Prime Minister speaks before capacity crowd

By GROVER KITCHINS

Former British Prime Minister Lord Harold Wilson made a special appearance Monday, April 6, in the Thorton Montgomery Building Auditorium. The theme of his address was "The View from Number 10 Downing Street."

Before the lecture, Sir Wilson was honored with a public reception, in which students, faculty and the general public was served chicken, sandwiches and punch, all furnished by SAGA. After the reception, a press conference was held wherein the elder statesman fielded questions.

Wilson was introduced to the capacity crowd of nearly 500 in the auditorium by JSU president Dr. Harold McGee, who stated the accomplishments and honors of the speaker.

Wilson served four terms as British Prime Minister, beginning in 1964 as the youngest member of Parliament ever to hold that office. Since his departure as Prime Minister, he has written several books, including his latest, Charlot of Israel.

Wilson made his first visit to the United States nearly 50 years ago at the height of World War II. When the war broke out, he was assigned an economic position in Paris on a joint English-French project. When France began to fall, he became an economic advisor to then British Prime Minister Winston Churchill. He recalled the morning that President Franklin D. Roosevelt called Churchill at 3 a.m. to offer American ships for British defense.

After the war, Wilson became a Parliament member in the Labour party and sought changes in the higher-educational system. He developed and implemented the open university plan, which allowed the many who went to war and married during wartime to take advantage of normal advanced education.

Wilson said he has had dealings with every U.S. president since Roosevelt.

"Despite my rouse with (President) Lyndon B. Johnson, we became good friends later. He made me an honorary citizen of Texas. I'm also an honorary citizen of Dallas. I don't watch it on TV, though," he said.

The most popular president in Europe, according to Wilson, seems to be former president Richard Nixon.

"If he had continued, I believe he would have been a very good president," Wilson said.

Wilson touched on several topics of interest. The first dealt with the Soviet Union. At the end of World War II an election was called, since there had been no election since 1933. After being elected into Parliament he was sent to various countries to get support for aid for underdeveloped countries. Eighteen years later, when he was Prime Minister, he declared a "war on want." This war continued to be active in helping the backward and starving countries, especially those that suffered from conflict. They provided food and industrial equipment to these countries to help them out of their difficulties.

Because of this effort Wilson said he has had many chances to visit the Soviet Union. In recent years he has met Gorbachev three times and holds a good deal of respect for him. He said Gorbachev wants to move his country forward, but the economy of the Soviet Union seems to be at a standstill.

"The West sometimes seems to think the Soviet Union is a joke," Wilson said. "But they have the capacity to sweep all the world countries, including the United States."
Gov. Guy Hunt visits campus

Gov. Guy Hunt, second from right, visited Jacksonville State University on Friday, April 3, to attend graduation exercises for members of his executive protection team who participated in a special seminar within JSU's College of Criminal Justice. Dr. Tom Barker, far right, dean of the college, said the bodyguards received practical training in how to thwart an assassination attempt as well as classroom lectures on liability issues and other concerns. Also on hand for the graduation exercises were Dr. Harold McGee, JSU president, second from left, and Dr. James Reaves, vice president for academic affairs, far left.

College of Criminal Justice hosts training sessions

JSU's College of Criminal Justice recently hosted a series of special training sessions for Governor Guy Hunt's executive protection team. The sessions were designed to teach methods of thwarting assassination attempts and security breaches. According to Dr. Tom Barker, dean of the College of Criminal Justice, JSU was chosen to provide the training because it had the expertise among faculty and staff members to provide the type of program needed by the governor.

The first workshop took place March 30-April 3. Thirteen members of the governor's staff and representatives of other state agencies attended the first course, which consisted of weapons training, liability issues, and practical experience in protecting a person during an assassination attempt.

WIT conference to be held this weekend

By CVNDI OWENS
Chanticleer Staff Writer

The 1987 Writing Instruction Technology (WIT) Conference will be held at Houston Cole Library on Saturday, April 11. According to conference coordinator Carol Cauthen, this is the third annual conference held here at the college. Dr. Marius, director of the Center of Academic Affairs, said the conference will be addressed by Dr. Richard Marius, director of expository writing at Harvard University.

Marius is the author of The Coming of Rain: Bound for the Promised Land, and A Writer's Companion. "We are inviting anyone who is interested to come hear the keynote speaker, Dr. Marius," Cauthen said.

Conference attendees will also participate in workshops, some of which will be conducted by members of the faculty. The workshops will deal with all types of writing, with topics ranging from 'Opening the Way to More Creative Writing,' by author Edith Alston, and 'Journalism vs. Essays,' by playwright Randy Hall, in the morning, to 'Preparing Your Students for College Research,' by Rufus Kinney and George Whitesell, and 'What Every High School Student Should Know About Technical and Business Writing,' by David Wallace in the afternoon.

The conference is basically for high school teachers across the state, to acquaint them with what their students need to know to come to college. It also helps promote understanding between the university and the teachers," Cauthen stated.

For more information on the conference, contact Cauthen in Stone Center.

Excluding disc-jockey shows, the longest continuous radio broadcast of 222 hours was made by Bob Hartman of WQFM of Milwaukee, Wis., from Aug. 12 to 21, 1976.
University holds banquet for honor students

On March 10, at the annual meeting in St. Louis, the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences (ACJS), the largest national organization for criminal justice professionals and educators, appointed Dr. Tom Barker, dean of the College of Criminal Justice, as its new president.

Barker, a former Birmingham police officer, received his bachelor’s degree in sociology from Samford, a master’s in criminology and a doctorate of philosophy in criminology from Mississippi State University.

Barker said his appointment will enhance the reputation of JSU’s criminal justice program as well as provide JSU’s law enforcement students with a valuable contact when looking for jobs nationwide.

The ACJS is a forum for discussion and debate on criminal justice issues. Barker will preside over the organization’s national meeting in San Francisco in April 1988.

