Student Government to host ex-spy tonight

The Student Government Association will host ex-spy, intelligence expert, and world traveler Peter N. James tonight at 8:00.

James is a 1962 physics graduate from Case Western Reserve University and the author of two books, including "A Spy's World". He has been involved in espionage activities since the 1940s and has worked for various intelligence agencies around the world.

James will discuss his experiences as a spy and the role of intelligence in modern society. He will also answer questions from the audience.

Effective July 1, Dr. Robert E. Kriebel, a professor of physics at Auburn University, will become the JSU vice president for academic affairs.

The position is a three-year term, and Kriebel will work closely with university administration to enhance academic programs and improve student services.

J-Day football game called off... Burgess cancels because of registration

By JEFFREY ROBINSON

Chanticleer Senior Editor

The Jacksonville State University's annual J-Day spring football game, which was to be played tonight, has been cancelled.

According to head football coach Bill Burgess, it was decided that the game would be called off because of registration issues this week. Burgess pointed out that making sure all of the players had gone through academic advising and were properly registered was a more pressing matter than playing the J-Day game. Players have to be in good academic standing to be eligible to play, and dividing the team up into two squads and holding the game tonight would have taken valuable time away from making sure the team members were registered.

The football team ended their spring drills with a scrimmage last Saturday. Burgess said he wanted to have four good practices last week and wrap up spring training with last Saturday’s scrimmage.

Wayne Clayton is a man of many talents.

Aside from his duties as a member of the drama department faculty, he has also acted in theatre, television, films, commercials, and has modeled. And when he is not in front of the audience, he is backstage. He has directed about 11 plays, operas, and puppet shows, and still finds time to write.

On April 4, in a reading sponsored by the JSU English Department Lecture Series, Clayton will read from two of his works-in-progress, "Dog Life" and "Cat House."

The plays are a combination of comedy and serious drama. They are linked together in style. Each one has four characters, two men and two women, but they are different characters in each play," he said.

Clayton added that the purpose of the reading was not to introduce the two plays, because they are both yet to be completed. Rather, he will discuss how go about writing plays, how the story idea develops, and why, in general, people write plays.

Wesley students examine D.C. hunger and the homeless

By LISA WELCH

Special to the Chanticleer

Spring Break is the time most college students head for the beaches in Florida or other locations. The Chanticleers this year had to work to worship the sun and party. This was not the case for students of the Wesley Foundation on campus. They decided to pursue a more noble cause.

Twenty students departed by vans on March 11 for Washington, D.C. The students' purpose was to study hunger and the homeless and enjoy a little sightseeing in the nation's beautiful capital.

The Wesley Foundation students attended seminars conducted by the United Methodist Church. The students also heard from speakers with different views about the problems of hunger and homelessness. Some of the speakers had extremely conservative views and others had more liberal ideas about solving the problems of domestic hunger and the homeless. The students were able to talk to people who were on the street and the reasons behind their being in that position.

The most interesting part of the trip was the students' opportunity to work at a soup kitchen and to live for one night at one of the homeless shelters to experience firsthand what it really was like to be homeless. Unlike the other people in the shelter, they could have the next morning and go back to their world and not have to worry about where their next meal would come from.

Something that was common among the students was that they had all built up stereotypes of the homeless. Several thought they all were lazy bums who did not want to work. Some had ideas the homeless were drug addicts who were homeless because all their money went to buy more drugs. A couple of people thought they were all uneducated people looking for handouts from the government. These stereotypes were broken down by the seminars and the students actually meeting the people in the shelters.

The Wesley Foundation students have brought the knowledge they have learned from the seminars to motivate this campus to start a major campaign against hunger and the homeless.

CPR course is proven effective

By JAMES H. JOYNER, JR.

Special to the Chanticleer

What would you do if your mother was choking? Would you know how to help if someone stopped breathing and had no pulse? Two Jacksonville State students can probably answer "Yes" to those questions.

Cedar Richard White was at work at Ryan's Family Steak House when he heard a scream. Mrs. Alfred Mitchell was calling for help. Her husband was choking. Richard quickly checked Mr. Mitchell pulse and found it stopped. He calmly performed mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and CPR, reviving the victim.

Richard learned CPR two years ago in the First Aid course taught by the ROTC department. David Suther, General Manager at Ryan's, praised Richard's calmness under pressure. Richard really thought charge of the situation and knew exactly what to do. "Richard was most modest, saying simply, "I was glad I was able to help."

Just one week later, Richard O'Dell had a similar experience. Her mother was choking. Without hesitation, Rhonda performed the Heimlich maneuver that Major Mark Houland had taught her just the week before. That she and her mother are both glad she took the course is an understatement. Rhonda stated, "The class teachers are eager to live and to save the lives of others, especially their own."

U.S. students trail in science

(CPS) — U.S. students trail their foreign counterparts in science knowledge, placing almost last in achievement tests given in 17 nations, according to a major new study.

Another report released last week determined that most young kids — regardless of country — believe the earth is flat.

The Second International Science Study (ISS) found American students in the fifth, ninth and 12th grades performed poorly compared to students from other countries.

U.S. students, the ISS found, finished last or almost last in biology, physics, chemistry and other sciences.

In fact, many U.S. students performed no better than if they would have guessed the answers. "I'm not surprised," said Dr. Michael McCormick, the biology department chairman at Montclair State College (N.J.), "The United States is ignorant in many areas compared to other nations."

"The data paint a dismal picture of science education in the United States today," said Bassam Shashashiri of the National Science Foundation.

The study, conducted by the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement, ranked U.S. fifth-graders eighth among 15 countries in overall science knowledge. Ninth-graders finished 13th out of 17 nations, while American high school seniors enrolled in advanced science classes finished last in tests administered to more than 300,000 students in 7,500 schools worldwide between 1983 and 1986.

Children from Japan, Korea, Poland, Hungary, England and Singapore generally recorded the best scores.

Although American educators agree U.S. students are not receiving the science education other nations provide, they're wary of the study itself.

"I'd like to see how it was conducted," said Vincent Sindt, the director of the University of Wyoming Science and Math Teaching Center. "If the test just measured the quick recall of facts, let 'em have it. If it was a measure of how students think or reason then I'd be worried."

"There are a lot of statistical problems," said McCormick. Education in the United States, he said, is mandatory, while other nations don't require all children to attend school.

Consequently, all U.S. testakers were competing against only the most academically talented students in foreign countries.

Still, there are those who say American attitudes about education have a lot to be desired. "In some countries, education is a special treat, a privilege that's respected," said McCormick.

Sindt cited low teacher salaries and even selfless parents as reasons. "Some parents are more willing to spend money on a new color television than help provide for their children's education."

U.S. students, particularly at the college level, see education as a means towards a high-paying career, without value in its own right. McCormick said. The desire to get an education is limited in this country. People get educated to get money, not knowledge, and so they're not getting that broad education other students do."

