Hope still scheduled

By TODD FRESHWATER
News Editor

The news is out. Bob Hope is definitely coming to JSU.

It all started when Sherryl Byrd, director of student activities, discovered that a school of comparable size to JSU had Hope visit them. She contacted the school for information explaining how they had secured Hope.

Byrd then put the concept before the President's Council, which approved the plan. These efforts, which began last November, will be rewarded when Hope performs here Oct. 7 as part of Parents Day.

While the University would not disclose how much money it took to secure Hope, Byrd said if there was a sell-out crowd the University might break even. Unconfirmed estimates place the cost at between $65,000 and $75,000.

"This program is for students and their parents," Byrd said, "We're not trying to make money on this."

Tickets, which have been available since August 15, have been selling well. There are only 500 reserved seats left. The seats were divided into 2,060 reserved seats and 3,550 general admission seats. There is still plenty of general admission seating left.

The concert has been promoted by the News Bureau and the Alumni Office. There will also continue to be ads placed in various papers.

Hope's party will consist of four people, one of whom will be his opening act. The opening act is not yet known, though it is supposed to be a "female vocalist," Byrd said.

Hope will be assisted by several groups at JSU. These groups include the music department, which will supply the orchestra, and the drama department, which will supply people to work the sound and lights.

Hope is not expected to cancel. His contract contained a 60-day cancellation clause. That time has already passed. Barring any serious emergency, Hope is expected to be here on time.

"I'm really pleased he is coming here," Byrd stated. "I think it is good for the University."

Hope is expected to stay the night in the area.

No success in VPBA search

By TODD FRESHWATER
News Editor

The position of vice president for business affairs has been vacant for a year now. The position became available when Charles Rowe left JSU to become the budget officer for the state of Alabama.

The vice president for business affairs is the chief financial officer responsible for the entire fiscal management of the University. The vice president reports directly to the president, serves as treasurer and is a member of the administrative council. His responsibilities include preparation of the budget and financial reports, purchasing and inventory control.

The position has not yet been filled. The search committee, which began reviewing applications Nov. 15, 1988, has now narrowed the applicants down to six.

"We've had between 80 and 90 applicants," said Greg Dempsey, director of personnel services. "We've had a hard time narrowing the applicants down."

Applicants must have a baccalaureate degree in a related business area with an advanced degree preferred. JSU conducted a nationwide search for applicants. The University advertised in several major Southeastern papers as well as several national papers. Salary is based on experience and is negotiable.

Don Thacker, who was serving as the internal auditor, has assumed the position of acting vice president of business affairs. With Thacker's move, the position of internal auditor is vacant.

Even though Thacker has assumed the duties of VPBA, he still performs some of the duties of internal auditor. These duties include coordinating the external audit staff, cost analysis and special projects. Thacker is not performing any audits. Most of the projects are being delayed until the VPBA position is filled.

"When the process is finished I will return to internal auditor," Thacker said. "There could be some conflict in performing both duties, but there hasn't been a problem."

Even though there is no performing any audits, the University books are still being monitored. A state examiner has been on campus for six months and has found no discrepancies with the books. The state examiner performs many of the duties the internal auditor performs. The state examiner visits the campus every year.

The search committee will be conducting public and closed interviews this month. The president of the University, Harold McGee, will have the final decision.

Serviss named director of Development

By TODD FRESHWATER
News Editor

Joseph A. Serviss has assumed duties as the new director of development. Serviss began serving in this capacity Aug. 15, replacing Miriam Higginbotham, who has retired.

Serviss has deep ties with the University. He was a Marching Southerner, sports editor for The Chanticleer and vice president of the senior class. He was also involved in ROTC and when he graduated in 1969 he entered the military as a commissioned 2nd Lieutenant.

Serviss returned to JSU in 1974. He worked on his master's degree, then taught in the military science department for three years.

Serviss, as director of development, is responsible for coordinating many of the fund-raising programs here.

"Our office tries to make up the difference between what the state supplies and what we need," Serviss said. "We also want to establish a strong endowment program."

Serviss has several years of experience in the area of fund raising, public relations and budgeting. Much of his experience comes from his work with the Boy Scouts.

The University had conducted a national search to fill the position. Serviss applied and was accepted.

"We're fortunate to hire someone of Joe's caliber who knows so much about the University," said Jack Hopper, vice president for institutional advancement. "We're looking forward to having him on our team."

Serviss and his wife and child currently reside in Gadsden. As soon as they close on a house they will reside here in Jacksonville.

"My ties with JSU are deep," Serviss said. "I've always loved the University and wanted to return to the area."

Housing shortage a rumor

By TODD FRESHWATER
News Editor

There has been a rumor going around campus. The rumor says over 200 students who paid confirmation did not receive University housing.

"This is not true," said Craig Schmitt, director of residence life. "Almost everyone has been housed."

Schmitt said the problem wasn't that students did not pay their confirmation but that they did not turn in their contracts as well. If a student does not return his contract, his name is dropped from the list, regardless of whether confirmation payment has been made.

"We've had this problem (See HOUSING, Page 4)

The Anniston Museum of Natural History presents "In View of Home: Alabama Landscape Photographs," a collection of images of Alabama. The exhibition premiered Aug. 20 in the museum's Changing Exhibit Gallery and will remain on display through Oct. 1.

The photographs in this collection were chosen on the basis of their aesthetic quality, their depiction of Alabama's topographical diversity and to illustrate a wide range of landscapes, lifestyles and artistic attitudes. The 80 images date from 1886 to the present and were selected from among 13,000 possibilities.

Catalogs of this exhibition include a reproduction of each photograph in the show and will be available at the museum at a cost of $10 each. Posters are available for $3 each.

"In View of Home" was curated by art historian Frances Robb. It was organized by the Huntsville Museum of Art and jointly sponsored by the Huntsville Museum of Art and the Alabama Humanities Foundation with the assistance of an exemplary award from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

For the record

The photograph of the Gamecock Hostesses that appeared in the Aug. 31 issue of The Chanticleer showed last year's hostesses. At press time for that issue the photograph of the 1989-90 hostesses was not available. It will appear in a subsequent issue.

The article in the Aug. 31 issue entitled "Religious organizations offer students 'life support'" failed to include the Episcopal Campus Ministry. Anyone interested in joining this group should contact the Rev. George Quiggle, Episcopal chaplain to campus, at St. Luke's Episcopal Church or Shirley Seagle, club sponsor, in the biology department.

Career Fair Sept. 22

By TODD FRESHWATER
News Editor

Need a career? Want to contact perspective employers? A Career Fair planned for Sept. 20 will let you do these things.

