements to student advisement.

"My position involves being budget manager and scheduling and coordinating various activities. My primary role is that of advising students, although I am not the only one in the department who does that," Gilbert said.

Handling both a full class load and the duties of department head have become time-consuming, Gilbert said.

"I don't have any real spare time anymore," he said.

Gilbert said he was given a class load reduction when he was appointed to the position but due to faculty vacancies had to add more classes to his schedule.

Making the political science department more visible to the students is one of Gilbert's top priorities as well as exploring job options for political science graduates.

"We want to make students more aware of career options in political science other than just law school and politics. We also want to get students more involved and interested in political science organizations," Gilbert said.

He discussed such careers as civil service jobs, working for political office holders, foreign service jobs and broadcast media positions.

"A lot of media people are political science majors. I would like to work with the communications department to offer a major in political science with a minor in communications or vice versa," Gilbert said.

He also mentioned that a political science club is now in the planning stages and that significant curriculum changes are in the works for the department as a whole. Students will be given more freedom of choice in their class selection, he said. This has not been finalized, he added, but committee reports on the subject have been submitted for consideration.

Gilbert has taught political science at Jacksonville State since 1971. He also taught at Texarkana College, as well as serving as a graduate teaching assistant at Texas Tech University.

Gilbert and his wife, Sheila, have two sons. They enjoy working on their farm where they raise cattle.

"I was raised on a farm in Texas. I guess I still have farming in my blood," Gilbert concluded.

Bennett recently honored for her acting abilities

By ELAINE BEAIRD
Chanticleer Staff Writer

Tara Bennett was recently honored for her acting abilities after she was nominated for the Irene Ryan Award in February. The nomination gave Bennett the chance to compete in regional performing competitions for an acting scholarship.

The scholarship was named in honor of Irene Ryan who portrayed Granny on the hit television series "The Beverly Hillbillies.

In trying out for the nomination at the state festival, Bennett and another former Jacksonville State student, Lisa Waugh, performed part of "Late August", a play presented here on campus last semester.

Bennett was selected to represent the Southern region in the competition held on February 17 and 18 in Knoxville, Tenn. This was her first nomination and one of the highest honors she has ever received for her acting talents.

"The biggest thrill was just being nominated. We did well but didn't win. The judges were favorable though," Bennett said.

The chance to compete gave her a sense of accomplishment and boosted her self-confidence, she said.

"I came away (feeling) I was on the right track I could go into acting if that is what I wanted. They showed a lot of belief in my (acting) ability," she said.

Bennett is originally from Homewood, Al. She graduated from Jacksonville State with a bachelor's degree in education and psychology. She graduated in December 1986 and came returned to JSU to become certified to teach special education.

She has already been cast in "Curse you, Jack Dalton," the next JSU production, as Bertha, the maid-turned-heroine.

"This is unusual for me. I usually get the dirty blonde parts," Bennett said.

She received professional credit this past fall by performing in the campus production of "Black Warrior" which was done by a professional cast and crew with the exception of Bennett and Lee Pope, who are both JSU students. The directors told her that she possessed much talent, but needed training.

"I feel that acting is a gift from God. I do it for the glory of Jesus Christ," she said.

Bennett has performed many different roles in various shows, but says that musicals are by far her favorites.

"Musicals are the best fun. You get hooked," she said.

She still enjoys acting out a wide variety of roles.

"Doing different characters is a release. It's fun to be someone else for a while," she said.

After leaving Jacksonville State, Bennett plans to teach school, although she says she will continue to train for acting. She expects to move to Atlanta and enroll in acting classes there.

"I'll always be acting. Right now it's something I am doing on the side," Bennett said.

Student's sex play banned by Alabama officials

Tuscaloosa (CPS)—University of Alabama officials last week decided not to let a student produce his controversial play on campus, and, in reply, the student sued them one day later.

Meanwhile, one student group demonstrated in favor of banning the play-called "Babylon Hotel"—while another demonstrated to equate the banning to censorship.

University of Alabama officials say it is an issue only because some nude scenes feature black and white actors together. "Given (UA's) historical perspective, it will find the interracial sex scenes offensive," said graduate student and playwright Walter Alves.

"The issue is how the university chooses to use its facilities," said Vice President of Academic Affairs Roger Sayers.

He added Alabama is not obligated to provide a stage for any play just as it is not required to publish all the manuscripts submitted to campus journals.

Other campuses restrict the arts, too. Last week, Notre Dame suspended a student news magazine for publishing a story and a photo about how Notre Dame had forced a campus literary magazine to drop an erotic art print from its pages a few months ago.

The student activities office said the art print of "Deep Throat" star Linda Lovelace was offensive and that the Scholar, the student magazine, had violated policy.