In a separate study, the Smithsonian Institution found most children have little trouble grasping the concept of a round earth.

Almost 50 percent of the U.S. and Israeli fifth-grade children in the Smithsonian study, which appeared in the latest issue of the "Science and Children" magazine, believed the earth is flat.

The RAABE, study authors Alan Lightman and Phillip Sadler theorized, had less to do with bad schools than with the way children develop.

Children, they wrote, often can't reconcile "what they are told about their world and what they see with their own eyes."

After fourth grade, children seem to have much less trouble grasping the concept of a round earth, they added.
Garden Tips

The no-weeds garden

Weed preventer plus fertilizer gets results

Picture healthy, well-fed vegetables and flowers growing in pristine soil without a single weed poking its ugly head up. You can imagine the results at harvest time. Your plants will look so good you'll wonder why you ever bothered with weeds. Preen®-Green is recommended for use around nearly all sorts of plants, including annual and perennial flowers, shrubs, trees, and vegetables. The six-pound bag contains enough weed preventer and fertilizer to feed up to 600 square feet of garden plants with a complete fertilizer—all in one step.

Preen® Green Weed Preventer is a cost-effective way to control weeds in your garden. Its chemical-free formula works by preventing seeds from germinating, so you can spend more time enjoying your garden and less time weeding. The product is easy to apply, simply spread a thin layer of the preventer on the soil surface before planting. Preen® Green Weed Preventer is available at most home improvement stores and garden centers.

To receive Greenview's free garden tip, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to Greenview, P.O. Box 317, Lebanon, Pa. 17042.
Basic camp offers challenge

Attending ROTC Basic Camp also called Camp Challenge at Fort Knox, Kentucky, is an exciting and challenging way to spend a summer vacation. Those participating in the six-week camp will gain valuable leadership skills, receive excellent physical conditioning, have the opportunity to make friends with other college students from across the country, plus earn up to $600 just for attending the camp. Participants will also have the opportunity to compete for one of the several hundred ROTC college scholarships awarded at camp each summer.

Camp Challenge also makes you eligible for the Army’s simultaneous membership, officer development program. This program allows you to earn up to $888 per month during the school year.

Camp Challenge is usually attended after your sophomore year, but any full-time college student with 30 or more semester hours may attend. All meals, lodging, and transportation to and from camp are furnished by the Army. There is no military obligation associated with Camp Challenge and participants may withdraw from training at any time. At the end of camp, cadets have an opportunity to sign a contract to enter the advanced ROTC program. This voluntary contract is not binding until the cadet registers for ROTC at JSU and attends his first class in the fall.

In addition to leadership skills and physical conditioning, Camp Challenge cadets also benefit from the personal satisfaction gained from the successful completion of the challenge.

COCONUT-TOPPED BROWNIES

By CYNDI OWENS

Chautauqua Senior Editor

Stone Performing Arts Center will be the setting for the fourth annual Writing Instruction Technology (WIT) Conference, to be held April 8.

The conference for the first time will be held away from its English theme, and will include workshops in drama and history as well. It is designed to afford high school teachers across the state a better opportunity to attend the workshops their students for the challenges of college writing and it helps promote a sense of understanding between the teachers and the University.

“We would like to invite all interested students to attend the workshops. Anybody who is thinking about teaching would certainly benefit,” said conference coordinator Carol Cauhnen.

The conference kicks off at 9 a.m. with opening remarks by President David D. Ku. Following keynote speakers Dr. Rob Riordan and Dr. Paul B. Wingo, Dr. Daniel B. Gress will be speaking and sharing his store of information.

While students about to graduate will think this information most timely, all students—freshermen to seniors—should find this conference informative. While freshmen are not going to be seeking permanent jobs immediately, it is never too early to seek information. This conference will be an easy way to get information. If you wait until you are ready to enter the job market to begin to seek information—good luck because the job market will not need it.

After all the speakers address the entire audience, each speaker will be joined by an individual from the Stone Performing Arts Center. Students may then circulate to whichever speakers they wish and ask any questions they so desire.

The conference will conclude at 4 p.m. with closing remarks by President David D. Ku.
Silent Expression offers change of pace

Tired of the same hum-drum weekend entertainment? Is excitement what you are looking for? On April 9, your boredom will come to an end. Silent Expression, a signing group sponsored by the Student Organization for Deaf Awareness, will be producing a musical extravaganza you will not want to miss.

Composed of both hearing and hearing impaired students, Silent Expression boasts the most talent this campus has to offer. They act; they dance; they sign visual imagery like you've never seen! April 9, 8:00 p.m., Nursing Building Auditorium. BE THERE!
School experiments with summer sessions

By Rod Carden
Chanticleer Staff Writer

The University is going to experiment with the schedule this summer. Courses that contain too much material to cover in one summer session are going to be extended between two summer sessions.

In the past, if the course had too much material it was not offered. Examples of these courses include Introduction to Data Processing, Introduction to Computing, Earth Science for Elementary Education, Majors, and Statistics for the Behavioral Sciences. This summer all of these courses will be taught during the May Term. When the break arrives between the May Term and Summer I the students will have the week off. When Summer II begins the students will resume with these classes and take their exams at the end of Summer I.

“The success of the program will depend on student enrollment in the courses,” Dr. Jerry Smith said.

Bill Meekan said “If the program is successful different types of courses may be offered next year. That will depend on the department heads and dean. We are making this available because we like to try new things.”

Dr. Smith said the reaction to the classes from the instructors has been positive. Mrs. Peters, a computer science instructor, will teach one of the classes this summer. She thinks the classes are a good idea because classes will now be offered in the computer science department during the summer that have not been available in the past.

The complete list of classes offered may be found on the last page of the Summer Class Schedule.

JSU cosponsors investment course

A free Investment Course is being offered by the Public Library of Anniston and Calhoun County and Jacksonville State University. The course will consist of five classes meeting at the Public Library beginning Tuesday, April 26, 1988 from 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. and continuing for five Tuesdays through and including Tuesday, May 24, 1988.

Jacksonville State University will award one Continuing Education Unit for those who attend all five sessions. The course will be taught by Gordon McKinney of A.G. Edwards & Sons, Inc. Mr. McKinney is a Registered Representative of the New York Stock Exchange. Seating will be limited, so please register by calling 237-8501 to reserve your place.

Rochester, Penn. Frats enjoy parties too much

(CPS) One fraternity was banished from the University of Rochester for allegedly holding a group sex party, while the University of Pennsylvania suspended one of its houses for hiring strippers to perform at a party.

The incident at Penn, moreover, threatened to escalate into a conflict between Jewish and black groups. Rochester administrators banned the Theta Delta Chi house for 10 years in the wake of a February party in which eight students reportedly had sex with one, apparently consenting, woman.

