WJXL-AM

Former JSU student manages new station

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

On Jan. 19, a new radio station came on the scene — WJXL-AM in stereo.

WJXL, located in Jacksonville about a mile north of the University campus, has a definite JSU flavor.

General manager Bill Bussey, sales manager Troi Hayes, weatherman Allan Rhodes, and disc jockeys Clarence Goodbeer, Mike Carter and Don Ward are all either current JSU students or former graduates.

"We were glad to have the opportunity to go to JSU. Major John Turner was very instrumental in helping me get my start in radio and has been a big influence in many of us. I believe Self Hall has one of the top communications programs in the country," Bussey said.

WJXL, an adult contemporary station, plays mainly Top 40, soft rock and country music tunes like that of Alabama and Kenny Rogers.

Located at 810 on the AM dial, the station has 50,000 watts of power during the day, making it the strongest AM radio station in the area, according to Bussey.

The station regularly covers Calhoun and surrounding counties, plus several areas in western Georgia. At night it drops down to 500 watts and serves mainly Calhoun County.

"The response from our listening audience has been great. We've received calls from as far away as Pensacola, Fl., Houston, Miss., Marietta, Ga., Jasper and Sylacauga. People seem to really enjoy what we're doing here," Bussey said.

Construction of WJXL, which has many of the latest advancements in radio technology, came at a price of approximately $1 million, he said. The station is owned by HMS Broadcasting of Houston, Miss.

Dr. Khatri addresses his audience.

Hijacking experience recounted

By CYNDI OWENS
Chanticleer Staff Writer

A somewhat reluctant Dr. Abdullah Khatri spoke to a crowd of about 100 people last Thursday on the 11th floor of the Houston Cole Library on the topic, "Hijacking: From a Sociological Perspective." His appearance was sponsored by the Sociology Club.

Khatri was qualified to speak on the subject hijacking because he experienced it firsthand on September 5, 1986, on the Pan Am flight which was hijacked by four young Palestinian terrorists.

Khatri recalled the events of the day chronologically, starting with the time that he first realized they were aboard.

"I saw an air stewardess raise her hands and I knew something serious was going on," Khatri said.

The flight crew escaped and the plane was unable to take off, he said.

"Then the door was closed...then they asked us...to keep the hands over the head and lower it as low as possible," he said.

The passengers were ordered not to move under penalty of death, he said. They remained in that position for two hours, with the only movement coming when they were ordered to use one hand to hold up their passports for collection by the cabin crew.

Unknown to them at the time, one of the stewardesses hid the passports of some of the American passengers. Unfortunately, one of the Americans had already been shot, and his body thrown onto the tarmac.

Although Khatri has poor eyesight, he did see one of the terrorists walking around.

"In his hands were two hand grenades," he said.

He added that due to his studies in sociology, he was able to see the situation from their point of view.

"I am not condoning what they did. As a student of sociology, I tried to understand the motives of these people," he said.

He added that in his classes he tries to talk to his students about the "empathetic approach." That is, to project yourself into the other person's situation.

Terrorists, such as the ones responsible for this hijacking, are brought up to hate, and are willing (See KHATRI, Page 2)

Mayor expresses concern, feels fraternity row needed

By KAY ROBINSON
Chanticleer Staff Writer

A fraternity row may be established at Jacksonville State University, but the project will not come into play for five to 10 years, according to Bill Meehan, assistant to the vice president of academic affairs.

The idea of a fraternity row has been tossed around for many years. Meehan said that at this point a fraternity row is not feasible.

"I would be hesitant, because of proration, to use state money for projects that would only benefit ten-percent of the college," he said.

Fraternities make up ten-percent of the student body, he said.

The recent rehashing of a fraternity row was opened by Jacksonville mayor John B. Nesbit. Nesbit explained that he was concerned for the citizens of Jacksonville who live in residential areas where fraternal organizations also dwell.

Nesbit said that some fraternities disturb the citizens with parties until one or two in the morning, traffic is congested, and there is a problem with litter.

"When you have 60 or 70 cars in a place where only two belong, you have a traffic problem. With social activities in a residential area that occur three or four times a year, you have a problem if people around them go to bed at ten o'clock," Nesbit said.

A positive aspect of a fraternity row is that if the University creates it the city does not regulate University property, he said.

JSU's sororities are on campus and gather for meetings on different levels of dorms.

"In the future fraternities should be on campus. What's there (occupied fraternity homes) stays there until it burns or whatever.

Sororities are on campus, why not fraternities?" Nesbit suggested.

Meehan said that would not be suitable.

"Fraternities do better in a single purpose dwelling. Dorms are not good for fraternal organizations. If they had a building that was their own, that would be fine. Fraternities are identified by their houses. They take great pride in their houses," he said.

Nesbit said that he has nothing against fraternities. He said Jacksonville is a college town and there are advantages and disadvantages with this situation. Nesbit said that he would like for the fraternities to "find an area where they could buy the land outside of town. There they can raise all kinds of cane and not bother anybody."

Meehan had a different idea.

"We need a 'town and (See MAYOR, Page 4)

Khatri

to kill themselves and others for the cause as they perceive it, he stated.

His escape from the plane came when the lights inside the cabin went out. The passengers from the back of the plane were brought out and huddled in the middle of the plane. When the lights went out, the hijackers opened fire, shooting the passengers in the back of the plane first. Someone near him had opened an emergency exit door, and he crawled to safety and fled from the plane.

As soon as he hit the ground, he remembers saying out loud, "I don't believe it. I don't believe I am alive."

It was hours after the ordeal was over before he knew many of the details, and about two days before he was allowed to speak directly to his family. It was upon his return to Birmingham that something fascinating happened to him.

"I learned that strange Alabamians that never knew me before were concerned," he marvelled.

What did he learn from this ordeal that happened just a few months ago?

"In life, there are some situations in which you will say, 'I understand, but I can't stand it,' " he concluded.

Sigma Chi purchases new fraternity house

By STEVEN ROBINSON
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The Pi Colony of Sigma Chi Fraternity last week purchased a new fraternity house. The house, known as the Andrews House and located just off the old Gadsden Highway near Crossroad's, was purchased after the fraternity was forced to move out of its old house at 401 8th Avenue after a city hearing held December 23, 1986, which cited the fraternity as being in violation of the city's zoning policy.

The fraternity brothers feel the move is for the better, stating that the location of the Andrews House, its size and useability, will benefit the fraternity more in the long run.

The approximately 100-year-old house is an antebellum style dwelling with cathedral ceilings, antique fixtures, and seven and a half acres of land.

Last week final preparations for occupancy were completed and all city regulations and requirements were met, according to House Committee members.

The fraternity had been looking at the house for over a year, but just recently came into the position of being able to purchase the house. Financial arrangements were handled by Colony Brother Rick Engman and were completed last week.

There will be around nine or 10 brothers living in the house this semester.

Interior as well as exterior renovations will begin this semester and the brothers have several definite goals in mind to make the house as attractive and efficient as possible.

"We believe the new house better suits our needs at the present time and will, in the future, allow us room to expand," said House Chairmen Warren Lee.

The fraternity has already scheduled mixers with various sororities and is in the process of planning an active spring calendar.

The new Sigma Chi house is located near Crossroad's

Conference stresses importance of minority journalists

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

"Minorities in the Newsroom: Making a Difference" was the theme of the ASNE Minorities Conference and Job Fair, held last Friday and Saturday at the Ramada Hotel in Birmingham and attended by four members of The Chanticleer staff. And, as several editors and educators present at the conference stated, minorities can make a difference and add to a more well-rounded newspaper.

Representing The Chanticleer were Vicky Wallace, editor-in-chief; Roy Williams, news editor; Wendy Peacock, staff writer; and Forkpa Korlewala, staff photographer. Over 100 minority journalists from throughout Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi attended the conference, which was hosted by The Birmingham Post-Herald and sponsored by the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE). The ASNE paid for each student's lodging at the Ramada Hotel, plus lunch and dinner on Friday.

"The fact that our overnight stay, lunch and dinner were paid for by the ASNE convinced me that minority journalists are in demand," Chanticleer editor Wallace said.

Representatives from numerous local and nationally known newspapers attended the conference to conduct job interviews and advise minority college students about their careers.

"We came into contact with and were given addresses of such large newspapers as The Los Angeles Times and The New York Times and smaller ones like The Anniston Star and The Gadsden Times. They pointed out the importance of resumes and newspaper clips. We also got to compare our newspaper and our techniques with students from schools throughout Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi," Wallace said.

On Friday, three workshop panels were held: one geared toward the newspaper editors, Why minorities belong in the newsroom and how to put them there, and two advising the college students on How to get that first job and How to cope in the newsroom and grow professionally.

"The only regret I have is that we were not aware of this conference until this year, when a conference brochure was sent to Dr. Clyde Cox (chairman of the English department). The seminars and speakers were very beneficial to each of us as minority journalists," Wallace said.

Editors at the conference emphasized the importance of the interview in obtaining a job, saying students should "use a firm handshake, maintain good eye contact, speak clearly and listen carefully."

"The editors emphasized the importance of experience through internships and college newspapers more than anything. They encouraged us to join newspaper staffs early in college and to write as much as possible," Wallace said.

Many minorities go into journalism wondering if their chances are better or worse because they are minorities.

"The answer is neither -- the key factors editors will look at are experience, skill and commitment," Lee Stinnett, executive director of ASNE, said.