At Alabama, Edward Still, Alves' attorney, maintains Alabama's "agents" based their decision on what they believed to be the content of the play. In addition, Still plans to argue University of Alabama officials' "limited discretion" in allocating facilities needs limits.

"There's been a long line of cases where judges determine that, for example, a police chief has too much power in deciding to permit parades," Still said.

School officials and attorneys said it was their policy not to comment on "pending litigation."

Earlier, Arts and Sciences Dean Richard Peck had said some members of the community would have been offended by the play, which Alves says he contracted to produce on campus for credit.

Alves maintains the university's objections are more racist than provincial, noting Alabama has allowed x-rated films on campus and stage productions of "Equus" and "Extremities", both of which include sexually explicit material.

"There has been nudity on the University of Alabama stage before. They even gave away a date with 'Deep Throat' star Linda Lovelace in the seventies," he said.

Coors has major trouble brewing at Harvard College

(CPS)--The generally dormant nationwide campus boycott of Coors beer flared again briefly last week as William K. Coors, chairman of the Adolph Coors Brewing Co., spoke at Harvard.

Demonstrators, accusing the brewery's politically conservative management of race and sex bias in hiring, union busting and funding Nicaraguan contra, picketed Coors' February 21 speech to Harvard's Conservative Club.

While protest leaders--who represented a wide array of groups like the Democratic Socialists of America, Harvard's South African Solidarity Committee, the Harvard-Radcliffe Gay and Lesbian Alliance, the Committee on Central America and several campus workers unions--gave 200 to 250 demonstrators were there. Coors officials counted only 50 to 75.

"The demonstration was small. It was a very peaceful protest. Participants walked in a circle with banners and some were chanting," Marjorie Heffron, associate director of Harvard's news service, said.

The company has long been a target on many campuses. Since 1968, as many as 50 colleges have voted to ban Coors products from their campuses, first to object to company officials efforts to suppress leftist student groups and in recent years, to protest company labor policies.

"I don't think we can put Coors out of business. But we can keep him from running the kind of business he wants," Domenic Bozotto, a spokesman for Harvard's unionized food workers, admitted during the demonstration.

If people drink Coors beer, it's because they like it. But we have to be a radical to find the Coors attitude toward blacks offensive," Kris Rondeau, director of the Harvard Union for Technical and Clerical Workers.

Rondeau referred to a 1984 William Coors comment that implied blacks lacked "intellectual capacity." Coors maintains the comment was made out of context by the media.

Coors' labor woes began in 1977, when brewery workers struck to protest what they considered oppressive labor and hiring practices. The strike was never settled, and striking employees were replaced by nonunion workers.

Since then, the AFL-CIO has urged a boycott of all Coors products. The company remains nonunionized because it has a policy of nonrepresentation. Coors maintains that management looks after the needs of employees, not the AFL-CIO.

"Unions have a purpose, but it will never deal with our employees openly," Baird said.

"Unions also deny the company the choice of alternative practices such as employee strip searches and lie detector tests.

"Can you imagine anyone in the 1980's sitting still for a strip search?" she asked.

"Such criticisms are unsubstantiated untrue charges, based on lies and innuendos. It is just too bad the charges get so much press on campuses in new distribution areas," she added.

New fashion designs awarded

New York--Recognizing that a creative interpretation of Industrial and Occupational Apparel could be on the cutting edge of fashion, Celanese Textile Fibers challenged the senior menswear design and marketing students at Fashion Institute of Technology. A group of those students were invited to choose from a large grouping of basic workwear garments and with them, create their own style.

"Fashion is moving in a new direction. Young people no longer follow the fashion dictates blindly. Rather, they look for inspiration from many sources and interpret them freely. Our Weekend Works competition was designed with just this in mind. And to add some extra excitement, Celanese invited five editors from trend-setting magazines as well as the style producer of MTV to judge the competition," said Jim Stewart, menswear fashion director at Celanese.

The judging for the best designs was held February 5 at a reception at Celanese House. The garments were reviewed and considered by Patty Niemi of Elle, Patricia O'Brien of Gentleman's Quarterly, Alisa Bellottini of MTV, Laurie Schechter of Rolling Stone, Nancy Hessel of Seventeen and Kathleen McGillavray of Vogue. The winners are to be announced at an industry event to be held later this week. Prizes for the most creative designs will be awarded at that time.

Participating manufacturers, whose garments are of Celanese Fortrel polyester, include Angelica, Barco, Best Manufacturing, Big Ben by Wrangler, Big Mac, Big Yank, Fashion Seal, SetoWear, Uniforms to You, Wall Industries and Williamson Dickie.

