Jacksonville State University's Student Government Association and Alumni Association planned a full slate of activities for Homecoming ’87 on Saturday, October 2.

The Metro Homecoming Pageant was held on September 17. Forty candidates were narrowed to a field of ten finalists by a panel of judges on the basis of scholarship, poise, beauty, and remarks made in interviews.

Students voted to determine the top five contestants on October 1, and voted again on October 3 to determine the winner. The following ladies were selected as contestants:

Nancy Nixon, sponsored by Alpha Xi Delta Sorority, currently holds the position of membership chairman. She is a member of the Sociology club, social work club, and the Valley Jaycees. She also serves on the Board of Trustees of the State of Alabama.

Richey, who would someday like to work in the field of corrections and social work.

Katiw Richey is a sophomore Communications major with a 3.6 GPA. Kim has served as Zeta Tau Alpha Pledge class president and Alumni Relations Chairman before her present office of Treasurer. She presently involved with Campus Outreach and Sigma Delta Chi.

Tracie Tenn, a nursing major, was a member of the Marching Southerners flag line and is currently a Ballerina. She has been a Phi Mu Alpha little sister and has held offices of secretary and president. Tracy plans to obtain a Master's degree and specialize in Surgical Nursing. She is being sponsored by J.A.N.S. and the Nurses Christian Fellowship.

Teisha Venable, a sophomore Communications major, was sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority. She is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority, Pi Kappa Phi little sisters, and Sigma Delta Chi.

Lori Wright, presently serving as president of Phi Mu, and has held the positions of president and vice-presidents of the JSU Panhellenic Council. She also served as president and treasurer of the Pi Kappa Phi little sisters. Lori was also named Pi Kappa Phi Rose Queen of 1985. She was sponsored by the Phi Mu Alumni Chapter.

On October 3, 1987, anticipation and excitement built up inside the school girls. Finally, the tension broke as the long awaited results were announced. Kim Richey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Richey, was crowned the 1987 Homecoming Queen by Eliza Ritty, 1986 homecoming queen. Kim was escorted by Jeff Lewis, a 1987 graduate of JSU.

Richey expressed her appreciation by saying, "Ever since fall of last year when I first came to Jacksonville, God has truly blessed me. He has given me an abundance of wonderful friends in Zeta and around campus with whom I've created memories that will last a lifetime. This past weekend has been the most cherished one of all. I'm so thankful to my Zeta sisters and everyone else that have met on campus for giving me the opportunity. But most of all I am thankful to God because he is directing my path."

Laughingly, she says, "From the second I found out that I was Homecoming Queen I still feel the same numb. I'm just so excited to have this opportunity. I will never forget this weekend or the encouragement of my friends and especially of my family. Through all of this, God has really taught me a lot about support, and that is something that I will remember for a lifetime."

Richey goes on to say that now more than ever she wants to give 110% to JSU. Not just in thanks for the special honor it has given her, but also for the qualities all of this has helped to instill in her. She said she truly believes that you get out of it what you put into it. College life doesn't last forever, and she wants to continue to make the most of it.
Jacksonville—Jacksonville State University has chosen Dr. Theresa Kisor of Piedmont as Alumna of the Year. Kisor was noted for her leadership in educational and community service. She was named Outstanding Young Woman, and received numerous awards, including the Legion of Merit and the Army Commendation Medal.

Colleges offer students credit money to 'do good'

(CPS) -- Students, critics claimed, were self-centered and materialistic. They didn't need the student loans they borrowed, and they didn't care about the world beyond. They cared only about themselves, getting high-paying careers and driving BMWs. They might work passively for a masters of business administration, but not for improving their communities. Such perceptions of American colleagues now say, eroded public support of higher education, helped foster the political climate that made it okay for politicians to slash college funding in recent years and, in fact, embarrassed educators.

Traditionally, colleges have stressed community service, said Susan Schwartz of Campus Compact, a college presidents and chancellors organization dedicated to promoting volunteerism among students. "Higher education was a place to incubate citizenship," she said. "The materialism of the 1970s and early '80s, however, disrupted that historical link."

To improve higher education's image -- and to get students more involved in their communities -- educators "had the responsibility to change the perception of the next generation."

