*Review

Zip! Zap! Pow! Kaboom!

No, it wasn't a Batman rerun. It was Bob Hope and his stylized blend of one-liners, anecdotes and music.

The near-capacity Parents Day crowd laughed, clapped and cheered appreciatively as the octogenarian comedian talked about something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue.

One reason for Hope's enduring popularity has been his ability to cover a gamut of topics, with humor appealing to any age group.

He tells, for instance, many anecdotes about aging. "An elderly couple went to the doctor for check-ups," he said. "The doctor told the woman she was fine, but there would be no more sex for her husband. He slept on the sofa and she slept upstairs, but in the middle of the night he got up. Halfway up the stairs he met his wife. 'I was coming upstairs to die,' he said. 'I was coming downstairs to kill you,' she said."

An avid golfer, Hope opened his monologue with several minutes of discussion about the game. He said his favorite golf foursome included himself, "(former president) Gerald Ford, a paramedic and a faith healer."

A relatively new feature in his show is a musical number he does. He has several new choruses written to the tune of Bobby McFerrin's hit song, "Don't Worry, Be Happy." The verses, like the rest of his humor, were topical comments on world events. They covered, among other things, the trials of Zsa Zsa Gabor and Jim Bakker.

Music is a big part of his show. He typically has a female singer open for him. In this case, female vocalist Debbie Worley opened the show. Later into the evening, Hope brings the vocalist back onstage and performs his "ladykiller" act.

While Worley sang "Help Me Make It Through the Night," Hope interjected comments.

The next musical selection was a musical tribute to the 50 states, and then Hope sang one of the songs that is considered his trademark, "Buttons and Bows." The song was featured in the movie Paleface, one of the more than 60 films he starred in.

Hope closed the show in typical fashion, singing "Thanks for the Memories."

After the show, Hope was presented with a lithograph from the Alumni Association and with a Gamecock jersey and baseball cap by JSU President Harold McGee.

Reporters discuss freedom of the press

By ELIZABETH LIXEY
Staff Writer

"The U.S. Constitution's First Amendment...does not guarantee free press." Mike Stedham, business writer for the Anniston Star, asked the audience to think about that during a press conference hosted by Sigma Delta Chi.

Twenty-nine members and guests attended the professional journalism society's second meeting to hear and ask questions of three Star reporters.

Robyn Eoff, associate professor of communication, introduced Stedham, who then introduced Jenny Labalme, staff writer for Cherokee County and Piedmont, and Mike Dorning, health writer.

Each reporter talked briefly about working in countries that do not have freedom of the press and about their own experience and views on the First Amendment.

The First Amendment states,

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; of abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press."

Labalme discussed her experiences as an American journalist in Mexico for about 18 months.

"There is no free press. Journalists are regarded with great skepticism and, even worse, there are a lot of journalists that were killed or are killed for being outspoken," she said.

"Last year, out of 28 journalists killed worldwide in 12 countries, there were four that were killed in Mexico, and of those four, three were killed for their outspokenness on drugs or the government."

She went on to say the government monopolizes the media, pays for ads and prepares articles for publication.

"There are no open records laws the way there are in the United States; there's no freedom of information acts," Labalme said. Unfortunately, the public is not informed as to how much they are controlled.

Dorning worked in three democratic foreign countries: New Zealand, Great Britain and Ireland. He explained neither New Zealand or Britain have any right of free expression, right of free speech or right of freedom of the press because they do not have any written constitution.

"The advantage of an unwritten constitution is its flexibility; it's also its great disadvantage," he said.

"In these countries which all have the same sort of tradition of freedom and skepticism as America," he says, "you see the same sort of dilemmas that American reporters face all the time: questions of national security versus freedom of the press, questions of right to fair trial versus freedom of the press, questions of defamation versus freedom of the press and questions of creating a good image of the government which helps create public order versus freedom of the press."

Dorning further explained that, because these countries lack a formal constitution protecting the right of freedom of the press, these questions are always decided against the press.

Stedham repeated his opening comment and added, "It does guarantee that the government can't make a law that would abridge the freedom of the press...but even with that strong legal statement it's not an absolute doctrine."

He discussed how even though there are few legal areas where the press does not have total freedom, there are many times the freedom is not exercised.

"Journalistically correct decisions

Girls should avoid 'JOE SCUM'

I live in one of the University residence halls (that's what we call our dorms if you're new to JSU). In these halls you see many things, you hear many things and you smell many things.

One thing I hear bothers me. It is the way many of the guys talk about the women they know.

Now this isn't true of all the men in the hall. Just a few seem determined to be as crude and obscene as they can when it comes to talking about women or even their own girlfriends. Here is a typical conversation:

"Hey, man! Did you see that $%@#& and her #*@$%? I wish I could *&@# and *#@#, so I told her hey let's #$$@ and **&%. @#$$, *&#% and *#$$@!"

It seems women are treated like objects. While this is not a new argument, we need to be reminded of it from time to time. As incredible as it might seem, women have feelings and thoughts of their own. If anything, they can be too trusting. Most men feel a woman will believe anything. Simply put, many men think women are to be used and then discarded.

Even though a man might be trying to use a woman, it is the woman's responsibility to stick up for herself. Be up front with men. Let them know right off what you want and how you feel. Women don't have to sit around and take it. If you have the attitude you know what's going on and remember that it's okay to tell a guy to buzz off, you'll be okay.

Todd Freshwater

Many women feel having any boyfriend is better than none at all. They feel they can't do any better, so they stay with "Joe Scum" and end up miserable or worse. Well, how can you find another boyfriend if you're still dating Mr. Scum? Remember, if you don't have a steady guy, you're not a bad or ugly person. Just be patient.

It would be nice if men treated women with respect and women were up front with their guys, but a lot of the time this just doesn't happen.

There are plenty of Mr. -- and Ms. -- Scum out there. Be careful and don't get burned.

SGA members attend conference

By LEE HUTTO

How does the Student Government Association decide on the entertainment to be brought to campus?

