Dixon Hall Residents warned

By Brian Wilson
Dixon Hall Resident

On Friday, October 16, Craig Schmitt, the Director of Residence Life, made an extensive inspection of the hallways, bathrooms, and other common areas of Dixon Hall. What he found appalled him. After only two months, the walls are smudged with shoe imprints and tobacco juice stains, and the carpets have cigarette burns in them. The worst damage appears to have been done on the second and third floors, although the area under the telephone in the lobby is in deplorable condition as well. The damage exceeds that of normal wear and tear, and it appeared to him that unless action is taken quickly, the dorm will soon become no better than any of the other dormitories around the campus.

Monday, October 19, a meeting was called in which Mr. Schmitt announced to the residents of Dixon Hall that they would be held accountable for the damages. He said that an estimate had been made of the cost of repainting the building, totaling approximately $750. He added that this cost would be divided equally among the residents. This meeting was followed by a letter which Dixon residents received in their post office boxes stating essentially the same information.

An alternate solution was also proposed. Mr. Schmitt said that if students in each floor or wing want to paint their area, either with a design or the original colors, the paint and equipment will be provided. No charges will be made as long as the work is completed neatly and on time. A group of students on the third floor has expressed an interest in doing this and is currently in the process of putting a plan together.

The possibility of cleaning the walls is also being looked into, but a

SGA sponsors James Watt

James Watt said at the end of his speeches that his purpose had been to challenge the audiences’ minds. He succeeded.

Almost everyone agreed he was a good speaker. Almost everyone disagreed on whether or not his policies were good.

Watt started off the day with a press conference held before his first speech. He identified himself as a conservative and a fundamentalist Christian.

"Today in America, the liberals control all institutions and so the liberal leadership is determined that there not be any change," he said.

Watt added that controversy is what the press will cover and the left has learned to use it.

Surprisingly, Watt said that he does not feel that he was treated unfairly by the press. He said he made a mistake in calling a coal-lease commission member a cripple. This statement eventually caused his resignation.

"I should have used the word handicap. Twenty years from now some politician will lose his job because he used the word handicapped. The new word is handicapped."

Watt said that unless action is taken quickly, the dorm will soon become no better than any of the other dormitories around the campus.

The month of October is National AIDS Awareness Month, but the forum was held here for another reason. The Inter Club Council sponsored a blood drive on October 27 and 28, and the officers hoped to improve the United States.

"Help the needy, not the greedy," Watt said at the end of his speeches.

AIDS forum helps clarify some misconceptions

By Barry Conner and Cynde Owens
Chanticleer News Writers

On Thursday, October 22, a panel of eight experts from across several fields of study came to Therom Montgomery Building to conduct a forum to increase AIDS awareness.

The panel, consisting of Danis Mills, Dr. Jim Yates, Dr. Vincent Fuselli, Michael Limerick, Glen Floyd, Dede Holloway, Dale Clem, and Carol Lawler, addressed key issues of concern in the matter of AIDS, its transmission, and prevention. Using statistics and case histories, the panel explained various aspects of the disease to the audience.

Each member of the panel had an opportunity to present statistics and information from their field of expertise. The audience then had a chance to ask questions of the members.

The majority of questions asked were related to the spread of the disease on this campus.

The month of October is National AIDS Awareness Month, but the forum was held here for another reason. The Inter Club Council sponsored a blood drive on October 27 and 28, and the officers hoped to ease fears about contracting AIDS by donating.

Melissa Birchfield, chairman of ICC and forum organizer, expressed her pleasure concerning the event. Although there were less than 50 people attending, she was happy about the interest shown.

Some of the statistics given included the fact that 29,000 people are currently identified as AIDS...
Open house a success at the International House

By Chris Spradlin
Chanticleer News Editor

October 27, 1987 was the date of open house at the International House. It was held from 7pm-9pm and refreshments were served to all guests. Approximately fifty people attended the event. A tour of the house was given and Mrs. Berry, social director was available to answer questions.

Open house is an annual affair for JSU students. This helps to foster a better understanding between foreign students and American students. Often it is hard for both groups to meet. This event could lead to a lifetime friendship between an American and a foreign student. This also allows students to get familiar with the program.

There are twenty foreign students and twenty American students involved in the program. Each foreign student has an American roommate. The foreign students usually stay at JSU for one or two years. They are full-time students and their curriculum is much the same as that of an American. The underlying factor in the exchange program is cultural exchange. It is everyone’s attempt to learn about another country.