"One of the strengths of F.I.T. is being involved in real world projects such as this one. Additionally, Celanese gave them a "no holds barred" creative opportunity which was judged by fashion editors," stated Jack Hyde, consulting head of the menswear design and marketing department of F.I.T.

The winner of the Celanese Creative Design Award was Tim Reukauf of Spencerport, NY with his creative interpretation of a nurse's uniform. Titled "Balenciaga Goes to the Hospital," this otherwise basic candystriper of Fortrel is updated with a flouncy peplum. Tiny dyed the classic nurses blazer a cotton candy pink and created all of the accessories from thrill-shop buttons and beads. Both garments from Fashion Seal--easy to make, easy to afford and fun to wear.

Also in the hospital mode, the outfit on the right, was created by Bari Schlosser of Amityville, NY. Starting with a surgical gown and pant from Best Hospital Supply, Schlosser dyed everything black and silk-screened a repeat of skulls-and-bones. Various fabric patches added color and texture to the jacket lapels and the pant legs. The perfect coordinating accessory--a necklace of spray-painted chicken bones.
I come, unknown to all concerned.

more than God could have ever meant for one child alone, he runs to his football too big for this one. He seems happy, but from where he puts his arms around you with love for me. With a love little boy's way, he tosses his head and turns it to his football too big for this one. A good child, even a deceiving one.

I consider how helpless human babies are after birth. A baby would not survive out on its own like this baby spider does. What force inspires this little creature to live? Can it be that the forces of nature destroy thousands of minute lives to be. Always afraid of dying, somewhere someone loves him, he is hurt time and time again, called a Mama's boy, a good boy, even a deceiving one.

The spider's eyes are on top of its head. Because its sense of sight is not well developed, it cannot see an object as big as I am. However, a spider's sense of touch is very strongly developed and although it does not smell or hear in the same way that many other animals do, it can sense that I am present.

What a miracle of life. The living creature is the size of a calcium deposit in my little fingernail, yet it is complete in every detail and capable of performing all of its instinctual rituals. The tiny spider is programmed like a micro-chip computer. The little spider is a survivor. Soon after it emerges from its mother's silken egg sac, it is possessed by a strange wanderlust. The brave little creature trails a dragline wherever it goes over the counter with silken lines.

I watch as he plays his last few years of football, talks of girls and sports cars. Only a part of growing up, you say, no not for this one. Why you ask? Because every boy at this age feels he has everything to live for, and all the world to conquer.

At the lead's is a stout pair of fangs or chelicerae. Behind them is a pair of pedipalpi, often spined, used for grasping. Next I see four pair of walking legs. The swollen round abdomen is joined to the cephalothorax by a narrow waist and comes to a sharp point at the end.

The abdomen of this little creature is divided into two parts, a united head and thorax, called the cephalothorax, and the abdomen. Attached to the head is a strong pair of fangs or chelicerae. Behind them is a pair of pedipalpi, often spined, used for grasping. Next I see four pair of walking legs. The swollen round abdomen is joined to the cephalothorax by a narrow waist and comes to a sharp point at the end.

The abdomen of this little creature bears spinning organs. The openings to the breathing organs, the anal opening and the reproductive pores are on the underside of the abdomen. The spider's eyes are on top of its head. Because its sense of sight is poor a cannot see an object as big as I am. However, a spider's sense of touch is very strongly developed and although it does not smell or hear in the same way that many other animals do, it can sense that I am present.

What a miracle of life. The living creature is the size of a calcium deposit in my little fingernail, yet it is complete in every detail and capable of performing all of its instinctual rituals. The tiny spider is programmed like a micro-chip computer. This little spider is a survivor. Soon after it emerges from its mother's silken egg sac, it is possessed by a strange wanderlust. The brave little creature trails a dragline wherever it goes over the counter with silken lines.

I consider how helpless human babies are after birth. A baby would not survive out on its own like this baby spider does. What force inspires this little creature to live? Can it be that the forces of nature alone give it the desire to live? God was prejudiced when he designed the little spider. It is born knowing everything it needs to know about how to survive and is ready to take on the world.

Humans, on the other hand, are born with memories erased, forgetting everything they may have learned before they came to earth. Maybe humans, too, are "programmed" before they are born, to know exactly what course they will take and what dragline they will leave behind. The helpless state in which we arrive in this cruel world makes it impossible to use any previous knowledge we may have had, and by the time we can use it, the knowledge has long since been forgotten or suppressed in the back of our souls.

The little spider and I are both two miracles of God. Both of our bodies are complete and take care of themselves internally involuntarily. The spider has nothing to learn in this world, but it does not have a brain.