The 19-year-old woman, whose name was not released, attends a college in Ohio. Rochester administrators said they may contact the woman's college about further disciplinary action.

On March 4, Penn suspended all-white, predominately Jewish Zeta Beta Tau for one and a half years for holding a September party at which two hired strippers, both black, performed.

Some audience members shouted racial epithets as they danced and engaged in "sexually explicit acts," ZBT members issued a public apology and offered to make a donation to the campus women's center, but Penn President Sheldon Hackney suspended the house anyway, adding that "behavior that dehumanizes any individual or group will not be tolerated."

At the same time, the Daily Pennsylvanian, the campus paper, received a death threat against Conrad Tillard, head of the Organization of Black Consciousness at the school.

Tillard quickly blamed the anonymous threat on the radical Jewish Defense League—which denied it sent the note—and related it to a Feb. 26 rally at which he called for ZBT's ouster.

Black and Jewish students argued publicly in 1986 when Tillard's previous group brought Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrahkan, whose anti-Zionist preachings often spill over into critiques of Jewish theology as wrong and Jewish people as unsavory, to speak on campus.

But Rabbi Howard Alpern of Penn's Jewish Campus Activities Board condemned Tillard for promoting, without evidence, the ZBT affair as an echo of the 1986 tensions.

"The Jewish community does not support what happened at ZBT," added Daniel Gam liệt of the Jewish Student Council. "They find it offensive, just as anyone would."
Hunter Thompson gets dumped by Arizona

(CPS)–Flamboyant writer Hunter S. Thompson, as noted for being late to campus speaking engagements as for his “gonzo journalism” portraits of the 1972 presidential campaign, was stood up by the University of Arizona student government last week.

Student President Reuben A. Carranza vetoed a funding measure March 10 that would have brought Thompson to speak on campus, and the student association upheld the veto by one vote.

Carranza said he would have approved at Thompson's request if it had not been cosponsored by another campus group, but that Thompson's behavior at other campuses left him unwilling to let the student government be solely liable for the event.

Thompson has been notoriously late for campus appearances around the country, and reportedly has shown up drunk for some.

Carranza noted the writer dropped his pants during an Arizona State University speech.

Thompson once threw an ice bucket at his audience at Duke University and was “incoherent” at a Brown University program, Carranza argued.

For his Arizona visit, Thompson's model contract stipulated students supply him with a 12-pack of beer upon his arrival and a bottle of Chivas Regal scotch while he was on campus.

“Thompson, however, may not take no for an answer. “We will be there. There will be fear and loathing in Tucson,” swore Thompson's agent Greg Werckman of the Greater Talent Network.

“Should we sign it, so we will be there,” emphasized Thompson's manager, who did not consider the speaking date officially cancelled.

Werckman chalked the problems up to "campus infighting." He speculated that when the engagement was over, "they'll wonder why they made such a fuss."

Thompson, who has about 30 campus speaking dates yearly, will give "an excellent show, the highlights of their year," Werckman said.

Alabama may overturn 32 year expulsion

(CPS)–The University of Alabama’s Board of Trustees may undo the 32-year-old expulsion of a black woman whose attempt to enroll caused white students to riot in 1956, unconfirmed reports say. Harry Knopke of UA President's office said March 7 the board may overturn the expulsion of Atherine Lucy Foster at its April meeting.

Foster was the first black person to attempt to enroll at Alabama, but the effort provoked ongoing riots by segregationist townspople and students.

When Foster's attorney subsequently accused UA's trustees of "conspiring" with the mobs to scare Foster away from the campus, the trustees expelled her along with Leonard Wibb, a leader of the student rioters.

"They were saying the reason for expelling Lucy was not purely racial," said UA Prof. Culpepper Clark, who is writing a book about integrating the University, "so they turned around and expelled the leader of the student riot."

Black students never got into a UA classroom until 1963, seven years after the Foster incident. Foster, now 58, had "discreetly" asked Alabama officials to overturn her expulsion when she spoke on campus in February.

Currently a special education teacher in Montgomery, she said she may return to campus to seek a master's degree if the trustees revoke the expulsion.

For the first time in modern history, the world population growth rate is declining reports The United Nations.
For the record

"Over your shoulder, please, don’t mind me. But all those lines and circles, to me, a mystery. Eve pull down the apple and give a taste to me. If she could it would be wonderful..."-Natalie Merchant

The above are words to a song by the group The 10,000 Maniacs, and they deal with one of the major problems in America today—illiteracy.

According to the latest statistics, nearly 26 percent of Americans over the age of 16 are high school dropouts. These people, because of their lack of education, cannot find good jobs. Yet, the trend continues and more and more people are quitting school.

Student thanks SGA for hard work

By CYNDI OWENS

Chanticleer Senior Editor

There are some people on this campus who just don’t get no respect.

You see, by the time this hits the press, a new Student Government Association administration will be poised to take office. They may think that the previous administration is wrapping things up, closing the books, and taking one last nostalgic look back at the year. So, before the official “changing of the guard,” let’s say those two little words that these people really need to hear.

Thank you.

Vonda Barbour — Barbour’s administration has been marked with some ups and downs. Last year, she faced the surprising strength of opponent Gary Newman in the elections, and even came out the winners seemly with new insight into the office of president. This year, her campaign has been check-full of events for every last, from concerts to Comedy Night.

And what most students did not see was her struggle with the school’s administration for budget increases and support of SGA-sponsored events. Good luck, Vonda. We’ll miss you.

Greg Harley — Every time you have enjoyed a concert or other event this semester, you likely had Harley to thank. He was the main attraction, vice-president Daniels Band concert and a host of other entertainment offerings. Once again, Greg, take a bow.

Dwight Burton — Burton, along with his regular duties as treasurer, had to be a jack-of-all-trades, filling in and excelling on all SGA activities. Thanks, Dwight, and keep up the work as new SGA president.

Jim Finley — Finley is sort of overlooked a lot of times as far as the SGA goes. Since his position as business manager is appointed rather than selected, a lot of students do not know what his job entails. But whenever you see a marquis, poster, or sign around announcing a concert, think of Finley. He was likely the one who designed it and put it up. Good work, Jim.\n
I'd like to blame the schools, but it's not all their fault. Parents and students themselves are just as much to blame as teachers. It’s the parents who, by the Nintendo and Atari and computer games and cable TV. And it’s the kids who watch the stuff.

Sure, many American students still believe the world is flat. No big deal, we’ve got “The legend of Zelda” going for us. And that makes it all okay.

Some students who did go to the polls on March 9 claimed they based their choices on what someone else said, rather than on their own direct knowledge of the candidates. Don’t JSU students care enough about their school to actively participate in the election of SGA officers, or do they really think that they will never be affected by the choices made on election day? Newly-elected SGA president Dwight Burton said that as treasurer last year, he received over 1000 complaints from students on a variety of topics, and he estimates that about 1000 would be brought by students to the SGA if that estimate is correct, more people complained in 1987 than voted in the 1987 election.