John Croyle speaks at Phi Beta Lambda meeting

By Chris Spradlin
Chanticleer News Editor

On October 13, Phi Beta Lambda held their second meeting of the school year. John Croyle, a former football player for the University of Alabama and founder of the Big Oak Boy’s Ranch, was guest speaker. John’s dream since childhood had been to play pro ball, but he was not ready to make such a strong commitment as would be necessary for professional success. John had another dream that he wanted to fulfill. He wanted to open a boy’s ranch to give abandoned, abused, and misled young men a home that they might never have. He wanted to give them love that no one else could give them, and wanted to give them a chance to dream just as he had. With hard work, dedication, and support from his friends, John’s dream of the boy’s ranch came true.

The boys that live at this ranch have been through many trials and tribulations, too numerous to list. At the Ranch these young men are given a second chance at life. John’s ranch is totally debt-free. There are many organizations here at Jacksonville that support the Ranch, including Phi Beta Lambda which raised $250 for Croyle’s ranch.

Croyle feels that he has fulfilled his dreams. “When you die, materialistic assets won’t matter, only the fact that you were able to favorably influence the life of a young person.”

County ranks eighth in income

JACKSONVILLE -- According to Jacksonville State University’s Center for Economic Development, Calhoun County ranks eighth in the state in disposable income and sixth in retail sales.

The Center reported that the top ten counties in the state, ranked in order by disposable income, are as follows: Jefferson, Mobile, Montgomery, Madison, Tuscaloosa, Houston, Morgan, Calhoun, Baldwin, and Etowah.

The top ten counties ranked by retail sales dollars are as follows: Jefferson, Mobile, Madison, Montgomery, Tuscaloosa, Calhoun, Baldwin, Morgan, Shelby, and Etowah.

The Center’s analysts say Madison, Calhoun, and Baldwin rank higher in the category of retail sales than they do according to available disposable income, thus indicating an inflow of retail spending by people living in surrounding counties.

Coosa County ranks last in retail sales.

The top ten counties represent almost 64 percent of the state’s total sales. The remaining 36 percent is shared by the other 57 counties.

Political scientist to speak

JACKSONVILLE -- Dr. Bernie Bray, professor of political science at Talladega College, will speak on the death penalty during an appearance at Jacksonville State University on Thursday, Oct. 29 at 7 p.m. in Room 141, Brewer Hall.

Bray, an Alabama Humanities Foundation speaker, will speak on the topic “Cruel and Unusual Punishment: The Death Penalty in the American South.”

His visit is sponsored by the Cheaha Chapter of the Alabama Civil Liberties Union.

For further information, contact Dr. Cole Benton at 231-5781.
Watt was Watt’s catch phrase of the evening. The money being used to subsidize big businesses could be used more effectively by giving it to government aid programs according to Watt.

Another noteworthy change in Watt’s plan was in Social Security. He said the current system is heading for bankruptcy and the money should be invested in accounts much like IRAs.

Earlier in the day, Watt had called Democratic presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson “a true leader” but “a dangerous man.” During the discussion that followed Watt’s second speech he was asked why he thought Jackson would be bad for the United States. He replied that he considered a man who would go to Cuba and embrace Fidel Castro, dangerous for the United States. He also stated that Jackson’s philosophy was wrong.

Watt’s speeches were sponsored by the SGA.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor,

I am a foreign student, who stays most weekends on campus. I feel the Student Government Association needs to address the issue of providing more student activities during the weekend.

I have been told that Jacksonville State University has developed a reputation over the past years as a "suitcase college" because most students go home during the weekend. The student government should help organize activities that would give students a reason to stay on campus during the weekends. I have noticed during my stay this semester, how boring Jacksonville State University is on the weekends. There is very little to do. I'm sure other foreign and American students share my opinion.

Andrew Nazareth

Dear Editor,

Jacksonville State University. I am writing to you about the $10.00 charge for adding and dropping a class. I think this is a very dirty way of getting extra money from the students. I think, if the student doesn't like the class that their taking, they should have the opportunity to drop or add a class free of charge.

Coming to college is the students' choice, unfortunately you have to pay to come. But paying for extra classes is too much.

Thank you,

Tina Goodman

Dear Editor,

The Executive Officers of the Student Government Association would like to respond to several issues brought up in the October 29th issue of the Chanticleer.