According to Stinnett, there are approximately 53,000 professional jobs in print journalism (excluding wire services). However, only 6 percent (3,600) of these jobs are held by minorities.

"Newspapers are seeking minorities more actively now. Last year, 60 percent of the people hired as journalists were minorities and 26 percent of the interns were minorities.

In advising the editors in how to help minority journalists cope in the newsroom, Harold Jackson, editorial writer for The Birmingham News urged the editors to "be colorblind and treat minority reporters just like they would any other reporter."

"Minority reporters have two obstacles to overcome when they first get a job -- 1) they are new and 2) they are minorities. Editors need to realize that blacks may have more problems to overcome because of their race; they need to be willing to help them adjust to the newsroom," Jackson said.

"Recognizing the minority will often bring a different perspective to the news. That's why minorities are necessary in the newsroom. They allow a different segment of the community's views to be presented in the newspaper," he said.

Wallace described the conference as "an educational experience."

"We learned how we as minority journalists can grow professionally in the newsroom," she concluded.

Newspapers command a larger share of advertising dollars in the U.S. than television, billboards and magazines combined.

Campus NewsNotes

Funding of campuses looks so bleak in some areas that, in just the last week, various officials warned that:

•Mississippi's college scholarship fund might run dry before May, leaving 206 students without tuition funds.

•Idaho State's pharmacy program may lose its accreditation because it doesn't have enough money to keep its student-faculty ratio at acceptable levels.

•Private Bishop College in Dallas killed its football program to save money, but, $2.5 million in debt, may go bankrupt anyway.

•Atlanta University may declare an emergency to clear the way to lay off tenured faculty members.

•Rhode Island may merge the U. of Rhode Island, Rhode Island College and the Community College of Rhode Island to save money.

•Clemson will adopt a plan to cut departmental budgets to cope with a 2.6 percent cut in state funding.

•The 19-campus Cal State University system will defer building maintenance, cut back on supplies and slash some employees' benefits to compensate for a $16.5 million midyear budget cut.

•The U. of Nebraska may drop or merge its nursing, continuing education, family practice and technical agriculture programs to save money.

Catholic U. Suspends Rev. Charles Curran

Following a papal edict to keep Curran, who disagrees with church dogma on contraception and homosexuality, Washington Archbishop James Hickey suspended Curran and dropped his theology courses from the curriculum.

Curran held a press conference at his normal class time, hinting he may sue the school for breach of contract.

Term Paper Frauds Uncovered at Florida State, Alabama, Shelton State

FSU found a freshman had sold history papers for $15-$30 each, while Alabama refused to rehire part-time English instructor Wynora Freeman for this term while she's being investigated for allegedly trying to sell students papers for use in her class.

Duke, Founded by Tobacco Money, Bans Cigarettes from Med Center

Harvard grad students, meanwhile, delivered petitions asking Widener Library on campus to reconsider its smoking ban, adopted to comply with a new Cambridge ban on smoking in public places, because "a lot of people work better when they smoke."

U. of Wyoming officials, meanwhile, voted to defy a similar new Laramie ban, saying city laws don't apply to the state-owned campus.

Antelope Valley College Trustees Nix Nude Life Drawing Class

The Lancaster, Cal., campus denied letting nude models pose for art students because class door locks and other precautions, screening out 17-year-old students, made the class "more trouble than it's worth," Trustee Earl Wilson explained.

U.San Francisco President Rejects Justice as Law School Grad Speaker

President Rev. John Lo Schiavo said Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackman's legal opinions of abortions and homosexual rights contradicted Catholic beliefs, making him an unsuitable speaker at the Roman Catholic USF.

Most Americans say college is impossible without aid

(CPS) -- Most Americans believe they cannot afford to go to college without getting some kind of financial aid, a major education group says.

As Congress debated cutting federal student aid programs last week, the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) released the results of a nationwide poll showing almost seven of every 10 Americans think college would be "out of reach" if they could not get aid.

CASE has sponsored the poll for several years. While about the same percentage of Americans -- 68 percent -- said they needed aid to go to college in 1983, an increasing percentage this year think college tuitions are rising so fast that higher education is getting "out of reach" of most people.

Most respondents, reports Dr. Walt Lindenann, of Opinion Research Corp., which conducts the survey for CASE, also favored more federal aid for students from low-income and middle-income families.

Students who did not even know about the survey seemed to agree with its conclusions.

Sandy Esche, a freshman at South Dakota State, says she wouldn't be in school without her College Work-Study job, and monies from a National Direct Student Loan, a scholarship and a Pell Grant.

"Put it this way," she says, "my dad's a farmer, one of the majority that isn't making it."

Louisiana State junior Vivianne Berkley explains, "I was in the Army, and they pay me every month that I'm in school. But I still need the Pell Grant and Guaranteed Student Loan I get."

"It's really hard even for residents to make it without grants."

Berkley adds.

Hawaii Loa College junior Gail Livoti, who describes herself as from a "middle income" family, believes that without aid "there'd be so many people out of school, and I'd probably be one of them."

CASE and others, of course, hope the survey results will help persuade Congress not to pass the aid cuts President Reagan requested in early January.

"Any time you have a reputable survey -- and this group is reputable -- that demonstrates greater public support for programs, it adds strength to those programs in Congress," says David Evans of the Senate education subcommittee.

In his proposal for the 1987-88 federal budget -- which extends from Oct. 1, 1987 through Sept. 1988 -- Reagan asked Congress to cut federal higher education spending to $4.8 billion, down from $8.7 billion in fiscal 1987.

The president wants Congress to eliminate the College Work-Study, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, National Direct Student Loan and State Student Incentive Grant programs, while cutting funding for the Guaranteed Student Loan and Pell Grant programs.

"It's in the hands of Congress," notes Sherri Hancock, aid director at Central State University in Oklahoma.

The president said aid cuts would help reduce the federal budget deficit. "As a taxpayer," Hancock says, "I'd like to see the deficit reduced, but being an advocate for students, I think it's unfortunate that the budget changes will affect largely the middle-income family."

Jay Larson, South Dakota State's aid director, has no such mixed feelings about the cuts.

"It is quite imperative that current financial aid programs be maintained," he asserts.

When asked what she thought of the cuts, student Esche speculated they "would drastically reduce the number of students able to attend college. The majority of SDSU students receive some kind of aid."

The cuts, Esche says, "would push more students out of school and into the job market. The economic ramifications of that would be pretty obvious."

Evans says the CASE survey may in fact "fend off" some of the cuts, and may even get Congress to allocate more money to student financial aid programs "even though it's a year of fiscal restraint."

gown" committee. This would be an open channel for communications between the town and the University. A committee like this was formed in 1983 over the noise ordinance and I think it worked nicely. The "town and gown" would serve as a format for the University and the community. Citizens could come and say, 'Here's the problem'."

Such a committee could only be formed at the mayor's request, he said.

"If there was a request by the mayor, the University would be glad to participate," Meehan said.

As general manager, Bussey is responsible for overseeing the station, handling financial matters and making programming decisions. A lifelong native of Jacksonville, he was very active in communications at JSU. For the past two years, Bussey worked at Channel 40 in Anniston, where he says engineer John Murrell and others were a big help to him.

Though the station has a relatively young staff (the oldest employee is 27), Hayes said WJXL is full of new ideas and has a style different from other radio stations in the area.

"This radio station has a mass appeal approach that we believe can appeal to nearly everyone. We're trying to put fun back into listening to radio; we have a commitment to 'people serving people.' The staff and management, as well as the ownership, believe in a teamwork effort," Hayes said.

Though WJXL has been on the air only two weeks, the employees said they are extremely pleased with the way the station has progressed.

"I've worked in a lot of stations, but have never been a part of anything that has as much potential as this one," disc jockey Mike Carter said.

Music director and production manager Larry Logan describes WJXL as "a station for everybody, one that everybody can identify with."

Perhaps Hayes said it best when he said: "The idea of working as a team is something that reflects in the way we sound. If you're in a bad mood, tune us in and we'll put a smile on your face."

Successful blacks often ignore their culture

Philadelphia, PA (CPS) -- Black students who get good grades at predominantly white colleges tend to adopt "raceless" behavior and values, a sociologist told the recent convention of the American Anthropological Association.

And, in "turning their backs" on "black culture," such "raceless" students may suffer in the long run, social scientist Sinthia Fordham of the University of the District of Columbia said.

Other observers of black collegians tend to agree.

"In every facet of American society, successful blacks have distanced themselves from any recognizable black culture," says Conrad Tillard of the Black Student League of the University of Pennsylvania.

Kuumba Ferrouillet, editor of Black Collegian Magazine, adds "a lot of successful black students have made the trade-off. Many fall into the trap of thinking, 'I have to give up my black self' in order to succeed."

Numerous studies have shown black students at predominantly black colleges do much better academically than blacks who attend mostly white campuses. Most cite the pressures of dealing with white hostility and the sheer loneliness of being a black person on a white campus for the difference in grades.

Fordham says blacks who do get good grades in white schools often embrace the "dominant culture's" values of individualism and competition in the process.

Such changes, however, threaten the whole black culture, she adds. "Black people have a relationship to other blacks that is based on historical, social and economic factors."

In general, Fordham finds that black adolescents in white America "spend a lot of energy" trying to develop a comfortable sense of self.

One reason this is difficult is that inner city adolescents are "less competitive than white kids because (competitive behavior) is not sanctioned by the black community."