John P. McAndrew, President

Foreign & Domestic Teachers

Dear Editor:

Don’t the students of Jacksonville State University care about what goes on with their own Student Government Association?

Well over 1000 students attend JSU, yet in the recent SGA elections only 720 people cast ballots to elect the new president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

Many students said they didn’t know anything about the candidates and didn’t have time to find out about them. Others said that they didn’t care who won and didn’t think the elections would affect them at all.

Family planning program provides needed services

By ELISE TILLMAN

Chasticleer Senior Editor

In today’s permissive collegiate atmosphere there are many dangers to be faced. Not the least of these is AIDS, but then let’s not forget that there are a considerable number of other issues to concern us. What about all the other sexually transmitted diseases? What about getting pregnant?

The Nursing Clinic on campus in the Lurleen B. Wallace School of Nursing is standing by to help you sort through all these questions. They understand that there are decisions to be made and that sometimes you may need help to make those decisions. Through their Family Planning Program students and other members of the Jacksonville community can receive counseling on these matters.

The nursing clinic is staffed by nurses and is also used as a facility for learning by the student nurses. The nurses are Ann Hastings, Registered Nurse and Paula Davis, Nurse Pratitioner.

The Family Planning Program follows Alabama State Board of Health guidelines. This means that considered effective until a possibility, however, The pill is not is in the area of pregnancy testing. Some women experience side effects from the pill; therefore, The pill may cause or help to precipitate blood clots some even complain of mood swings in association with their use of the pill.

Perhaps the greatest problem with the use of the pill as a method of birth control is that sometimes it does not protect them from sexually transmitted diseases (STD). Women who have multiple partners or whose sexual partner may have multiple partners should still use a condom. A condom is the only known method of protection from STD. It is also an absolute must that your family doctor be aware that you are taking the pill because certain other medications can destroy its effectiveness.

Through family planning one is made aware of all this and also instructed in the use of condoms and contraceptive foam. The condoms, contraceptive foam (which is to be used in conjunction with the condom), and birth control pills are all dispensed free to students through the Family Planning Program.

Most of the counseling that goes on in the Family Planning Program is in the area of pregnancy testing. We get kids that come in here and they have no idea that they’re pregnant and then they find out that they are. You’re just basically trying to find out what their feelings are at that moment. Had they even considered what they’re going to do about being pregnant. We’re just trying to sound them out. We act very much as a ‘sounding-board’ to see if they’ve thought about it. The one thing that we usually do is to ask them if the are contemplating suicide, because I have had some girls come in here who were so upset that they looked like they couldn’t jump out the window. And if we honestly feel like they were about to do they refer them to the Mental Health Association,” said Hastings.

There is no psychiatric nurse at the nursing clinic, so anyone who seems to need ‘structured’ counseling is referred to the Mental Health Association or to a local psychiatric doctor.

Last month 44 females received physi- cal exams in the clinic for supplies (condoms, contraceptive foam, birth control pills), and 19 received pregnancy testing through the Family Planning Program.

Another area of family planning is that involving sexually transmitted diseases. Both males and females can be screened. If a test is positive for some form of STD, then students can go either to the infirmary or to the doctor of their choice or to the Calhoun County Health Department. Nurse Practitioner Paula Davis does the screening and may prescribe medication under a doctor who is her preceptor.

Most of the time females come in with vaginal discharge, but they really do not know that they have some form of STD. Such cases are screened for all forms of STD and, according to Hastings, all too often the tests are positive for some form of STD. Again, any STD screening done in family planning is free, but even outside the program the charge is minimal.

Those who have multiple sex partners are at the greatest risk of STD. ‘There are a number of kids on this campus with sexually transmitted diseases. We’re stressing now that the more partners you have, the better the chance you have of contracting it” says Hastings.

The Alabama State Health Department has recognized STD as a major issue and now provides facilities like the nursing clinic with free condoms for anyone who asks for them—no questions asked.

Follow-up care for STD may be through the campus infirmary or through your doctor of choice.

The staff at the nursing clinic cares about you and treats you with complete confidentiality in these matters. For more information call or go by the Lurleen B. Wallace School of Nursing located next to the baseball field.

Scholarships now available to children of veterans

Applications are now being accepted by the U.S. Department of Labor, Armed Forces and Veterans of America, Inc. and by The U.S. Armed Forces Institute of Post-Graduate Education.

For an application or more information, contact: Scholarship Committee; Paralyzed Veterans of America; 301 18th Street, N.W.; Washington, D.C. 20006; or consult your local telephone directory for the Department of Veterans Affairs Office or Chapter nearest you.

Each scholarship grant will be $1,500 and applicants must be enrolled in, or accepted by, an accredited four-year institution of learning. The student’s academic performance, community and extracurricular activities, as well as financial need will be considered in the award criteria.

What’s Up Docs?

“Documents to the People” is the slogan of the Federal Depository Library Program — a program designed to give citizens free access to the prolific flow of information streaming from various U.S. government agencies and the Congress.

The JSU library became a partial document depository in 1959 and currently selects about 28 percent of the items offered by the Superintendent of Documents, Most of which are then integrated into the book collection on the various floors of the library. Most selections are chosen from the U.S. Bureau of the Census; the Departments of Defense; Education, Health and Human Services, Interior, Justice, and State; and from the U.S. Congress. These publications represent research done on the “cutting edge” of knowledge.

Students uncertain which career to choose can use the Occupational Outlook Handbook to learn present trends and projected trends for more than 200 occupations. You can even find the original report of the Federal Depository Library Program — “The Federal Depository Library Program—U.S. Serial Set or the latest speech of an Alabama Congressman in the Congressional Record.

Other useful titles are the United States Government Manual and Index Medicus, and these are only a small sampling of the federal documents available at the JSU library.

Documents are indexed in various reference tools, but if you cannot find what you want, ask a librarian (See DOCS, Page 16).

JACKSONVILLE -- Ten outstanding classroom teachers from public school systems across Alabama have been chosen as finalists in the 9th annual Jacksonville State University Teacher Hall of Fame.

Two of the ten -- one in elementary and one in secondary education -- will be inducted into the Hall of Fame during an awards program on campus April 26. The teachers will also receive recognition during ceremonies at their schools.

Nominees were selected based on training and experience, personal and social traits, professional characteristics and community involvement.

All public school systems in the state were invited to nominate candidates for the special honor which was established at JSU in 1969.

Inductees are chosen by secret ballot following personal interviews with a final selection committee. This year's selection committee convened in Birmingham during spring break.

No preference is given to nominees who may have attended JSU.