This question was answered at the National Association for Campus Activities' Southeast Regional Conference, which JSU co-hosted.

Nine members of the SGA, along with Sherryl Byrd, director of student activities, attended the session at the Ramada Inn Conference Center and the Birmingham-Jefferson Civic Center in Birmingham.

For three days, Sept. 28 through Oct. 1, senators and officers saw various entertainers. Novice and professional groups performed for 20 to 30 minutes, each showcasing their talents. Comedians, lecturers and dancers all presented themselves, while groups such as Liqueed Pleasure, JQ and the Bandits, The Maxx and the Topcats kept the delegates dancing.

Early morning shows consisted of lectures, including one by Pu

President's Perspective

Byrd does 'outstanding job' of coordinating Parents Day

As expected, Parent's Day was a tremendous success. Bob Hope was fantastic and all of the other activities went very well. Congratulations to Sherryl Byrd on her outstanding job of coordinating this year's Parent's Day. We also appreciate her support of the SGA.

Homecoming Queen elections are Tuesday on the 4th floor of TMB (near the SGA Office). Along with Homecoming elections, we will conduct a poll rating student preferences toward the WLJS (92J) music format. We encourage the student body to participate. We are proud of our outstanding Homecoming Queen contestants. Good luck to each of you!!

One week from today, Expose' and Tone Loc will be at JSU's Pete Mathews Coliseum in concert at 8:00 p.m. We are expecting an outstanding show. Buy your tickets now. There will be no admittance without a ticket.

Tonight we will be sponsoring Club JSU. We hope that this new concept in campus entertainment is a success. Admission is free.

Saturday, The Gamecocks take on the UNA Lions in a traditional GSC rivalry. Good luck Gamecocks!! Congratulations on your perfect record. Keep it up!!

Congratulations to the Lady Gamecock Volleyball

Also, congratulations to the 88-89 Gamecock basketball team. On Saturday, they received their much deserved Final Four Rings. We are looking forward to another great basketball season.

The SGA Senator of the week is Chris Cothran. Chris is the SGA Publicity Chairman. He is a sophomore from Gadsden and a very committed senator.

Due to an error, last week's column stated that October 7th was Homecoming--we apologize and look forward to a fantastic Homecoming on, of course, October 21.

In the afternoon Don Reed, Anthony Clark, Mario Joyner and Henry Cho were some of the comedians who kept the audience laughing.

Through a careful process of elimination, the delegates decided which performers would best suit JSU's entertainment needs. Arlene Jenkins, SGA vice president, then attended cooperative meetings to sign the group's rosters as official possibilities and to converse with agents on schedules, prices and needs.

The co-op meetings are designed to acquire the services of performers at the lowest rate possible. Schools located close to each other would work together to book performers soon after their neighbors, thereby keeping expenses to a minimum.

Stedham said he feels exercising the freedom many times causes financial problems for the newspaper.

"Newspaper is a business, and all newspapers, regardless of size, are affected by angry advertisers threatening to pull their financial support," he said.

"If we don't exercise freedom of the press we don't have it," said Stedham.

IS ENROLLING IN ARMY ROTC DIFFERENT FROM ENLISTING?

Few times are you given the chance to try something for two years without obligation. Army ROTC is one of them.

Your freshman and sophomore years are an introduction into the life of an Army officer. You'll attend classes that are taught by full-time Army officers who'll train you to become a leader. Teach you ethics. Land navigation. Small unit tactics. And help you develop the initiative to take charge.

You don't have to make a commitment until your junior year. If you do decide to become an officer in the United States Army, you'll receive advanced training in the leadership skills it takes to succeed.

And when you graduate, you'll have earned an Army Lieutenant's gold bar as well as a college degree. With this competitive edge, you can increase your chances for success either in a civilian career while fulfilling your commitment in the U.S. Army Reserve or National Guard, or as a career officer in the active Army.

Army ROTC. You can try it out for two years, but if you stick with it, the payback can last a lifetime.

BUT WHO'S GOING TO PAY FOR COLLEGE?

With the job market as tough as it is, you'd love to have the advantage of a college degree. But how are you going to pay for it?

Army ROTC can provide you with tuition (a two, three or four year scholarship) and a monthly allowance of $100 if you qualify and join Army ROTC on your campus. You'll get a lot more out of it than just the opportunity to go to college.

You'll acquire skills that will stay with you for life and get real management experience before you graduate. Just a few hours a week in classes taught by full-time Army Officers and you'll learn everything from land navigation to the ethics of leadership.

When you graduate, you'll have earned an Army Lieutenant's gold bar as well as a college degree. With this competitive edge, you can increase your chances for success either in a civilian career while fulfilling your commitment in the U.S. Army Reserve or National Guard, or as a career officer in the active Army.

Campus and city 'trashed' almost every weekend

Last weekend ended the way so many other weekends in this town do.

Driving through town, one could look left or right, straight ahead or straight back, and see the same thing.

Trash.

Parking lots are littered with deflated balloons and empty candy wrappers. Fraternity house lawns are covered with cups and cans. Campus grounds are defaced by discarded bags, torn tickets, newspapers, food containers and cigarette packs.

The campus and the city look like what a lot of people obviously think they are.

Dumps.

This is so sad.

The city of Jacksonville is rich with history and heritage. The town square is a showcase spot for the city, with a beautiful fountain, trees and many historical markers detailing the beginnings of this area.

But drive by the square on a Sunday morning, especially after a home game. Chances are there will be cups in the grass and trash in the fountain.

Then there is the campus.

Our campus is so pretty. Take a walk during the week and you will likely see birds in the trees and lots of squirrels running around. Take a walk on the weekend and you'll also see lots of refuse lying around.

The thing that makes this so frustrating is that unlike many other problems in the world, this one has a simple solution.

Just don't litter.

It's as easy as that.

Close look at Watley shows discrepancies

By MIKE LIVINGSTON
Editorial Writer

James K. Watley is running in the 1990 election for governor, and before last week he was relatively unknown in Alabama.