I came into this world not knowing so God gave me a brain to figure things out. I envy the spider who has no reason to ask questions. Its existence on earth is just as important as mine. It holds its significance link in the food chain, ensuring that all species of life will continue to prosper.

And what is my significance? Do I have a link or a purpose in this life? The spider has more of a reason to exist than I do. Man tears down nature and destroys thousands of minute lives to build his selfish worlds. The lives destroyed cannot comprehend the force destroying them. A spider accepts its death as part of life.

How could I be so arrogant to think that I am the ultimate form of life? The spider might think so because it cannot perceive anything else. Maybe I might think so be...

Bakkers involved in campus funding

JAX STATE — The Chanticleer has uncovered that the funds for Hugh Merrill Hall came from the PTL Club, formerly led by Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker. Many students have wondered why the steeple was put on top of the church-like structure but now the truth has been uncovered.

One faculty member, who wishes to remain anonymous, sells Tammy Faye cosmetics and says that secret funding for “The Merrill Project” came from the PTL Club. The eventual hope was that the building would become a meeting place for the wealthy and simple-minded and provide a start for the planned ski resort for preschoolers called Bakker’s Winter Wee-treat. This ski resort would be erected where the present fire tower is now. It would try to create a Christian atmosphere for preschool skiers and experts in the one million and up income range.

Also in the future plans was one of the now-famous Tammy Faye Drugstores which offer the complete line of Jim and Tammy Faye products. The most famous product is, of course, the Tammy Faye cosmetic line but there are many other products available such as Jim’s Sure-Stick hairspray, Tammy’s Tranquilizers and the complete line of Jim’s Mistresses, the new lingerie line.

The stores are elaborately decorated with nick carpet, crystal chandeliers and feature a large mosaic of Tammy Faye’s face with water fountains flowing out of each.

The Bakker’s new retirement home

The most important of all the projects seems to have been the investment of Atlantic City boardwalk property to erect the Christian Casino which would provide “Gambling in a Christian atmosphere.”

All proceeds from these gambling establishments would be used for religious purposes. These actions would include the building of Christian amusement parks in New Delhi, Bangladesh, Ceylon and Opp, Alabama.

These future job opportunities and future tax dollars have been noticed by Governor Guy Hunt and he has petitioned the PTL council to go ahead with their plans. These efforts would make Jacksonville grow like never before and provide many part-time student jobs. As for Merrill Hall, anyone interested in buying Tammy Faye cosmetics please stand in the lobby of the building and shout HALLELUJAH!

Birds “drop” in yesterday for brief but messy visit

By YOR SMALLJW

Chanticleer Junior Editor

Jacksonville State University

had a look of total chaos yesterday evening, after a deadly cloud of black birds converged on campus, dropping eggs and defecating on hundreds of surprised students.

The flock of birds, which according to eyewitnesses numbering in the thousands, attacked the campus around noon, a time when students were least likely to have noticed.

“It was horrible,” said Joe Blow, a junior biology major from Gadsden, “I was on my way to class, and feel something wet dripping from the sky. I thought it was rain at first, then I saw the birds. Luckily, I had my umbrella with me.”

Others were less lucky. Sue Blue, a fashion major from Rutledge, Ga., says she had a brand new dress totally ruined when she was trapped on the Quad by the onslaught of the birds. The surprise attack also sent dozens of other students scattering for cover.

According to University spokesman Jim Ray, the black birds are “believed to have come from Florida, possibly returning northward for the spring. Though the attack lasted for only a few minutes, it had a lasting effect, he said.

“Not one building on campus was spared. And it seems as if the birds deliberately went after the most expensive cars,” Ray said.

Ray said that the University will know what to do, in case a fresh wave of birds attack.

“Next time, we’ll call the Alabama National Guard and use the little critters for target practice.”

Mudsucker honored for his talents

by NEVEŠ NOŠNIČ

Asa B. A. Mudsucker was recently selected as regional cowchip eating champion after reportedly eating two hundred and thirty-five of the "processed" delights. Although thrilled to have won, Mudsucker was unavailable for comment after the event due to a strange sickness in the abdominal cavity which sent him screaming into the men's room at Joe's Gas and Grill (eat there and get gas).

Mudsucker's mother, Maudine Mudsucker, was extremely excited about her son's win.

"I ain't never in mah entahr life seen mah baby do so good. I really ain't surprised though 'cause he's always had a hankerin' fer chips of all kinda," she said.

A graduate of Podunk High school and Wassamatta U., Mudsucker is presently employed by Jose's Dare-Do Hair where he is working as brush and blow director.

While in college, Mudsucker was a member of I Phelta Thi fraternity and was a big brother to I Tappa Keg sorority.