For example, she says, "Jesse Jackson can run for president because he's not just doing it for himself. He's doing it for all blacks. Achievement for the group" is more important for blacks than for whites, she adds.

Competitiveness, of course, is seen as an asset in American institutions, including white colleges. Apparent identity confusion led the inner city high achievers Fordham studied to "camouflage" their school skills in order to fit in the black subculture.

"Blacks still feel American culture is not really theirs. They're not really assimilated," Fordham says. "There's a tension there. They recognize that the social system says assimilation is good, but they equate assimilation with identity loss -- a really profound loss."

Ferrouillet maintains "there's no reason why you can't be an outstanding systems analyst and still be attuned to your culture. It has to be our -- black people's -- business, our duty, to get that culture back."

Tillard isn't so sure. "Black newscasters that get hired have decidedly white accents. There is a pressure from society on blacks that says you can't be in the mainstream of society and still retain a strong black identity."

Fordham notes the tension can be too much, citing the example of Leanita McClain, a journalist who was the first black woman elected to the Chicago Tribune's board of directors.

McClain committed suicide, Fordham says, because her white friends did not see her as "like other blacks."

Tillard calls McClain an example of a "marginal" person, an individual who has lost perspective of what he or she actually is. "It's important to keep what you are in the forefront."

Fordham says that black people, especially youngsters, need to be affirmed in their blackness, not told that they are okay because they are "colorless."

Because no one is colorblind, Fordham emphasizes positive racial identity is necessary.

Tillard concurs, saying a healthy balance of integration -- a term he prefers to "assimilation" -- and a sense of racial identity will be possible "only when society as a whole says it's okay for a black person to be black."

AAA sponsors events for Black History Month

The Afro American Association (AAA) has several events planned in celebration of Black History Month, including the following:

-Roderick Van Royal will speak on new racism Wednesday, Feb. 11, and a discussion with the audience will follow. Time and place to be announced.

-Gospel concert Feb. 15 at 6 p.m., in the Theron Montgomery Building. Free to the public.

-Cleo Thomas, an Anniston attorney, will talk Feb. 17 on how blacks can succeed at predominantly white universities at 7 p.m. Place to be announced.

-Film on black history Feb. 18, narrated by Bill Cosby at 7 p.m. Place to be announced.

-"Witness to Apartheid," film to be shown Feb. 24. Time and place to be announced.

-Awards banquet Feb. 26 at 7 p.m. in the Theron Montgomery Building. Concerts will be performed and awards given to student organizations.

Any changes will be announced on the bulletin board on the fourth floor of the Montgomery building.

59 students named to "Who's Who"

JACKSONVILLE -- Fifty-nine Jacksonville State University students will be included in the 1987 edition of WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES.

They join an elite group of students selected from more than 1,400 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the names of these students based on their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and potential for continued success.

The JSU students are:

Mary Hughes Atkinson of Anniston; Donna Amason Barrett of Lineville; Sandra Posey Beck of Weaver; Tara Leigh Bennett of Birmingham; Missia Ann Boozer of Jacksonville; Charlotte Fay Bowen of Attalla; Roland Patrick Brown of Muscadine; Bruce Alan Carpenter of Jacksonville; Sheri Paulette Cochran of Cedartown.

Joecelyn P. Crittenden of Sylacauga; Connie Lynn Durham of Fort Payne; Randy David Durian of Weaver; Tracey Jill Duvall of Childersburg; Vincent Blaine England of Fort Payne; Dawn Yvette Fowler of Resaca, Ga.; Kimberly Dawn Garris of Jacksonville.

Susan Boring Glison of Jacksonville; Marcia Yvonne Golden of Albertville; Alison Beth Goodwin of Fort Payne; Scott Dixon Green of Jacksonville; Susan Renee Green of Jacksonville; Kathy Copeland Hardy of Anniston; John Franklin Hickman of Gadsden; Shannon Kaye Holder of Piedmont; Shirley Nolen Horton of Oneonta.

Patricia Beam Hubbard of Boaz; Lisa Durden Huckaby of Anniston; Pamela June Hutcheson of Temple, Ga.; Janet Patrice Johnson of Talladega; Sharon Lee Jones of Piedmont; Sandra Fay Kent of Heflin; Sharon Elaine Kirby of Wadley; Janet Lynn Knight of Jacksonville; Michael Allan Kulp of Weaver; Glenda Jennings Lindsey of Anniston.

Vicky Ann Manord of Gadsden; Shannon Travis Mayhall of Albertville; Carolyn Bell Moss of Weaver; Deborah Irene McCurry of Alexandria; Kimberly Dawn Nance of Jacksonville; Maniece E. Noble of Birmingham; Teresa Renay Nuss of Birmingham; Grace Lynne Overfield of Trion; Frances H. Prater of Oxford; Genne Hatley Puckett of Geraldine.

Bridget Ellen Reaves of Jacksonville; Jan Perry Saunders of Andalusia; Sherri S. Savage of Rainsville; Carol Leonard Shafer of Jacksonville; Mary Emily Sides of Jacksonville; Sook K. Sienkiewicz of Fort McClellan; Lisa Kathryn Smith of Marietta, Ga.; John Thornell Thomas of Prattville; Jimmy Raburn Wilson, Jr., of Cartersville; Don Howard Wolf of Anniston; Arnoldine Yelling of Bessemer; Mr. Logan Young of Piedmont; and Anne Stewart of Boaz.

THE WEEKEND WORK THAT PAYS OFF 3 WAYS FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS.

1. With the G.I. Bill, you get up to $5,040 for college, as you go to college.
2. For one weekend a month (usually two 8-hour days), you earn over $75 per weekend to start.
3. You train in a useful skill which could be most helpful in your civilian career.

All this in an Army Reserve unit near where you go to college. It's training in an Army school, then returning home to serve one weekend a month, usually, plus two weeks annual training. There's a fourth benefit, too. The chance for a real change of pace during your Army Reserve weekends.

Something To Think About A type of apartheid exists here in America

South Africa. Apartheid. These were the topics of a program sponsored by the sociology club and the Wesley Foundation in which the guest speaker was Maudine Holloway, who traveled to South Africa with other missionaries from the United Methodist Church in Anniston last July. I just wish more students had attended the program on Tuesday, January 20, at the Wesley House at 3:30 p.m. I went to this program for two reasons: 1) it peaked my interest and 2) to act in a reporter's capacity.

I became so absorbed in the material I received on apartheid and Mrs. Holloway's slide presentation and her discussion of her trip, that later I discovered my notes were so few it was impossible to write a decent news story.

Vicky Wallace

Editor-in-Chief

Mrs. Holloway said although she and her group were prohibited from entering Johannesburg, the heart of apartheid, they did visit Kenya and Zimbabwe and she had a chance to speak with Desmond Tutu. She said the Africans were very self-supporting people, but conditions (such as farming and sanitation) there were so horrible that the life-expectancy is 50 years. It used to be only 38.

One particular point she brought out was the difference between the treatment of blacks here in America and those in South Africa. According to her, blacks here haven't experienced the kind of "enslavement" that the blacks in South Africa are undergoing now.

Why don't they just revolt, someone asked. (Blacks make up 72 percent of the total population.) Her answer: Fear. No one is willing to take a stand because many of the blacks work and live in houses owned by those responsible for apartheid. They are afraid they'll lose their riches and homes. If someone speaks out, then he has to run for his life, she said. What a scary thought, I said to myself, no freedom of speech, among other things.

Makes you thank GOD that you live in America when you look at a country like South Africa. But the racism that still divides America into two nations is not a fact which should be overlooked or make blacks feel complacent.

The nation paused January 19 to celebrate the man who had a dream of whites and blacks living and working together. But how far have we come in 1987 in achieving that dream?

Apparently Dr. King's dream is not shared by everyone, according to the recent cases of racial violence which seem to be growing into more of a problem every day. The victims, according to USA Today of racial incidences in New York recently have been black, white, hispanic and Jewish.

Sometimes I wonder what some people think America is. Once nicknamed the "great melting pot," one songwriter said America was "The land of the free and the brave." The Constitution gives its citizens the right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." What irony. You can't walk, move or march into a predominantly white neighborhood without a chance of being harassed, pelted with foreign objects, threatened, killed or arrested for being "up to no good" these days.

Let us not focus our whole attention on the apartheid problem of South Africa. We have no room to point the finger at them and shake our heads. Racial incidences like the Howard Beach murder case and the attack of approximately 50 marchers supporting the King holiday by the KKK in Forsyth, Ga., should make us realize we are only just a step ahead of South Africa.

Howard Beach Band together and fight racism

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Despite the efforts of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. over 20 years ago, America is constantly being reminded that racism is still alive and well in the 1980s. Never was that more evident than on Dec. 20, 1986, in Howard Beach, a predominately white neighborhood in Queens, New York.

On that night, 23-year-old Michael Griffith and his two companions, Cedric Sandford, 36, and Timothy Grimes, 18, left a neighborhood pizza parlor and were brutally attacked by a mob of 11 white teenagers armed with baseball bats and sticks. Griffith staggered onto a highway while trying to escape from his attackers, and was struck and killed by an oncoming car.

The incident stunned the nation, and made the name Howard Beach symbolic of the type of racial violence one would expect to find only in South Africa. Yet, with the tremendous increase in the number of racial incidents occurring in the United States last year and continuing into 1987, it is quite clear that the racist attitudes of the 1960s are present nationwide even today.