Then two weeks ago he witnessed the killing of Robert Moussallem, a convicted felon who had claimed the FBI was trying to frame the mayor of Birmingham, and suddenly he is in the limelight.

Watley is a Republican candidate for governor and he may be the strangest person to hit the political scene since we saw Fob James portrayed as a frog in a Graddick television ad.

His campaign started on Flag Day, June 14, with a large flag. Perhaps this will be his platform.

The Associated Press has done a check of Watley and his resume, and it looks as if it is based more in fiction than in fact.

First, he took eight years off his age. He is really 68 years old. He also claimed to go to college in California at a place called Williams College that he said folded after he graduated. The State Department of Education in California said the school was never accredited. A suit filed in 1976 alleges the school was a diploma mill. The address of the school was a post-office box.

This is not really a good background if you think having a good education is important for our next governor.

He also claimed graduate work at the University of Alabama in Birmingham. UAB claimed not to have any records that showed he had gone to class there.

He also has said he was a prisoner of war during World War II, and the Army doesn't have him listed in its official book of POWs. He was able to produce a letter from a Maj. Gen. Ulio telling his mother he had been captured in France in 1944. This seemed to be legitimate, while his education seemed to be rather questionable.

Watley has had more wives than some people have had dates. His seventh wife filed suit against J. Hoyett Goggins, accusing him of damaging her car. Goggins is a friend of Watley's that was with him when Moussallem was shot in the face.

Now maybe all of these items don't make a total picture of this individual, but there is just too much coming out about him to ignore. After all, this is the state's highest office and that should be important to the voters of the state of Alabama.

Last week he didn't seem sure if he had watched Moussallem get shot, but he better get his act together since the FBI seemed to be really interested in working with Moussallem on some cases he may have had evidence on in Birmingham. The FBI tends to get upset when people they want information from die in a violent fashion.

It makes one wonder how anyone with this background would think he could be our next governor.

For what it's worth

will return next week

Parking less serious than statistics show

By ANGIE JOHNSON
Guest Columnist

It seems many students at JSU feel we have a parking problem. We are zoned according to whether we are students or faculty and staff. As students, we have a restricted zone in which we are expected to park. Parking in another zone usually nets a parking fine.

JSU has a moderate-size campus in comparison to others in the area or state with the same number of students. There are approximately 8,000 students currently enrolled at JSU according to the University Police Department. At present, there are a little more than 5,000 parking spaces available to students. As of Sept. 27, 5,335 parking decals had been sold to students.

Without taking anything into consideration, these figures represent a problem in parking. Out of the number of decals sold, about 5,000 students are guaranteed parking if everyone parks in the proper zone. This leaves about 300 students without parking spaces. When only looking at statistics, we see the number of students enrolled at JSU exceeds the number of parking spaces available.

What we may not realize is not all students have cars on campus. For those who do, approximately one-fourth choose to walk from their on-campus housing to class.

Some students purchase more than one decal. Some may have more than one car that will be driven to campus, especially commuters. When these two facts alone are considered, the parking problem may become smaller in our minds.

Compared to other schools, JSU does not have a real problem. Georgia Tech, a university of approximately the same number of students as JSU, may have a problem in our eyes. Parking decals cost $90 per year and zones for students are about the distance we would walk from Bibb Graves to Stone Center. Georgia Tech students should have healthy cardiovascular systems from all the walking they do.

Our parking decals cost $10 per year and our parking spaces are within one-half block of our classes, even under crowded, unusual circumstances.

Another university solved crowded parking by zoning students according to classification. At Auburn University, students are zoned according to their rank. Freshmen park in the F zone, sophomores and juniors park in the D zone and seniors park in the C zone. The A and B zone is reserved for faculty, staff and graduate students. The C, D and F zones are approximately one mile from any classrooms on campus. There are, of course, twice the number of students there than at JSU, but the available parking spaces are about the same.

If we really do have a big problem, maybe zones ranked according to classifications would solve it, but we do not really have a serious problem. If every student had a class at the same time every day, then we would see a problem in our parking situation. However, it is not that way. Students have classes at different times and there are usually parking spaces within a reasonable distance to buildings where we have classes.

Let's face it, parking is not the best at any university. Our parking problem, or the availability of parking spaces, is actually not that bad. At certain times, it may seem that there are no spaces anywhere, but there are. We may just have to look to find them and we may even have to walk a little to get to class, but everyone can benefit from that.

Letters to the editor

Reader contradicts Cypert's opinion again

Dear Editor:

Once again I'd like to contradict what one of your readers expressed in the opinion column (Sept. 28).

Victor Cypert's statement that pot growing "represents that American free enterprise system" is patently absurd. He should be censured for such a fatuous remark. Everyone knows that marijuana cultivation is a clandestine, illegal activity, and therefore highly profitable; but such a covert operation most assuredly couldn't be considered free enterprise.

Furthermore, Mr. Cypert seems to be confused as to the meaning of symbol. Webster defines it as "an object standing for or representing something else; an emblem." Our flag is a symbol, sir, but our constitution is not -- it stands for exactly what it says it stands for.

Finally, after dismissing the police as "closet commies" and George Bush as a mindless idiot, this emphatic letter writer proposes to equate the anti-war demonstration at Kent State with a violent rebellion in China. He asks, "Do you know what happened there?" (at Kent State). What did happen there, Mr. Cypert? You didn't elaborate. You assumed that everyone would see the comparison. Whatever it was, I feel sure that it wasn't of the magnitude and global proportions that characterized the recent insurrection in China.

Just guessing, I'd say that the laws of this land have "strangled his mind so much that he can no longer think for himself."

President must wake up

Dear Editor:

When will the president wake up to reality? He continues to purchase another unneeded nuclear weapon system of mass destruction, the B-2 Stealth bomber, at a final cost of more than $500 million per plane. Meanwhile, across the nation and the world, people are dying in a ravaging AIDS epidemic. Surely by cancelling the B-2 and other nuclear weapon systems enough money would be freed to find cures for AIDS, most cancer and probably feed and shelter the homeless, and still go a long way toward balancing the budget.