Maudine Mudsucker stated that her son's long range goals are to settle down with a nice woman and hopefully cut his addictive habit down to two cowchips per day. She added that Mudsucker is presently seeking professional help for his strange love for "processed" food.

A celebration party has been scheduled in Mudsucker's honor, although at press time he was still locked in the restroom making strange animal noises.

Movie sure to please

The new movie release for April 1 is sure to be an interesting experience for movie-goers everywhere. Entitled, "The Beaver Takes Bridgeport," it is the story of that ever-popular hero, the Beaver, and his much sought-after triumph over death, taxes, re-runs, and spinach.

The plot involves Beaver's exploits in the fictitious town of Bridgeport, where years of being America's oldest child star finally drive him over the brink. As the film opens, we see him in a dirty hotel room, gorging himself on Moondogs and Yeasties. In this delusional state, he departs on a crime spree.

He enlists the aid of a band of roughhians, the leader of whom is brilliantly portrayed by singer Donny Osmond. The gang, in a plot masterminded by the Beaver, breaks up the Ladies Auxiliary Garden Party and Fashion Show by appearing in Saran Wrap and tissue paper roses.

The gang moves around the city, funding themselves by knocking over book stores, then winds up involved in a rumble with an all-female gang of roughs, lead by Princess Diana, in her American film debut.

After their stay at General Hospital to be patched up, Beaver's gang is once again set on the straight and narrow by an Indian priestess, portrayed by Dr. Ruth Westheimer.

The cast of tens is comprised mostly by newcomers to the wide screen. Princess Diana and Dr. Ruth are both spectacular. Their costumes are appropriately done, with Diana appearing in leather from head to toe and Dr. Ruth appearing in feathers from head to toe.

Other cast members include John Farnythe, Michael J. Fox, Pee Wee Herman, and George Burns appearing as male gang members, and Cybil Shepherd, Meredith Baxter-Birney, Kim Basinger, and Meryl Streep as female gang members.

Cher puts in a wonderful performance as the chairperson of the Ladies Auxiliary. And, as always, Jessica Lange was spectacular as the Beaver's mother, even though she had only a minor role.

Look for this film to be nominated for some awards from the Academy by Pamela Pennid Cantbclear Film Critic.

England wins Sigma Tau Delta’s short story writing contest

By TZENA GIBBS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Vincent England, a senior graduate with honors, is the winner of Sigma Tau Delta’s short story writing contest with his entry entitled ‘Curse You, Jack Dalton.’ England is obtaining a degree in political science with a minor in business and technical writing. He was awarded a $25 cash prize.

Englander is of Alabama, England moved around during his school years and graduated from high school in Missouri. Upon graduation from high school, he enlisted in the navy for four years. After attending Northeast Missouri State University, he transferred to JSU three years ago. England has been married for almost two years, and he and his wife, Margo, have one daughter, Rachel.

England’s story is about a young boy going through a very awkward stage in his life because he is overweight. England has delightfully written the story in first person from the boy’s point of view. The observations and comments made reflect the humorous frankness of adolescents. The details leading up to the main event are very well thought through.

England said the idea for the story was the result of an event that happened when he was just 6 or 7 years old. “It was quite an experience.”

England said England and some of his friends had gone with his mother to visit her friend. They walked down the neighborhood sidewalks and his mother walked inside.

“Got into her friend’s car and I was the driver. I pulled the gear not knowing and we started rolling down the hill. Then we were on our way.” England said.

According to England, the story is “heavily padded with fiction for fiction’s sake.”

England became interested in writing in the summer of 1985 because that was one thing he could not do. “The reason I decided to write was because I didn’t know how, and when I don’t know how to do something, I take it as a personal challenge. I try to learn until I’ve constructed a formula of how to do something right,” he said.

England said England spent that entire summer teaching himself to write. He read all about writing and began keeping a journal while he was still working.

“Saw the need to express myself because I’m a loner, and with writing, I found a source of expression, a highly private form of expression, but it gets the job done,” he said.

When England was notified that he won the contest, he was very excited. “With a contest, of course, when you enter one you don’t expect to win. Well, I don’t any way. So when I found out, I was very surprised and flattered - with flattered being the controlling word,” England said.

England plans to continue writing and wants to take it more seriously.

“I think that taking things more seriously is something I’ve learned to do since the Navy.”

England said.

He said he intends to break into short story writing and develop into a novelist. However, he said that he will only do this as a hobby outside of his military career. As far as the future, England has high goals.

“I see myself as a career officer in addition to being a published author. I want to break into being a novelist after I get my writing down pat,” he said.

England is a second lieutenant in the army in Military Intelligence and after graduation will start school in Ft. Huachuch, Arizona, for the Officer Basic Course with emphasis in Military Intelligence.