The fair, the first of its kind here, is being co-sponsored by Career Planning and Placement and Career Development and Counseling Services. It is being coordinated by Anne Goddard, CDCS counselor. She is being assisted by Marvin Jenkins, director of career development and placement, and Gwen Westbrook.

The fair will provide students with the opportunity to explore career options and talk with representatives from a variety of companies and organizations. Expected to participate in the fair are over 30 organizations including Bell South Corporation, the Birmingham Police Department, Electronic Data Systems, First Alabama Bank, Internal Revenue Service, Wal-Mart Stores and F.N. Wolf and Company.

"This fair is for all students," Goddard said. "We also want to invite JSU faculty to stop by." Goddard hopes this fair will become a regular tradition each year. The companies were invited by letter and over the phone. Goddard also used students' suggestions and ideas. "I hope a lot of students respond," she said, "We've promoted the event fully."

Jenkins felt students would really benefit from the fair

"This is an opportunity for "This is an opportunity for students to reach regional and national employers.

students to reach regional and national employers," he said. "We also want the employers to meet the students."

The fair will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in Montgomery Building.

Expose' headlines homecoming concert

The Student Government Association has received a confirmation of our Oct. 19 Homecoming concert. Martika, singer of the hit song, "Toy Soldier," will open for the feature act Expose'. Arlene Jenkins, SGA vice president, said she thinks this act will appeal to a wide range of students. This concert promises to kick off an exciting Homecoming weekend.

Beginning today, applications may be picked up for the Homecoming pageant, floats, yard displays, and parade entries and contests. Deadlines for these applications are as follows: pageant, Sept. 28; floats, Oct. 4; yard displays, Oct. 16; and parade entries, Sept. 21. With your participation, this will certainly be JSU's best Homecoming ever.

This year's Parents Day also looks to be very exciting. Parents Day is Oct. 7 and that evening Bob Hope will perform at Mathews Coliseum. Sherryl Byrd, director of student activities, said she is "very pleased about the wide variety of activities that will take place throughout the day. We encourage you to invite your parents to this important event showcasing JSU."

After receiving many complaints about our parking problem, I have decided to appoint a special Ad Hoc Review Committee to evaluate the situation and recommend solutions. I believe our parking problem is nothing less than a logistical nightmare.

I have also received complaints about the fall distribution of the Mimosa. The Communication Board moved the distribution to the fall so spring sports and graduation would be included. The Mimosa will be mailed to all graduating seniors. I think you will be impressed by the quality of the 1989 Mimosa. The staff has worked hard to make it an outstanding yearbook.

Housing

before," Schmitt said, "It was worse last year."

There has been some overflow in housing, however. The University had to re-open Salls Hall to accommodate 71 men who did not have a place to stay.

Salls Hall is slated for renovation this year, and was closed until work could begin. Schmitt said as soon as the University determines how many spaces are available in the other dorms, the 71 men will be moved from Salls Hall. After the men are placed in other facilities, the renovation of Salls will continue.

"We've only had to turn away three or four men," Schmitt said. "All the others have been housed."

He said one difference was there has been an increase in the number of students requesting University housing. Last year the dorms opened 95 percent full. This year they opened at 98 percent. Schmitt expects the number will soon be near 100 percent.

There is some good news. The renovation of Patterson and Logan is still on schedule. The halls are due to re-open next year.

VPBA search committee should look closer to home

JSU for the last year has been attempting to fill the position of vice president for business affairs. So far there has been little success. Why is it taking so long?

One would think with over 80 applicants the University would be able to find one qualified person. So far the position has been filled by Don Thacker, the internal auditor.

The internal auditor is doing the job that he is supposed to be auditing. How can this be?

Thacker is in quite a position. He still does some of the duties of auditor, but he must be careful not to do any actual auditing himself.

Thacker has been acting VPBA for a year. Surely he is familiar with the job. If he is qualified to act as VPBA he should be qualified to take over the position permanently.

One would hope this delay will be the exception rather than the rule. However, it does set a dangerous precedent. There are some positions on campus that could not wait this long to be filled.

Over 80 applicants.

Over 80 applicants and one year. Yet no one is qualified to take this position.

Is there no one qualified here?

Perhaps the University would rather hire an outsider than promote from within its own ranks. Surely there are enough qualified people here already to fill any positions that become available.

Maybe there aren't.

Maybe no one here meets the University's requirements anymore. Maybe the University hopes to improve the quality of its administrators by bringing in fresh blood.

The University claims it is looking for the best person for the job. Maybe the search committee is looking in the wrong place.

Maybe they should look here. At JSU

For what it's worth

Orientation '89 a fond memory

One of the perks of being editor in chief of this fine publication is having my own column.

A personal column is a place to vent one's frustrations. It's a creative outlet for a lot of pent-up (and sometimes very purple) prose. It's a sounding board to express oneself about things that are dangerous, annoying or just plain stupid.

It's also a place one can make a lot of enemies.

But that's not what this particular column is about. This column is dedicated this week to a little good news and a lot of good friends.

I'm going to wax rhapsodic about Orientation '89.

I spent the better part of the summer involved in this program. It is a program dedicated to the notion that if freshmen students can meet upperclassmen and make friends before classes begin, they are less likely to drop out.

Battling often-staggering attrition rates is a task many colleges and universities have undertaken in recent years. JSU started this part of what JSU President Harold McGee has called a "continuing plan of recruitment and retention" in 1988 with the first summer Orientation program.

For those who are not familiar with the program, let me explain briefly what it is and how it works. Orientation has taken the place of the previous program, STEP-UP. STEP-UPS involved prospective freshmen arriving on campus and being greeted by and dealt with by University officials.

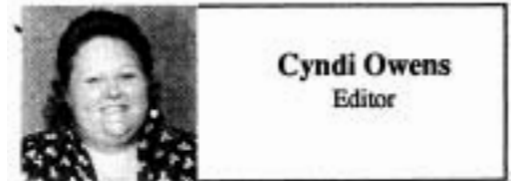

My STEP-UP was a nightmare. Even though I lived only about 20 miles away, I knew nothing about campus except how to get to Martin Hall, where I had been to the Calhoun County Math Tournament, and how to get to Montgomery Building, where the tournament's award presentations were made.

I came to Montgomery Building, stood in line to declare a major, and picked up a campus map and a confusing schedule. I was pretty much on my own after that.

But things have changed now. The Orientation program is based on letting students be introduced to JSU and college life by other JSU students. Prospective freshmen come to campus for a day and a half, and they are grouped together in 10s or 12s and assigned a counselor who will help them get started here.

Twenty students are selected to serve as peer counselors, and one student is selected to serve as student director of the program. I was fortunate enough to be that person.

There is just no way to describe being a peer counselor and being part of Orientation. It is the most wonderful experience I have had since I've been at JSU. I have learned so much about the University, and I've learned a lot about dealing with people.