Editor-in-Chief Steven Robinson

The SGA exists in order to give students a voice in the campus. However, many students go home during the week-end. There is very little to do. I'm sure other foreign and American students share my opinion.

Through the annals of academia

Attendance. What a lot of crap. Why is the world does this university have an attendance policy? What difference does it make how many times you attend a class as long as you pass?

Students attending college are, I believe, mature enough to handle their classes. If a student is intelligent enough to make an A or B in a class with zero effort, they should have the option of either going or not going to class. The University gets its money regardless.

The issue is compounded by the fact that some teachers call roll religiously, while others apparently don't know what a roll book is. Why not just forget about it and let students concentrate on their grades, not calculating absences in four to six different classes.

In addition, a $10 service charge for dropping or adding a class is ridiculous. What major problem could calling something up on the computer and deleting or adding it cause? I think it just a way for the University to make a few extra bucks.

Also on the subject of money, I feel monetary fines for parking violations are unfair. All this does is create an added burden to financially unstable students. Those students who have money (or rather, whose parents have money) go rather unaffected by $5 infractions.

Daddyskin foots the bill and printing is done by the advertising manager. Office space in the basement of the Tillson Montgomery Building is provided by the University.

Biff scores big hit on JSU campus

By Debbie Kipp
Chanticleer Staff Writer
The College of Graduate Studies has launched an experimental program for this semester, a new Assistant to the Dean will be chosen each year. The position will be filled by a JSU faculty member. The goals of this program are to gain fresh ideas concerning the operation of the department and to establish better communications with faculty members. Dr. William Carr, Dean of Graduate Studies, has announced the selection of Rachel Jones as the first Assistant to the Dean. Jones will serve nine months in this position.

Rachel Jones, a JSU faculty member and librarian, has been active in the faculty senate for six years and is currently serving as vice-president. Her senate position will aid her in improving the relations between Graduate Studies and faculty. Both Carr and Jones are optimistic about her new position.

The new Assistant to the Dean spends 75 percent of her time performing administrative duties in the College of Graduate Studies. The remaining 25 percent is spent at the library during evening hours. In this way, she is better able to assist graduate nursing students who study there after their evening classes. During the day, there are several who cover for Jones. "There is a lot of co-operation on both sides to do an experiment like this," said Jones.

Not merely providing input on university matters, but playing an active role with JSU events, Jones enjoys serving the students of JSU in a more efficient manner.

Costello plays at small campuses

DEAR BIFF: I am a freshman who is pledging a sorority this semester. I want to tell my boyfriend whom I have been dating for three years. What do I do?

Signed, Dropping A Bomb Soon

DEAR DROPPING: Try explaining to him that you want to date other people and you need your space. I'm sure that has happened to many others in your sorority and you may find some good advice there. If all else fails, try "Drop Dead" or "Get out of my life." They were tried on me a few times and I recovered, so don't worry. Good luck.

DEAR BIFF: My roommate is driving me crazy.

What can I do?

Signed, Close Quarters

DEAR CLOSE: Don't feel bad. Have you tried talking with him? You could be spending too much time together. This may sound stupid but you may try to be a little more considerate. Tell your roommate about the things that he does to bother you then ask your roommate if you are doing something that may be annoying him. If there are major problems, you need to contact your dean's office. If this is my roommate then I am going to kill you.

DEAR BIFF: My roommate's cat is ripping up the furniture in our apartment. How can I confront him?

What should I do?

Signed, Pur-r-plexed

DEAR PURR-PLEXED: First of all, who owns the furniture? Is it under the ownership of the apartment complex? If the apartment complex owns the furniture then go to your manager and discuss your problem. Is there not a place that you can put the cat? Go to your roommate and tell him that the furniture is being destroyed. Try to work together and come up with a solution that suits you, your roommate and the cat. If the furniture is yours then tell your roommate to get rid of the cat or you will get rid of both of them.

DEAR BIFF: My best friend's girlfriend is coming on to me. She is very pretty and I am having problems resisting her. Please help me.

Signed, Caught in the cross-fire

DEAR CAUGHT: Answer these questions first. How big is your best friend? Is he really your best friend? Are you sure she is coming on to you or are you just coming on to yourself? Look at it this way - if she is coming on to you and datering your best friend at the same time, it would sound like she is trash and needs to be disposed of by both of you. If you both decide to trash her then please send me her phone number. Thanks.

DEAR BIFF: One of my teachers is always cutting me down. He makes comments about my appearance every day. I am afraid to say something to him because he may say something to me.