England sees his wife as the motivating factor in his writing.

“Margo is a highly motivational factor in my writing. She encourages me with it and also edits it. She is very smart and is very good writer with a sharp eye. She also pushes me and she really encouraged me to be in the contest,” England said.

With so many other career alternatives, England chose to major in political science because on a personal level, England describes himself as the kind of person who looks for underlying motives, reasons, and the causal effects from a deeper level. He feels that politics gives him that understanding of the motives of different actions and the psychological reasons.

“Writing also gives you that understanding. I think that people are as different as the different shapes of the trees. I don’t stereotype or label people like you try to understand them and sympathize with them. I don’t ridicule or pre-judge,” England said.

He believes the key to understanding anyone is to first understand yourself.

“I do a lot of introspection. Writing is a type of therapy, a bringing out of myself. You put a little bit of yourself into every piece you write personality wise, and every piece is an individual, just as the trees, and just as people,” he said.

England believes differences are important in life.

“I like differences. I think the more differences there are, the more variety there is and the more interesting life is. Observing people, their actions and situations, helps you to understand yourself. Writing is the outcome of observations, ultimately,” England said.

In addition to being an Honor’s Graduate, England is secretary of Sigma Tau Delta, a JSU Who’s Who, and a military graduate honoree.

“The confidence that I have as an individual in a broader sense is definitely attributed to my parents. More specifically, other than my wife and my daughter. I want to thank JSU and the English department for their cooperation and their help,” England concluded.
Beam’s ‘Pastoral’ takes first place in contest

By C. A. ABERNATHY
Chanticleer Staff Writer

The Chanticleer, Thursday, April 9, 1987

Beam got the idea for his poem sitting on the front porch of his grandmother’s house.

"When I was younger, I used to go out and stay with my grandmother while my parents worked and during the summer I would sit on the front porch and look out over the field. Someone would usually be going or working in the fields, but now, my grandmother is getting older, and nobody takes care of the field anymore," Beam said.

Beam said he made some observations about what he had seen and wrote the poem.

"I miss the country, I guess. For years, I had planned to leave the South as soon as I could. But the more I traveled, the more I miss the beauty of the country in the South," Beam said.

Beam has always been interested in poetry. When he began to tell his friends about his writing, they encouraged him with his writing.

"I just told stories, I have a wild imagination so I would make up stories and tell my friends," Beam said.

He became interested in poetry and said he has had really good teachers who have helped him and encouraged him with his writing.

Beam went to college and received a degree in English.

"I've had really good teachers, they have been playing around 10 years," his brother Mike Oliver said.

Beam has a keen interest in poetry and he has written several poems.

"I've written a few poems," Beam said.

Beam is a member of the poetry club, which is a group that meets once a week to discuss poetry.

"We have a group of people who meet once a week to discuss poetry," Beam said.

Beam is currently working on a new poem for the poetry club.

The poem is entitled "Pastoral." The title comes from the poem that he wrote for his contest.

Gamecocks take two from Hawks

By THOMAS BALLenger

The Gamecocks of Coach Rudy Abbott got back on the winning track last Friday, as JSU swept a doubleheader from visiting Shorter College, winning game one 7-5 and taking the nightcap by the score of 4-2.

In the opener, the Gamecocks bolted out of the gate quickly. Leadoff hitter Jim Karanasos hit the first pitch over the right centerfield wall for a solo homer. Second baseman Jon Underwood doubled and advanced to third with Karanasos by taking Shorter pitcher Shane Pendley’s fourth delivery home deep to right for a 2-0 Gamecock lead.

Shorter notched a run in the second, on a mammoth solo homer by catcher Dave Vincent. Still, JSU led 2-1. Shorter took a 4-2 lead in the third inning, as Gamecock starter Mark Eskins was touched up by the Hawks. Baron Baker led off by striking out, but the ball eluded catcher Marty Lovrich, and by the time Lovrich recovered, Baron had beaten the throw. A walk and two wild pitches put Hawks on the corners, with no one out. The next four Shorter hitters each singled up the middle, and when the inning was over, the Hawks led, 4-2.

JSU reclaimed the lead in the bottom of the third. Jon Underwood singled with one out, and advanced to third on a walk to Stewart Lee. Craig Daniels then ripped a double over third, scoring Underwood, and sending Lee to third. Larry Doyle led off with a walk, and advanced to second after a double by Kip Griffith. Second baseman Harold Ragsdale then singled. With no outs, JSU had the bases loaded. Catcher Ed Tredway grounded out forcing Ragsdale but scoring Doyle. Shortstop Rob Lane then lifted a sacrifice fly to right, which scored Griffith. With two outs, Jim Karanasos stroked a RBI single, scoring Tredway. After four innings of play, JSU led 4-1.