The 1988 finalists are in the ELEMENTARY DIVISION...

and walking hand-in-hand with new acquaintances (of the opposite sex) along the beach at night, while we tell tales of trying to catch cabs on Fifth Avenue, riding subways through Harlem (by accident), and of barely escaping the Tiendler residents of 42nd Street. And as for walking hand-in-hand with members of the opposite sex, that would have been fine if we could have figured out which was which.

On a more serious note...the conference proved enlightening in many ways.

One of the highlights of the Student Press Convention was finding out the Chanticleer is really good as college papers go. No one was more surprised than the staff members to actually find out that our humble little publication held its own against papers from across the nation.

During "brainstorming" sessions, we exchanged papers with other staffs, looked them over and made comments and criticisms about them. We were shocked to find out that college papers are by-and-large pretty similar, and that we managed to incorporate a little bit of something most of the other staffs do not: humor!!

A part of history continues...
CPS—Jimmy Daniels has a secret. The 34-year-old University of Mississippi journalism instructor gets up early on Saturday mornings to watch Mighty Mouse. "It's the only reason I get up on Saturdays," said Daniels. "I watch Mighty Mouse and then go back to bed."

"I never talk about it here," Daniels said in the office of The Mississippian, Ole Miss's campus paper. His colleagues wouldn't understand. "It's something you keep to yourself until you find someone else who's a fan. Then you get together and ask which episodes are their favorites. I'm corresponding with some students at the University of Missouri about the show."

Daniels shouldn't be all that lonely: "Mighty Mouse: The New Adventures," created by adult cartoon veteran Ralph Bakshi and a staff just out of the California Institute of Art, is becoming a hit on many college campuses. This, mind you, is a very different Mighty Mouse than the weenie do-gooder who sang opera while dispatching evil on the small screen 20 and 30 years ago.

"The humor is almost political. The satire is wonderful," said University of Nebraska senior Peggy Brown, an animal science major. "It's aimed more at adults than children."

"It's hilarious," said Daniels, who calls Mighty a "Saturday morning David Letterman. It's the best thing on Saturday morning television, much better than the robot-tech stuff. Like Letterman, he's hip and irreverent."

These days, for instance, Mike Mouse -- Mighty's alter ego -- works on an assembly line with other rodents, coping with '80s nihilism and sober careerism.

"Another day, another discharge of duties demanded," the boss tells the factory rats, "and let's take delight in it, shall we? Just remember, we have schedules to meet, orders to fill, productivity to produce. I know you'll do your best, as usual, and, as usual, feel free to do even better."

When today's Mighty Mouse saves an orphanage from demolition by balancing it on an adjacent lot, Bakshi maintained younger kids like the show, too. "Kids are a lot smarter than most animators give them credit for. Kids might not understand every gag, but they get the basic premise. They know it's funny."

Bakshi returned to Saturday morning tv after a 5-year stint of painting in the woods in New York, where he'd fled after controversy that "Coonkin" -- intended as a blast at prejudice -- actually perpetuated racial stereotypes, and after several other features flopped. "But after 5 years of painting I ran out of money," he continued. He headed for the "one business that is always booming, where I knew I could step in right away: Saturday morning cartoons."

Bakshi credits the success of his new show to his staff, a young, enthusiastic, unjaded bunch of rookies. When he returned to television, he enlisted seasoned vets who tried to tell him what he could and couldn't sell the networks. He dumped the vets and hired the newcomers -- average age 23 -- just graduated from the California Institute of Arts.

"After I got my young guys together and we put together some stories, we sent them over to CBS for approval," said Bakshi. "They laughed their heads off. Writers who claim they know the networks cut their own throats."

"These guys run me ragged," Bakshi said of his staff. "They're all very funny because they didn't know what they could or couldn't do. Their stuff is good because it's fresh and they love what they're doing."

He thinks they -- along with that other subversive CBS show, "Pee-Wee's Playhouse" -- have opened "a crack" in the otherwise dull monolith of Saturday morning programming, but he's confident "in the end we'll lose, and Hanna-Barbera will step in to fill our place with more garbage."
Bruce Springsteen sells out Omni with Tunnel of Love Express Tour

“Tunnel of Love” was the name of Springsteen’s 1988-89 tour, which was inspired by his 1987 album of the same name. The tour was notable for its expansive staging and theatrical elements, and for the emotional depth of the music. Springsteen played to sold-out crowds across North America, Europe, and Australia, cementing his status as one of the world’s premier live performers.

The first hour and twenty minutes of the show primarily featured songs from "Tunnel of Love", new songs not appearing on that album, and material from "Born in the U.S.A.". One of the most memorable moments of the show occurred when Bruce joined the sax player Clarence Clemons in the middle of "Tunnel of Love". They sat on a park bench and reminisced about their past experiences before they had decided to quit their respective bands. Their conversation centered on how both their lives had changed after marriage and settling down. After a powerful rendition of "Born in the U.S.A.", Springsteen told the crowd, "I'm just gettin' started" and then took a hair intermission.

The Boss retook the stage in black jeans, a white shirt, and a gold jacket that he would soon discard. He opened with "Tougher Than the Rest" and then proceeded into "Glory Days". "Do You Love," followed immediately by "She's the One" while still maintaining the same beat. He later introduced "Coward When It Comes To Love" like a T.V. evangelist, strutting and posturing with all the zeal of the man he was mimicking. Jimmy Swaggart. He closed the second set with "Light of Day".

He began the two encores that followed with an acoustic version of "Born to Run." While speaking of the song, he told the crowd that it was written about two kids trying to get to New York City. He said, "I found that the place isn't what it used to be. I found that it's inside of me and it's inside of all of you."

The second encore began with the Boss's reverent version of "Love Me Tender" and ended with his original melody of "Nineteen Hundred and Eighty-Five". Over the next hour, Springsteen played songs from albums like "Born to Run", "The River", and "Born in the U.S.A.", showcasing his versatility and range as a performer.

The show included chalk drawings, plaster masks, wood sculpture, yarn on stage, and because of these changes he has become more introspective, he has grown, not grown up. Whatever the case may be, if Wednesday night's performance is any indication, Bruce Springsteen still loves his work. —JOEN RICKMAN

Drama department brings Neil Simon's "hit comedy to life"

JSU — The Drama Department's production of Neil Simon's comedy "California Suite" is now being performed nightly on the stage of Stone Performing Arts Center. The show, which opened Tuesday, will run through Sunday, April 2. The 1976 play follows the often hilarious things that happen to four sets of visitors to the same California hotel suite.

Setting this production apart from others is the fact that each different set is being directed by a different student. All of the students are members of Dr. Wayne Cafer's directing class, and he will guide and critique their work.

In scene one, Hannah (Denise Keefzer) has come to California for a weekend. Her 17-year-old daughter has run away from home and come to California to live with her father, Billy (Philbert Hill). Billy goes to Hannah's hotel room to discuss the situation and try to resolve it. This scene is directed by student Koen Jansen, who has appeared in "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Of Thee I Sing."