Can you give me some advice?

Signed, Steamed Student

DEAR STEAMED: This is my third year at JSU and I have had some problems with some of my teachers. I went to my teachers and spoke with them about our disagreements. Everything worked out fine for me. If confronting your teacher doesn't work then try saying this, I am rubber, you are glue, whatever you say bounces off me and sticks to you. It works for me.

DEAR BIFF: My older brother is a graduating senior here at JSU and I am afraid that he has become and alcoholic. What should I do?

Signed, Concerned

DEAR CONCERNED: I would think that your brother doesn't realize that he has a problem. I would go to a professional. Talk to your family doctor or contact the free counseling service sponsored by the psychology department. You may want to talk to your brother's friends and see what they think. Please write me and let me know how it goes...I CARE.

CIA has problems on campus

(CPS) — Police arrested 5 Louisiana State University students for trying to disrupt the Central Intelligence Agency's (CIA) attempt to recruit students on their Baton Rouge campus Oct. 1.

An all-night vigil involving about 40 students preceded a march to the campus placement office, where police made the arrests.

Also, the agency announced Oct. 2 it would cancel a scheduled recruiting visit to the University of Colorado, the scene of vehement anti-CIA protests in recent years.

"I understand the CIA's decision to cancel the visit was based on its desire to spare the university a continued escalation of confrontation and Sales in Pullman. "The state can out-compete the private sector any day. It's turning this country into a socialist state, where the state takes over the free enterprise system."

Students, in this case, seem happy to support the "socialist" stores. They're less interested in the debate than in "good quality and good prices," Washington State senior Ron Martinez reported.

When students do shop at campus bookstores, they do so because it's "convenient," Martinez said. "You don't have to travel downtown."

Justice humors campus

Jeff Justice turned a systems analysis degree from Miami-Dade Junior College, and a degree in public relations from Florida State University into a successful chain of magic shops before being lured away by the sounds of laughter.

Between magic and comedy, Justice has been entertaining audiences, from coast to coast, for the past fourteen years. His performances have been enjoyed at industry trade shows, cruise ships, colleges, casinos and the country’s top comedy clubs as well as national TV shows.

Justice’s success is due largely to his charming conversational delivery, his unique blend of comedy and magic, and his classics like the “Incredible silk through the microphone stand” trick and his internationally famous, “Rocky Racoon.”

If you have never had the pleasure of seeing Justice and Rocky then you have missed one of the funniest routines in comedy today. Once you have witnessed these two together the memory will last a lifetime.

His comic mind has not gone unnoticed by the stars of magic. He is a consultant for the “David Copperfield Magic Specials.” Copperfield owes a standing ovation to Justice’s creative talent.

On November 8, Justice will bring his show to the Montgomery Auditorium at 9 p.m. Admission is free and the event is sponsored by the RSO.

International Club sponsors food fest

By CYNDI OWENS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

An evening of food and fun is planned for Tuesday, November 17, at Jack Hopper Dining Hall. The festivities are sponsored by the International Club.

The event is billed as the “International Food Fair.”

Of the 175 international students on campus, about 40 are members of the International Club, which is a separate entity from the International House.

They want more involvement from American students in the club. "Our club is for American and International students," said Catrine Legander, Vice President of the club.

Legander said that the members hope to make this an annual event.

"We have foods and entertainment from a lot of representing countries, like Africa, the Middle East, Asia, and Europe. Most of us will be in our native costumes.

Tickets go on sale Monday and Tuesday (November 2 and 3) on the fourth floor of the Auditorium Building," she said.

Ticket prices are $1, with a discount offered to local ticket holders.

"This is not just for JSU. People from the community are invited. Proceeds will finance our club for cultural and community service activities," she stated.

"Anyone with international recipes to donate, or wishes to be a part of the entertainment, contact Legander at 231-7258 (after 7 p.m.), or any other member of the club.

Alpha Xi Delta

Congratulations to Alpha Xi Delta for winning the spirit award at the Jax State-Delta State game. We made noise-makers and waved red and white shakers. The effort was especially noted and appreciated by Coach Burgess and the team.

Fuzzies had a great time with the brothers of Pi Kappa Phi. The “Toga Theme” had us dancing in our sheets.

Congratulations also to the pledge of the week, Dynoia Hubbard.