"Universities," said one student who requested anonymity, "have a self-interest in promoting public service. It's good public relations."

In 1985, a report issued by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching called upon colleges to give students credit or aid for "doing good."

Frank Newman, the president of the Education Commission of the States and author of the Carnegie report, suggested schools create civilian volunteerism programs based on the model of the Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC), which funds college study in return for military service.

The federal government may lend a hand. In March, Senator Claiborne Pell (D-R.I.) introduced a bill to pay

Busy schedule planned for JSU students this fall

Jacksonville—The Jacksonville State University Student Government Association has planned a number of special events for the fall, including appearances by former Secretary of the Interior James G. Watt and Pittsburgh Steelers’ halfback Rocky Bleier.

Comedian/Magician Bob Garner will appear on stage at Theron Montgomery Building Auditorium at 8 P.M. on Monday, October 12. Garner started at the age of eight with Jerry Lewis book and tricks and a beat up deck of cards. At age ten, he performed his first magic show and continued throughout his school years. After high school, Garner began working on a local ABC-TV show called the Cleveland Comedy Company. During this period he perfected his skills and made appearances on HBO and national television. Garner now appears on more than 150 campuses a year.

James G. Watt, former secretary of the interior under President Reagan, will make two appearances on Monday, October 23. At 11 A.M. he will speak on “Lacking Integrity: The American Press Corps,” and at 8 P.M. he will speak on “The Courage of a Conservative - A Prescription for America to Prepare for the 21st Century.” Both addresses will be held in Montgomery Building Auditorium.

Garner served in top government positions for over 16 years and made a dramatic impact on the public policies of the nation and the management of natural resources. Called “a ‘controversial’ conservative,” he has an intellectual capacity that is rapidly closing the policy gap between the left and the right.

Watt was appointed in the Carter administration as the first commissioner of the Federal Energy Administration. Former President Ford brought him back to Washington D.C. as Environmental Protection Agency Administrator. President Reagan appointed him to be the Chairman of the National Energy Policy Development Panel. Watt’s current efforts are focused on the completion of the U.S. Energy Plan.

A native of Kentucky, he is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and holds a law degree from the University of Virginia. Watt is an avid outdoorsman and has served as an official of several organizations, including Ducks Unlimited, the National Wildlife Federation, the American-Made Electric Power Alliance, and the American Society of Civil Engineers.

I would like to thank all students, faculty and administration for their compliments on my last week’s column. It’s truly nice to know that people are reading what I have to say.

I’m a little disappointed, though. I didn’t receive any negative response to my column. That bothers me and leaves me not knowing what to think. Does everyone share my views on the subject? Or does everyone agree with my own opinion? I’m beginning to wonder.

Please feel free to disagree with me at any time on any subject.

Nothing would make me happier than to see a stack of letters to the editor on my desk written by people who didn’t like something they saw in the newspaper. That’s what the editorial page is all about—a platform for opinions of this newspaper staff and more importantly, the student body, faculty and administration.

I had planned to expand on last week’s column and tell why I was against placing prophylactic vending machines in high schools. That was until something happened that completely changed my thinking on the subject.

When I went home this past Sunday to visit my parents, my mom told me that she had received a phone call that week from an old friend. An old friend who had just become a grandmother to an illegitimate baby born to her teen-aged daughter. I quickly realigned my thinking and broadened my mental horizons.

Why not put condom machines in public high schools? Perhaps if some method of birth control had been made available to that teen-age girl or her sex partner, she wouldn’t be in the mess she’s in now.

Obviously just sex education wasn’t enough.

When I was in high school, it seemed like there was something in the water supply. Every other day one of my fellow students popped up pregnant. Out of a graduating class of around 105, at least 15 percent that I knew of were either pregnant or had an abortion. I’m sure the actual figure was much higher.

To sit back and say that teens are too young to be supplied with prophylactic devices is just plain dumb. If they’re old enough to have sex, then I say they’re old enough to be able to conveniently purchase condoms and other such devices. As I said last week, supplying them does not mean sex promotion, it means pregnancy prevention. Like the old proverb says, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure (or a seven pound baby as in the case of my mom’s friend’s new granddaughter).