Before the donors are accepted, they go through a rigorous screening process, which consists of blood tests, semen tests, and a test for sperm count. The donor also has to fill out questionnaires and a sperm sample is taken, according to Armon.

The donors and recipients of the sperm anonymity papers. Armon said that the process is kept completely private. After the sperm is bought, the donor has no claim. The doctors will determine if the sperm is suitable for the recipient, not the people, he said.

The sperm bank does pay the donor if the sperm passes the qualifications needed to show fertility. "We have to pay them. It's not like blood donors...we can't stick a needle in and remove it," Armon said.

"When asked if it was unique to have a sperm bank in Alabama, Armon replied, "Yes because Alabama is such a Purity State."

The receivers of the sperm usually request specific characteristics of the donors.

"We have requests for Jewish versus non-Jewish, Indian, Mexican, Hispanic," Armon said.

Along with the donors adequate sperm count and freedom from venereal disease, Armon said that most of the customers want college level sperm donors.

"People are concerned with the quality of the sperm. When faced with infertility they will go to what ever lengths they can to get what they want," Armon explained.

The turnover rate of the frozen sperm is quite rapid according to Armon. The recipients of the donations do have illusions of fertilization on the first cycle. Armon says these illusions are not always fulfilled on the first cycle. In the cryopreservation laboratory, the semen is taken, frozen, and preserved for whatever amount of time the donor wishes, Armon said.

"If a man had Hodgkin's disease and he undergoes chemotherapy, he takes a risk of possible infertility, so the banks his sperm. If a policeman was injured he would have the ability to father children if he banked his sperm," Armon said.

Armon also said that there is a bit of a process of artificial insemination.

"We don't guarantee fertility, we sell viable sperm," Armon said.

AIDS may or may not be changing student sex habits

(CPS) - Students concerned about AIDS are not changing their sexual habits. Several campus observers say.

But another poll released last month indicates students fear AIDS. AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) is actually slowing the projections about who will get it, so that students cannot tell whether and other sexually transmitted disease cases and the fear is making students cautious.

That fear is definitely reflected in the decline in the amount of promiscuity and in the incidence of general venereal disease," said Dr. Don Cooper, director of student health at Oklahoma State University.

"The AIDS scare helped that. Students are more selective about their sexual partners, more monogamous. More often, they're using condoms when they have sex and that is causing a decline in venereal disease," Cooper said.

Some fear students are not getting the AIDS message

CPS - Despite all the free condoms passed out on American campuses a few weeks ago and the media's overwhelming warning about AIDS, current surveys show that students are not really aware of the media's "overblown" the issue, or if it has not been conscientious enough.

"It would be to see more information made available. I'd like to see the precise names of the diseases, and how it can't be transmitted, as well," Ron Hurtle, 22-year-old journalism student at the University of Miami, said.

"We have to have an open sore (to contract it from a woman)? I'd like to see what that clarified. Perhaps the media left it purposely unclarified so as not to offend any groups," Hurtle said.

At some campuses, attitudes about sex appear to be changing. Three of four men interviewed at Daytona Beach Community College said their views about sexual relations had changed. The students, ages 19 to 27, said campus one-night stands are less frequent.

The other 25 percent of the men said that although they'd read a lot about AIDS, they hadn't changed their sexual habits.

If his own habits have changed, it's "subconsciously, but not consciously," 27-year-old Daytona student Rob Howie said.

He believes the media has "overblown" the AIDS issue, that it is "not as bad as it's made out to be. If I like somebody, I don't let other things worry me."

But other students men and women, were more cautious, they said.

Daytona student Joe Pettit, Jr., said he had observed students who "wait to get to know the person, rather than just ask their name once you've gotten to the hotel room."

"It's a bonus to get to know the person you're involved with," he adds.

"I'm personally not a very promiscuous person," Daytona classmate Susanne Gaddis said.

"I'm not sexually active, and the way things are going, I prefer to remain that way. This AIDS stuff really scares me to death."

Most of the students that Debbie Stone Marks, who runs the AIDS testing program at Marquette University in Milwaukee, sees are, and even many who do know they don't use them," the report said.

Almost three out of four students, moreover, don't ask their partners about their health before engaging in sexual intercourse.

Various campus health officials around the country, while without any statistics to back them up, think Standford's students are more typical than Blotnick's.

"We haven't noticed any recent changes in students' sexual attitudes, at least not in relation to AIDS," says Dr. Mary Watkins of the University of Washington Women's Clinic.

"Over the years, from the 1960s to the 1980s, there's been a trend toward less promiscuity, but it's not related to AIDS. There hasn't been enough publicity yet about the disease to make students aware," she said.

"The conservatism of students today has probably protected them from a widespread outbreak of the disease. And only 0.4 percent of heterosexuals are at risk, so they don't see it as the great risk it will be in years to come," Watts added.

While others agree sexual consensualism on campuses is high, they add students also are aware of AIDS and other sexually transmitted disease cases and the fear is making students cautious.

That fear is definitely reflected in the decline in the amount of promiscuity and in the incidence of general venereal disease," said Dr. Don Cooper, director of student health at Oklahoma State University.

"The AIDS scare helped that. Students are more selective about their sexual partners, more monogamous. More often, they're using condoms when they have sex and that is causing a decline in venereal disease," Cooper said.

The uproar leads some students to wax philosophical.

"I think it's Mother Nature's way of telling us to slow down. Forget all the divorces, just stay with one person your whole life," said."
Thousands of students may lose GSLs next year

(APS)—As many as four of every 10 students who have Guaranteed Student Loans may not be able to get a GSL for next year, financial aid experts now are saying.

More than half the “independent” students—those who are financially on their own—will lose all or part of their GSLs for 1987-88, adds Dr. Jerry Davis of the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA), which is early March reassessed the impact on students of new aid rules going into effect this year.

The impact, in fact, seems to be much more dramatic than educators predicted last October, when the new rules emerged in the Higher Education Act of 1986.