The FDA must wake up to reality also. While people die of AIDS here in America, other AIDS sufferers elsewhere are being saved with AIDS drugs which the FDA stubbornly delays testing and approval of, not to mention making it illegal to manufacture, prescribe and possess them.

The FDA must wake up and cease its anti-humane AIDS policy immediately.

The Supreme Court must wake up to reality also and recognize that the true marriage bond is the strong love and mutual sharing relationship bond and not a piece of paper.

It must recognize this and the need to grant nothing less than full, human, civil and economic rights and privileges, regardless of sexual preferences in such relationships.

I urge everyone to wake up the president, Supreme Court, FDA and Congress by sending them copies of this letter.

Let's all do our part and make a donation to an AIDS charity also.

Evacuation troubling

Dear Editor:

Recently, I was in my algebra class in Martin Hall when someone came to the door and informed my instructor of a bomb threat in the building. Of course, we hurriedly left the building. Several aspects of the evacuation bothered me.

Students and faculty members stood within 30 yards of the building. Had an explosion occurred, many could have been injured or even killed because of their nearness to the building.

Second, University Police officers swept the building in less than 25 minutes and everyone returned to their respective places in the building. Twenty-five minutes seems hardly enough time to search for a bomb in a building.

Now admittedly, the bomb threat was probably from a student who was trying to dodge an exam, or perhaps was angry at a professor and trying to "get back" at that professor. As was the case in Martin and Stone Center recently, the bomb threat was a false alarm. However, what if the threat was real? What if there had been an explosion? What if lives were harmed or taken as a result of a bomb explosion? What if the campus police overlooked a bomb in the building?

Threats of any kind should be taken seriously. It appears to me the administration didn't take these threats very seriously, thus jeopardizing the lives of faculty, staff and students.

Yours truly,
Keith McCullough

Traffic hazardous

Dear Editor:

Several times a day traffic backs up on Pelham Drive as students cross on two crosswalks, without the aid of a traffic light, on their way to class.

Jacksonville residents are aware of the student crossings. They impatiently wait for the crossings to clear. But what of the out-of-town motorist? The crossings may take him completely by surprise.

Is there a need to risk the life of a student? Would it not be possible to erect elevated walkways on crossings without traffic lights?

For the safety of the students and relief of traffic congestion, might this action be considered?

JSU vanity tags promote Gamecock pride

By ERIC MACKEY
Features Writer

Promoting JSU is one thing the University's Alumni Association is very big on. One program it is currently promoting is the sale of JSU "vanity tags." The car tags not only publicize Gamecock pride, but also help put students through school.

An extra fee of $50 above the normal price is put on each tag. The extra money is almost entirely diverted to the JSU General Scholarship Fund. The money is then administered by the University Scholarship Committee, even though the Alumni Association is the main push behind the so-called tags.

Financially, the tags have already been profitable for the school. "We're doing pretty good as of now," said Pete Brooks, director of the Alumni Association. "We've received a check for $2096.25."

The check came from the state department and is the University's share of the sale of 42 tags in 11 counties.

The Alumni Association originally purchased 1,000 tags -- meaning they put up the money for the manufacturing of that many tags. Of those tags, they reserved the 125 lowest numbers for key University officials and alumni. JSU President Harold McGee received tag No. 1. Other low-numbered tags were reserved for the Board of Trustees and for vice presidents.

Of course, the main objective of the Association is to get the tags out to students and alumni. "We've got a lot of emphasis on the street," Brooks said in reference to the mailouts and publicity campaign currently underway.

The tags can be bought at local courthouses or wherever one would normally buy tags. However, some county offices do not have the tags in stock; others have only a few. The tags were distributed according to population of JSU students and alumni. Eleven Alabama counties have no JSU alumni.

Still, if a student from one of these counties wants a tag, he needs to contact the Alumni Association and it will send the tag to any county in Alabama.

Student interest is something the association is depending on to sell the tags. Brooks said he hopes all students will consider purchasing the tag. After all, owners can transfer the tag from car to car for years to come.

In fact, some students have already purchased tags. One such student is Art Patin, a graduate student and resident assistant in Dixon Hall. "When I went down to the commission...in Anniston, I was going to get a regular tag," Patin said. Having heard of the JSU "brag tag", though, Patin asked to see one. "I loved it," he said.

Dr. McGee's tag

Patin gave several reasons for purchasing a tag. The first reason is just plain old school pride. "Being an alumnus, I feel good about contributing to the University," he said. Another reason he said he chose the tag is because of his Army status. Though Patin will be traveling out of state soon, he can keep his tag as long as he maintains state residence.

Alabama residence is required for the tag.

Another positive aspect for the tag is the purchaser's choice of number.

Brooks said he believes the first reason to buy the tags is to support the scholarship fund, but it is also an excellent image builder for JSU.

Cable television and microcomputers 'hatch' new life form

By DACIA DORRIES
College Press
Service

There are 2,900 students at Mansfield University in Pennsylvania, but not many of them are venturing out to join student activities any more. They aren't getting as far from their residence hall rooms as the television lounge.

They are, some college officials believe, harbingers of a new breed of student being hatched nationwide, the accidental result of the arrival of cable television and microcomputers on America's campuses: the "room rat."

"Numbers of students who stay in their rooms -- room rats -- seem to be on the rise," said Joseph A. Maresco, MU's vice president for student affairs.

Other well-wired campuses report similar problems getting students away from their residence hall room computers and MTV and out to join intramurals, student government and other activities, but they seem to be taking it less seriously than Mansfield is.

Mansfield's problem began in 1987, when it became the first campus in Pennsylvania's 14-member State System of Higher Education to install cable television hookups in each room. The rooms also connect students to voice mail and the university's mainframe computer system.

Last year an estimated 35 percent of MU's 800 residence hall residents brought a television with them, and a smaller number brought their computers with them, too.