Scene two is the story of Marilyn (David A. Smith), who is in California for her nephew's Bar Mitzvah. Her wife Millie (Cynthia Burchfield) joins him the next day. Unfortunately, Marilyn swears to find that the present his brother gave him the night before is still with him, and his wife has just arrived. The "present" is a prostitute named Bette (Lisa Welker). Scott Croley, a JSU drama veteran of such azas as "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "Silent Night, Lonely Night" steps in as director.

The next scene, directed by drama major Marc Streit, is about Diana (Kathleen Welker), an actress who has just arrived for the Oscar ceremony. She is up for Best Actress. Her husband, Sidney (Steve Whitton), a London antiques dealer, has made the trip with her, but is more interested in meeting some of the younger stars than providing emotional support for his wife.

Theresa Kimmball directs the final scene, which deals with Mort (Bill Cantrell) and Beth (Laurel Reed). The California vacation with their two best friends, Sue (Ben von Herment) and Gert (Tina Seals). It is a good thing they are best friends, because they have both had to deal with out of hand on the tennis courts and Beth has injured an ankle. Tempers fly when Mort accuses Sue and Gert of intentionally "boiling" the ball over Beth's head, and Sue announces that he has had enough of Mort's (See SUITE, Page 18).

On March 10, we held a ‘Beach Party’ mixer with Pi Sigma Chi. Our theme was Spring Bash. Everyone was dressed up for the mixer. The Phi Mu’s were having beach bums in anticipation of Spring Break!

On March 10, the entire sorority participated in Greek Week March 21-23. A special thanks goes out to Milissa Earnhart, activities chairwoman, for doing a fantastic job in working with the sorority sisters and coordinating practices. We also really appreciate the big help we got from our friends, Kappa Sigmas, with being softball, and supported us throughout the week. Also thanks to Pam Payne, Panhellenic president, who was in charge of Greek Week.

We would like to welcome our new social chair, Cathy Smith. Cathy has done a super job in working with the mixer and Phi Miu.

Social Work Club

We held officer elections on March 8. The nominating committee presented the club with their slate of officers for the club voted. The results are: Rhonda Deloach, president; Bill Wells, vice president; Wanda Clark, secretary; Melba Smith, treasurer; Anita Redding, project chairman; Florence Barlow, short-term chairman; and Elizabeth Collins, long-term chairman. The new officers take over in April.

tance, nor dampened by tears.
In the quiet of the night, it calms
any fears.
The words are unspoken, the voice not heard,
yet the message is quoted word
for word.
It cannot be easily explained, and it cannot be ignored, for whatever reasons, they understand every word.
The tie is there, an unexplained bond.
It is not hindered by distance, nor dampened by tears
In the still of the night it calms
any fears.
What is this mystery, what can it mean?
All through history, someone has seen visions of events that were yet to come.
Was the message sent to ease a saddened soul,
or did the words take on a life of their own?
It can't be easily explained, and it cannot be ignored.
For whatever reasons, someone hears every word. --CATHY ANN

Take Hold of Your Faith

GEN. 17:18-21
God hears our prayers
And He answers them
He shows He cares
When the outlook is grim.
When God says no
We don't understand
It may be so
He can work out His plan.
He's not willing
For us to have second best
His way is thrilling
Yet, we'd settle for less.
Knowing all along
He sees the outcome
Afraid to trust He who is strong
Our hearts grow cold and numb.
He has the power to melt
The coldest of hearts
What joy is felt?
Once submission starts.
Take hold of your faith
Realize the solution is on it's way
The Lord will lift you up
When you get down to pray. --

The Law brings something old, something new to stage

By C. A. ABERNATHY
Chanticleer Music Writer

The Law returned with older rock, strong vocals, originality and a dynamic stage show.

Based in Atlanta, the band has been together close to a year. Members include Go-Go Rivera on vocals and guitar, Johnny Colt on bass and vocals; Memphis on drums and vocals; and Danny Lectro on guitar and vocals. The Law is one area band that should be heard. They are currently recording several of their originals and look to have a record out very soon.

The evening began with a brief prerecorded introduction, along with an instrumental version of the theme from "The Midnight Cowboy." Then the songs traveled through times and styles, and represented such groups as the Monkees ("I'M Not Your Steppin' Stone"), the Beatles ("Boys"), Creedence Clearwater Revival ("Have You Ever Seen The Rain"), the Rolling Stones, and the Spencer Davis Group ("Gimme Some Lovin'").

Go-Go Rivera and Memphis have been in bands (including The Swinging Richards) together for five years. Their music is a special blend of rock, blues, and humor. SeveraI of these highlight the show—"Howling At The Moon," "Maureen (co-written with Rick Richardson, of the Georgia Satellites)," "Underground," "Dark Versus Light," "More Than Whiskey To Me," and "Sexual Intellectual." The fun song for show was their rendition of the theme from "Green Acres.

Watch for more from The Law. They will definitely be looking forward to seeing you next time they come to town.

A Cappella choir appears in concert with 'Ode to Joy'

JSU - The A Cappella Choir will conclude its annual spring concert with a first-time performance of the finale of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, the famous "Ode to Joy."

The performances are scheduled for Sunday, April 17, at 4 p.m. in the theatre of the Stone Performing Arts Center and Monday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m., at the First United Methodist Church in Anniston.

The choir is comprised of faculty, students, friends, and alumni from the music department. Dr. James Fairleigh, chairman of the music department, will be guest pianist with the choir. Soloists in the concert are: Danielle Scarbrough and Dr. Samuel Brown, music department faculty; Caryl Stahl, a graduate of JSU; and Dr. Dan Marsengill, Dean of the School of Communications and Fine Arts.

The Beethoven work is the most ambitious and challenging project the choir has undertaken, according to Bayne Dobbins, who has been its director for the past 25 years.

Other music slated for performance on the program includes: "The Reincarnations" by Samuel Barber; "Three Irish Love Songs" by James MacMillan; "A Jubilant Song" by Norman Dello Joio; and a new original composition by choir member Martha Lenard entitled "I Go," which is an unaccompanied setting of a poem by music department alumnus Douglas Findley.

Basketball players earn GSC honors

Jacksonville State took home some major awards when the selections for All-Gulf South Conference were announced on Tuesday, March 15. The Lady Gamecocks stole the show as they captured two of the three major awards given out each year. Women's head coach Richard Mathis was named GSC Coach of the Year after only his first season at the helm of the Lady Gamecocks. Jana and Dana Bright, the identical spring Garden duo, were selected GSC Co-Freshmen of the Year.

The one award JSU did not bring home, much to the surprise of many, was GSC Player of the Year. Shelley Carter, JSU's likely candidate for All-American, lost the Player of the Year award by one vote to Valdosta State's Shannon Williams.