“I don’t think anyone expected the new needs analysis to be so harsh it is,” explains Dr. Richard Rosser, president of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

Davis, among others, now thinks new student aid “needs tests” —which for the first time make GSLs less available to students from families with annual incomes under $30,000—are “much too stringent” and that needy students might have to live “in the back of Chevys” in order to afford school.

The average GSL borrower will lose $1,200 to $1,300 next school year, Davis says. “It’s hard for students to come up with an extra hundred dollars a month. Students themselves now are getting the bad news. ‘This is really going in hit people when they apply for aid this fall,” says Barbara McNamara, aid director at Mercy College in Dobbs Ferry, N.Y.

The changes may force some students to leave college.

“A drop in enrollment has been talked about,” reports Sue O’Flaherty, aid director at California Polytechnic State University.

“I’m really hopeful (the new rules) won’t reduce our population.”

The new rules—which went into effect in October, but which most students will be confronting for the first time in March and April, when they apply for aid for next year—already have driven some students off campuses.

There were a few students last semester who had to withdraw,” says Sally Lambert, aid director at Concord College in Athens, W.V.

“Some students, because they need the money, weren’t able to stay in school.”

However the U.S. Dept. of Education, which administers the GSL program, minimizes the impact on students.

“There will be a negligible drop in aid available to really needy students,” predicts spokeswoman Victoria Tripp. “What (the changes) will do is eliminate (what) convenience borrowers who don’t really need the money.”

But others see it differently.

“At Mercy College,” McNamara says, “we won’t know the size of the problem until fall, but a lot of people are going to lose out.”

So far, about 30 percent of the Mercy students who’d been getting aid “are now not eligible for it.”

Students at less expensive colleges, ironically, will suffer the most because their eligibility for GSL is based, in part, on their schools’ tuition. PHEAA’s John Eberstil predicts two students from families with identical characteristics, including incomes, can qualify for different amounts of aid under the new rules.

“The student attending a $10,000-a-year school might qualify for aid, while the student attending a $1,000-a-year school might be told ‘You don’t have a need,’ ” Ebersol said.

But it would be unfair for students to enroll in an expensive school just to qualify for aid, says the Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges’ Gerald Roschwall.

“A $7,000-to-$9,000 difference in tuition is not going to be helped by an extra thousand dollars (in financial aid),” he points out.

Roschwall asserts students at independent, private colleges are more vulnerable.

Rosser, of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, agrees, saying the tests will force private colleges to charge more, since “they don’t get state government help to make up for federal cuts.”

The worst problem with the new rules, Rosser says, is that the government now counts assets like homes and farms, according to Dr. Richard Rosser.

But families are rarely anxious to sell such assets to help pay for college, and even families with a lot of assets may not have high enough incomes to pay for college without borrowing.

“We’re asking farm families to sell their very livelihood,” Rosser says. The stricter rules have “hit those students whose families have acquired equity in a house or farm, but still have a very low income.”

“They can’t get very much for a farm if they try to sell it anyway,” he says.

Farmer’s son Sean Ickhoff, who will be a sophomore this fall at Kansas State, says his parents’ income was about $27,000 last year. Ickhoff hopes he’ll qualify for GSL money, especially since “it doesn’t look like I’ll get a Pell Grant.”

Cal Poly’s O’Flaherty notes that, to compensate, more parents are applying for federal PLUS loans—Parents’ Loan for Undergraduate Students—and CLASS loans—California Loans to Assist Students—although both require borrowers to start repaying the loans 60 days after getting them.

Rosser adds “we are now talking to members of Congress” about changing the needs tests rules.

And Concord’s Lambert believes students “who want to go to school bad enough” are still going to manage it. “There are other grants and loans they can apply for.”

“But (the new regulations) have made it a little more difficult for students to get an education,” she says.

SGA holds spring banquet, installs ’87-88 officers

By TZEINA GIBBS

The Student Government Association held their spring awards banquet on Monday, March 30, at 7 p.m. in the Thorton Montgomery Auditorium.

After Tina Smith, 1986-87 Chaplain, gave the invocation, Gina Swarts performed several songs while the buffet dinner was served.

After dinner, Mark Kipkis and Marie Wright presented M & M's Momentos to several different members of the senate which consisted of gag awards.

A more serious note, the SGA vice president and treasurer, Kelly McCreless and Greg Walker, presented the 1986-87 senators with certificates of award. Among the special awards given were: Freshman Senator of the Year, Joey Harbison and Jan Weathers; The Veteran Senator of the Year, Rick Davis; and Outstanding Veteran Senators, Debbie Smith and Mary Hannah. The Committee of the Year award was presented to the Crime Prevention committee headed by Gary Newman.

Among the special guests recognized were: Dr. James Reeves, vice president for academic affairs; Ben Kirkland, University Comptroller and SGA advisor; Michael French, former SGA president; Dr. Steve Whitton, JSU English professor; and Rachel Jones, librarian, among others.

These people were commended for their service and dedication to promote the welfare of the SGA.

The new officers for 1987-88 were installed by Ben Kirkland as follows: Vondra Barbour, president; Greg Walker, vice president; and Dwight Burton, treasurer.

In her closing remarks, Barbour made an analogy between the potential of the senate and the potential locked up in a can of Classic Coca Cola.

“You know, the world has a way of stepping aside for men and women who know where they are going, but it often joins in and helps them reach their objectives. If we establish our goals for the next year and with excitement and unity work towards them, I believe the rest of JSU will catch the wave and we will join in to help us accomplish our goals,” Barbour said.

“I’m honored and excited about being your president for one more year and I’m committed to give 100 percent to make 87-88 an unforgettable year, but like this Coke, if left sitting, it’ll lose its fizz. We’ll lose our excitement and drive if we don’t support and help, if we do not help and encourage each other. So together, let’s catch the wave and make the 87-88 Student Government one JSU will not forget,” she added.

Barbour went on to emphasize the importance of goals and cooperation.