Alpha Xi pledges have a retreat coming up this weekend, November 6 and 7, at Marshall Oliver’s house. In Alpha Xi Delta, we love our pledges!

‘Soldiers’ opens run

JSU-The Department of Drama will produce “A Soldier’s Play,” the Pulitzer Prize winning play which inspired the movie “A Soldier’s Story,” November 5-9 in the Second Stage (Little Theater) of Ernest Stone Performing Arts Center on Church Street.

Performances begin at 8 p.m. each evening, except on Sunday, November 8, when there will be a 2 p.m. matinee.

The play is set in a Louisiana army camp where the white commanding officer of a black company, Capt. Taylor (portrayed by Jim Moore), has a problem. The sergeant, a black, has just been murdered.

Capt. Taylor, worried that the murderer may be a white officer or the local Klan, tries to discourage the black captain assigned to investigate the case because, in Taylor’s view, higher-ups want to sweep the case under the rug. But the black, Capt. Davenport (portrayed by Marc Steele), perseveres and discovers that each of the black soldiers had a motive. When he solves the case, the truth is even more shocking than the murder itself.

Other cast members include Lavine Young as Tech Sgt. Vernon Waters, Joe Simmons as Corporal Bernard Cobbs, Jose Martinez as Private James Wilks, Kents Stevens as Private Melvin Peterson, Tomoya Armstrong as Private Tony Swain, Jerry Jackson as Corporal Ellis, Tony Moore as Private C.J. Memphis, Phil Owen as Lieutenant Byrd, and Mark Street as Captain Wilcox.

Tickets are $4 for general admission, $3 for senior citizens and military personnel, and $2 for students. Seating is limited to 75 per performance and reservations are advised. For reservations call 231-5648.

Wesley Foundation

The Wesley Foundation will host a discussion on Welfare Reform on Monday, November 9, at 5:00 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation, in anticipation of Commissioner Hornsby’s visit to the campus on Tuesday, November 10, from 1-4 in Brewer Auditorium. A special dinner will be served Monday night at 6:00 at the Wesley Foundation.

During his stay at the Academy November 2-6, Anderson will conduct a series of master classes in clarinet and premier a new work, "Sonatina for Clarinet and Piano," which was written for him by Peter Hazzard, the Academy's director of music.

Anderson will also perform two other works by Hazzard, "Sonata for Solo Clarinet," which Anderson premiered at JSU in 1979, and "Clarinet Quartet," which was premiered by the JSU Clarinet Quartet in 1977.

During his stay, he will also perform Mozart's "Clarinet Concerto" with the Melrose Orchestra in Boston.

Faculty art show begins Nov. run

Lynette Heiser will show thrown porcelain cups with carved motifs.

Steve Loucks will display functional pottery and vessel ceramics.

Carter Osterbind will show a group of works based on cars or car parts. Among the series will be a charcoal drawing and several oil paintings which are based on wrecked, speeding, run-over, or folded automobiles.

Marvin Shaw will exhibit assemblages from his Column (Pier) Series and a variety of prints. His prints will include lithographs and etchings with embossed areas.

Gamecocks fall to determined UT-Martin

By JEFFREY ROBINSON
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The Gamecocks' comeback hopes
The Packers put the nails in the coffin after the fumble recovery. With the JSU defense battling, tailback William Mackall swept around the right side and ran 50 yards for the Packers' final score with 36 seconds left in the game. Chi’s successful kick conversion gave Martin its final margin of victory, 28-17.

The loss to UT-Martin drops Jack- sonville State’s record on the year to 4-3-1, 2-3-1 in the OVC. The Gamecocks will get a much needed open date next week and will prepare to meet long-time foe Troy State.

“We’ve got to get ready for Troy,” said Burgess. “The key for us is to get our people well, get back on the field, and get to work.”

Jax State will face the Trojans on November 14 at Troy’s Memorial Stadium. Kickoff is at 7:00 p.m.

Tennis teams rout West Georgia

By BRIAN WILSON
Chanticleer Staff Writer

On October 29th, the Jacksonville State women’s tennis team showed why they will be a team to watch this year by routing West Georgia College 7-0. This win lifts the team’s record to 4-2 and gives the girls confidence into their next match.

Coach Steve Bailey said that he felt the team played well and believed that there is still room for improvement. “We are very young and showed a lot of promise. We go. We need the desire and determination we should be a contender for the Gulf South Conference title,” says Bailey.