Cyndi Owens
Editor

The greatest benefit of being involved in Orientation, though, is making new friends. And I'm not just talking about the freshmen. The 20 students who were counselors this year are the best people in the world in my book.

The counselors came from across the spectrum of students here. Different races, religions, socioeconomic backgrounds, philosophies and social and political affiliations were represented. But the really terrific thing was that once we all got to know one another, that stuff didn't matter anymore. We were all there to work toward a common goal, and we all got there. And along the way we became friends.

There were some pretty terrific people involved in Orientation who weren't counselors. Alice Mayes, the director of student development, is just about the nicest person you'll ever meet. Revlon Spear, secretary in student development, is another super lady, not to mention one with lots and lots of patience. Thank you both for making my summer so super.

The folks over at Marriott are also great. Pete Radeka's enthusiasm for his job and willingness to get involved make him an asset to this campus. He has some pretty wonderful personnel, too.

Linda Brock, manager of The Roost, was so helpful and so thoughtful, and she helped make our evening meal and our dance party a huge success. And of course we couldn't have done Club JSU without the help of Mark, Bobby and Carmen, and especially Phil and Doug. Thanks a bunch.

There are some really nice people who run businesses in this town, too. Two who come to mind are Sue Perkerson and Charlotte Burdette, who run The Classy Basket and The Upper Class, respectively. These two ladies went above and beyond the call of philanthropy when it came to donating prizes. Thank you so much, and good luck with your businesses.

I could go on and on about the wonderful people around here, but there simply isn't room to mention them all. I would, however, like to say a few words to the peer counselors.

Thank you all so much. I am so glad I got to meet you, and I really enjoyed working with all of you. I miss you. Come see me.

Faculty shouldn't 'sneak' to ceremony

By CYNDI OWENS
Editor in Chief

During the last two or three graduation exercises I have attended, I have noticed some faculty members "sneaking" in.

Of course, I don't mean they have been caught stealthily trying to enter the building during the ceremony. No indeed. They walk boldly up the center aisle in front of hundreds of graduates, family members and fellow academicians.

No, what I'm talking about has nothing to do with covert behavior. It has to do with footwear.

Letter to the editor

Inmate offers chance for correspondence

Dear Editor:

I am a 42-year-old prison inmate, recovered alcoholic, and an alcohol and drug studies student. It is my opinion that most problem drinkers and drug users lack sufficient communication and social skills, so consequently they resort to intoxicating stimuli to cope with the routine stressors of life.

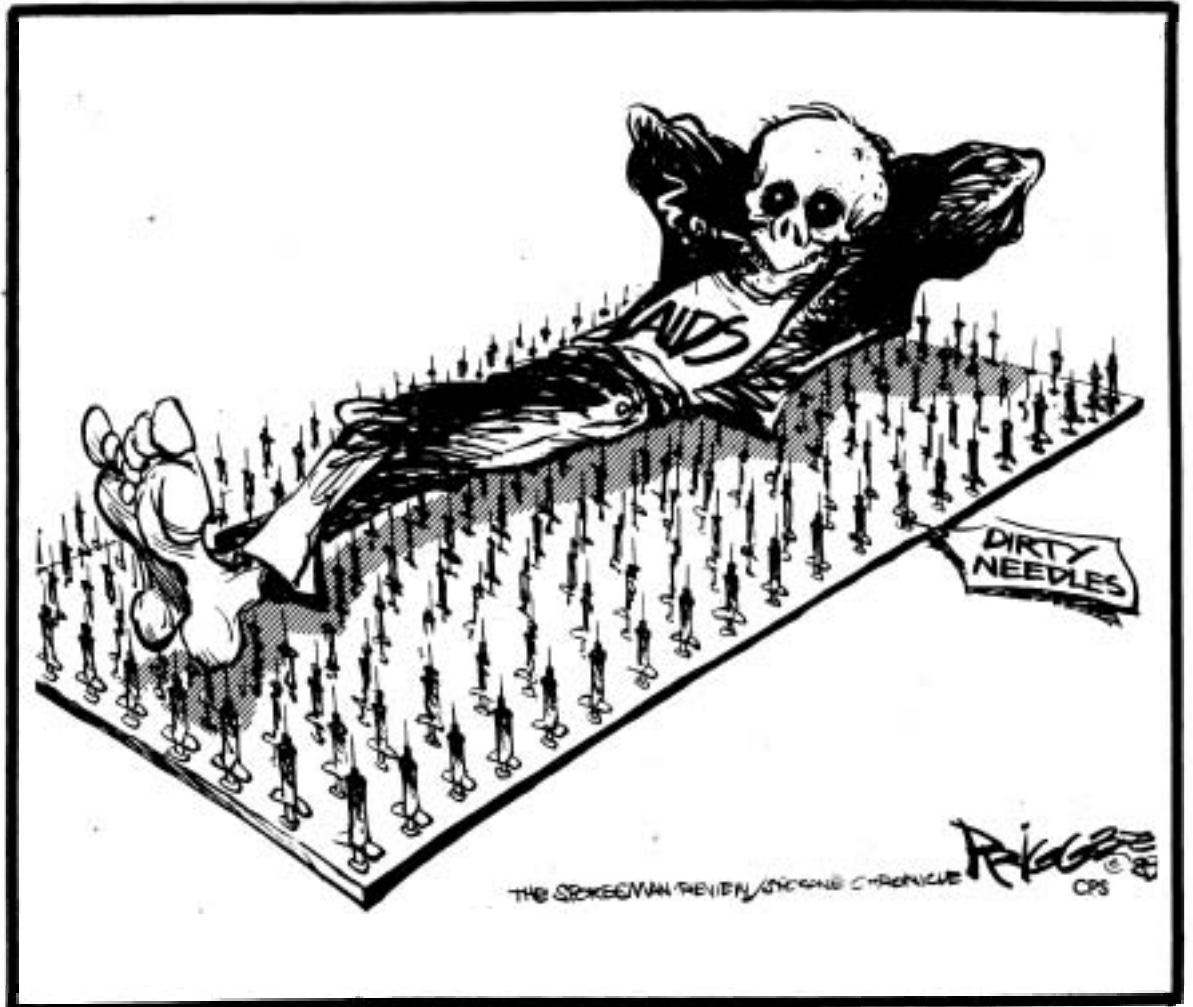

The majority of successful anti-drug and alcohol programs are operated on the premise that through candid group exchange substance abusers learn to challenge their addictions.

The atmosphere in a recovery setting is usually one of trust and mutual sharing except for the reserved and inhibited individuals who ultimately receive only minimal benefit. But at least they are in a therapeutic environment.