Shorter cut the deficit to 4-2 as Steve Turrentine led off with a solo homer, which was the last time the Hawks would score.

Gamecock starter Todd Jones showed masterful control in picking up the complete game victory. Jones, who is only a freshman, struck out eight, and only allowed four hits in his seven inning performance.

Three Gamecocks collected two hits each in the game, Karanasos, Ragsdale, and Grifith.

The sweep of Shorter raised the Gamecocks record to 16-4 overall.

JSU’s new games will be Saturday as they play host to the defending Division II champs, Troy State. The first game of the twinbill will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday, the Gamecocks host Columbus College for a 1:30 p.m. single.

Women win three, men lose five matches

By THOMAS BALLenger

The Jax State tennis teams have been busy in the past week and a half, with the women winning three of five contests, but the men counterparts were not as fortunate after losing all five matches.

The men’s team fell victim to the loss of Captain Jon Karanasos, to undersize and over powerful singles matches for the ladies were UNA, 6-2, Samford, 7-5 and Kansas. JSU dropped both of their doubles with number one seed Lea Heynysh leading the way with a 7-5, 7-4. Finally, Rob Nix dropped both of his singles, but number four seed Lea Heynysh led the way with a 6-4, 6-2, dominance of their opponents.

The men’s tennis team did not fare as well as the women as the Gamecocks lost all five of their matches.

The two programs faced each other, the team of Masters and Heynysh led the way with a 6-4, 6-2, winning the signers in both.

Division I school Samford was next for the Lady Gamecocks, and they responded with a 7-2 win over the Blue & Gold with ease.

White opened play with a 6-0, 6-2 win at the top singles position. JSU then dropped the next five spots, but number two seed Lea Heynysh carried the Gamecocks with a 6-2, 6-1 win. After losing the doubles, JSU’s top team did not pull through, as Heynysh claimed the overall win.

JSU stormed back the following day with a decisive 7-2 victory over Samford. The Chanticleers did lead the way with number one seed Lea Heyneysh and number two seed Jim Karanasos, opening play with 6-0, 6-1 and 6-2, 6-4, respectively.

The men’s team did not fare as well as the women as the Gamecocks lost all five of their matches.

The UNA Lions provided opposition for JSU, and the Gamecocks dropped a tough 6-4 victory as the Gamecocks fell in five spots, but number two seed Lea Heyneysh led the way with a 6-4, 6-1 win. Bottom two players, Jamie Masters and Tara Downs each posted wins for JSU.

Saturday morning the Gamecocks of Bill Burgess had their second scrimmage of the spring, and if the offensive performance of a few individuals is any indication, the Gamecocks will be tough to handle in 1987.

The baseball Gamecocks swept three games from Shorter College this past weekend, winning two home games Friday, and capturing a road win Saturday. JSC seems to be breaking out of its slump, and it could not come at a better time. Saturday afternoon, the Troy State Trojans come to town for a twinnl, JSU, the defending GSC as well as Division II champs, will provide a big test for Rudy Abbott's men. The Gamecocks are 4-0 in GSC play, and a sweep of Troy would go along way in securing a berth in the GSC playoffs.

quarterbacks. Pat White did an 10 passes for 115 yards.

The White team scored on a two-yard run from White, a Terry Thomas one-yard run, a 31-yard field goal from Johnson each hauled in two passes
from Ashley Kay, and another
two-yard run from Thomas.

Senior quarterback Pat White and documented here Saturday. And White led the White to a 24-12 victory over the Red, he did not have all the fun. In addition to gaining 75 yards rushing on 13 carries, Patrick, a Pinson Valley native, completed three of four passes for 26 yards, including a 28-yarder to freshman halfback Ralph Johnson that set up one score.

White, a Bessemer native, gained 32 yards on 10 carries and hit on 5 of 10 passes for 113 yards.

"The good things today were the lack of penalties and the play of our quarterbacks. Pat White did an excellent job of running our offense, and Steve Patrick improved greatly today," Burgess said.

But while the quarterbacks were outstanding, the Jax State defense did not. White, Patrick and the rest of the Jax State offense rolled up 412 yards rushing and another 179 passing.

"Defensively, we fall into the same trap we have the past two seasons. We played well in spurts, but then we gave up the big play. We have to do a better job defensively, especially on third-and-long," he said.

The White team scored on a two-yard run from White, a Terry Thomas one-yard run, a 31-yard field goal from Johnson each hauled in two passes
from Ashley Kay, and another
two-yard run from Thomas.

Patrick directed the Red team to a score, that on a Johnson two-yard run, while third-team quarterback
Cecil Blount hit wide-out Darrell Sanders from 19 yards out for the other red touchdown.