The result was the birth of a room rat.

"We first noticed the impact in the television lounges," Maresco said. "They used to be the focal point for students. All of a sudden they weren't. Then we noticed there wasn't the same degree of interaction among students on each floor."

Deb Nowicki, a resident adviser at Mansfield, noticed her students' behavior changed, though not as severely as Maresco claimed.

"They more or less stay on the floor, but they do get out of their rooms," she said.

"This is a sign of things to come," Maresco said. "It's inevitable that many campuses will face this phenomenon in the future because students are basically the same everywhere."

Already, cable television is in high demand among students. The universities of Miami, Oklahoma, Arizona, Kentucky, South Carolina, Michigan and West Florida, as well as Stanford and Marquette universities, among scores of others, have brought cable programming to students in recent years.

Others, like Clarkson University, Stevens Institute of Technology and Texas A&M University have, like Mansfield, re-wired their residence halls to let students plug their computers into campus-wide networks.

Yet few have noticed -- or will admit to noticing -- that the new technologies may have changed students' social habits.

"There will always be that percentage of students who won't come out (of their residence hall rooms)," said Bob Clay, University of Kentucky's residence hall director.

At Northwest Missouri State University, which claims to be "the first electronic campus" in the U.S., "there are some reports that students are spending a great deal of time in their rooms on the computer," said Dean of Students Phil Hayes.

"But if it wasn't there, they'd be doing the same thing in the library," Hayes said.

Students also don't seem too alarmed by the phenomenon.

Mansfield sophomore Matt Watkins said, "You can just walk by (a residence hall room) and hear a television and four or five people. But there are enough other things to do than just sit and watch television."

NMSU students can use their residence hall computers to write, communicate on an electronic mail system, read the student newspaper and consult an encyclopedia and dictionary, but "students don't spend a lot of time in their rooms," said NMSU sophomore Greg Thompson.

"I would hope, though, that if (a room rat) pattern is emerging, an RA would identify the person so that someone could talk to him," Hayes said.

At the same time, the university doesn't have much of a right to tell students that they can't spend time in their room, said Hayes.

"If they say, 'I really prefer to stay in my room,' there isn't much we can do about it."

In fact, there isn't much negative about staying in one's room, said Michael Cunningham, a social psychology professor at the University of Louisville.

"It's clear that somebody who avoids people has problems," Cunningham said. Yet if a student is hacking on residence hall room computers in pursuit of good grades, he or she "is making a wise choice that probably should be emulated."

Besides, Cunningham added, students probably are "getting social stimulation through electronic mail."

Marquette University researchers Bill McCartney and Dennis Jones monitored 248 students to see if cable television affected their grades in 1988-89, and found there was no decrease in grade-point averages even among students who watched more than 20 hours a week of television.

To be on the safe side, however, Cunningham said room rats "should be taking lots of vitamin C because they aren't outdoors enough."

Maresco said Mansfield is trying to draw room rats out of their residence halls by selling campus activities harder to them.

Rodney Andrews, student government president at Mansfield, said the aggressive programming is working. Last semester, nearly 300 students went out for intramural volleyball, he said.

"You just have to try harder," Maresco said. "We're in the marketing business now. We can't just schedule any old activity and expect students to show up."

The last word

Experience the thrill of 'Defeat'

Part of the territory of being a writer is putting up with all the glitz and glamour of the "Hollywood" style of life. Probably the biggest chunk of that territory is supplementing your income through endorsements.

Well, I'm happy to announce that I have signed a contract with a major shoe company to endorse its latest line of shoes, which are named after me. The first commercial for my new "Air Matt" tennis shoes is slated to air sometime this week.

The company that manufactures "Air Matt" tennis shoes, Tree Bark (pronounced Tree Bok with a silent T) came to me a few months ago with a great idea for a new line of shoes.

Tree Bark execs wanted to market a line of shoes for the 20-to-30-year-old, overweight, loud-mouthed, worried-about-premature-balding, know-it-all, arm-chair-quarterback-type of male. Naturally, they thought of me as the spokesman for their dream.

I thought it was an excellent idea. The pay was right (a new pair of shoes every six months was a deal I just couldn't turn down), and Hey! they named them after me.

So, the contracts were drawn up, my shoes were delivered and pre-production began on the commercial.

Before I was to go through the actual filming, though, I wanted to test the shoes on my own and make sure I wouldn't be misleading the public. That's just the kind of guy I am.

When I removed them from the box, I thought I was in heaven. The shoes were aerodynamic in design, with a six-inch foam sole for extra support of the big man. They were bright, bright, almost French's mustard yellow in color, with the "Air Matt" logo emblazoned on the side in brown. The laces were the most beautiful color of green I have ever seen.

I fondled my babies, gingerly placing them on my feet. It felt as if I had a one-foot thick insulation of mashed potatoes to walk on. They were beautiful, indeed. But what really sold me, though, was the factory applied layer of anti-fungal creme in the bottom. I'm talking shoe perfection, here.

Anyway, after satisfying myself with the product, I

Matt Brooks
Features
Editor

gave the commercial the go-ahead. It's the most exciting, creative commercial I have ever witnessed. Even though I'm not supposed to say anything about it until air-time, I can't help myself.

The commercial starts with the logo "Cross-Training by Matt Brooks" printed on a black background. The first scene shows me sitting next to Lewis Grizzard at his desk in Atlanta. Lewis says "Matt knows writing."

The next scene shows me sitting in a sleek Bass-craft with Bill Dance, who is wearing that same old God-forsaken Tennessee hat. Bill says, "Matt knows fishing," as I reel in a two-ounce crappie.

From there we cut to McDonald's, where Ronald McDonald is seated next to me in a booth. My tray is piled with hamburgers, french fries and soft drinks. Ronald watches me devour a few burgers, and then says, "Matt knows hamburgers."

In the next scene, I'm strolling down a golden beach, with a golden blonde on each arm. Don Johnson walks up, looks at the girls and me, and says "Naaah!" He walks away with the girls.