Consider the following incidents of racism that appeared in the Jan. 7 USA Today:

- In Philadelphia, a black family and an interracial couple were intimidated by a mob of whites who wanted them out of the neighborhood.
- In Charleston, S.C., five white cadets at Citadel, a military school, burst into the room of a black cadet late one night wearing white sheets and carrying a burning cross, and shouted racial slurs at him.
- In Normal Heights, Calif., a man sent hate mail, burned a cross, and set fire to the pickup truck of his black neighbors.

• And last, but certainly not least, on Saturday, Jan. 17, a group of 400 Ku Klux Klansmen threw mud, rocks and bottles at a crowd of 50 people (mostly blacks) who were marching through Forsyth County, an all-white county in Georgia, to celebrate the King holiday.

Though all of these were terrible incidents, none has had such dreadful consequences as the attack in Howard Beach. The death of Griffith has been likened to a lynching by numerous black leaders, and New York City Mayor Ed Koch described what happened in the Jan. 5 Time as the "most horrendous incident" of violence in his nine years as mayor.

Since the Dec. 20 attack, over 30 separate attacks (black against white and white against black) have occurred in New York City. How much longer will this go on? When will we finally begin to see each other as sisters and brothers and stop condemning others because of the color of their skin?

Perhaps the Rev. Robert Seay said it best in his eulogy at Griffith's funeral:

The great (civil rights) movement was to have ended all this. But society admits and encourages violence and bigotry. When teenagers commit a crime like this, the blame is not only on them, but on their parents and on society.

Howard Beach showed Americans nationwide that racism still exists in America. Black Americans already knew that, having to put up with it nearly every day in their lives. Many white Americans knew it, but did not want to admit its existence. Now all of America knows that racism exists in today's society. Let us join together to bring it to an end.

Letter Paying for worn out decal disgusts student

Dear Editor:
Do we not pay enough fines, tuition, and fees as it is now? Paying for a nonexistent parking place is one thing, but attempting to keep our parking decals on our cars for two semesters is another. Take in consideration that the sticker barely makes it through six weeks, much less eight months.

The cold weather and snow caused my parking decal to fall off (as it was well on its way before). The University is requiring me to pay for another parking decal although I have the receipt for the first decal. Why should we, the students, have to suffer for this deficiency in the parking rules and regulations of the University?

If the decal had been taped on the inside of the car, it would not have been lost. Then I would have gotten fined for improper display of the parking decal.

Five dollars for some students may not be much, but for those who pay tuition, dorm, books, food, and oh yes, tickets.....a penny saved is a penny earned. Please try to remedy this situation!

Severely disgusted,
John D. Hopson

Desert sphinx provides winter fun

By ROY WILLIAMS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

It is among the most celebrated of the Egyptian monuments - the Great Sphinx, a stone figure of a lion, the upper part being human. In Egypt, this colossal monument was erected to guard the entrance to sacred temples. Yet, one would not expect to find a replica of this classic figure on the campus of Jacksonville State University.

However, two weeks ago nine JSU students took advantage of the snow that blanketed the campus and erected their own version of the Great Sphinx and an Egyptian pyramid in front of the International House.

Collaborating in the building of the Sphinx and pyramid were eight residents of the International House - Mario Aguilar, Johnny Cassiano, Sherlyn Chan, Rod Garrett, Katrina Hakkola, Dave Hammond, Rod Purvis and Ian Simpson, and another JSU student, Matthias Knoll.

After five hours of intense molding and sculpturing the snow amid freezing temperatures, the group completed their masterpiece - a Sphinx measuring five and one-half feet high and eight to 10 feet long and a pyramid approximately five feet high and four feet wide. The resulting ice structures delighted passersby, who often stopped by to take pictures of the group while they were working. A photo of the International House Sphinx and pyramid even appeared on the front page of The Anniston Star.

"We didn't expect it to turn out like it did. I thought it was funny the way complete strangers kept stopping by to take pictures," Hakkola said.

Since the two structures were made entirely out of snow, they were unable to stand the test of time and melted from existence within 10 days. Yet, their legacy remains forever etched in the minds of the group of students who created them.

"I am particularly proud because of the fact that the people of Jacksonville don't get the chance to see something like this very often. It appealed to the community and the campus as a whole, the young and the old," Cassiano said.

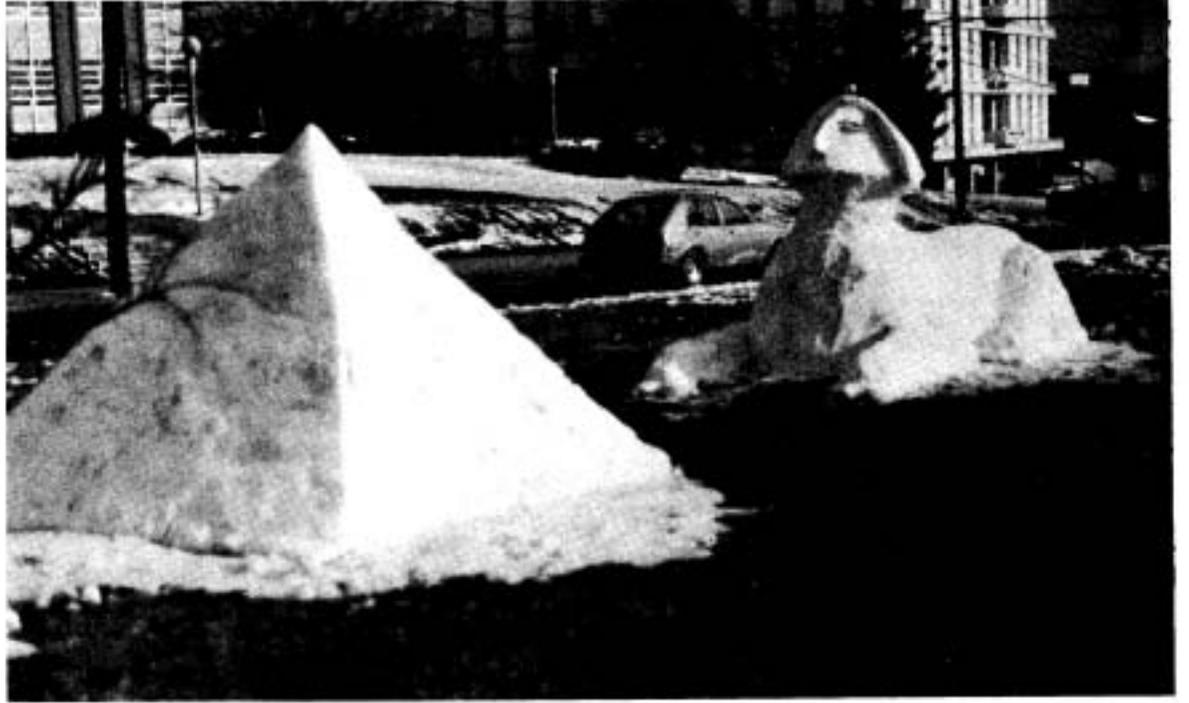

Hammond said that the Sphinx and pyramid were a group effort in which everyone pitched in to help.

"It was something different. Instead of making war (throwing snowballs at each other), we made pyramids. We were real pleased with the result; it was well worth the effort," Hammond said.

Being that the International House is inhabited by students from all over the world, Cassiano said the Sphinx and pyramid were a perfect additions to the program.

"People were wondering how we came up with the idea. They asked if we had someone from Egypt living in the International House," he said.

The students did not originally intend to build a Sphinx and pyramid, according to Purvis. He said that he and Simpson started rolling large snowballs around noon Jan. 22 and planned to build a giant snowman. But the snow was too difficult to lift.

"Rod Garrett walked by, looked at the mounds of snow we had piled and said, 'What is that going to be - a Sphinx?' We then decided that was exactly what we were going to build, and other students came to help us," Simpson said.

Purvis said the group used an old World War II bayonet to carve the snow, as well as a cooking spatula, which was used primarily to shape the face of the Sphinx. "The pyramid came as an afterthought. When we got to the point where we needed only detail work on the Sphinx, we felt it needed something to guard and began on the pyramid. Our biggest worry was that someone might come knock it down. It wasn't perfect, but we were proud of it," Purvis said.

For Aguilar, an International House student from Mexico, and Chan, an international student from Malaysia, it was their first experience in the snow.

"I'm happy it turned out so well. It was a fun, enjoyable experience that I'll never forget," Chan said.

"I wanted my first time in the snow to be something original. Everyone builds snowmen. How many people can say they've built a Sphinx out of snow? It was very cold and took a lot of work, but we had a real good time," Aguilar said.

Loneliness can even strike on this campus

By CYNDI OWENS
Chanticleer Staff Writer

Loneliness. Webster's Third New International Dictionary defines it as "a state of dejection or grief caused by the condition of being alone."

Everyone else knows it as that empty, bored, nothing-to-do, got-the-blues" feeling that often strikes when one least expects it.

It even strikes the college scene. One of the most frightening aspects of starting college is the thought of having to make a whole new set of friends. This not only affects those who will live on campus, but also commuters.

Commuters may even face the added tension of having all their old friends at home move on before they have made new friends at college. And here at JSU, where a large number of students are commuters, the problem of making new friends is compounded.

Loneliness, if left to fester as a problem in one's life, can lead to more serious problems. The most common of these is depression.