Senior Derek "Doc" Hicks make the All-GSC men's team. It was the second consecutive year that Hicks made the team. Mathis' selection as Coach of the Year was practically written in stone before the awards were given out. Coach Mathis took a program that had a 21-89 record over the last four years and led them to a 22-7 overall record, and a second place finish in the GSC. His team also participated in the NCAA tournament, finishing second in the South Regional.

The Gamecocks' only loss came in the final match of the week against Division I powerhouse Southern Mississippi. All-American, Jana and Dana Bright, thrashed the University of Wisconsin at Oaksho by the score of 80- Coach Steve Bailey sensed a letdown and put in some of his reserves, but the Gamecocks were able to win at third doubles.

The women's team also proved highly ranked. The Gamecocks have been ranked among the top 25 in the nation throughout the season. They clinched their win over Marquette, which included an incredible match at the number one doubles position. In this match, the Gamecocks were behind 5-2 before the match began, but they came back to win 6-3.

The Gamecocks were able to win at third doubles.

The Lady Gamecocks next ran into Division II national champion Trensta State University of New Jersey and were stopped 7-4. Amy Conneen was able to win at third singles, and Clayton and Conneen won again at third doubles. The final match of the week was against defending Gulf South Conference champions with a win over the fourteenth-ranked women's player in Division II. Jacksonville State led the match 4-2 after singles, but the match was clinched when Lea Clayton and Amy Conneen won at third doubles.

The Lady Gamecocks next ran into Division III national champion Trensta State University of New Jersey and were stopped 7-4. Amy Conneen was able to win at third singles, and Clayton and Conneen won again at third doubles. The final match of the week was against defending Gulf South Conference champions.
Lady Gamecocks finish second in South Regional

By JEFFREY ROBINSON

Making the NCAA South Regional Tournament was a good news, bad news situation for the Jacksonville State Lady Gamecocks.

Making the post-season NCAA tournament for the first time in the history of the women's team was a tremendous achievement, and it topped-off the most successful season the Lady Gamecocks have ever had. That was the good news.

The bad news was the fact that they had to go right back to Cleveland, Mississippi, and possibly face Delta State for the fourth time this season. That, indeed, was what happened.

The Lady Gamecocks defeated Fort Valley State 79-70 in their opening-round game on Friday, March 11, but they lost the South Region Championship game to Delta State 64-54. This marked the third time this season that Delta has defeated the Lady Gamecocks. The Lady Statesmen, who stood in the way of JSU's winning the Gulf South Conference title, were inevitably the ones who knocked the Lady Gamecocks out of the NCAA playoffs.

The season has ended for the Lady Gamecocks, but it is definitely one that will not soon be forgotten. JSU's women's basketball team asserted themselves as a team to be reckoned with over the past few years during its 1997-98 campaign. Making it to the "Sweet 16" was indeed a desired treat for the Lady Gamecocks. JAX STATE 79, FORT VALLEY ST. 70

The Lady Gamecocks went into the opening round of the tournament against a tough Fort Valley team. The Lady Wildcats bought an unexpected thrill into their game with Jax State.

Fort Valley also bought something that has given JSU problems this year, very tall players. The Lady Gamecocks, who start a lineup with nobody over six feet tall, have had trouble this year against teams with decided height advantages. Coach Mathis' bunch found a way to overcome this, however, against the Lady Wildcats.

JSU got excellent play from its front line of Shelley Carter, Sue Imm, and Tammy Broom, and this helped to keep Fort Valley's tall inside players from being as effective as Jacksonville also kept the Lady Wildcats leading scorer, Kimberly Oates, below her season average. Carter finished the evening with only 14 points, all of those coming in the first half.

Staying with their gameplan was a must for the Lady Gamecocks, and despite getting over-emotional in the first half, Jax State played with the control they needed when they had to. Coach Richard Mathis also felt that the Gamecock defense was an important factor in the game.

"I don't know what Fort Valley shot for the game, but one reason they shot from the outside was our defense. We did a good job defending their inside game. I told the team it was the best game of post defense we have had all season," said Mathis.

"We started off real well. We stuck to our gameplan and did a lot of things well. But we got away from our offense and got behind."

Getting over anxious late in the first period hurt the Lady Gamecocks, but they managed to pull things back together and keep in control.

"We needed to calm down," said All-GSC forward Shelley Carter. "We started letting their press get to us, and it really wasn't that good. We fell behind, but we pulled it back down, we handled things well."

Fort Valley built a 10-point lead early in the first half, but JSU was able to climb back into the game. Jax State closed that gap to 49-47 Fort Valley this left, and several opportunities to take the lead. When the Lady Gamecocks finally did take the lead, they did so by outscoring the Lady Wildcats 23. This gave JUSU a ten-point, 64-44 lead.

By controlling the rebounding and hitting their outside shots down the stretch, the Lady Gamecocks kept Fort Valley at bay. Despite the fact that the Lady Wildcats pulled to within seven late in the game, good free-throw shooting kept the game on ice for the Lady Gamecocks.

Carter's 32 points led the Gamecocks, followed by Dusty Brights 16, fifteen by Jana Bright, and twelve by Sue Imm.

JSU's victory over Fort Valley set up the championship game between the Lady Gamecocks and Delta State. Delta made it to the finals of the tournament by defeating Bryant College of Rhode Island in the second game.

DELTA ST. 64, JAX ST. 54

Delta State has been the proverbial thorn in Jacksonville State's side all year long. Delta had won the past three meetings between the two schools, including a 29-point win over the Lady Gamecocks during the Gulf tournament.

Jax State hoped to rebound from that loss as they faced Delta once again, this time in the South Regionals of the NCAA Tournament. But Delta continued to be JSU's nemesis as they knocked the Lady Gamecocks out of the tournament with a 64-54 win.

JSU played a much better game against the Lady Statesmen in the South Regionals than they did against them in the GSC tournament. The Lady Gamecocks tried a new offense, practiced the morning before the game, against JSU. The aim of the new offensive scheme was to take advantage of Delta's quickness against Delta's big, but slower players. The Lady Gamecocks also wanted to use more of the clock, and this was coming in handy for the Lady Gamecocks.

"We needed to go ahead. But Delta continued to be overwhelming, and they have to put their hands up to hit a high percentage of our shots," said Coach Mathis.

Delta State coach Lloyd Clark said that JSU's new offense gave his team trouble.

"Jacksonville is so disciplined and so well-coached, we knew we were in for a tough game. We were not patient enough with their offense. (Shelley) Carter is so tough—we didn't think she could hit the shot at the top of the lane. She is so quick, if you play her close, she goes by you. If you play off her, she hits the jump shot. Carter, who was named tournament Most Valuable Player, scored 24 points for JSU. Dana Bright was the only other Gamecock player in double figures with 12 points. Jana Bright was plagued by foul trouble most of the game picking up her third foul at the 12:17 mark of the first half.