The final scene, and my personal favorite, shows me on stage with the Stones in concert. I'm belting out "I can't get no satisfaction" when Mick Jagger's lips (okay, this is partly animated) come across the stage and eat my microphone. "Matt," the lips say, "You don't know (beep)!"

After this last scene, the phrase "Just do it" is shown on a black screen.

Is that advertising or what? Already, projected sales are topping the 200 mark. We've started work on another commercial, too. I've been sworn to secrecy on this one, but Hey, Vern, it's a free world.

Delta Chi

Congratulations to Wade Wilson of University Apartments. He was the winner of our pair of Rolling Stones concert tickets. We hope you enjoyed yourself at the concert, and thanks for your support.

Homecoming is next week, and we hope everyone takes part in all of the festivities. We are very much looking forward to an exciting week.

"Back to Nature Bash" is slated for the weekend of Oct. 28. This event is one of our best for the fall semester.

Ponder of the Week: Big Al, what's your secret?

Sigma Nu

Love is the topic at the Sigma Nu house. Chuck "Former Whaler" Barnes did get lavaliered to Teresa Lee. Oh, love is so sweet.

By the time you read this, the grill should have been returned -- only one-half year late. Congratulations to John "cause that fumble" Carver for being chosen Athlete of the Week for his blocking against Kappa Alpha.

Quote of the Week: "You know you're in synch with the universe if all of the lights you see are green."

Delta Zeta

We would like to extend congratulations to Amy Henderson on her nomination for the Grace Mason Lundy Award. Good luck, and we love you. Congratulations also go to Sandy Norwood for her candle-lighting to announce her engagement.

Good luck to our homecoming candidates. They are Donna Messer, Robyn Vaughn, Cathy Wallace, Gina Moses, Teresa McCloud and Beckie Orr.

We would like to wish alumnae Jenny Wright and David Scott good luck in Florence. Congrats Jenny; take care of that pin.

Watch out pledges and sisters; Pledge Retreat is coming.

Alpha Xi Delta

Congratulations to Susan Brock. She recently was lavaliered by Kappa Sigma's Quint Cook. Also, Shannon Doolin was lavaliered by Pi Kappa Phi's Craig Hess. Congratulations, Shannon.

Congratulations to Anne Hubbard for being chosen as Sister of the Week and to Donalyn Hodges as Pledge of the Week. Keep up the great work.

Question of the Week: What do Lucille Ball, Edith Bunker and Tonya Morgan have in common? Sing it, tweet.

Alpha Kappa Alpha

Don't forget "AKA Homecoming Jam" coming up in October at the Montgomery Building. T-shirts can be purchased before the Homecoming party from any sorority member. Hurry, and place your order now before it is too late.

Mr. Jade pageant is on its way. Contestants can receive information from any member. We would like to thank the ATOs for inviting us to their sorority appreciation party.

Happy birthday this month to Robin Harris and Jennifer Burroughs. Sorry, Cordelia; her name was left out as our newly-elected treasurer.

Question of the Week: Who will come out with a new song first -- M.C. Hammer or Michael Jackson?

Student Organization for Deaf Awareness

Our Hearing Screening Fair was a great success. We tested 92 people. Many thanks to the Delta Zetas, who offered much-appreciated support.

Plans are in the works for our upcoming camping trip to Gatlinburg. Let's hope for great weather.

We are always looking for new members. We came from a few two years ago to almost forty now. Anyone interested in learning sign language, getting to know JSU's deaf students and having fun is invited to join us. Call the office of the Post Secondary Program for Sensory Impaired at 231-5093 for information.

Nurses Christian Fellowship

Oct. 2 our meeting was opened by prayer requests of those in attendance. Alice Anderson, area director, was the guest speaker. The topic was hope in relation to suffering. To give hope to patients is an essential part of nursing. Scripture was read, and the meeting was closed in prayer with acknowledgment of prayer requests.

Those in attendance were Karen Searcy, Gennie Hitt, Jilda Reynolds, Debra Oliver, Lee Williams, Portia Foster, Sarah Latham and Alice Anderson. The next meeting will be at 11:15 a.m. on Monday in 241 Wallace Hall. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Society for Advancement of Management

We recently hosted a presentation on executive stress. Sept. 28 David Cunningham, a counselor from the Career Development and Counseling Services office, talked to members on various topics dealing with stress in the work place. He described various causes of stress and gave methods to help alleviate it.

The next meeting will be at 4 p.m. Oct. 26 in 250 Merrill Building. All interested students are invited to attend.

Social Work Club

We are looking forward to a fun-filled and exciting school year. We would like to thank everyone who attended our first meeting.

We like to congratulate our member on their new offices. They are Steve Hammonds, president; Stacey Helton, vice president; Segun Freeman, secretary; Sharon Mizell, treasurer; Jackie Trask, project chairman; Susan Cole, long-term project coordinator; Sonya Odem and Mishia Burns, short-term project coordinators; Rodney Witt, publicity chairperson; and Chuck Mathis, social chairperson.

We would also like to thank our advisers, Becky Turner and Donna Smith, for the enormous amount of time they have given the organization.

We would like to invite everyone who is interested in joining the club. It is not limited to social work majors.

Campus Critic

Did she really 'ask for it'?

A 22-year-old woman is abducted at knifepoint and raped. Later, she reports the crime and is put through some very unpleasant tests at the local hospital. The police ask her questions and study physical evidence until they find the suspect.

The police arrest the man and smile while they think of the punishment that this jerk is going to get. The young woman breathes a sigh of relief knowing that her attacker will be locked up and serving time for his cruel crime.

The case goes to court. Rape suspect Steven Lord is acquitted because a three-man, three-woman jury in Fort Lauderdale deemed the victim's clothing too provocative. Did I make this story up? Absolutely not. This jury's recent decision has enraged sex assault counselors, women's groups and - I would guess - anyone hearing this absurd ruling.