However, there's another type of substance abuser that I'm concerned about. These are the individuals who are adamant in their delusions that no dependency problem exists, and therefore for them to seek help would be futile. For these two distinctive categories of people a viable solution is offered.

I am a Christian man, and I have initiated a non-sectarian correspondence self-help program staffed with volunteer recovered alcoholics and ex-drug addicts. These neo-philanthropists will provide sincere empathy and encouragement in abstinence to receptive substance users. Those individuals who are overtly or covertly desiring sobriety will develop a rejuvenated sense of dignity.

State should worry about real issues

By MIKE LIVINGSTON
Staff Writer

The state of Alabama has a lot of pressing needs during the next 12 months, and as students we need to watch the issues that effect us as residents of the state. Many of us on this campus are voters in this state, and we need to watch to see how our elected officials handle these issues. By following these issues we can make sound voting decisions by the time we go to the polls in the fall of 1990.

The issues which are affecting the state include the need for tax reform so everyone pay(s) a fair share of property tax.

The issues which are affecting the state include the need for tax reform so everyone, including large corporate land holders, pay a fair share of property taxes. The state is also losing state business taxes since they have been ruled unfair by the court system. This money will have to be replaced or the general fund may go into proration this year.

Education in Alabama is underfunded at the local level. Too many students take classes in portable classrooms, and teacher ratios are too high at the middle grades.

Health care for the elderly is also not what it should be in this state.

Indeed these are all important issues, but I think the Legislature and the governor will focus on emotional issues which will get people in the state excited but will do little to improve life in the state of Alabama. The emotional issues in the state will include the flag burning issue, prayer at the beginning of football contests and abortion rulings handed down by our Supreme Court.

All these issues have merit; however, these issues can be used to delay the hard choices of the other issues.

probably no big deal.

But to a lot of people, graduation is a big deal. For most people who go through, this is the only ceremony they will ever attend. And a great percentage of guests at our graduations are family members of first-generation college graduates. Imagine what they think when members of the faculty show up for this supposedly somber occasion dressed to hit the courts.

Campus events cause consternation, chuckles

By Mike Livingston
Staff Writer

Look, we have only been at the Friendliest Campus in the South for a few weeks and already we have had some fun things happening. In case you have been missing out here are some things I have noticed:

- the people in Ramona Wood Hall asking each other this question one afternoon when it was raining cats and dogs. "If we ran to our cars instead of walking would we: A. get more wet. B. get less wet. C. get just about the same on our clothing."

- the strangest question asked me by a co-ed. "Hi, my name is Jennifer and I have been looking for my boyfriend's dorm. It is called Patterson Hall and I can't seem to be able to find it. I just can't be late because we have a date."

I asked the girl when she talked to him last. She told me that he called her that morning. I told her it was next to Logan Hall. Pleased with the new info I pointed her in the right direction to discover her fate.

- the meanest message left on my answering machine. "I don't know who you are but Shawn stole my female's purse and he had better return it. If he doesn't return it he will not want to see me when I get a hold of him." The scary part is I do not have a roommate.

- women sitting in threes in the front seat of their cars. Why is this? Why don't guys drive around in threes?

- something that will grab startled looks: people seen in front of Wal-Mart talking with the talking Coke machine about the price of Coke being too high for them. They said they would take their business where one could get a student discount.

- the poor fellow who fell down the side of the hill between Montgomery Building and Paul Snow Stadium. He said he was walking down the sidewalk when he tripped and fell.

- something that scares me. When driving to class I have almost hit the same Prelude at least twice. It always seems to go for the exact parking space that I want to park my car.

Sneakers

Some faculty members seem to find it necessary to participate in the parade of colors wearing sneakers.

Now granted, there aren't a lot who do this. Those who wear sneakers are definitely the minority, a slight percentage of those participating.

But it really bugs me. I realize most of you have been through this dozens of times, and that you are required to be there, and that for you it's

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

We would like to welcome all new and returning students back. We are gearing up for another exciting semester. We kicked things off by initiating the following brothers: Bob Keefauver, Kerry Morgan, Chris Jenkins, Thomas Lanahan, Ray Newton, John Tuck, Kane Arnold, Bart Hall, Allen Morris, Bryan Allen, Bill Richardson and Jason Bennett. Congratulations to all.

After a few years and a few accidents, the house is currently receiving a much-needed facelift. All of our brothers have been pretending to be construction workers -- with some success. We hope to finish the task within two weeks.

We extend our congratulations to all of the girls who recently pledged a sorority. Congratulations, ladies.

We would like to remind all interested men that fraternity rush is Sept. 18-22. Purchase your rush card from the IFC office today.

ATO Question of the Week: Did Randy Allen actually "card" his Florida girlfriends, or did he believe them when they said they were 17?

PI KAPPA PHI

We would like to welcome everyone to Jacksonville. Everyone is invited by the house during the afternoon and at night.

This summer, many improvements were made to the house, including vinyl siding, new carpet, reconditioned hardwood floors, painting and total yard reconstruction. A big thanks goes out to all the brothers who worked hard. Chuck Caricofe will be giving tours of the house every afternoon until Halloween.

Brothers making news over the summer include Jeff "Out-back" Rowell becoming lavaliered to Phi Mu sister Vanessa Cross, and John "Country Club" Cartwright studing in Bulvaria -- and bringing back a BMW. He will be selling chances for a "Ride A Week" for the fall semester. The drawing will be Sept. 15. You could be the lucky winner.

Craig Hess encourages all young men to go through rush. If anyone has any questions about rush, please give him a call.

PHI MU

We would like to welcome all students and staff back. We are looking forward to fall semester. Preparations already have begun for philanthropic events, mixers, Crush and Farm Party.

Congratulations to the 1989 class. They are Michelle Abney, Kathleen Berry, Kim Brewton, Traci Cannon, Holly Chamberlain, Dana Crawford, Kellye Davidson, Janet Dutton, Susan Efird, Leigh Eoff, Flo Ezell, Kelly Glasglo, Benja Godfrey, Noel Gordon, Amy Hannah, Kristy Haynie, Elizabeth Holt, Dawn Howard, Melissa Hunt, Annette McGuire, Laura McLeroy, Monica Medley, Ashley Miles, Tonya Mitchell, Emily O'Barr, Sheri Pickens, Michelle Pillar, Lisa Sangilantonio, Tawnya Shamblyn, Shawn Shoemaker, Shayla Sizemore, Lauri Smith, Tonya Smith, Christy Snow, Beverly Stagg, Kathy Watson and Danielle Wigley.

A special thank you to all alumnae who helped during rush. We could not make it now or ever without you.

Congratulations to all sororities on a successful rush.

Welcome back Miss Alabama USA Sherri Mooney. Congratulations on your huge success with the Alabama Reunion.