Depression is marked by intense sadness, feelings of inadequacy, and self-deprecation but there is help. If depression is a problem, JSU offers free counseling by the psychology department.

Loneliness affects every person in the world at some time or other. The trick is not to give in to it. Psychologists say the best cure is to get involved in an organization or project. Keeping busy and finding new friends with similar interests will also help.

JSU offers a wide variety of organizations to suit almost any taste. For those who wish to get involved in the social aspects of campus life, the Greek life may just be what they are looking for. There are eleven fraternities and seven sororities on campus, and they all hold rush or smokers during the first few weeks of school.

For students who are interested in religious organizations, there are several to choose from:

•Campus Outreach meets every Wednesday night at Jack Hopper Dining Hall at 8:30 p.m.

•The Wesley Foundation is another place to turn. They offer programs on Sundays, starting at 5:30 p.m., and on Wednesdays, at 7:30 p.m. "Every month we try to have a program on interpersonal relationships," said campus minister Dale Clem.

•The Baptist Campus Ministry also has several weekly programs. These include services at 8:00 p.m. on Tuesdays, 6:00 p.m. on Thursdays, and a prayer and share time and continental breakfast at 6:45 a.m. on Fridays. "We have meetings of different types all week long," said Anna Riley, campus intern at the BCM.

If one still has not yet found relief from the stresses of loneliness, one might turn to the college of the major or minor. Every college offers clubs and programs for its majors and minors, and they are always looking for new members who are willing to get involved.

Loneliness is not fun, but it is not fatal either. The only way to deal with it is to face it and do something about it.

'HMS Pinafore' Broadway musical opens Feb. 19

By TZENA GIBBS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

On Thursday, February 19, Jacksonville State University drama department, under the direction of Dr. Burt Morton, will bring to life Gilbert and Sullivan's Broadway musical "H.M.S. Pinafore."

"The musical is not exactly a farce, but it isn't real. This production is zany and wonderful with real life situations in amusing circumstances," Morton said.

"H.M.S. Pinafore, which in the play is a ship in the British navy, is a musical story about the Captain's daughter, Josephine, who has been promised in marriage to Sir Joseph Porter by her father. Josephine, however, is madly in love with Ralph who is only a "lowly seaman."

The story takes place near the end of the 19th century where social structure plays an important role in blocking the romance of Josephine and Ralph.

The sailors and several female relatives of Joseph's attempting to get involved in the romance causes hilarious situations. Entwined throughout the main plot are many ridiculous situations such as babies being switched at birth and growing up not knowing who they really are.

"The musical is not exactly a farce, but it isn't real."

- Morton

At the end of the play, the outcome for each of the characters turns out well, but the sequence of events leading up to the end is ludicrous, Morton said.

Carlton Ward is the set director for H.M.S. Pinafore and has been very busy working for this production. A full scale moving ship is being constructed on stage. The model is an authentic copy of an English warship with adjustments made for stage.

The entire cast of H.M.S. Pinafore is made up of about 35 students with a few exceptions. Dr. Steve Whitton, a JSU English professor, plays the lead role of Joseph K.C.B. and JSU music professor Dr. Ron Attinger plays Bill the boatswain.

Interesting to note, the majority of the cast of "H.M.S. Pinafore" consists of music majors and those interested in theater, Morton said.

These students include: Georgia Brown taking the role of leading lady as Josephine. Ralph is portrayed by Lee Pope. The outrageous and obnoxious Dick Dead-Eye is played by Bart Sorrell. Sally Simpson plays Little Butter Cup who is the bum woman who sells tobacco and other supplies to the sailors.

Cary Brague portrays Captain Cochran, Josephine's father, and Bob is played by Ken Bodiford. Julie Durbin plays the role of Hebe who is in love with Sir Joseph Porter.

Mike Roberts and Michael Thornton play the mid-ship mites. In the British navy, mid-ship mites were boys who served for five years and then became junior officers when they turned 18.

The costumes are set in the era of 1880. The captain and Sir Joseph will wear full dress uniforms and the costume for the sailors will be dress navy.

The ladies costumes are very elaborate and after buying material, laboring and putting many hard hours into each one, they will be worth around $300 per costume.

Cast in action

Alice Morton is the costume director for the production.

Because H.M.S. is a musical, the dancing and movements of the characters are an important aspect of the overall effect of this show.

"The show is basic with suitable, stylized dance movement," (Burt) Morton said.

The dance movement coach for the production is Mike Roberts and he is assisted by Kathleen Welker. Both Roberts and Welker are also in the main chorus.

Debbie Spurlich is the music director and has been conducting the vocal rehearsals. Many countless hours have been spent to perfect each musical piece vocally. On the musical side, Dr. Carl Anderson is the orchestra director and members from the music department will make up the orchestra.

"The show is very colorful with a lot of elaborate detail, work and enthusiasm and I don't see anyone coming to the show that wouldn't enjoy it," Morton said.

Henley's play 'Crimes' comes to wide screen with all star cast

Beth Henley's play, "Crimes of the Heart", has been brought to the wide screen as a delightful comedy this year. The film features an all-star cast, with Sissy Spacek, Jessica Lange, and Diane Keaton starring as the McGrath sisters, and Tess Harper and Sam Shephard in supporting roles.

Set in a small town in Mississippi, the film centers around the circumstances that reunite the three McGrath sisters.

Babe, the youngest, has shot her overbearing husband, and the family pulls together to support her.

Sissy Spacek, who portrays Babe, is superb. Her performance has already won the New York Film Critics' Best Actress award, and an Oscar nomination is probably just around the corner. Babe's wide-eyed simplicity and slightly off-center reasonings are the perfect showcases for Spacek, and allow her to deliver lines such as, "Lenny works out in the garden wearing the lime-green gloves of a dead woman," with straight-faced sincerity.

Spacek's best scene is one in which she describes the circumstances surrounding the shooting of her husband. When her lawyer asks her what she did after she shot him, she tells him that she went out to the kitchen and made a pitcher of lemonade.

Jessica Lange stars as Meg, who has gone off to Hollywood to pursue a singing career. When she returns, it is evident that somewhere along the way, she has gotten off track. When she sees her old flame, Doc Porter (Sam Shepard), she tells him that she left Hollywood after she was released from the psychiatric ward of a hospital. She tells him she is not really sure what happened, but the staff told her that they found her trying to stuff all her worldly possessions into a March of Dimes collection box.

Meg is known about the small town as a rebel and "cheap Christmas trash," and Lange's performance exemplifies this. Her "Let's-see-what-I-can-do-to-make-the-neighbors-talk" attitude gives Meg the right arrogance, but at the same time it is apparent that she is the most stable (and most sane) of the McGraths.

The oldest sister, portrayed by Diane Keaton, is a definite neurotic. She has withdrawn from the world, and particularly from men, because of her "shrunken ovary," of which her grandfather has made her self-conscious.

In view of the fine performances by Lange and Spacek, Keaton's Lenny is a let-down. She has one bright spot when she chases Chick (Tess Harper) out of the house and up a tree with a broom. However, the audience was frustrated by her performance. Near the end of the film, Lenny summons the courage to call up her old boyfriend. I was thinking that she should fix her hair first, and someone down front was apparently reading my mind, because they yelled out, "Burn that dress!" They were right.

Tess Harper turns in an excellent performance as Chick, one of those nosy, over-bearing people whom everyone knows. She is so convincing, in fact, that the audience was cheering as she made a mad dash out of the house and up a tree.

Although there are a few weak spots, the film is touching and funny, and is a real treat, especially for those who want to see someone with a few more problems than they have. —Cyndi Owens

LAF

The Law Enforcement Fraternity held its second meeting of the year on Tuesday, February 4, in room 123 of Brewer Hall.

Alpha Xi Delta

Alpha Xi Delta recently held informal rush. They pledged the following girls into their old bond: Pavonne Smallwood, Pam Sewell, Beth Pruitt, Carol Griffith, Jennifer Kendrick, Cindy Powell, Kim McGee, and Lori Cobb. Pledging in for these new pledges was held Tuesday night in the Alpha Xi chapter room.

During the Christmas holidays, Alpha Xi alum April Hammon was engaged to Stan Fisher. The wedding is set for June 27 in Fort Payne. A candlelight was held for Karen Turner who was recently engaged to Lou Dees.

The Alpha Xi intramural basketball team is off to a good start. They defeated the Alpha Tau Omega little sisters by a score of 34-11 last Monday afternoon. Members of the team include Kerri Traylor, Kate Kellenberger, Kim Garris, Marsha Oliver, Becky Harper, and Demme Mahler. The next game is set for Thursday against the "Jammers."

The Fuzzies are fired up about their busy social schedule this spring. They are looking forward to mixers with Pi Kappa Phi, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma and Delta Chi.

A big congratulations to Becky Frost who was elected Miss Friendly last Tuesday.

Sister of the month is Becky Frost and pledge of the week is Kate Kellenberger.

Kappa Alpha

The brothers of the Delta Phi chapter of the Kappa Alpha order would like to say welcome to their new brothers: Chuck Brown, Will Burke, Bill Cochran, David Drach, Mark Farmer, John Graves, Allen Higgins, Bobby Horne, Brad Jones, Gary LaFollette, Keith Lyles, Steve Nagy, Michael Tanner, and Van Whisenhunt. After a long, hard semester of work and study, each of them has earned the right to be called brother. Congratulations.