Sophomore fullback Brian Stevenston led all rushers with 94 yards on 12 carries, including a 48-yarder, followed by Patrick with 75 on 15, freshman Greg Dragg with 59 on 8, and Thomas with 49 on 10 carries.

Rennie Oliver, Kevin Blue, and Johnson each hauled in two passes.

"This was the first time this spring that we let our kickers perform under game situations. Overall, our kicking game was ragged. I thought Ashley Kay did a good job, but we have to improve our kicking because if we are going to be a better team," Burgess said.

Burgess also singled out Thomas and offensive guard Joe Billingsley.

"Overall, the effort was good. We had a good day to work, and we learned a bit about going when we're tired. The effort is there and I expect us to get better," Burgess concluded.

Tennis played a 6-3, 6-2 decision.

The final
by the score 5-4, this time to West Georgia. Second seed Chris Crump started things well for JSU, as he won his match 7-6, 6-2. Greg Harley followed with a 4-6, 6-4, 6-1 victory.
The only other singles win was recorded by Bob McCluskey, as the freshman won 7-6, 6-4.

Doubles again proved to be the Gamecocks downfall, as the top two JSU teams could not record wins.

Tech beats Gamecocks again

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The Gamecocks of Jacksonville State traveled to Marrietta, Ga., last week for a baseball game with Southern Tech, but the trip proved frustrating as the Hornets defeated Jax State, 12-4, in a non-conference contest.

Southern Tech opened up a 2-0 lead in the home half of the second inning. After JSU starter Steve Marriam retired the first two hitters in the second, errors by the Gamecocks gave the Hornets a scoring opportunity. Consecutive errors by Gamecock shortstop Harold Ragsdale and third baseman Stewart Lee put two Tech players on base. Marriam allowed singles to the next two hitters, and Southern Tech had a 2-0 advantage.

JSU stormed back to score four runs in the next frame. Designated hitter Ryan Griffith led off with a single, and Ed Tredway, the Gamecock catcher, followed with a hit of his own. After a double play erased one runner, Jon Underwood singled in Griffith with JSU’s first run. Craig Caldwall was the next hitter, and the rightfielder also garnered a single. Big hit hitter Steve Lee and Craig Daniels then stroked back-to-back doubles, as the Gamecocks took a 4-2 lead.

The Jax State lead did not hold up long however. In the bottom of the fourth, the Technicians scored three runs, again aided by a Gamecock miscue. Three hits and the second error of the game committed by Ragsdale, allowed the Horncats to score three runs and reclaim the lead.

Jacksonville State took a 5-4 lead in the top of the fifth inning. With one out, Caldwell and Lee hit back to back singles, and Daniels followed with a double that scored both Caldwell and Lee. The Gamecocks had a chance to increase their lead, but with the bases loaded, Ed Tredway grounded out to first to end the inning. After four and a half innings of play, JSU led 5-4.

Southern Tech proved to be anything but hospitable hosts in the bottom half of the fifth. As the Hornet scored four runs. Marriam surrendered three singles, a double, and a triple before being relieved by Mark Eskins. Eskins worked out of more trouble, but the damage had been done. Tech led 11-4 after five innings.

Tech added an insurance run in the sixth as the Horncats turned a walk, a stolen base, and a single into their final run. The home team led by the score of 12-4, after six complete frames.

JSU went down meekly in both the seventh and eighth innings, but a Tech error helped the Gamecocks in the ninth. Underwood led off with a walk, and on a subsequent error by the catcher, advanced to second. Lee singled Underwood to third, and Daniels followed with a single which scored the seventh JSU run of the day. Firstbaseman Larry Dole then doubled, scoring Lee and sending Daniels to third. With one out, the Gamecocks were still alive. However, the comeback hopes of JSU faded as Robert Lane struck out, and Ryan Griffith flew out to left.

Southern Tech had beaten the Gamecocks 12-4, and had dropped JSU’s overall record to 14-4.

Starter Steve Marriam was roughed up 18 runs and 10 hits in his four plus innings of work. Mark Eskins pitched one inning, allowing two runs on two hits. Joe Loria finished up holding Tech scoreless over the final two innings. Craig Caldwell was a perfect three-for-three on the day. Stewart Lee went four-for-five, knocking in one run. Craig Daniels had three hits, two of them doubles, and collected three RBIs.

Jax State’s next games will be Saturday, as they host defending Division II national champ Troy State for a twinbill. The first game will begin at 2-00. Sunday, Columbus College comes to town for a 1:30 contest. Columbus was the runnerup to Troy State for last year’s NCAA title.

Harold Ragsdale shows agility around second base.