It’s about time all these self-righteous individuals who try to warn everyone else what to do backed off. Morals and ethics are a personal matter. What one person considers wrong may be just fine with someone else. That doesn’t make either wrong, just different.

While on the subject of differences, let me say a few quick words about Supreme Court candidate Robert Bork. Here is a true individual. While I may not agree with some of his ideas, beliefs or practices, I respect the man in that he holds to what he believes. His way of thinking may not sit well with everyone, but it is his view of the correct practice of American government.

I am neither pro nor con on the issue of Bork. Yet I find it interesting how much controversy the man has stirred up. I’ve heard a lot of people on this campus griping about him. That’s interesting considering the fact that a recent poll at the University of Alabama showed students there in favor of the Bork nomination two to one. Perhaps a poll of JSU students would show the same results. It’s possible.

On July 12, 1987 Belinda Brazelle, a twenty-year-old co-ed at JSU, was crowned Miss Deaf Alabama. The pageant, held in Gulf Shores, Alabama, consisted of a private interview with the judges, a talent presentation, sportswear and evening gown modeling and an interview onstage. The competition is held every year with a national pageant falling in the middle of the title holder’s reign.

Miss Brazelle was invited, and with her twin brothers, Barry and Brian Brazelle, for her strength and courage to enter and win such a prestigious pageant.

Belinda will represent Alabama in the Miss Deaf America pageant scheduled for July 1988 in Charleston, South Carolina. Commented Belinda: “I hope to bring the title of Miss Deaf America home to Alabama.”

Plymouth aids students

DATMTRT – Plymouth Career Search Workshop teams are taking Plymouth and Careers magazine back to school for another semester. Under Plymouth sponsorship and the auspices of BusinessWeek Careers magazine, two teams of three human resource professionals each will begin traveling to the country’s colleges and universities from September through April, leading seminars for students in search of jobs. The ninety-minute program, which started last year and reached 100,000 students, will be taken to schools of all sizes, from less than 1,000 students to more than 30,000.

“Keeping America competitive is one of the reasons we sponsor this worthwhile tour,” said Joseph N. Caddell, Plymouth General Marketing Manager. “By handing the team leaders keys to the vans they will use to travel around the country.”

“We want to keep America’s students at the head of their class as they enter the business world.”

“We think we’ve learned a good amount about business during the last few years at Chrysler Motors, and we think today’s students might benefit from our collective experience.”

Saga food Service had been with JSU for 12 years until July, 1986, when the company was purchased by the Marriott Corporation, also affiliated with Marriott Hotels.

The Saga name has been around for a while on the JSU campus, and it will take some time to get used to Marriott. In addition to the campus dining at the Jack Hopper Dining Hall, there is also the Marriott Snack Bar located in the Theron E. Montgomery Building.

Marriott opens in TMB

Products such as coffee, hams, and other meats are labeled with the Marriott name. There are new menus and recipes that have came with the Marriott name. They will remain in the workforce.

“Like most food services, Marriott cares for the people; they are fair,” according to Mr. Dixie Leonard, the director of campus food service. “The decorations in the dining area are different, the hours have been expanded, and a manager will be here to aid someone with any problems.”

Smith reading brings humor, poetry to campus

By CYNDI OWENS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

The second lecture in a series sponsored by the English Department, held September 28, featured R.T. Smith, poet-in-residence at Auburn University.

Smith, who has published several books of poetry and short stories, read from an assortment of writings.

He began the reading with a series of poems about patrons of a bar.

“There is a bar in Opelika that used to be called The Hollow Log Lounge. I used to go there a lot, and I used to go to a lot of other bars. I put together a little suite of poems in the voices of characters I met there,” he said.

The first poem, “One Man’s Sanctuary in Opelika, Alabama,” introduced the audience to the lounge. The second poem, “The Hollow Log Lounge,” brought the biggest reaction from the audience.

“One must imagine it as spoken by someone like Harry who has just reported on a phenomenon he has witnessed,” he said.

That turns out to be a traveling show that claims to have the missing link frozen in a block of ice. The poem becomes a statement on several aspects of life, including rip-offs, turn-stiles (a sure sign of a fake!), shopping malls, and morals. The crowd laughed often as it was read.