We all can be proud of Miss Co-Ed America Michelle Watson, who presented a $60,000 check to The Children's Miracle Network on behalf of our national organization.

Special mention goes to Stephanie Sparks on being selected Miss Congeniality in the Miss Cobb County pageant. President Michelle Watson and treasurer Vanessa Cross represented us in a leadership conference this summer.

Congratulations to the two sisters who were lavaliered this summer. They are Rachel Ham (to Kappa Sigma Mike Haynes) and Vanessa Cross (to Pi Kappa Phi Jeff Rowell).

SIGMA NU

Welcome back students, sisters and Snakes. We are happy to note the police are back in full force.

John Fumbanks, the mighty commander, has assured us of year-round partying. David Patterson, the new Risk Reduction chairman, will have his hands full.

Chuck Barnes, our new pledge marshal, is planning an exciting semester for the novices. Our "big" lieutenant commander Bobby Molan will have fun beating on the brothers. Michael "Sprout" Dalesandro always will enjoy emptying our pockets as the new treasurer. Tom Gibbs, our new recorder, will be busy also.

Quote of the Week: "Lead, follow or get out of the way."

Baptist Campus Ministry

Welcome to JSU from everyone at the Baptist Campus Ministry. We're excited and looking forward to the fall semester.

Our new president is Matt Nelson and the state president is Mary White, a JSU student. We're very proud to have such strong leaders.

Weekly events include Celebration at 8 p.m. Tuesday nights and Bible Study at 6 p.m. Thursdays.

Our area churches serve Agape meals each Wednesday at 11:15 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. The cost is $2, and the proceeds will be given to the World Hunger Fund.

The student center is open between classes and at night. We hope to see you soon.

ROTC Sponsors

We'd like to welcome everyone back to school. We are planning many exciting events for the department this year and hope to have good turnouts at all of our planned functions.

Black Greek organizations misunderstood

By MIKE DOUGLASS
Staff Writer

They can be seen all over campus. They often signal to each other with calls and hand signs unique to their specific group. They may also be observed "stepping" to a syn-copated beat while chanting to extol the greatness of their organizations. They are JSU's black greek organizations.

According to Alpha Phi Alpha President Quint Davis, many people unfamiliar with black greeks often find themselves puzzled over some of their activities on campus.

"There definitely exists a serious communication gap between black greeks and the rest of JSU," Davis said. "I think we need to be more vocal and let the public know exactly what we do on campus and in the community."

Due to a lack of publicity, many students are not aware of the numerous service projects the black fraternities and sororities perform each year. Kappa Alpha Psi brother Aundrae Williams said his fraternity participates in several programs each year.

"We've got a 'Guide Right' program in which we become big brothers to youths in An-niston," Williams said. "We also sponsor the Junior Kappas. We try to teach them the values of the fraternity and community service. There are also functions such as canned food drives to help the underprivileged."

Davis said the Alphas also have programs to serve the community that go unnoticed. "One of our best ongoing service projects is our 'Aid to the Elderly' program for Jacksonville residents," he said. "With the help of two local churches who have compiled a list of elderly people in the community in need of assistance, and we dispatch several brothers every week to give these people a helping hand. Usually, the person needs some yardwork done or possibly some heavy lifting. These are pretty small tasks for us, but the people that we help really appreciate the help we give. Knowing that you've helped someone can really make your day," Davis said.

One of the major misconceptions surrounding black greeks is the infamous "pledge process." Students and faculty see identically clad pledges walking in line with stern facial expressions and become confused. According to Alpha Phi Alpha brother Darren Douthitt, there is nothing confusing about it.

"The pledge process tries to instill a certain quality in a person," he said. "Everyone on the line acts as one. That's one of the purposes of walking in line."

"There is always speculation surrounding alleged reports of hazing," Douthitt said. "Why isn't anyone interested in the fact that pledges are required to perform service projects or that they are required to attend study hall every night? All fraternities, black and white, have hazing incidents. We do our best to avoid problems, but no one seems interested in the good things we do."

There have been many reports of fighting between black fraternities at JSU. Williams suggests it is not dislike that motivates these outbursts, but a competitive spirit that has gotten out of control.

"It's not that we don't like each other," he said. "It's just that everybody wants to be the best frat on the yard. That's how it begins. A black panhellenic council would be a good idea, but we would need cooperation."

Davis feels the most important goals to work toward are unity and understanding. "We all need to work together and acquire a better understanding of one another," he said. "We feel that we have many things to offer the JSU student body, and we will work towards doing that. But, first it's important that the misconceptions be cleared up. The first steps are always the hardest, but it can be done. Talking is the key."

All Club and Greek news due no later than 6:00 p.m. on each Thursday.

Peavey, Magnavox sponsor annual contest

By DARRYL GRAHAM
Campus Life Editor

Peavey, Technics, Magnavox, Smith Corona, Atari, TASCAM and Shure are sponsoring the 10th annual Music City Song Festival.

Over $250,000 in cash and merchandise prizes will be awarded to winners.

Entrants will compete from the following exclusive division sponsors: professional song, Atari (computers); amateur song, TASCAM (recording equipment); novice song, Peavey (guitars); vocal, Shure (microphones and mixers); professional lyric, Technics (digital pianos); amateur lyric, Smith Corona (personal word processors and portable electronic typewriters); lyric poem, Magnavox (audio and video products).

Computer awards will be accompanied by Hybrid Arts software, the official Music City software of the MCSF. There will be a total of 433 cash and merchandise prizes awarded plus Top 25 Finalist and Honorable Mention (top 10 percent) certificates.

MCSF's new divisions include the addition of a novice classification to the song competitions and separation of the lyric competition into professional, amateur and novice divisions. In the vocal division, there will be a grand prize in each musical category along with awards for best overall male, female and duo or group performance.

Entrants submit cassette tapes in the song and vocal divisions and lyric sheets for the lyric and lyric poem divisions. An official entry form and entry fee are required.

In all divisions except lyric poem, the MCSF offers six musical categories: pop and Top 40, country, middle of the road and adult contemporary, gospel and contemporary christian, rock, rhythm & blues and soul, novelty and miscellaneous (except vocal) and musical theatre and standards (vocal only). Cash and merchandise prizes will be awarded for first through 10th places in each musical category.

Entrants do not give up any rights to their material, and entering the MCSF competition does not tie up a song or lyric in any way.

The entry deadline for the lyric and lyric poem divisions is Nov. 15, while the deadline for song and vocal entries is Nov. 30.

For entry information, send name and address to MCSF, P.O. Box 17999-B, Nashville, Tenn., 37217 or call (615) 834-0027.

Mike Stephenson opens 'Culture' series

By DARRYL GRAHAM
Campus Life Editor

Concerts and concessions are two main ingredients in the Center for Southern Studies' "Culture on the Quad" series.