KA would also like to welcome their new brother Ron Rhue. Ron recently transferred to Jacksonville from Valdosta State. Welcome, Ron.

A big congratulations goes out to Steve LaFollette who recently won the title of Mr. Friendly. Everyone who knows Steve understands that this honor is well deserved.

The KAs are looking forward to a very successful semester. Upcoming events include mixers, formal, Old South and the Lexington Triad party. They are very excited about spring semester.

After a very successful rush, they are able to welcome 11 new pledge brothers. Good luck to the new pledges.

Phi Mu

Phi Mu welcomes the following girls who pledged during informal rush last week. They are: Charlotte Arnold, Beth Thrasher, Cheryl Carlile, Katherine Smith, Paige White, Betty Walker, Suzanne Chumbler, Gina Williams, Nicole Davenport and Lisa Cardwell. Congratulations.

Tomorrow night is the big night of the second annual Sweetheart Ball. Jamie Masters, vice-president, has done an outstanding job in coordinating the party, entertainment and favors. The party will be held at Solid Gold here in town and the entertainment will be supplied by Tomboy.

A special candlelight was held Tuesday, January 27 to announce the engagement of Dand Boyd to Lee Halpin, a Kappa Sigma brother. Congratulations.

Congratulations to Chem Proctor who is Pi Kapp little sister of the month.

Phi Mu is looking forward to their mixer with Alpha Tau Omega next week. The theme is California Cooler.

Last Tuesday, the Phi Mus were invited to hold their chapter development at The Bride's Choice in Aniston. The girls modeled wedding gowns and formals and complimentary refreshments were served afterwards.

Phi Mu is very proud of Dana Terry who traveled to Auburn last week with the Miss Alabama review.

The Slim Shop aerobics studio, owned and operated by Julie Bolton, has been doing a booming business this year. The addition of a tanning salon in the shop this week will be an added attraction. Anyone interested in classes or membership call 231-6139 for Julie.

Phi Mu is very happy to welcome back Kathy Moore Jones to school. Kathy is serving Phi Mu as a financial consultant.

Zeta Tau Alpha

A special recognition goes out to Vonda Barbour who will be attending the 1987 CASE District III Conference in Orlando, Florida, coming up in February, as a student delegate. Barbour was chosen as one of twelve students from the Southeast conference.

Congratulations to Niece Noble who won the Miss Jax State election on January 27.

Further congratulations go out to Shaun Davidson who was elected vice-president of the Jax State Hostesses. Cheri Holsclaw was chosen to be the ICC representative and Marti Hamilton was chosen to be on the membership selection committee of Sigma Delta Chi.

Member of the week was Niece Noble. Pledge of the week is Lisa Houston and Social Bunny is Chris Cotter.

Thanks to Sandra Sanders and Chris Landers for making the Big sis-Little sis dinner such a success January 29 at Mater's.

Congratulations to the Alpha Tau Omegas and the Zetas for winning the spirit competition on January 22.

Good luck goes out to the Zeta basketball team and to Meg Meeks who will be coaching the team throughout the season.

They would like to welcome Shauntell Diggle who is now affiliated with the Zeta Psi chapter after transferring from Auburn.

Pi Sigma Chi

The brothers of the Pi colony of Sigma Chi fraternity are off and running this semester with the purchase of a new fraternity house located near Crossroads just off the old Gadsden highway. The large antebellum home has brought revered enthusiasm to the fraternity.

A busy agenda awaits Pi Sigma Chi this semester with several mixers planned already, as well as intramurals, fund raisers and work days at the house.

Sigma Chi looks forward to a great semester at JSU with continued growth within the fraternity as well as the establishment of further relations with the other Greek organizations on campus.

Sigma Nu

The brothers of Sigma Nu are looking forward to the first in a series of social functions this semester. The first upcoming event will be the Sigma Nu-Delta Zeta mixer on February 5. The theme selected for the mixer is Reincarnation. This theme will allow all participants to dress as something or someone whom they would like to come back as in a future life or perhaps even dress as someone or something from a previous life. This should prove to be a very interesting mixer for all parties involved.

The Sigma Nu house, which was purchased during the Summer of 1986, has been improved a great deal but as Ross Osborne, a sigma Nu brother commented, "a lot of work is being done to the house in order to increase its value and to make the house a real home for all the brothers, pledges and little sisters."

A home is exactly what the house has been for all the Sigma Nus and little sisters and hopefully this feeling of "Family" was conveyed to all the young ladies who visited the Sigma Nu house during little sister rush. Amy Henderson and Debbie Mixon, two Sigma Nu little sisters commented, "We would like to congratulate and welcome all the new little sisters and express our deepest hopes and wishes that they will get as much out of being a member of our Sigma Nu family as we have."

The Triad party is coming soon.

Student complains: 'I had a bubble in my parking decal'

By TZENA GIBBS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

I had a bubble in my parking decal.

I will be the first person to admit that I do not always try to find a legal parking place to prevent getting a ticket. Campus police can vouch for me on that one. But of the four years that I have been here, I have always paid for a parking decal each year and securely stuck it on my windshield. This ensures that the campus police can bill me directly each time my car is parked in the wrong zone or no zone at all.

Last fall, as usual, I paid for my decal, picked it up at the police and marched out to my car place it on my windshield. I peeled off the paper from the adhesive side and slapped the sticker in place, but, oh no, there was a dreaded bubble in the middle of my sticker. What was I to do? I desperately tried to smoothe out the bubble, only causing it to multiply into a thousand tiny bubbles and creases.

I did not really worry about my new decal staying on though, because when I sold the car I had my freshman and sophomore year, no amount of scraping, rubbing, or sandblasting would remove the JSU stickers from my back windshield. I didn't realize the consequences one tiny bubble could cause.

As the semester went on, my poor little decal began to weather and fade. The wind tortured its way underneath the little thing through the dreaded bubbles. The rain and cold weather made it heave and sigh and when the sun came out one day, a bubble popped and became a crack.

Now it was obvious that the glue on my decal was fighting a losing battle to hold onto my windshield. The glue began to dry up, turn brown and flake away.

My decal began losing its grip and the crack grew into many cracks and the cracks grew into strips that were gradually peeling away, strip by strip.

Luckily for me, my decal peeled away from the top first so that whenever I parked illegally, the police could still read my decal number and bill me directly.

I kept up with the condition of my decal daily. I knew it would not be very long until my sad little decal bit the dust.

One miserable night, the rain was coming down in torrents and the wind was moaning through my windows. The next day, I went out to my car and sure enough, my decal was history.

I had neglected to report my deceased parking decal because: 1) I am graduating in May, and 2) I assumed once I registered for parking for one year, I would always be registered.

After I began receiving numerous parking tickets, two at a time, I noticed that I was being repetitively finned for not having a parking decal I HAD a parking decal. Was it my fault that my decal dried up and blew away? Upon receiving an additional ticket for no decal, I decided to investigate the issue. I was informed by the campus police that I would have to purchase another decal for the remaining three months that I will be here.

The extra $5 is not the issue, but the principle of the matter stands. I paid for my parking decal for this year. Yes, maybe I was the indirect cause of the dreaded bubble in my sticker that led to the final loss but the fact still stands that I have already paid my dues and then some.

I do not intend to make a big issue out of this but maybe my point will be made and eventually I will have to give in and buy another decal.

Writer's Club re-forming

By CYNDI OWENS
Chanticleer Staff Writer

"Student, thy name is apathy."

This has been the battle-cry sounded by faculty members and student organizations in recent years. It seems that some group or other will put much time and expense into planning an event only to have a poor turnout.

Even when JSU was on its way to winning the football championship a few years ago, students were berated for their apparent lack of interest.

With about two-thirds of all JSU students commuting to classes, it is not hard to see why there is this seeming uninterest in after-hours activities. After a full day of classes, one feels the need for a shower and a fresh change of clothes before socializing. It is not always apathy the hurts participation, but inconvenience.

Don't be completely discouraged. There is news.

A group of students on campus has formed with the purpose of trying to resurrect the Writer's Club.

Some may be surprised to learn that at one time, this university really did have a Writer's Club, and it also had a literary magazine, which was known as the Pertelote. However, both have been in hibernation for the past few years, just waiting for someone to get interested in them.

A group of students have survived the "executive shuffle" and have come together with the same purpose in mind. These students were not acquainted until they all went through the same faculty members trying to enlist their help.

After combining forces, the students have received the green light to start reorganizing. The students are looking for anyone on campus who is interested in writing. The first meeting is just a meeting to get acquainted and to decide the direction that the club should take, its goals, and to set up a regular time and place to meet.

The meeting is scheduled for Monday, February 9, at 7:00 p.m., in the basement of the Student Commons Building in room 101 (next door to the Chanticleer office)

JSU women drop decision

By ROD L. HAYES
Chanticleer Staff Writer

The Jacksonville State Lady Gamecocks fell victim to the Shorter College Lady Hawks Monday night with the visitors beating JSU 75-72 in a game played at Pete Mathews Coliseum.

Jax State controlled the action throughout the first half, but only led 33-31 at intermission as Idella DeRamus had given her team the lead with a basket with :24 seconds remaining until the half.

When the second half began, both teams played well as the score read 39-39 after a power move by Shorter's Tam Weaver. During the next series of events, Luchy Cabrera led a JSU surger as she hit two jump shots, and created two steal opportunities, which led to a 48-43 Jax State lead with 11:20 left in the game. JSU then led by as many as eight points, 58-50, with 4:36 left in the contest.