The young woman was wearing a lace mini-skirt with no underwear. This is rather provocative attire. But, does it give a man permission to pull a knife on the woman and rape her? I don't care if she's walking around naked; she is a U.S. citizen and has the right to say "no". Did the jury just forget that Lord pulled a knife on his victim? I guess they think that if a woman is wearing provocative clothes she not only wants sex, but she wants some violence also.

One of the jurors was quoted in USA Today as saying: "She was absolutely dressed for a good time." I don't know about you, but getting a knife pulled on me and being forced to do something against my will doesn't sound like a "good time" to me. Another juror said, "She asked for it." If she was asking for it, why did Lord have to use a knife?

Well, rapists -- don't get any ideas; this insanity won't last long. As soon as an appeal begins, Lord will be behind bars. I hope the jury will be tested and will only be allowed to serve on the jury if they have higher than last jury's IQ.

I wish I could move to Fort Lauderdale and be put on that new jury. I would recommend that Mr. Lord's underwear be taken away, and he be sent one-way to downtown San Francisco where a healthy, 250-pound man with a knife would be waiting for him.

Eli stormed into Brother's recently and the members were greeted by a packed house of screaming fans.

The standing-room-only crowd knew the show was about to begin as an introduction track and fog machines kicked on. With their return came a new line-up of members -- David Bolen, lead singer; Will Hunt, drums; Glenn Maxey, bass; Kelly Love, guitar; and Jo Jo Costenaro, keyboards.

These dynamite musicians took to the stage as the fog cleared, playing favorites old and new plus several originals -- "Give Me All Your Loving" from Whitesnake, Def Leppard's "Animal," "Jumping Jack Flash" by the Rolling Stones, the Cult's "Weapons Of Love," and their own "Lonely In Love" and "Long Tall Baby Doll."

Eli's future plans include having an album out by spring.

Contraband

The Louisiana band brings mix of songs to Jacksonville

Contraband brought their own mix of songs, from covers by XTC, The Replacements, Cowboy Junkies and Blondie to an introductory bit from the Beatles' "Help." This led into "The One I love" by R.E.M. plus their own "Building A Bomb," "So Far To Go," "Never Get Your Way," "Big Old Farm" and several others.

These are just a small sample of about 35 original songs this Baton Rouge, La., -based band has written.

Contraband has been together two years and members are: Randy Poche, guitar and vocal; Monique Bourgeois, keyboards and lead vocals; Scott Achord, bass; and Tommy Foil, drums.

Contraband say many groups influence their music. Among these are The Who, R.E.M., U2, Pink Floyd, The Kinks, XTC and Dire Straits. They hope to play here again before long. Until then they do have a mailing list (address when made available).

Watch for this band. They put on a "happening" show.

Club JSU

SGA transforms The Roost

By BUBBA SMITH
Staff Writer

There was no Julie Brown, and the dancers were hardly professional. But during Orientation 89, the modest Roost Snack Bar was transformed into the vibrant, thundering Club JSU.

During the six sessions, peer counselors set up and directed all activities for Club JSU. "Club JSU was created as a part of summer Orientation," Director of Student Activities Alice Mayes said. "It started out as a take-off of 'Club MTV.'

"One of our peer counselors - Darryl Graham - really thought of this idea. We also decided to include games, giveaways, contests and videos as a part of this evening entertainment for the incoming freshmen," Mayes said.

She said it seemed to be one of the more successful components of Orientation. "It was very, very positive. The attendance was good, and the students stayed," Mayes said. "On a few occasions, we just had to turn the music off and get students to leave. It served the purpose we wanted ... introducing students to a bit of the social life at JSU."

Following summer orientation, Mayes was approached by the Student Government Association in an effort to produce Club JSU throughout the school year. "Several administrators were involved in the discussion and were very supportive of it," she said.

Many of the peer counselors who originally helped with Club JSU have continued to support it. "I think it went great because it gave them an opportunity to be around each other more than any other activity we did during the day," peer counselor Donna Taylor said. "It was a time to get to know people. So many freshmen have the edge of knowing what Club JSU is all about, and I think it will do real well if it is advertised enough."

Orientation Student Director

Cyndi Owens believes if students will come out to Club JSU, they will have a good time. "Aside from advertising, the SGA should make a special effort to invite groups ... fraternities, sororities, clubs and organizations on campus," she said. "The more groups that attend, the more individuals they will have."

And, Owens said, Club JSU will more than likely resurface in some form in next year's program. "It

Director of Student Activities Sherryl Byrd said several of the SGA officers liked the success of Club JSU during summer orientation and wanted to continue it throughout the school year. "One of the SGA (executive) officers was a peer counselor," she said. "Several universities are moving toward a club on campus. "During the year, the SGA will probably do it once a month during the school year. I think it's a good option for some on-campus entertainment," Byrd said. "I hope students who are interested will support it so it won't die out."

The next Club JSU is scheduled to begin after the pep rally tonight in The Roost. The snack bar will be open for those who want something to eat or drink.

JSU entered Parents Day 1989 in fear of a let-down from last week's big victory over Mississippi College.

There would be no let-down this game. JSU dominated Delta State the entire game as the Gamecocks rolled 34-10.

JSU started the game off with two quick touchdowns in the first quarter. The first of these scores came when JSU started a drive on the Delta State 43-yard line. The Gamecocks scored eight plays later when JSU quarterback David Gulledge scored from three yards out to give JSU a 7-0 lead with 8:27 left in the first quarter.

The second touchdown for JSU came when the Gamecocks drove 49 yards in 5 plays with Gullege scoring his second touchdown of the day. This score put JSU up 14-0 with 5:04 left in the first quarter.

There was no more scoring in the first quarter of the game.

Delta State finally got on the scoreboard in the second quarter as the Statesmen drove from their own 17-yard line to the JSU 6. On fourth down Delta State made a 29-yard field goal to close the score to 14-3.

JSU quickly answered the Statesmen with a 23-yard field goal kicked by Slade Stinnett to put JSU up 17-3 with 4:07 left to play in the first half.