Beginning today, the center will begin offering students, faculty and staff - as well as Calhoun County - an opportunity to relax on the Quad for lunch and for an hour and a half of music.

Thursday has been selected as the weekly date for "Culture on the Quad," a series featuring eight outdoor concerts of assorted music. But it's only the beginning.

According to Michelle Champagne, organizer of the event, the "Culture" series will be continued in the spring semester. "This is the first time we've consistently had something on the quad," she said.

She got the idea after checking into other activities offered at larger universities. Her main goal is to offer some type of

Chanticleer places high in national paper contest

By PETER STALLO
Features Writer

During the summer, while most students were at the beach or by the pool, the writers and editors at The Chanticleer were still making headlines. This time, however, they were not writing them, but appearing in them. The paper was read on a national scale with minute attention given to every word.

The Chanticleer, along with publications from colleges and universities across the nation, was submitted to the American Scholastic Press Association to be judged in one of the most critical journalistic competitions in the nation.

The results of the competition were outstanding. The Chanticleer received the first place with special merit award, the highest award given.

In addition to the paper's award, editor in chief Cyndi Owens won an award for best editorial for editorial she wrote that appeared in the Dec. 1, 1988, issue. "I was totally shocked when the awards came in," said Owens. "I didn't know (news-paper adviser TJ) Hemlinger had entered us in the competition, and I certainly had no idea I had a chance at an award. It was very flattering to receive it."

The competition was divided according to school population and The Chanticleer was placed into a category which included all universities and colleges across the nation with more than 2,500 students.

According to a listing published by ASPA, The Chanticleer finished in the same category with the papers of such schools as Rutgers, Duquesne, Villanova and William and Mary.

ASPA graded each newspaper using six criteria: content coverage, page design, general plan, art and advertising, editing and creativity. The Chanticleer received perfect scores on page design, art and advertising and editing.

Batman heads box office list

I'm glad school's starting back, I really am. It's great to be back on this beautiful campus, watching first time freshmen rush about like little ra-, uh, mice, eagerly adapting to college life. It's great to see the friends you left at the end of last spring (for those like me who are too lazy to go to summer school) again. Football season is fresh upon you and fall is right around the corner. Ahhh, education is great.

But, and that is spelled with a capital B, there ain't no beating the good old summer. Those carefree, hazy, lazy, good old summer days. No classes to attend, no reading at night, nothing but endless hours of sleeping late and then lying around the pool all day. Ahhh, that's the life. Then there were those summer nights.

This summer was perhaps the finest I have ever spent in my life. There was more to do than I could possibly imagine. Night after night I spent countless hours slouched in the comfortable seat of some dark, very air-conditioned theater, with a box of popcorn in one hand and a large coke in the other, watching the largest cavalcade of summer movies in history. Hollywood must have felt as if it had given birth, I imagine.

I'm nuts about the movies. I always have been and always will be. And this summer's offerings were right up my alley. However, not all the movies were to my liking. True, more often than not I left the theater feeling that I had gotten my money's worth, but there was a lemon or two in the bunch as well.

In case you, the educated-college moviegoer, have not had a chance to view some of these movies, I've compiled sort of movie list on my own to help the discriminating viewer narrow his choices. Without further adieu, here are my views on some of the silver screen's summer showings:

•Batman Without a doubt, Batman was the summer's most popular movie (probably because they started advertising it in October of 1967). Michael Keaton in the lead role raised many eyebrows, but the director's first choice, Ernest, was busy filming Long Lewis Ford commercials in Birmingham. I think Keaton fit the role supremely, and what can you say about The Joker? I'm convinced that Jack Nicholson is the son of Satan. Overall, I thought Batman was a good flick.

•Ghostbusters II This movie was supposed to be better than the original. It was okay up until the ending, when the good guys had the Statue of

New businesses look toward return of students

By MATT BROOKS
Features Editor

Without a doubt, JSU is Jacksonville's biggest industry. Businesses are established here mainly to capitalize on the economic opportunity provided by the school's student population.

This fall, students will find four new establishments located in Jacksonville. The Classy Basket, The Upper Class, Sphinx Restaurant and Huddle House all opened over the summer and have been eagerly anticipating the return of students, much as people anticipate the return of the swallows to Capistrano. Students will likely account for over half of the business taken in by each establishment.

Located on the square, The Classy Basket offers custom-made gift baskets and balloons which house presents inside. "We carry unique gifts," said owner Sue Perkeron. "We also have a large selection for the sororities at JSU."

Open approximately three and a half months, The Classy Basket saw limited student response due to the summer break. However, with the fall semester recently commencing, Perkeron erson said, "We expect about one half of our business to come from JSU students."

The Upper Class, housed in the same building as The Classy Basket, is a clothing store oriented more to the younger set. Open since June, owner Charlotte Burdette has high hopes for the future of her business. "I expect about half of my business to come from JSU students," she said. "I hope all of it comes from JSU."

Burdette also pointed out that all college students receive a 10 percent discount on cash items.

After a hard day of shopping, students may want to sample some of the culinary delights offered in Jacksonville. For those in a rush, there's The Huddle House. Serving breakfast, lunch and dinner at any time during the day, The Huddle House may be the ideal choice for the student on the move.

Managed by Connie Morgan, The Huddle House has been open since June 26. According to employee David Williamon, about half of The Huddle House's business has come from students

Eoff enthusiastic about job

By GEORGE DUNLAP
Staff Writer

Robyn Eoff, assistant professor of education, is an enthusiastic woman whose dynamic energy lights up any room she's in. With her youthful exuberance she could easily be confused with one of her students.

Her office reflects that personality. Posters of Texas show she still remembers her roots, while a poster from the movie Broadcast News shows her concern with the issues of professionalism and ethics in broadcast journalism.

Eoff has been with the communication department since 1984. She tells of the days before Self Hall and teaching in any classroom that was available on campus.

One of her goals in the communication department is to see a strong print journalism program in the curriculum, which would balance and complement the broadcast program.

She has come a long way from her days as an undergraduate at the University of Texas, where she chose to major in communication as an act of rebellion against the traditional careers her peers were choosing. Ironically, one of those possible careers was in education.

After receiving a bachelor of science degree in radio, TV and film from the University of Texas, she began a career as a copy writer for television and radio commercials as well as print advertising. In 1977 she won an award for production of the best local 30-second television advertisement.

Eoff returned to education in 1978 when she worked at the Calhoun County Adult Activity Center, where she taught academic subjects and in what she called a "rewarding experience," coordinated the school newspaper, which was written by the mentally handicapped students.

In 1980 Eoff went to Gadsden State Junior College, where she taught broadcasting and produced a daily 30-minute radio news program with student newscasters. It was during this time that she received her master's degree in communication at JSU.