The audience got a laugh out of many of his statements which introduced the poem.

“There’s a poem on the other side of a second class of burbon where cosmology and cosmology come together, introducing another Hollow Log poem.

From there he went on to read narratives about different aspects of life, many of which were situated in the South. Some of his readings are folksy tales that he has turned into verse to preserve the legends behind them.

Smith also read from his latest book, “Birch-Light,” and a great deal of feedback was given from the audience.

“Tomboy, Telluride rock armory” was first founded in 1852 at Wesleyan College in Macon, Georgia. It has 130,000 members nationwide, with 38 brothers and 39 little sisters on this campus.

The fraternity, nationally and locally, has been spoken on an issue that is a touchy subject with many others.

“We were the first fraternity that abolished hazing (putting people through physical and mental stresses and humiliation).” That was back in Tomboy, Telluride.

“No one needed to haze, because we are adults. We are men from the start. We stress individuality in the fraternity.” said Smedley.

The brothers have several fund raisers for fraternities:

“Usually we do things with children such as Easter Egg Hunts. Our national philanthropy is St. Jude’s Children’s Hospial.”

“The past we sold posters to raise money for disadvantaged children,” he said.

Children are not the only group that Sigma Nu helps.

“We are starting a new project, called Project Line,” in which we select things to do for the elderly and do them. We are also starting an Adopt-A-Grandmother program. We will connect elderly neighbors, visit them, help them with yardwork, or run errands for them,” he said.

Another step in the fraternity’s plan for acting responsibly was initiated in January of this year.

“We started a Responsible Drinking program. We have designated drivers, and a key drop at the door at all parties. Liability insurance for any fraternity member (Sigma Nu is trying to protect brothers and guests. We are trying to protect the fraternity from law-suits, and our brothers and guests from harm)” said Smedley.

JSU’s Sigma Nu Fraternity has a lot of things to be proud of lately.

The fraternity, which moved into a new house two years ago, worked on renovating the garage and turning it into a brother’s bar. “We are trying to improve our standing in the community. with the police, the mayor, and our neighbors, by acting responsibly,” said Stephen Smedley, Commander (President). The JSU chapter was founded in April, 1975.

The national organization was first founded in 1909 in Lexington, Virginia. It has over 120,000 members nationwide, with 38 brothers and 36 little sisters on this campus.

Phi Mu gets involved

By CYNDI OWENS
Chanticleer Senior Editor

Phill Mu is not just an organized friendship. It is more than that. Through a college sorority you learn a lot about yourself. You get an education, you learn how to get along socially, and you have to learn how to study. We try to provide a home away from home, with a new set of friends. We try to show a lot of community support,” said Phi Mu President Lori Wright.

The sorority, with 75 sisters on campus, likes to get involved with like other Greek organizations, Phi Mu is involved in several charitable activities.

“Our national philanthropies are Project Hope, which serves underdeveloped countries with medical education and supplies, the Children’s Miracle Network Telethon, and the Osmond Foundation for children’s hospitals. Locally, we usually do something for Jacksonville Day Care Center. We have Carnations for Kids in February, and we have a mystery shopping. Last Fall we had a sewing machine in a towel mill for a woman to have a bone marrow transplant,” said Wright.

The sorority, which was founded in 1892 at Wesleyan College in Macon, Georgia, has 130 chapters nationwide. The local chapter has 33 big brothers who assist the sisters.

The officers are: Wright, President; Jamie Masters, Vice President; Christi Ramsey, Treasurer; Melanie Little, Secretary, Lori Richardson, Phi Director; Julie Bolton, Membership Director; and Emma Lowder, Panhellenic Delegat.

Wright is very happy to be a member of a Greek organization.

“I was in that one special type of girl. We like everyone to contribute their own special personality,” she said adding, “Greek life in general is very exciting. I would recommend that everyone get involved. It is not just for the four years you are in college. It is something that goes with you for a lifetime. There are alumni chapters nationwide, and they have functions all the time. You benefit for the rest of your life.”

Garners plays comedy night

The Student Government Association brings to campus “The Magic and Comedy of Bob Garner” for the second installment of Comedy Night.