Shorter began its comeback with the help of many costly JSU turnovers. Kim Pitts, Shorter's 5-11 center, got hot down the stretch. Pitts put Shorter up by two, at 63-61, after a three-point play inside. With :36 seconds remaining, Lynn Jefferson gave Shorter a five-point lead at 73-68.

The Lady Gamecocks cut the lead to three after Sue Imm's inside basket. Jax State then had a chance to cut the game to one point as Kim Welch had a one - and - one opportunity. Welch missed the front end of her bonus situation. JSU then fouled Lori Dalton, and she responded by sinking two foul shots which gave Shorter a 75-70 advantage.

Jax State managed its last basket of the game as Welch hit an 18-foot jumper with only :01 remaining in the contest. Following a steal and subsequent shot by Alicia Wright, Shorter had earned a hard - fought 75-72 decision over the Lady Gamecocks.

Jackie Chandler led Jacksonville State with 16 points, and the junior from Florence also added seven rebounds. Idella DeRamus scored 15 points, and led the team with her total of eight rebounds. Kim Welch played a good game, scoring 15 points, and dishing out nine assists. Allison Rachel added 10 points to the Lady Gamecock cause.

Shorter was led by Kim Pitts, who scored 20 points and pulled down eight rebounds. Veronica Williams added an additional 19 points. Lori Dalton and Tam Weaver each scored 10 points.

The loss dropped the Lady Gamecocks' record to 5-15 for the season. The team travels to Livingston today for a 5:15 contest with the Lady Tigers of LU. Saturday night, the Lady Gamecocks host the Lady Pacers of Tennessee - Martin. Tipoff is set for 5:15. Next Monday, the team entertains the Lady Statesmen of Delta State for a 5:15 game.

Mississippi College derails JSU

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The Mississippi College Choctaws defeated the visiting Jacksonville State Gamecocks Monday night 49-48, in Gulf South Conference action.

Neither team shot the ball well in the first half, and with only five minutes remaining on the clock, the score stood at 13-9, in favor of Mississippi College.

The offense picked up a bit in the closing minutes of the half, but Jax State still trailed at intermission 22-17.

Derek "Doc" Hicks led the Gamecocks with his total of eight first half points. Hicks also grabbed five rebounds in the opening half. Terry Rutledge only scored one basket in the first half, but the freshman center accumulated 11 missed shots.

JSU shot a poor 24 percent, on 7-29 shooting in the first half, but MC did not fare much better. The Choctaws hit only 9-30 field goal attempts in the opening half.

As the second half opened, it seemed that the team that got hot first would run away with the victory.

After a Bubba Skelton drive put MC up 24-17, Hicks scored two straight baskets to cut the lead to 24-21.

MC proceeded to outscore the Gamecocks 13-2 over the next six minutes, and it appeared that the home-standing Choctaws would have an easy time of it.

Jax State answered back with a 15-2 run of its own, which featured an 11-point string that culminated with MC holding only a one-point lead. During the comeback, Rutledge scored seven points including a thunderous dunk after a steal. Charles Page added a basket after a feed by Kevin Riggan, and Riggan and Jeff Smith each bombed in three-point jumpers. MC still had its lead, but only by a count of 39-38.

After falling down by three points, the Gamecocks tied the score at 44-41 on a basket by Rutledge, and a foul shot by Orlando Ledyard. With seven minutes to play, the two teams were even.

Mississippi College took the lead, at the four minute mark, after Jay Hughes hit a three-point jumper to hike the score to 46-43. MC's lead grew to five as Ben Powell scored after a feed from Willie Thomas.

Statesmen defeat 'Cocks

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The Jacksonville State Gamecocks traveled to Cleveland, Miss., this past Saturday and the host Delta State Statesmen proved to be too strong as JSU fell by a score of 87-74 at Siller's Coliseum.

Delta State started fast and enjoyed an 11-6 lead four minutes into the game. DSU continued to pound the Gamecocks and with seven minutes remaining in the half, the Statesmen led 32-21.

Then the Gamecocks caught fire. In the half's last seven minutes the Gamecocks outscored the Statesmen 20-4 to take a 41-36 lead into the dressing room at halftime.

JSU was led in first-half scoring by the trio of Jeff Smith, Robert Lee Sanders, and Charles Page, each of whom had eight points. Derek "Doc" Hicks added six points and hauled down seven boards during the opening half.

Jax State hit only 6-11 foul shots in the first half and DSU only attempted two, hitting one.

The big first half story for Delta State was the team's inability to get Gerald Glass the ball. The sophomore forward only tallied two points in the opening half, as Randall Holmes did a super job guarding the talented shooter.

Delta State ran off the first six points of the second half to take a 42-41 lead.

Both teams continued to battle on even terms until two baskets by Glass put DSU up 52-46 with 13:22 remaining in the game. Delta stretched its lead to 10 at the 10:58 mark as two foul shots by Glass put the Statesmen up 60-50.

After Robert Lee Sanders cut the deficit to eight, freshman Terry Rutledge jammed home a rebound to cut the Delta lead to 60-54.

After a timeout, the Statesmen outscored JSU 7-2, to run their lead to 67-56 with only eight minutes left in the game.

Delta maintained at least a six point lead the rest of the way, as the Gamecocks saw their record fall to 8-8 on the season.

JSU improved its foul shooting in the second half as the Gamecocks hit 12-16 shots after halftime. For the game, JSU shot 18-27 from the charity stripe. DSU hit 17-22 second half foul shots, as the Statesmen never let JSU back into the game after falling behind.

Delta State outscored Jax State 51-33 in the second half as leading scorer Gerald Glass popped in 13 points after intermission.

Hicks led JSU with 18 points and 12 rebounds. Sanders, playing despite a bad stomach virus, added 17 points. Charles Page tied his career-high with his total of 12 points.

DSU was led by senior forward Lionel Jones and his 21 points. Cedric Davis added 18 points. Glass, who entered the contest averaging 27.5 points per game, finished with only 15 points. Matt Harrell, who scored 10 points in the first seven minutes of action, wound up with a total of 14 points.

"Their inside play was very good all night long. We did a great job on Glass, but the points he got all came at crucial times. He came through when they needed him. We had a five-point lead at the half, but they made a six-point run to open up, and we had to play catch-up after that. Delta played well; they did the things inside that they had to do," JSU Coach Bill Jones said.

JSU travels to Livingston tonight for a key GSC contest. Tipoff is set for 7:30. Saturday night the Pacers of Tennessee-Martin invade Mathews Coliseum for a 7:30 contest. Next Monday, the Delta State Statesmen take on the Gamecocks at Mathews Coliseum. Gametime is 7:30.

Recruits commit to JSU

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The Jacksonville State Football Gamecocks, coming off of their first winning campaign since the 1983 season, have continued their winning ways in the currently ongoing recruiting season.

Six new Gamecock recruits have committed to being a part of Bill Burgess' growing program.

"We are very pleased. These guys are people who we had at the top of our lists of each position. You have to feel good about getting commitments from players who are at the top of your list," said JSU recruiting coordinator David Saunders.

The six recruits consist of two offensive linemen, two defensive linemen, and two linebackers.

Mike Allison, a 6-3, 255 pound offensive lineman from Weaver High School, was a member of the first Weaver team to ever advance to the state playoffs.

The other offensive lineman is Ken Gregory, who comes from Muscle Shoals. Gregory is a 6-0, 260 pound specimen.

Mark Lyles is one of the defensive line recruits. Lyles is a 6-0, 210 pound defensive end from Fayette County High School, Ga.

The second defensive line recruit is John Sanders, a 6-2, 260-pound defensive tackle from North Fulton High, in Atlanta.

The two linebacker signees are Rod Flowers, a 5-11, 175-pound outside linebacker from Johnson High in Huntsville, and Jeff Smith, a 6-0, 212-pound inside linebacker from Wellborn High in Anniston.

JSU returns much of the talent that helped it to its first winning season in three years, and these new faces should aid the further establishment of the JSU program.

An obvious improvement of the state of Gamecock football fortunes is JSU's ability to sign the players that Burgess' staff has pegged as the top players in their respective categories.

With the addition of these recruits, and the additional ones that will commit in the next week, the football fortunes of Jacksonville State University appear to be very strong indeed.

All-Around SportsAnd yet more academic achievement for the Gamecocks

As was the case last week, this week academic achievement has been rewarded at JSU. Last week it was Gamecock offensive lineman Rusty Rogers who was honored by the conference. This week, however, the honorees are members of the Jax State women's volleyball team.

Allison Owens and Lisa Highley were both named to the Gulf South Conference All-Academic Volleyball team last week by Commissioner Ralph McFilles.

Owens is a senior nursing major, and the talented setter from Anniston maintained a GPA of 2.87 during her stay at JSU. Allison was a major factor in the Lady Gamecocks' second place finish in the GSC tourney last semester.

Highley, even though she did not believe the news concerning her selection, is a physical education major from Montgomery. Lisa has two years of eligibility remaining, and she should continue to be a vital cog in the Lady Gamecock volleyball attack. Highley has accomplished a GPA of 2.03 at JSU.

Thomas Ballenger
Sports Editor

Congratulations, Allison and Lisa, for a job well done.

Lady Gamecock senior hoopster Idella DeRamus was named GSC "Player of the Week" also last week by McFilles. Idella scored 70 points and grabbed 35 rebounds in JSU's three games. In the win over UNA, Idella scored 34 points, and collected 13 rebounds. Congratulations, Idella, and keep up the good work.