She joined the staff at JSU in 1984 and has been instructing in the communication department since. During this time she completed her degree program, receiving a doctorate from the University of Alabama.

As an undergraduate, Eoff said she didn't belong to a sorority. However, she is now an adviser to Zeta Tau Alpha. She enjoys her involvement with the students and the opportunity to help them as they forge the traits that will serve them in the future.

In 1987 she helped organize a student chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi. This chapter was awarded as the outstanding student chapter in this region in 1988.

Eoff said her goals at JSU are passing on her enthusiasm for the communication field to her students. She also hopes to see more of her students go into that field after graduation, as well be more aware of the world and be more active in it.

In keeping with her own desire to be more active in this field she is currently engaged in a "ride along" program with the Jacksonville police department and would like to see improvement in media-police relations.

CCTV enhances most classroom learning

By PETER STALLO
Features Writer

For the past 25 years, JSU students have enjoyed the convenience of video technology in their classes. It has not only been a convenience for the students, but for the teachers as well.

Closed Circuit Television is located in 210 Self Hall and is capable of operating over the majority of the campus. The employees at CCTV stay busy during the day sending closed circuit movies and instructional videos to teaching centers and classes.

Through its video catalog, CCTV offers teachers a wide variety of films ranging from literary classics to actual recordings of specific surgical procedures.

The staff keeping CCTV operating consists of only four people, each working in shifts to keep track of an entire wall of television monitors, VCRs and computers.

Chris Casey, a 24-year-old Jacksonville native, is the CCTV operator. He received his bachelor's degree in management and minored in computer information systems at JSU. "I feel that CCTV provides a vital instructional support to teachers and other staff members all over campus as well as providing a service to the TV production division of the department of communication," he said.

Marty White, a 21-year-old communication major from Weaver, is an assistant at CCTV. "I like my job at CCTV because it gives me a chance to be close to my future profession," he said.

Chris Cagle, also a CCTV assistant, is a 19-year-old secondary education major from Lineville. "While working at CCTV, I have learned how to videotape correctly," he said. "It's more than just pushing a button and looking through a lens."

David Graben, having been on the job only a few weeks, is the newest assistant in the department. Graben, 18, is also from Lineville and is undecided on his major. "It (working at CCTV) requires much attention to detail, but with experience it becomes second nature."

Publications move into new homes at Self Hall

By CYNDI OWENS
Editor in Chief

A songwriter once said, "The waiting is the hardest part." The staffs of the Mimosa and The Chanticleer would wholeheartedly agree.

The waiting, however, is over, and the two publications have finally moved into their new homes on the first floor of Self Hall.

"I'm really glad we finally got moved," said Ralph Carmode, head of the Department of Communication, the unit that sponsors the publications.

The staffs moved over to Self Hall from the basement of Montgomery Building, where their offices had been housed for several years.

Although the move was made in early May, the offices, part of what was called "Phase III" of Self Hall, had been completed since September 1988. Since Self Hall was an existing building, it was renovated in three stages or "phases."

"We kept waiting for some equipment," said Dan Marsengill, dean of the College of Communication and Fine Arts. "When it arrived, we made the move as quickly as possible."

Marsengill said he thought the move was a good step. "I think the main thing it is going to help is logistically," he said. "The Chanticleer and the Mimosa are going to be closer to the unit that sponsors them, and they will be closer to the communication faculty and their sponsor."

"(They) are going to be closer to the unit that sponsors want them."
-Marsengill

He said he also felt with the improved surroundings would come improved credibility. "You have a lot more 'class' over here."

Yearbook and newspaper adviser TJ Hemlinger agreed with this. "It's now like a professional newspaper," he said. "Now I hope we can live up to those standards."

Hacker disrupts president's tea

From College Press Service

In a humor glitch, a hacker disrupted plans for a late April president's tea for honor students at Valley College in Los Angeles by slipping into the computer system and adding fake names to the dean's list.

Among the potential honorees President Mary Lee's office, working off the adulterated computer file, tried to invite to the tea: Wrathah Kahn, Gray Poupon, Betty Crocker, Dee Generet and the much sought-after Dean list.

Someone broke through the ceiling and into the office of Baylor University journalism professor Sara Mantooh in early April. The only thing stolen was a journalism ethics test.

On the other hand, Stanford University officials said they were "heartened" that no hackers wrecked Stanford's experiment in holding the first fully computerized election in California.

People from all over the country came to observe the election, which determined next year's student leaders.

"We were expecting a lot of crackerjacks trying to get into it, but we haven't noticed anything," said elections commissioner Steve Krauss.

A New York City firm called SinglesFax has started "America's first fax dating service," in which prospective companions meet by exchanging "flirtatious notes, photographs and proposals, all via fax."

Perhaps to demonstrate the openness and honesty every meaningful relationship depends upon, SinglesFax's founder, known as "Kush," reveals only his last name. He does say he has "received faxes from single people in Alaska, Switzerland, Australia and other exotic locations."

Fusion research may alter life as we know it, but other significant research is unfolding on America's campuses, too. Iowa State design major Beth Teggatz, for instance, has unveiled her new design for bulletproof halter tops, accompanied by knee-length pants and "gauntlet-style gloves."

"I don't think there are any practical uses (for them)," Tegatz said, "unless Cher might be interested."

Two University of Houston students, gathering data for a paper about whether people's taste in beer was influenced by the beer's price, drew 265 volunteers when they advertised they needed classmates to help their research.

Seniors Aristotle and Andrew Economon eventually whittled the number of volunteers, who had been attracted to the project by flyers promising "Free Beer," to 191 students by eliminating those who drank less than five beers a week.

By all accounts, the nationwide Annual Hunger Cleanup was a big success, with some 10,000 collegians on 175 campuses raising about $150,000 for various relief efforts.

Liberty parade through New York City to help them break into the museum. That gave the movie a silly air and made the whole thing seem a bit too unrealistic. It would have been a lot better if they'd brought that marshmallow man back from the first movie and let the Statue of Liberty kick its butt in a battle of good versus evil. She could toast him to death with her torch. If there's nothing on better to see, then watch this movie. Otherwise, go back home and listen to the dishes drying. You'll have more fun.

•Indiana Jones: The Last Crusade This movie was another action-packed adventure in the traditional Indy style. There's not enough time in between killings to really think about whether or not you like the movie, but how bad can a movie be when all the bad guys get it? This is the kind of movie you want to watch with some buddies, and then maybe afterwards go out and bash in a few mail boxes.