The Jacksonville State women’s tennis team continued to show its strength as it took first place in the University of North Alabama Classic on Saturday, October 24th. The University of North Alabama finished in second place, followed by Freed-Hardiman College at third. The Gamecocks are currently unranked but have a 4-0 record and two tournament wins.

The tournament was conducted in a round-robin format, allowing each team member to play three matches. The first two matches were for the Gamecocks were Johnathan House, Bob McCluskey, and Les Abbott. Greg Hugdahl and Tracy Byrd will compete in the third place. Michael-John Garnett went 1-2 at the number one position.

The Lady Gamecock tennis team will participate in the Shorter Invitational on October 30th and 31st. There it hopes to knock off Troy State, last year’s runner-up in the Gulf South Conference.

Burgess talks about UNA tie

By JEFFREY ROBINSON
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Saturday before last, the Jax State Gamecocks traveled to Florida to face off against North Alabama to a 10-10 tie. JSU head coach Bill Burgess said that he was pleased with his team’s chances to pull out a win against UNA. He was very proud of the effort that the Gamecocks put forth. "We did not have a win, but the first thing you need to remember is that we are tough teams," said Burgess.

"We were playing an unbeaten, nationally ranked team at their place, and our players had a great challenge facing them," said Burgess. "We did not have a win, but the Gamecocks were a strong team that played well. We need to play hard for four quarters. Offensively we did the same thing, and our players did a great job for us.

The UNA game came down to a field goal by Ashley Kay with only 13 seconds left. The field goal was wide, and the Gamecocks had to settle for an even draw with the Lions. Despite the missed field goal, Coach Burgess pointed out that the outcome of the game really does not rest on one play. There were several times in the game when the Gamecocks had chances to put more points on the board, including having fourth down in UNA territory twice, once at the nine yard line. Failure to convert on these opportunities were factors in the tie.

Coach Burgess said that it was missed opportunities on both sides of the ball that contributed to the Gamecocks inability to pull out a win.

“We had chances to make first downs, and we also had chances to shut them out or hold them to three or seven points. So, very seldom does the game come down to one play.”

“I think that we played hard and with a lot of enthusiasm. We felt like we could win the game, and we did everything we could to win. It was a big game for us. The Gamecocks now have only two games left on the season. Their current record is 4-2-1, but Burgess pointed out that the team could easily be 6-1. Jax State has been involved in some very close games, including a two-point loss to Mississippi College and the UNA tie. Overall, the Gamecocks have not performed as well as they were expected to this season, but Burgess says that the team has played hard and has put forth a good effort in trying to do the things necessary to win. It is important for the team to (See UNA, Page 1)
Volleyball team wins with teamwork

By Scott Swisher, Chanticleer Staff Writer

"JSU teamwork." This has become the chant that the Lady Gamecocks, a volleyball team, uses to break their huddles, and it can be heard at every Jax State volleyball match. Considering the way the volleyball team has been playing lately, what you hear is what you get.

On Tuesday, October 27, the Lady Gamecocks hosted matches against Livingston University and Huntingdon College. Jax State was successful in defeating Livingston, but lost an extremely close match to Huntingdon.

In the first game, Livingston was able to keep the score close by giving an excellent effort. Jax State eventually overcame Livingston, using their superior talent. JSU played inspired volleyball, and used teamwork to defeat LU 15-7, 15-9, and 15-3 in straight sets.

In their second match, the Lady Gamecocks were not as successful against Huntingdon. The first half of the four-set match was a seesaw battle. Mid-way through the first match, senior Karen Graham provided some excellent serves to help boost JSU to a lead of five points.

Huntingdon put up a good fight, pulling to within three points before senior Meg Meeks launched the winning shot for JSU. The Lady Gamecocks took a one set lead.

The second set was almost a mirror image of the first. The score was once again close, but Huntingdon was able to pull away and eventually take a 15-12 win. This evening the match at one set win for each team.

In the third set, the Lady Gamecocks were giving their all, but they appeared to be tiring. Huntingdon was able to win 15-4, giving them a 2-1 set lead. During the fourth set, JSU did not give up. They kept the score even most of the way, but Huntingdon was able to win a very close set to take the match.

The Lady Gamecocks had an impressive effort with everyone contributing. Coach Janice Slay was pleased with the overall play of the team. She singled out the play of sophomores Gena Higginbotham, Jean Darnieder, and freshman Selina Carpenter.

Jacksonville State's next match will be in the West Georgia Invitational on November 6th and 7th.