Saturday night at Delta State, the Gamecocks fell by the score of 87-74, but victory was not too far away for Bill Jones' team. Freshman guard Robert Lee Sanders showed great courage and strength by participating against Delta. Sanders had a bad stomach virus, but he nonetheless played almost 30 minutes and scored 17 points.

The Gamecocks are almost in must win position now, but four of JSU's last six GSC games will be played in the friendly confines of Mathews Coliseum. If the Gamecocks can get to that point in the schedule still in the playoff hunt, then JSU's chances would be greatly improved.

It will not be easy for Jones' team to qualify for the GSC tourney, but two wins over Tennessee-Martin, and single wins over Valdosta State, Delta State, and North Alabama would certainly help matters.

Right now it appears that, barring some unforeseen occurrence, the Braves of West Georgia will win the regular season title of the GSC, and thus play host to the fourth place finisher in the conference race. Delta State and North Alabama are both playing well now, and they look like the favorites to finish in the second and third spots. Fourth place could get interesting.

As of Sunday, three teams, Valdosta State, Tennessee-Martin, and Jacksonville State are within one game on the loss side, and JSU has contests remaining with UT-M(2), and with Valdosta State. The Gamecocks may have to struggle to finish fourth, but think of those possibilities.

Jacksonville State at West Georgia for a first-round GSC playoff game!

Last year the same scenario was played out, and the Gamecocks emerged with a hard-fought 98-93 victory. Admittedly, the Gamecocks don't have the same playoff-hardened team as they did last year, but another shot at one of the top teams in Division II would be fine with me, as well as Coach Jones. I would imagine.

Former Gamecock athlete extraordinaire Keith McKeller traveled to Indianapolis this past week for a few days of work in front of the NFL talent scouts. Hopefully, for next week's Chanticleer I will have a chance to talk to Keith and get his reaction to the NFL's interest in him. Along with everyone else here at JSU, I wish Keith the best. Given the opportunity, I have no doubts that Keith McKeller will be a major force in the National Football League.

Both the Gamecocks and Lady Gamecocks travel to Livingston to battle the Tigers. The Lady Gamecock contest is set to tipoff at 5:15, and the men's game will start at 7:30. I would like to apologize for an error in my column last week. I stated that JSU traveled to Livingston last Thursday, when they actually take on the Tigers tonight. Sorry for the mixup.

Saturday night, the Gamecocks play host to Tennessee-Martin. The JSU-UTM women's game will tipoff at 5:15, and the men will follow at 7:30.

Next Monday Delta State comes to Jacksonville for contests with the Gamecocks. The Lady Statesmen, a 80-39 victor over JSU last weekend, will take on the Lady Gamecocks at 5:15. The DSU men will tangle with the Gamecocks at 7:30.

Get out and SUPPORT THE GAMECOCKS!

Delta beats up JSU women

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The Lady Gamecocks of Jacksonville State were soundly defeated by the Delta State Lady Statesmen, 80-39, in a Gulf South Conference game played last Saturday night at Cleveland, Mississippi.

JSU was never in the contest, and trailed 37-4 with 1:30 remaining in the first half. The Lady Gamecocks scored six more points before intermission, but the DSU lead was still huge at 46-10.

Delta State only outscored the Lady Gamecocks 34-29 in the second half, as the JSU women found the shooting mark a little more readily than they did in the opening half.

JSU shot a pitiful 14-53 for the game, which translates into a shooting percentage of 27 percent. Delta State hit 50 percent of its shots over the smaller, and outmanned the Lady Gamecocks.

The Lady Gamecocks were led by senior forward Idella DeRamus. DeRamus scored 17 points on 6-11 shooting, and collected 10 rebounds. Allison Rachel added ten points to the losing cause.

Delta was led by Crystal Hardy who scored 20 points. Kendra Lenhart added 16 to the Delta slaughter.

DSU outrebounded the smaller Lady Gamecocks by a 54-26 margin, as they repeatedly had two and three attempts at their basket during their offensive possessions.

The Lady Gamecocks' record fell to 5-14 with the loss, and dropped to 1-7 in the GSC.

The next game for the Lady Gamecocks is tonight as they travel to Livingston to battle the Lady Tigers of LU. Saturday night, they entertain UT-Martin for a 5:15 tipoff. Monday night, Delta State travels to Jacksonville for a 5:15 encounter with the Lady Gamecocks.

Mississippi

The game continued and MC attempted to trim as much time as possible off of the clock on its next possession, but the Choctaws turned the ball over.

With 1:29 remaining, JSU head coach Bill Jones called timeout. The score was Mississippi College 48, Jax State 43.

JSU came out and worked the ball low to Hicks, who was hammered on the play by Powell, which was the MC player's fifth foul. Hicks hit both of his foul shots, cutting the deficit to three with 1:14 remaining.

At the :53 second mark, Mississippi College turned the ball over, and the Gamecocks had a chance. Terry Rutledge made 1-2 foul shots, and MC only led by two.

MC inbounded the ball and killed .33 seconds before JSU could foul Choctaw guard Bubba Skelton. Skelton missed the front end of a one-and-one situation, and with :20 seconds left, JSU had a chance to tie the game.

On the ensuing possession, no one cut Jeff Smith off from the basket and the sophomore from Gadsden rove in and tied the contest at 48-48.

Skelton then took the inbounds pass and ran the length of the floor before he was fouled by Derek Hicks. JSU called a timeout with only :06 remaining to rattle the MC guard's upcoming free throw attempts.

This time Skelton made the front end of his one-and-one, but he missed his second attempt. Jeff Smith grabbed the rebound and went toward his basket when the ball was slapped away by Skelton. Time expired before the ball could be recovered. JSU had lost a tough 49-48 game to the Mississippi College Choctaws.

"We just were bad. It was a pitiful game. If I had paid my money to watch this thing, I would have asked for it back. Both teams played very poorly. I am very discouraged by the way we played," said JSU coach Bill Jones.

Derek Hicks led the Gamecocks with 16 points. Terry Rutledge scored 14 points, and hauled in a game-high 18 rebounds.

The loss drops JSU to 8-9 overall, and 3-6 in the GSC. The next game for the team is tonight as they travel to Livingston. Tipoff is set for 7:30. Saturday night, the Gamecocks host Tennessee - Martin for a 7:30 contest. Next Monday, the Delta State Statesmen come to town for a 7:30 game.

Rifle Squad sees NCAA's ahead

By THOMAS BALLENGER
Chanticleer Senior Editor
The Jacksonville State University rifle team could possibly give the school its first nationally prominent rifle team this season if all of the shooters carry their weight, according to their coach.

"If all four shooters have a good day, the same day, we will go to nationals," Captain Boyd Collins said.

The JSU rifle team consists of seven shooters this year: Steve Chew, Steve Gary, Sandy Nelson, Jason Pyle, Pete Martin, Tim Ward and Noel Johnson.

Chew set numerous JSU records during the fall season, and the other three first team shooters, Gary, Nelson, and Pyle, are very capable shooters of their own right.

This year's team should finish in the NCAA Top 10 according to Collins.

"We will battle Tennessee - Martin for the top spot in the Gulf South Conference," Collins said.

"I am looking for improvement. If we can improve our consistency, we will have a good year," Collins said.

The shooters opened up their season two weeks ago by dropping a match with Tennessee Tech. Collins' notion that it will take each of the top shooters' best to be successful was evident in the loss to Tech. Steve Chew was sick, and despite Steve Gary setting a new school record in small bore firing, the team lost the match. Gary shot a total of 398 out of a possible 400, to erase Chew's name from one JSU record. Also in the team's first match, Sandy Nelson, who hails from Anniston, tied the JSU record in the kneeling event as she totaled 385 out of a possible 400 points.

The team is working toward the NCAA Sectionals, which will be held February 14th, at Murray State University, in Murray, Ky. The team will have to perform well at this meet, if it has any hopes of going on to greater heights at the NCAA Nationals.

The Jacksonville State rifle team will host Tuskegee Institute and the University of Georgia in a meet, Saturday morning, downstairs at Rowe Hall.

AIM HIGH ATTENTION BSN CLASS OF 1987.

The Air Force has a special program for 1987 BSNs. If selected, you can enter active duty soon after graduation - without waiting for the results of your State Boards. To qualify, you must have an overall "B" average. After commissioning, you'll attend a five-month internship at a major Air Force medical facility. It's an excellent way to prepare for the wide range of experiences you'll have serving your country as an Air Force nurse officer. For more information, call

Jacksonville State Athletic Hall of Fame inductees, Class of 1987

Tomorrow night, four people will be inducted into the Jacksonville State Athletic Hall of Fame. This year's inductees are pictured (L to R) Larry Foster, Don Salls, Boyce Callahan, and Buddy Cornelius. The four will be joining previous inductees into the JSU hall. Foster was an All-American baseball player for Coach Rudy Abbott in the early 1970's. Foster led the Gamecocks to the College World Series in 1973. Salls is the winningest football coach in JSU's storied football past. Coaching from 1946-1964, Salls compiled 95 wins. Callahan is the school's all-time leading rusher. Boyce rushed for over 4,000 yards during his career. He was also an All-American selection during his playing days. Cornelius, an outstanding basketball player, played under the legendary Tom Roberson. Cornelius was a tremendous rebounder and was an All-American selection.