“Cooperation is so important and is illustrated by the Canadian Geese. If you’ve noticed, they fly in a V (See SGA, Page 9)

Symphonic band to hold spring concert Sunday

JACKSONVILLE — The Jackson- sonville State University Symphonic Band will hold its spring concert on Sunday, April 12 at 3 p.m. in the Performance Center of Mason Hall.

All of the concerts given by JSU’s music department are free of charge and open to the public.

Under the direction of Dr. Dave Walters, the band will perform:

- British Eighth March by Z. Elliott. Written in 1943, this march was dedicated to General Montgomery and the Eighth Army after a triumphant sweep across North Africa.

- Marche Slave by Peter Tchaikovsky. This Slavonic or Russo-Serbian, march dates from 1876, the year of the war between Turkey and Serbia. Tchaikovsky wrote this march for the benefit of the wounded.

- Othello by Alfred Reed. The works of Shakespeare have inspired more musical compositions than any other writer in English language. The score to be used is a completely re-composed setting in the series of commissions extended by Ithaca College.

- Suite of Old American Dances by Robert Russell Bennett, including Cake Walk, Schottische, Western One-Step, William Walker Waltz, and Rag.

- American Overture for Band by Joseph Willcox Jenkins. This was written for the U.S. Army Band and dedicated to its conductor, Chester Whiting. This was Jenkins’ first band piece and his most successful.

Secular humanism is no reason to ban books

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chasticleer Senior Editor

An article in today's Chasticleer states that as many as 43 of every 100 students who received Guaranteed Student Loans this year may not be eligible for a GSL next year. These new stricter requirements for the GSL along with countless other cuts in student aid proposed by President Reagan, are, in the words of a White House spokesman, designed to make students, not taxpayers, pay their own way through college.

True, the U.S. government is expected to pay for the increased budget of many colleges, but these cuts need to be made somewhere. Why should college and universities be made to suffer? Reagan is pouring more and more money into the defense budget, yet severely limiting our potential leaders through cuts in education.

Reagan's proposed cuts, if passed, will make college more difficult for many Americans. Many students depend on financial aid in order to cover their college expenses.

At Jacksonville State University, nearly one-third of the student body receives some type of financial aid and many more receive Pell Grants, according to financial aid director Larry Smith. A severe cutback in financial aid could cause a drop in enrollment.

In the past few years, numerous states have eliminated grants and reduced college cuts in their education budgets.

This ruling affected 22 social studies books, nine history books and five economics textbooks used in elementary and high schools which were approved by the state.

“Public school administrators are facing a dilemma in selecting textbooks,” said a spokesperson for the State Department of Education.

“We are concerned about the content of some of the suggested new textbooks. They are not aligned with the state’s educational standards.”

The spokesperson added that the state is planning to provide a list of approved textbooks for the upcoming school year.

In the meantime, local school districts are encouraged to review and select textbooks that meet the state’s educational standards.
Phio Beta Sigma

Tuesday, March 31 marked the initiation of 76 new members into Phi Beta Sigma, the Freshman Honor Society. The ceremony was held in Theron Montgomery Auditorium, and was attended by approximately 300 students, parents, and faculty members.

After the formal ceremony, the audience was addressed by Franklin McGee, vice-president of Gray Brown Mortuary and Forest Lawn Cemetery. McGee gave a warm and humorous speech about the ingredients needed for success.

A reception followed the service, and afterwards new officers were elected.

The officers for 1987-1988 are:

"is all to blazes," Wilson said he feels that it will take at least twelve to fifteen years to begin recovering from the bad state of the Soviet economy, and they must decrease their arms spending.

He said that he would like to see a Helsinki meeting like that of ten years ago. This conference would give the opportunity to raise the hopes of there being a greater understanding between the Soviets and the rest of the world. On discussion of an unilateral disarmament, Wilson felt that a multilateral disarmament would be more pheasable and would work better if the parties involved would sit down privately and discuss options "over a drink or two."

In reference to the "Star Wars" initiative, Wilson feels that the "U. S. is and has been playing its card with skill and determination."

"If the other countries would make their voices clear to the Soviet Union then the problems over this issue wouldn't be so severe. The world should understand the U. S. and see it in a different light because of its constitutional development," Wilson said.

"The West Coast has the sunshine and the girls all get tan..." - this may be true for the Beach Boys in California, but it is also accurate in Jacksonville, Alabama, where the tanning bed business is booming.

According to Karen Johnston, an employee of Four Seasons, their business has been great since the pre-spring break season.

"We've been booked solid every day since March," she said.

The trend seems to be the same at Marie Ponder's Endless Summer. Her business has been so well that she is soon to relocate her two-year-old establishment in June and add two additional beds.

Both salons use the Wolff tanning system and praise its effectiveness.

"The ultraviolet rays used in Wolff System tanning are similar to those of the sun, but are scientifically balanced to help skin tan, not burn. The Bellarium "S" lamp bulbs utilized by the Wolff beds produce ultraviolet (UVA) rays which trigger the tanning process in the lower layers of the skin where melanin is released. The melanin oxidizes and turns brown when exposed to the lamp's ultraviolet A (UVA) rays for the tan," according to Wolff manufacturers.

Leah Cobb of Endless Summer Tanning Salon

So the next time you find yourself slaving in the sweltering sun for a little extra money, the same results can be achieved at a local tanning salon.

"I would hope that the escalation in cost of insurance premiums would motivate a group to examine its practices." - Fischer Ohio State's Thompson notes, "I have nothing to do with what men's brothers, or each other, McFarland says.

In February, for example, a Tulane student sued his former fraternity, a bar, a shopping center, a tanning salon and several insurance companies for $6.5 million.

While a pledge, the student had lost an arm after being dragged by a car whose driver had been drinking.

The University of Tennessee lost a $6 million lawsuit last year to a student who had paralyzed himself by jumping on a minitrampoline in his room at his frat house, which the school rented to the fraternity.

Drinking and hazing are usually involved in such incidents.