Garner entertains audiences during a 45-minute stage show with mystery, humor, and audience participation. Over the years, he has developed an unouchable reputation for quality entertainment at colleges and universities across the country. His nonstop performance has the showmanship and professionalism needed by a top-name entertainer.

The fast-paced show opens with unbelievable magic: objects disappear and reappear, solids pass through solids, and best of all, the audience helps make the magic happen. Garner even sars a volunteer from the audience in half with an electric saw.

The show also contains demon—(See GARNER, Page 9)
Delta Zeta

Congratulations to our three new pledges: Jeannie Walters, Tiffany Tyson, and Jeanne Carden. Welcome to our family!

A Pledge Retreat is planned for this weekend, October 9-10. All sisters and pledges will be travelling out to Kokomo Village for a weekend filled with endless activities. It promises to be a very special experience for everyone.

Parent’s Day is planned for Saturday, October 17. We are excited about showing our families JFSU and introducing them to our very special sisterhood.

Delta Zetas are currently selling magazine subscriptions as a fund-raising project. If you are interested in purchasing a magazine or would just like to renew a subscription you already have, go to the sixth floor of Sparkman or contact any Delta Zeta. Just about every popular and not so well known magazine is included in the choices.

A “Closet Clean-Out” is planned for this weekend in order to benefit the Salvation Army. All DZ’s will donate items to the local Salvation Army as a philanthropic project. If you would like to help or just have a place to send your unwanted items, contact Delta Zetas on the sixth floor of Sparkman.

Congratulations to last week’s Sister of the Week, Jan Fowler (President) and last week’s Pledge of the Week, Robin Presley (Pledge Class Secretary).

All Lambda Gamma chapter members and pledges are asked to attend the meeting on Atlanta on October 24-25 in order to work and play at Six Flags over Georgia. It should be a great week and a lot of fun after the work is over. All Big Brothers are welcome to join us.

Alpha Xi Delta

Alpha Xi Delta really enjoyed a super Homecoming week. Every day brought exciting activities, and the Xis were proud to show their support for the Jacksonville Gamedeck. The annual balloon affair was well worth the price. We are very honored to have them as little sisters in our fraternity.

The SGA deserves our support and appreciation for a great, well-planned Homecoming week.

Alpha Tau Omega

The brothers of the Eta Theta chapter of Sigma Chi, Pi Sigma Chi, are proud of the upcoming events this year. These new guys are eager to jump in and help in all the activities in the fraternity. They proved this during Homecoming and we thank them.

A special thanks is in order for these Sigma Chis on campus; Garth Rinehart, Tim Queening, and Resident Chapter Advisor Steve Hamby. Their guidance and advice have contributed to our success.

Sigma Nu

The brothers of the Iota Lambda chapter of Sigma Nu are pleased to announce the members of the Fall 1987 pledge class. They are: Chuck Barnes, David Levins, Jim Brantley, Michael Dalesandro, Ken Doss, John Furbanks, Charles Horton, Glenn Hunter, Brian McClain, Jay Morgan, Richard Newton, David Patterson, Scott Powell, Mark Smith, Mike Vickers, and Alan Whitley. Good luck to each of them.

Congratulations to Jenna Amason, Genne Hitt, and Ruth Stokler on their recent initiation into the Order of the White Rose of Sigma Nu.

Special thanks to everyone who helped with the Homecoming activities to make it a great success. The effort and hard work were greatly appreciated.

Sigma Nu would like to remind all young men here at JSU that Fraternity Wildest Rush will be in effect during October 22, so go out and rush your favorite fraternity.

Congratulations to Brother Chris Cantrell on his recent victory in the first annual "Party Animal Contest" held at Brother’s.

recent site was a benefit concert for the Alabama Sheriff’s Boys and Girls Ranches. An open air concert on Labor Day, all the proceeds went toward ranch operation and upkeep costs. Other bands (all of the audience volunteered their time) were Reverb and the Catch. This Labor Day last blast may become an annual event in the small town of Harpersville, Al. It was well worth, the price, plus it went to an excellent cause.