Coach Bill Burgess' team took the opening kickoff of the second half and drove to the Delta State 48-yard line. Gulledge then scored his third touchdown of the day with an impressive 48-yard run around right end to put the Gamecocks up 24-3.

Delta State started a drive on its own 20-yard line. The Statesmen drove out to the 42 when Revis Davis broke loose for a 58-yard touchdown run. This was the only Delta State touchdown of the day, making the score 24-10 in favor of JSU.

The Gamecocks put one more touchdown on the board in the third quarter. Driving 68-yards in 10 plays, JSU's Steve Patrick scored from six yards out to push the JSU lead up to 31-10.

JSU's final points on the day came in the fourth quarter when Stinnett hit a 36-yard field goal to make the final score 34-10.

Stinnett was 4-for-4 on extra points and 2-for-2 on field goals for the day.

Both the JSU offense and defense continued their impressive play that leads the GSC.

JSU was led in rushing by Gulledge with 94 yards. Delta State was led in rushing by Davis, who had 161 yards.

JSU still owns a one-game lead in the GSC. "We still control our own destiny," Burgess said. "We're still at a point where we don't have to worry about anyone else. As a coach that's all you can ask for."

JSU now prepares to travel to Florence this weekend to play the University of North Alabama.

Five teams stay in GSC race

By RODNEY PARKS
Sports Editor

Week five of Gulf South Conference play has just been finished and JSU presently stands alone in first place. JSU is also the only undefeated team left in the GSC.

JSU leads the GSC in scoring offense, averaging 28.8 points per game. JSU also leads the GSC in scoring defense giving up only 10.7 points per game.

In scores from GSC games last weekend:

Mississippi College 45
Troy State 7

Mississippi College quarterback Wally Henry completed 8-of-13 for 204 yards and threw four touchdown passes. Henry's impressive day handed Troy State its third-straight loss.

North Alabama 28
UT-Martin 6

North Alabama won its second GSC game of the year as Troy Nelson returned a kick off 99 yards for a touchdown. North Alabama broke a close game open by scoring 15 points in the second quarter.

Valdosta St. 17
Livingston 6

Valdosta State's Raymond Allen rushed for 106 yards to help the Blazers keep Livingston winless in the GSC. Valdosta State has now won two straight GSC games.

JSU 34
Delta St. 10

JSU used 14 early points and outstanding defensive play to win its fourth GSC game of the year. With the loss Delta State remains one of only two teams without a conference win.

Samford 28
West Georgia 3

Samford used a good rushing attack as Bradley Jones rushed for 140 yards and scored two touchdowns and Theron Owens rushed for 100 yards to lead the Bulldogs to only their second victory of the year.

Coach Janice Slay's team compiled a 6-1 record over the past week and won the West Georgia Invitational Tournament. The Lady Gamecocks now stand at 16-6 overall and 4-0 in the Gulf South Conference.

JSU 3

UA-Huntsville 0

The Lady Gamecocks continued their good home play as they soundly defeated the Lady Chargers 15-7, 15-9 and 15-8 to win this match three games to none.

JSU 3

West Georgia 0

The Lady Gamecocks were in complete control of this match, winning the games 15-9, 15-4 and 15-4 to win the match three games to none. With this win Slay's team stayed undefeated at home.

After this match Slay was pleased with her team's play. "I thought our team was ready," said Slay, "but I didn't think we played up to our potential."

JSU 3

West Georgia 2

JSU started the West Georgia Invitational slowly as they lost two of the first three games of the match 13-15, 15-5 and 12-15. At this point JSU won the last two games of the match 15-5 and 15-12 to win the match three games to two.

Troy St. 3

JSU 0

Troy State avenged a loss to JSU earlier this season by beating the Lady Gamecocks 15-9, 15-11 and 15-5.

Livingston 0

JSU started Saturday's play in the West Georgia Tournament by sweeping Livingston 15-8, 15-4 and 15-6.

JSU 3

West Georgia 0

The Lady Gamecocks defeated West Georgia for the third time in less than one week by the score of 15-4, 15-9 and 15-8. With this win JSU moved into the finals of the tournament.

JSU 3

Troy St. 2

JSU lost the first game of this match 8-15. The Lady Gamecocks then won the next two games 15-12 and 15-6. Troy State then forced a

Golf team shows improved play

By RODNEY PARKS
Sports Editor

The fall golf schedule is now in full swing.

Last week JSU entered the Tri-State Classic hosted by UT-Martin. The Gamecocks finished seventh in the 24-team field.

JSU finished the two-day tournament with a final score of 593. The tournament was won by Middle Tennessee State University with a score of 580.

There were six Gulf South Conference teams in the tournament. JSU finished third out of the GSC teams in the field.

On the first day of the tournament Coach James Hobbs' team finished with an even par score. This tied the Gamecocks for fourth place that day.

"We shot five below par on the back nine the first day," said Hobbs. "I felt we played very well."

Gary Wigington had a 2-under-par 70 on the first day. Robert McEachern also had a good first day as he shoot a 1-below-par 71.

A bright spot on Tuesday for the Gamecocks was the play of freshman Jack Napier. Napier had a 75 score to lead JSU.

"Jack played the last 11 holes on Monday at even par and the next 18 on Tuesday at three over par," said Hobbs. "That's very encouraging to me."

The golf team now prepares for the Blue Raider Invitational at MTSU.

Hobbs feels very good about his team. "We're having some very tough qualifying days," said Hobbs. "We have seven or eight very good players on our team this year."

Wigington and McEachern both have already qualified for the 16-team MTSU tournament.

Here's the question: What is one of American's top five sports that isn't played in Alabama or the Southeast?

If you answered "hockey" you're wrong. The University of Alabama-Huntsville has the only hockey team in the Southeast.

If you are from the North or would just like to see a hockey match there is action just two short hours away.

UA-Huntsville plays many Division I schools here in Alabama.

All home games are played at the Von Braun Civic Center. Game time is 7 p.m.

Student tickets (with a JSU I.D.) are only $2.50 and $2.