There have been some 50 hazing deaths nationwide since 1978 involving alcohol abuse, reports Edens-Stevens, who became a lobbyist for anti-hazing laws after her son died in a hazing incident at the hands of his fraternity brothers.

Thus far, 24 states have passed laws prohibiting hazing.

As a result of all the law-breaking and carelessness, observers say it's getting hard for fraternities and their schools to get insurance.

"Some groups are finding it hard, even impossible, to find anyone who'll write an insurance policy for them," says lawyer Tim Fischer of Manley, Burke & Fischer, a Cincinnati firm specializing in fraternity law.

"It's no different from any other situation. If you have an auto accident every few months, pretty soon insurance companies are going to be reluctant to carry you," be added.

"I was in no way defensive about hazing practices. Hazing has nothing to do with what men's fraternal organizations are all about," he said.

The nationwide crackdown on fraternities and sororities, in short, appears to have escalated recently.

The reason seems to be that Greeks' misbehaviors are costing their schools more money in insurance and even more in court settlements.

And new laws are making state colleges just as liable for Greek behavior as private colleges have been.

"The insurance climate has changed for everybody, and we're trying to help students understand their responsibilities and the world in which they live," explains Carol Thompson of the University of Arizona's student activities office.

"Hazing and alcohol issues are making liabilities increasingly apparent to campuses and to Greeks themselves," adds Carolyn McFarland, who oversees Greek affairs for the University of Denver's private college that has been sued for the actions of one of its students.

Universities lend lease to the Greeks, so courts often find the schools themselves responsible when the students hurt themselves or each other, McFarland says.

Check library for career options

By HARRY D. NUTTALL
University Librarian

Ah, spring is in the air, and with that comes the focus on future careers and job opportunities. Whether you are a graduating senior, a student looking for summer work, or an undecided major going through pre-registration, the library has something for you. Those looking for summer work, especially those who want to see another part of the country while they work, should consult the 1987 Summer Employment Directory of the United States.

The directory contains a state-by-state listing of available summer jobs in fields such as government, camps and recreation areas, business and industry, and entertainment. Qualifications and salary are given for each listing, and there is an introductory section on job hunting that includes sample resumes and cover letters. Ask for the Summer Employment Directory at the fourth floor reference desk.

Students faced with yet another pre-registration when they still have not decided upon a career major may want to look at The Almanac of Jobs and Salaries. The almanac contains tables of salaries of people employed in various jobs, e.g. state and federal government, professional sports. There are also job descriptions and salary ranges given for a multitude of jobs ranging from accountants through zoo workers. The entries are brief, but the brevity is compensated for by the broad scope of the coverage.

A similar work with a narrower scope but more in-depth coverage is the U.S. Government publication, Occupational Outlooks Handbook, which lists approximately 200 jobs in all fields. Information included in each listing describes the nature of the work and working conditions, the approximate number of people already holding the type of job, qualifications required, salary ranges and job outlook. Related occupations and sources of additional information are also given for each listing. Students who have not yet decided on a major or those considering changing majors may want to consult the American Almanac of Jobs and Salaries or the Occupational Outlooks Handbook. Both are located at the fourth floor reference desk.

Seniors will be interviewing for jobs and so should know something about etiquette in the workplace. Letitia Balridge’s “Complete Guide to Executive Manners” discusses all the rules a company and its people need to know to do things the right way. Among the topics covered: writing effective memos and letters, running successful meetings, the art of easy and persuasive conversation. Also looked at are employer-employee relations and the new rules of business etiquette for and regarding women. Advice on dress and nuances of behavior is given, and acceptable and unacceptable behavior in person-to-person encounters is also discussed. Since much of what is covered in this book applied to the interview as well as to the job itself, prospective interviewees may want to peruse the book before their interviews. The “Complete Guide to Executive Manners” is located on the second floor of the library.

To facilitate access to the library we have installed a book drop in the parking lot on the east side of the building.
SGA sets annual Spring Whoopie for April 11

Cigarette smoking. Smoke harms not only those who smoke but those nonsmokers who are bombarded with exhaled smoke. But there is another side to the story. What about the cigarette? What kind of detriment is cigarette smoking to the health of the cigarette?

“Right now, I feel so at home. It’s pretty warm and easy in here. I’m surrounded on all sides by clones of myself. My gosh, there must be at least twenty of us.”

“I really don’t know how long I’ve been here since I’ve had a conscious memory personally. Although, vaguely, I can remember just barely being part of something bigger, I don’t know.”

“What’s that rippin’ noise? Someone took our roof off. Hey, please turn down that light. Hey, what’s happenin’? Who’s pullin’ me out?”

“Help! Hey! Why doesn’t somebody help me? I’m being removed from the only home I’ve ever known and there’s nothing I can do about it. I don’t have any arms or legs to speak of. Why am I being handled so roughly? Hey, amazon, you’re chokin’ me between your fingers. Could ya be a little more gentle? What do you think you’re doing? Can’t ya hear me? Get that flame away from me. Stop! No!”

Sheena flirted with Frank and firmly stubbed out the rest of her cigarette. A small ember was left burning in the ashtray. Frank poured a few drops of beer on the remaining life of the cigarette.

The preceding documented case is sad but true. Only the names have changed.

White Animals open to packed house

The lights went down and the stage was set, anxiously the tie-dye clad and paisley print shirt crowd fidgeted in the midst of fellow White Animal fans. They had obviously planned for the evening rather carefully, saving up for the cover charge and quite a few bought the band’s new T-shirts. Whether they had seen the band many times or this was only the second, the audience was aware of the homely, unassuming movement that was characteristic during many of the original songs such as, “You Started Something”, “It’s A Jungle”, “Big Shot” (this song was featured in the 1987 movie Back To The Future). “Help Yourself” and “Take Me Back”.