Over the summer Scotty “P” left the band. This concert was the first show in Jacksonville for their new bass player, Joe Breckinridge. He along with Rick Carter (guitar, vocals), Kevin Derryberry (keyboards), Jay Chambers, Robert Churchill (drums vocals), and William “Moose” Harrell (guitar, vocals) will return Monday to play at Brother’s. If you enjoyed the nearly two hours of music at the concert, there will be those same three (three zeta worth) next week.

He reports that although there was dissertation at first, the program is getting support. It is in the best interest of the chapters to get smoother each time, and they hope finally they have found just the right formulas involved.

Aside from relations with the community, Sigma Nu hopes to improve understanding among all the freshmen and sorority gus. They hope to see the Triad Party become an annual event, and want to schedule mixers with each of the sororities.

Garner

Garner enjoys good clean comedy in every show. His humor and quick wit will capture the audience and leave them wondering whether they have just seen a magical performance, a comic performance, a magic comedy or a comic performance. Either way you look at it, you get magic and comedy.

Pi Kappa Phi

The brothers of Pi Kappa Phi would like to give our sincere thanks to Greg Garner for the hard work he put into this year’s rush. Greg is our Vice President in charge of Rush and National Projects.

This fall’s pledge class consists of 43 quality guys. Congratulations to these men. Pledge trainer DeWayne Bowen says he hopes that this class will do great things in community service as well as make our fraternity even stronger.

The brothers would also like to congratulate Scarlett Mayhall and Tetsu Venable for their strong finish in the Homecoming pageant. We are very honored to have them as little sisters in our fraternity.

Zeta Tau Alpha

Everyone had a great time on Sunday, October 4, when the new pledges received their big sisters.

Preparations are being made for “Hoedown” on October 16 at Coley’s Farm.

Zeta Psi’s pledge officers were recently elected as follows: Chris Spradlin, President; Amy Hyde, Vice President; Jody Brittain, Secretary-Treasurer; and Lane Stinson, Spirit Chairperson.

Special tokens of the week are as follows: Kristen Womble, Pledge of the Week; Shannon Brooks, Member of the Week; Elizabeth Kennedy, Zeta Lady; and Missy Nuss, Social Bunny.

Mark Watson is going to Harvard Law School on a scholarship. The scholarship is for a black applicant from Los Angeles.

There’s a problem...Mark is white.

Brother, he is in for an education.
Valdosta spoils JSU's homecoming

Jacksonville State, ranked 10th in Division II, celebrated homecoming last Saturday, but the team they played was far from being a patsy. The Blazers proved why they are ranked 7th in the country as they rolled up 419 yards of total offense against the JSU defense, which was the leading defense in the GSC. Valdosta State was led by quarterback Mark Dace, who rushed for 91 yards and passed for 97, and tailback Donnie Harrell, who rushed for 96 yards on 17 carries.

JSU Head Coach Bill Burgess said, "Valdosta State deserves a lot of credit. They have outstanding players, and they had a good game plan which they executed well. Burgess was very complimentary of the Blazer's running game. "They are a great team, and they have a great running game. We could not stop their running game. If you are going to win you have to stop the other team's running."

Valdosta State Head Coach Mike Cavan said, "Defensively, we executed well. We came into this game against the leading defense in the conference, and I thought we executed pretty doggone well. Quarterback Mark Dace may have been playing his best football game today. I thought our defense played very well."

Saturday's game was far from being a patsy. West Georgia played in the first round of sudden death, giving North Alabama a second place finish. West Georgia lost a total of 150. Eight players on this year's team, four of whom return from last year, Kim Hamels, a senior from Sarasota, Fla, and Lea Clayton, a sophomore from Pell City, were All Conference last year. Also returning are Tara Downes, a sophomore from Armuchee, Ga, and Natalie Heynhs, a sophomore from Cleveland, Ohio. The new players are Amy Conner, a freshman from Marietta, Ga; Nancy Conner, a sophomore Marietta native; Amy Mosher and Julie Knight, both freshmen from Sarasota, Fla.

Bailey said that the teams had a good recruiting year.