Delta State kept its lead around four to seven point stretching throughout most of the first half. In the last few minutes of the half, the Lady Statesmen went on a run that made the score a tie, 34-34, at the 2:45 mark of the half.

"We needed to calm down," said All-GSC forward Shelley Carter. "We started letting their press get to us, and it really wasn't that good. We fell behind, but we pulled it back down, we handled things well."

Delta State advanced to the next level. The Lady Statesmen advanced to the quarterfinals to face New Haven, the New England Region Champion. Jacksonville State will now lock to next year and take the time to savor the successful season they have had.

Rifle team member competes in National Tournament

Steve Gary, a member of the Jacksonville State rifle team, recently competed in the NCAA National Tournament. These were held at the United States Military Institute on March 10, 11, and 12.

Gary advanced to the Nationals in the air gun individual competition. The entire JSU rifle team competed recently in the one of the sectional Tournaments.

The rifle team competed in the particular Sectional Tournament. Jax State was in. Some of those who participated included UT-Martin, Southern Florida, Murray State, West Virginia, and Tennessee Tech.

JSU failed to make it to the Nationals as a team.

Gary was the only member of the team to make it to the Nationals, and he was one of only 56 persons selected from all the schools who competed in the sectional tournaments. He finished 26th overall in the competition. The national rankings have not yet been released, so Gary State do not know how he is ranked nationally.

JSU Athletic Director Jerry Cole also attended the event. Cole will be the 1999 NCAA Rifle Committee chairman and was attending the meet in preparation for that.

Rifle team is coached by Captain Steve Mathis.

Delta stood in the way of Broom and the Lady Gamecocks.

The JSU (Jacks) Gamecocks baseball team stayed busy during Spring Break, playing several games on the road during the holiday. JSU saw its undefeated streak come to an end as they dropped their first game of the season after winning 14 straight.

The Gamecocks are currently 22-2 on the season, having lost only to West Florida and the University of Virginia in games this year. They are 2-0 in Gulf South Conference Divisional games.

The Gamecocks continued to show their opponents as they pounded out 22 hits in a 22-8 walloping of Nebraska-Western.

Wesleyan jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning, but saw that vanish as JSU put seven runs on the board in the bottom of the inning. The Gamecocks had a total of eight extra base hits, six of them doubles throughout the game.

Stewart Lee hit his eighth homerun of the season and had a double, a single, and drove in four runs for Jax State. Chuck Wagner also drove in four as he hit two doubles and one single.

Chris Shumann pitched a complete game for JSU, while striking six and walking five. Shumann now has a 5-0 record on the year.

JSU's home opener came against Livingstone College, who had been the Gamecocks' season-opening opponent the past two years.

The Gamecocks will play a total of 10 games this year, playing nine conference contests before and open date. This year's schedule has only one open date, in comparison to two open dates last year. The reason for only one open date, according to Burgess, is the NCAA Division II playoffs will have more teams participating this fall and the season had to end a week earlier to provide an day for the extra games.

JSU, Bragg, and Livingston are traditional non-conference foes for Alabama A and M. The kickoff time for this game will be announced at a later date before the season starts.

Jax State plays all eight of its GSC foes this year, with home games against rival West Georgia, Mississippi College, North Alabama, and Troy State. Homecoming will be on October 15 against North Alabama at 2:00 p.m.

1988 football schedule announced

Jacksonville State's 1988 football schedule has been announced by the athletic department. There is only one change from the 1987 schedule, and that is the opener for the season opener.

The Gamecocks will renew an old rivalry with the Mountaineers when they open the season against Samford University on September 3 at Paul Snow Memorial Stadium. The series between Jax State and Samford has been a long-running one until Samford dropped football in the early 1970's. Samford revived the program in the early '80's, and this year they will move from Division III to Division II competition. Samford replaces Newberry College, who had been the Gamecocks' season-opening opponent the past two years.

The Gamecocks will play a total of 10 games this year, playing nine consecutive contests before and open date. This year's schedule has only one open date, in comparison to two open dates last year. The reason for only one open date, according to Burgess, is the NCAA Division II playoffs will have more teams participating this fall and the season had to end a week earlier to provide an extra day for the extra games.

JSU is scheduled to play eight home games, with its home opener against Samford University at 1:30 p.m.

the Year, Carter was selected to the women’s All-GSC team.
“...I think it is really good that I could come in here and make the All-GSC team my first year here,” said Carter, who transferred to JSU this year after a brilliant career at Snead State Junior College.
Carter, who was the kid that fired the Lady Gamecock squad, voiced some disappointment over not being named Player of the Year, despite averaging 24.5 points and 9.9
rebounds per game.
“I guess I’m just going to have to work harder next year,” said Carter.
“You can’t do much better than Shelley did for us this year,” said Coach Mathis. “I’ve always believed the most valuable player is the player who did the most for their team. I think Shelley did more for us than Shannon did for Valdosta, but Shannon is a great player.”
Hicks averaged 14.1 points and 9.1
rebounds per game for the Gamecocks this year. The only senior on the Gamecocks squad,
Hicks was second in the GSC in field goal percentage, hitting 64.5 percent from the field.
Delta State’s Kevin Dixon was named men’s Freshman of the Year, while UT-Martin’s Mike Meschede was named Player of the Year. Coach James Dominy of Valdosta State took the men’s Coach of the Year award.

newsworthy trends

Americans fifty-five and over feel they’re better off today than their parents were at the same point in their lives. A majority of seniors feel it’s important to plan financially. Here are four facts about senior citizens that should be of interest to both the elderly and those who hope to become elderly:

- More than 80 percent of people over 55 own their own home.
- According to the Johnson Wax Survey on the State of the American Home, the majority of senior citizens have health insurance.
- Seniors are more likely to hire household help than any other group. They spend less time, 8.3 hours a week, on home care than the average non-working woman, who spends 11.2 hours per week.
- It’s expected that in the 1990s, despite increased longevity and improved health conditions, most people will retire around age 62. Senior citizens’ affluence will allow them to pursue more leisure activities.
- Nearly one half of all seniors 55 and older have participated in physical fitness activities in the past year, as compared to almost two-thirds—65 percent—of the total sample. Those 55 and older who participate in physical activities do so frequently, about 14.4 times per month.
- More than 1,400 households responded to the survey, providing a representative sample of U.S. households. The survey covered the composition, care and maintenance of the home, as well as leisure time, personal finance and family goals.

“...No matter how bad they are,
Grandma loves to hear the latest jokes.”

You miss her sparkling sense of humor. She misses you and your jokes. Even the bad ones. That’s one good reason to call long distance. AT&T Long Distance Service is another good reason. Because it costs less that you think to hear your grandmothers laugh after you’ve just gotten to the punch line.

So whenever you miss her laughter, bring a smile to her face with AT&T Reach out and touch someone®