These driving songs were followed by “You Don’t Know”, “Don’t Care” and “This Girl Of Mine”, original songs that feature the incredible harmonies of Steve Boyd, Kevin Gray, and Rich Parks. They, drummer Ray Crabtree along with lead vocal and keyboardist Tim Coats have been together for seven years. The band is the road crew (along with Tim on sound, for the lights) and all the members are wildly single.

While the White Animals came news of yet another new release was also made their fifth on Dread Beat Records. Entitled “In The Last Days”, it will be released in two weeks.

Alki Xi Delta

Last week, several Alpha Xi girls travelled to Atlanta to attend prov-iso's convention. Everyone enjoyed meeting sisters from Auburn, the University of Alabama, Georgia State, and Georgia Tech. Pledge of the Week was Leigh Dwyer and Sister of the Month was Nancy Nixon. Congratulations.

Delta Zeta

The sisters and pledges of Delta Zeta would like to thank the alumnas for spending the weekend with us for Tahiti Weekend and for the help they gave us at the rush workshop. A special thanks also goes to the DJ for the activities. Jerry Jackson and Laura Annette Coker were for all of the great photography work he did. Thanks so much to everyone who stayed with it until the end.

As a philanthropy project, the DZs are donating 5 cents for each member's height. Anyone who wants to or member about to be initiated, is Susan Keel. Congratulations.

Theta Chi

This past weekend, KA attended their annual Confieeate and it was a huge success. A belated thanks goes to everyone who made this weekend a huge success.

Kappa Alpha Sigma

The sisters of Delta Zeta for their mixer tonight. KA was just held last Friday and was a huge success. The sisters of Delta Zeta for their mixer, which was held just before the party for the KA house and everyone had a wonderful time. A big thanks goes to everyone who made this weekend a huge success.

Kappa Sigma

The sisters of ZTA are looking forward to the Burger Beach Party mix-er with the brothers of Delta Chi on March 18. Congratulations go out to Angie Sparkman who was selected ASO Toga Queen. The little sisters of Pi Kappa Phi elected Susie Odisobo as treas-urer and Teisah Venable as Chaplain. Leah Walker was in-duced into Eta Theta Sigma honor society on March 11. Senior Service has been set for April 20 and at this time, the gradu-ating seniors and sorority seniors will become alumnae.

Phi Mu

The sisters of Phi Mu would like to thank the brothers of Pi Kappa Phi for the informal get-together last Thursday night in which the party theme was "Street Gang". This weekend, Phi Mu is holding their closed weekend. On Friday night, the gals are going out to eat and renting movies. On Saturday, they will hold their preliminary rush workshop and will work through the day then.

Phi Mu is looking forward to their mixer with the brothers of Kappa Alpha next Thursday night.

Phi Mu is a very proud of Vicki Cross who was chosen Kappa Alpha Sweetheart.

Congratulations to Joan Craighead and Michelle Wallis who recently appointed SGA senators for the 1987-88 year.

Delta Chi

The Chis opened their 1987 softball season with a win over Sigma Nu. Delta Chi will play Pi Kappa Phi on Monday and also Alpha Tau Omega.

Paul Woodruff, Sirus Woodruff, and Bill Griffin lead the offensive attack. Bill Griffin was the winning pitcher allowing only five runs.

The brothers of Delta Chi would like to express their thanks to Alpha Xi Delta for a great Hot Tub mixer success. The Chis are also looking forward to the ZTA mixer.

The Chis will be holding officer elections for the 1987 fall semester. Vice-president of service, treasurer, corresponding secretary and sergeant-at-arms are the offices that will be up for election.

Delta Chi would like to con-gratulate Pi Kappa Phi for winning Greek Week last week. The Chis will also host a nine hole golf tournament on Saturday April 11. The tee off time will be 8:30 a.m. and the tournament will be played at the Stoney Brook Golf Course in Jack- sonville.

Kappa Sigma

The brothers of Kappa Sigma came in third during the Greek Week competition. Congratulations go out to Jimmy Soupcon for plac-ing first in the mile run and Robert Riley and Mark Gutyaker for taking first in horse shoes. Also Eddy Armstrong took first in the squash competition.

The brothers and their dates just got back from a wild weekend in Fort Walton. Mike Webb made a surprise visit to escort Sandra Sanders to the formal. The beautiful weather in Fort Walton was a big change from the snow storms in Jacksonville. Everyone had a great time and came back with sunburns. It was a rush and stave battle at Brother's Bar featuring White Animals Wednesday night. Thanks to all those Animal fans that made the Kappa Sig party a success.

Kappa Sigma is making big plans for their annual Back on the Farm party coming up the April 25.
While the country was overwhelmed by the bitterness, destruction and tragedy of the Civil War, college life was profoundly affected, along with everything else. Facilities and students were dispersed. Classrooms were converted into barracks, hospitals and arms depots.

It was in the South, however, that the first new fraternities were founded after Appomatox. Both the Virginia Military Institute and Washington College somehow managed to keep their doors open during most of the Civil War, but before the end at Appomattox, VMI had been shelled and put to the torch and Washington College had been ransacked and vandalized.

Despite the stunning reality of defeat and occupation, both institutions faced the painful necessity of rebuilding. Both were equal to the challenge. The College, which now honors him in its name, called Robert E. Lee to the presidency. At the Institute, General Francis H. Smith set about rebuilding.

Idealistic veterans at both schools translated their post-war dreams of peace, unity and brotherhood in purposeful action. In this atmosphere, Lexington’s three fraternities were born. During the years 1865-1868 appeared the first chapters of Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Alpha Order, and Sigma Nu. "Excerpted from an article by Clyde Johnson in "Fraternities in our Colleges" NCF, 1972, an address delivered by Sigma Nu Foundation President Richard R. Fletcher to the Rockhouse Country Historical Society on January 22, 1973.

Today, all three members of the Lexington Triad are proud leaders among national college fraternities. They span the nation with more than four hundred active campus chapters and nearly 400,000 alumni throughout the nation and the world. The three are not only compatible and friendly on the national level, but they often are close allies on the campus level, and all three are proud to be a part of the Lexington Triad.