Golfers place third in tournament

By JEFFREY ROBINSON
The Valdosta State University golf team recently opened its season by participating in the University of North Alabama Classic golf tournament. The Gamecocks finished third overall with a score of 595, one shot out of the lead. West Georgia College and the University of North Alabama tied for first place at 594. West Georgia then won the tournament in the first round of sudden death, giving North Alabama a second place finish. Valdosta shot a 300 on the first day, and 260 the second day for a total score of 595.

Coach James Hobbs commented that the team had a good tournament, even though they didn't play as well as they could have on the first day. According to Hobbs, the team's scores on the second day of the tournament were four shots better than any of the other 16 teams who participated. He also feels that the team has a chance to be very good this year.

There were five members of this year's team who participated in the tournament. From Lakeland, GA, is Chris Gray of Rainville, Al, who shot a 77 on the first day and a 75 on the second day for a total of 152. Robert Roborbaough, who is from Thornhill, Ontario, shot a 78 and a 76 for a two-day total of 154.

The team's next tournament will be the Tri-State Classic on October 5th and 6th. The event will take place at Chickasaw Park in Savannah, Ga.
Gamecocks to face Mississippi College on road

By JEFFREY ROBINSON, Chanticleer Senior Editor

They may not face a major road test this Saturday when they travel to Clinton, MS, to face the Mississippi College Choctaws. Jackson State, 1-1 in the Gulf South Conference, is coming off a disappointing homecoming loss to Valdosta State. Mississippi College is 2-2 on the year and 1-1 in the GSC.

This weekend's game should be a tough game against his squad, and respects Mississippi College's strength.

"The thing you've got to understand about Mississippi College is, they've had one of the top programs in our conference for years. They got off to a great start this year. Their quarterback broke his hand, and their new quarterback is just starting to get the feel of his offense. Because they did have some problems earlier in the season that it's not the same Michigan State style of play. They are a team, then, in a lot of trouble. Their program has been top flight for a long time. The last time we went to Clinton, MS, to play them was two years ago, and they beat us 56-3. They're very capable of doing that again," Burgess said.

According to Coach Burgess, the Choctaws have a very versatile team that gives the opposing club many different looks. "Their offense is multiple. They're good, and they will throw a lot of sets at you. They can run the ball, and then they do it with a draw," said Burgess. "Their defense is really multiple, too. You hate those multiple front teams. But Mississippi College can execute their defense well. They'll show you an eight man front on one play and a seven man front on the next. The main thing they always do defensively is get after you."

When asked to point out Mississippi College's exceptions, Burgess replies, "Really, the whole bunch. They always have big defensive tackles. They are the biggest teams we play. They are always a real physical football team, offensively and defensively. They're going to get us good.

Even though this is a long trip, Coach Burgess says that the team cannot use the length of the trip as an excuse. He pointed out that, if the team is to have success in the GSC, they must be able to play well on the road. "We will leave on Friday and get over there in enough time to get over the trip. It's the trip back that is tough. If you win, that trip is a lot easier. But we've got to be prepared regardless of whether you win or lose, it is still a long trip."

Conference races begin to heat up Saturday

By EARL WISE, Chanticleer Staff Writer

This week's schedule includes games that should have strong bearings on both the Southeastern and Gulf South Conference races. Although Alabama plays an out-of-conference game, Jacksonville State and Appalachian State find themselves in the thick of their respective conference races. Here are this week's picks.

JACKSONVILLE STATE AT MICHIGAN STATE: Michigan State, 3-0; Jacksonville State Gamecocks have been overwhelmingly impressive in their first season. The season Mississippi College will show on Saturday is the homecoming advantage under the lights, but the Gamecocks have previously rose to the occasion in their annual visit to Borns Field.

West Georgia: The Gamecocks up-ended the Braves 17-6. Coach Burgess' squad should have no problem in defeating West Georgia.

LSU AT GEORGIA: The Georgia Bulldogs will see what they are made of when they host the LSU Tigers between the hedges Saturday. The Bulldogs have had problems getting fired up for a big game. LSU has overcome a tough schedule which includes Ohio State and Texas A&M. But watch Georgia's defense in Saturday's game if LSU is to have any three touchdown performance. Georgia could take LSU's SEC title hopes away. LSU 31, GA 33; OTHER GAMES: Florida 42, Mississippi State 28; Colorado 28, Illinois 33; Purdue 13.