Tonight at Jacksonville State the Eta Theta chapter of Alpha Tau Omega, the Delta Phi chapter of Kappa Alpha Order, and the Iota Lambda chapter of Sigma Nu are having their first annual Lexington Triad party to commemorate the heritage of the Lexington Fraternity Triad.

On this day in 1983, a Lexington Triad Marker was dedicated in Lexington, Virginia by the national fraternities of the Triad. The marker commemorates the Triad’s Alpha chapters and is located near the boundary line that separates the campuses of VMI and Washington and Lee College.

Each of the Triad has its own commemorative marker in Lexington. The ATO Memorial Fountain in front of VMI’s Preston Library honors the founders who planned the VMI chapter at ATO’s 1865 founding meeting in Richmond. Need some snow?
Just invite Troy State up, and you will have plenty of white stuff

Snow in April. Maybe a parallel can be drawn concerning our recent blizzard. Each of the last two trips the Troy State Trojans have made to Jacksonville, it snowed.

During loops season, Jacksonville was bombarded with lots of white stuff, and before this past weekend’s twinbill, J’ville was hit again. Maybe the ski resorts of the world could learn something from this. If snowfall is down, just invite TSU for a visit. It is sure to snow then.

The Jax State-Troy State doubleheader went very well for Gamecock fans, that is at least until the seventh inning of the second game. Down 9-7, TSU erupted for eight runs in the final inning, and thus claimed a split of their two game series. JSAU had an 8-4 lead early in game two, but at University Field, no lead is safe.

A chance to virtually clinch the GSC Eastern Division Title was lost, but the Gamecocks still lead Troy by two games with six GSC contests remaining.

In the first contest, senior lefty Steve Marriam pitched a great game. Marriam allowed only four hits as he stifled mighty Troy by the score of 5-2.

The football Gamecocks of Bill Burgess also brace the elements as the team scrimmaged Saturday morning. It was not a good day for practice—the team did look ragged. The squad is gears up for the annual J-Day game, which will be held Thursday the 5th of April, at 7 p.m.

Bill Jones received two verbal commitments from basketball prospects this week. Guards Johnny Pelham and Kenny Cooper have given Jones verbal commitments. Pelham is a 6-1 shooting guard from Middle Georgia Junior College, while Cooper is a 6-2 point guard from Winder-Barrow High School, located in Winder, Ga. Recruits officially were able to sign binding letters-of-intent yesterday, and full coverage of JSU’s signees will be in next week’s Chanticleer.

Jones has his sights on several other players as the Gamecock mentor looks to sign at least five and maybe six new faces for next year.

Four Gamecocks have been trimmed from the 1987-88 roster, and one other is apparently not going to return. Terry Rutledge, the HEST freshman in the GSC this past season, did not return to school after spring break.

The 1986-87 season was termed a rebuilding year for Jones, but 1987-88 could be considered much the same.

Coach Janice Pace’s girls are going through spring workouts, and high hopes abound for the fall. Pace has already signed two new additions for next year, and coupled with the returners, the team should once again be outstanding. Maybe this is the year for the Lady Gamecocks to win the GSC title.

The JSU tennis women hit a dry spell a few weeks back, but the team has performed well in the past two weeks. If they get a few breaks, the Lady Gamecocks might very well claim their third consecutive GSC title in few weeks.

The men’s team has not done as well as anticipated, but several of the matches that they have lost have gone to the wire. After last season’s third place GSC finish, high hopes were placed on the current season. Injuries, tough losses, and other bad breaks have hounded the men’s team, but if they can get healthy and play to their potential, the GSC title is not out of reach.

Here’s a wish of good luck in the upcoming GSC tourney to both teams.

Come out and catch the Jax State-Valdosta State twinbill Saturday. The first game will start at 1:00.

Remember, support YOUR Gamecocks!

Leadoff man Jim Karkanassos draws attention at first base

had the bases loaded with only one out. Steve Eaton then took a Jones’ pitch downtown for a grand slam, and Troy State was back in the contest, trailing only by an 8-7 score.

JSU answered back in the bottom of the fifth with a run of its own. Leadoff hitter Jim Karkanassos hit a homer, his fourth of the season, to give Jax State a two-run lead, at 9-7.

Jones settled down and retired Troy in order in the sixth, striking out two to run his two inning total to five, but he did not get through the seventh.

Jones walked Rinaldi to open the frame, and then hit Willis to put runners at first and second. Ed Black singled in one run, and Jones was through. Coach Rudy Abbott brought in Joe Loria to close things out, but it was Troy State who did the closing.

Eaton greeted Loria with a single to right, which tied the game at 9-9. Mark Smritz then walked to load the bases. Loria then got Bill Wolf to ground to first, and the relay by Larry Doyle forced out Black at the plate. However, Loria walked Richard Pope, forcing in the go-ahead run. Warren Arrington then singled, scoring another run. Abbott was forced to change pitchers again, this time bringing in James Preston, with the base loaded. Elmore greeted Preston with a two-bagger that hiked the Trojan lead to 15-9. Preston gave up another hit, but then struck out the last two Trojans to finally end the nightmarish inning.

JSU could muster only a walk, and a hit batters in the bottom of the seventh, as the Trojans claimed a 15-9 victory.

Steve Eaton was the hitting star for TSU. Eaton went 2-4, with a homer and five RBI’s. Black and Elmore also had two hits each, and Elmore collected four RBI’s. McMullen was the winning pitcher for Troy State. The junior from Fair Oaks, California, pitched five-and-one-third innings, only allowing one run, five hits, while recording six strikeouts.

JSU was led by Jon Underwood, who had three RBI’s on his 3 for 5 showing.

Gamecock reliever Joe Loria was the losing pitcher, as the senior was roughed up for five runs in only one-third of an inning pitched.

The two-run split left JSU with an overall record of 18-5, and a mark of 5-1 in the GSC’s Eastern Division. "Troy State is now 14-6-2 and 3-3 in the GSC."

JSU hosts Valdosta State Saturday afternoon for a 1:00 doubleheader. Valdosta and JSU also play Sunday, with the game scheduled for 1:30. The Sunday game will be played in Anniston, at Anniston High School. Monday, the Gamecocks go to Montevallo for a 6:00 contest.

Matches

The Lady Braves had no more luck at doubles than they had at singles. The Lady Gamecocks swept all three doubles matches, although the first two were somewhat tough.

The top team of White and Circle won 74, 62, while the second pairing of Heynysh and Clayton produced a 7 6, 62 win.

The JSU women host Alabama-Huntsville today at 1:30 p.m. The men will be in Rome, Georgia, to participate in the Shorter Invitational. Friday, the women travel to West Georgia, while the men host Livingston for a 7 p.m. match. Monday, the Lady Gamecocks host Huntington College at 2:30, and the men host North Alabama at the same time.

Steve Chew

Chew top shooter

The Jax State Rifle Team lived up to the expectations that were visualized at the beginning of the 1986-1987 school year. This can be attributed to in part by the excellent shooting ability of Steven Chew, a veteran competitive shooter who transferred to JSU last fall. Chew is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Chew, Jr. of Belmar, N. J. He has been involved in competitive rifle shooting for the past five years starting out at the Central Jersey Rifle and Pistol Club and is currently on a JSU Shooting Scholarship.

Prior to coming to JSU, Steve established an impressive list of accomplishments in competitive rifle shooting. He won the New Jersey State Junior Olympic Rifle Championship in 1985, which entitled him to compete on a national level. Junior Olympic Rifle Championship match. He was invited to the 1985 U. S. Olympic Shooting Team tryouts in Los Angeles, Calif. In 1985 Steve also made the New Jersey State Junior Olympic Rifle Team. The team won the national three position Junior Team Championship in both the metallic and air rifle categories. Chew placed in the top 100 shooters listing for both the 1985 and the 1986 lists.

As of the end of the 1986-1987 school year, Chew has established an impressive shooting record. He has broken several of JSU’s shooting records, some of them had been on the list for several years. He has competed in eight matches, both rifle and air rifle, and in most matches led the JSU team in the competition. Chew is one of the top three shooters in our conference and is expected to qualify for the NCAA National Finals this year at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Rifle finishes 15th

The final NCAA shooting results were announced this week, and the shooters of Jacksonville State University finished the 1987 season as the 15th ranked team in the country. Murray State is the top team in the nation with West Virginia and South Florida close behind.

Animals—

"These Boots Are Made For Walking" (which is always a crowd-pleaser), "Eastrury", "Castle Made Of Sand", and "I Can't Wait". Ray Crabtree took charge on the vocals for "Brown Eyed Girl" by Van Morrison, and the audience joined in on the chorus, one of the magic moments that made the show an event. The excitement did not die down until the crowd cheered the band to not one but two encores. The first was highlighted by "Caught Up In The Dread", a reggae flavored instrumental. The final encore, "Gloria", was an epic rendition of "Gloria".

Just before Christmas the band released "White Animals Live". The album was recorded live at the Nashville Sound connection studio. It includes thirteen choice cuts, which are all-time favorite WHITE ANIMALS songs plus great bonus tracks.

Several others are included on this 'greatest hits' album, recorded on a hot summer night in Hilton Head, SC. The album is available on Dead Beat records, and nationally distributed by Important Records. Other recording credits include a six-song EP, "Nashville Babyboomers" (1980), and a four-song East German EP, "The White Animals, New Beat From Nashville" (1983).

One of their albums, "White Animals" has sold about 25,000 copies, not bad for an as yet unsigned band. They seem to be doing well on their own. Stereo Review has called them "A classic American rock band".

With the success of their new album, the band included "White Animals" in their set for the Spring Whoopee this year.

When the band started out they found quickly that they could not afford the cost of mailing out fan club members. They seemed to be doing well on their own. Stereo Review has called them "A classic American rock band".

Mathematics department, a marker pays tribute to the 1965 founding of Kappa Alpha Order in the building where it was a dormitory. On the edge of the VMI parade grounds, a limestone outcropping is marked as the spot where Sigma Nu founders met in 1860 to plan their new society.

The idea for the party at JSU began when Kappa Alpha vice-president Brandy Howton read about the Lexington Triad in the Kappa Alpha Journal. He called Sigma Nu IFC representative Rich Daniel and they proceeded to call ATO vice-president Doug Ford and the plans began. The trio held several meetings during the past four months and finalized their plans by mid-March.

The party is going to be held at the Sigma Nu house and due to legal stipulations and insurance purposes the party is closed. The popular band Newboys will be playing for the occasion.

"Being the first year in our new house, Sigma Nu is looking forward to having the band and the party and we're excited about partying with ATO and Kappa," said Daniels.

Kappa Alpha Order is also excited about the party.

"We are glad we are having the party and we think it will strengthen the relations between the three fraternities," Howton said.

ATO is looking forward to the party and they are very glad that the Triad is going to be recognized at JSU.

"It's going to be great to see three different fraternities coming together as one to celebrate what our different fraternities started over a century ago," Ford said.

Richard Fletcher summarized it when he described the Lexington Triad as "One brotherhood starting a common goal, and working together in peace and harmony to achieve that end. The goal: to help develop better men."

...continue to play music, make new friends, and make better and better records," he said.

There is a new sound coming out of Nashville. Yes, said Steve Boyd. He mentioned several Nashville-based rock bands including: Webb Wilder and the Beateam, who played a dynamic opening set for the White Animals here last summer and Walk Thee West, one of the bands set to play at the Spring Whoopee this year.

When the band started out they found quickly that they could not afford the cost of mailing out fan club letters to all their fans, there were just too many: but they do have an address and ask that you write them. The address is: White Animals, P.O. Box 12345, Nashville, Tennessee, 37212.