•Karate Kid III Karate or not, Ralph Macchio doesn't quite look like he could punch his way out of a wet paper bag. He's taken more beatings in the previous two movies than six dozen eggs in a cake-baking competition. This time is no exception. What makes the movie really a discredit to the business is when Miyagi smacks three guys around. You're supposed to suspend your disbelief when these three linebacker-sized, at least 40 years younger combined, karate studs gang up on Miyagi and lose. C'mon Miyagi, go back to Arnold's and fry hamburgers.

Due to space limitations, I've reviewed only a few of the movies I saw over the summer. I hope what you've read above will be enough to help you decide which movie you'd like to see this weekend. I hope I will have saved you the five- or six-dollar admission price you would normally pay to view one of the lemons. Who knows? Maybe you could buy a gallon of gas instead.

Big play gives Gamecocks opening win

By RODNEY PARKS
Sports Editor

Just when you think you've seen everything in football, JSU and Samford play their season opener.

Last Saturday Coach Bill Burgess' Gamecocks won a hard-fought 19-9 game at Samford in front of a record crowd of 10,136 aided by many JSU fans.

JSU took the opening kickoff and moved from their own 23-yard line to the Samford 20-yard line. Slade Stinnett then missed a 37-yard field goal with 11:59 left in the first quarter.

Samford's Ted Darby was then intercepted by JSU's William Bell on Samford's first play from scrimmage.

JSU took over on the Samford 32-yard line. The Gamecocks drove to the Bulldog 2-yard line when JSU quarterback David Gullidge was stopped on a fourth down-and-goal attempt.

Samford took over on their 4-yard line with 7:47 left in the first quarter. Samford, aided by two 15-yard penalty, moved to the JSU 14. On fourth-and-10, Samford place-kicker Mike O'Neal missed a 32-yard field goal attempt with 3:53 left in the first quarter.

JSU was then held on downs. On fourth-and-12 from his own 18, JSU punter Steve Bailey was blocked by Samford's Shane Harmon. The Bulldogs recovered the ball on the JSU 1-yard line.

Samford then fumbled into the end zone on the first play from scrimmage and the ball was recovered by JSU's Rodney Cline.

The second quarter began with Samford moving the ball from its own 44-yard line to the JSU 12. Samford's O'Neal then made a 29-yard field goal.

Samford held the 3-0 lead until halftime.

JSU finally got the spark it needed as Nickey Edmondson took the first punt from Samford of the second half and returned it for a 90-yard touchdown. JSU now finally led 7-3 with 11:53 left in the third quarter.

Samford's quarterback Darby was intercepted by JSU's Reginald James on the Samford 47-yard line with 2:36 left in the third quarter. JSU's drive would last into the fourth quarter. The Gamecocks then went up 10-3 when Stinnett hit a 27-yard field goal with 13:29 left to play.

JSU then started a game-winning drive from its own 44-yard line. This drive took four plays and covered 56 yards, and with Stinnett's kick JSU led 17-3.

Samford made the game close as the Bulldogs scored a touchdown with 8:46 left to make the score 17-9. The extra point was then blocked and JSU's Eric Davis returned it 95 yards to make the final score 19-9.

After the game Burgess was

Gulf South Conference gets off to slow start

By RODNEY PARKS
Sports Editor

The Gulf South Conference has just finished its first week of football, and so far only four teams are still undefeated.

In games including conference teams last weekend, North Alabama started the season strong with a 19-7 victory over Alabama A&M. West Georgia had a close 17-16 victory at Wofford and JSU opened its season beating Division I-AA Samford 19-9.

No. 5-ranked Mississippi College lost at McNeese State 28-21. No. 8-ranked Valdosta State lost to powerful Georgia Southern 31-10.

Last year's GSC Tri-Champion UT-Martin lost its opening game to Murray State 24-3. Troy State lost its season opener to Alabama State 16-13.

Livingston continued its losing streak, which now stands at 14 losses in a row, as the Tigers lost their season opener to East Texas State 41-24.

Games in the GSC this week will include North Alabama traveling to Mississippi College and Troy State visiting Livingston.

In non-conference games this week West Georgia travels to Georgia Southern, JSU will host Alabama A&M, Valdosta State will visit Central Florida, UT-Martin host Austin Peay and Delta State will open its season at Southern Arkansas.

Lady Gamecocks show many new faces

By RODNEY PARKS
Sports Editor

It may take some time for everyone on this year's volleyball team to learn each other's name as Coach Janice Slay has brought in eight new freshmen to her roster this year.

This year will take some time for the Lady Gamecocks to come together as a team, but with four starters returning, Slay's team members feel they can challenge for the Gulf South title.

Returning to the Lady Gamecocks' starting line up this year will be last year's GSC Defensive Player of the Year Selina Carpenter. Carpenter is a 5-5 junior setter from Jacksonville. A.J. Sanders, who was named All-GSC last year, will also return this year. Sanders, a 5-9 junior outside hitter, is from Birmingham.

Terry Jo Horrocks, who was named to last year's All-GSC Tournament team will also return to Slay's line up again this year. Horrocks is a 5-11 senior outside hitter from Palmetto, Fla. Sue Imm, a 5-11 middle hitter from Birmingham, will return for her senior year. And Melonie McBrayer a 5-9 junior defensive specialist from Roanoke, will return this year.

The freshmen this year will include Deanna Barker, a 5-11 middle hitter from Anniston; Lynn Batey, a 5-9 outside hitter from Anniston; Janet Ledbetter, a 5-10 outside hitter from Oak Forest Ill.; Wendy Phelps, a 5-7 setter from Gadsden; Camille Ponder, a 5-11 outside hitter from Jacksonville; Amy Vycital, a 5-11 middle hitter from Mary Esther, Fla.; and Tesha Zito, a 5-4 setter from Kenner, La.

The Lady Gamecocks will open their season Sept. 15 at the UNC-Greensboro Invitational in Greensboro, N.C.

Slay feels her team will be ready. "We still have a lot of work to do, mainly incorporating the freshmen into our system," Slay said. "All the freshmen are doing well. They're all very talented."

Slay feels one or two freshmen will start this for her Gamecocks. "I feel like we will do as well as last year and hopefully better," she said.

With five straight second-place GSC finishes, the Lady

COACH RUDY ABBOTT

Golf, tennis, softball team keep spring exciting by finishing high in post-season rankings

By RODNEY PARKS
Sports Editor

The spring was a very good time of the year for Gamecock fans as many of JSU athletic programs finished high in the national rankings.

Coach James Hobbs' golf team finished third in the Gulf South Conference, but came on strong as the Gamecocks finished seventh in the nation.

Chris Gray was named All-GSC. Jim Stagmeier finished seventh in the nation and made second-team All-American. Randy Reaves finished 13th in the nation and made third team All-American.

Overall, Hobbs' team finished 118-41-1 for the season.

Coach Steve Bailey's women's tennis team won the GSC title with a record of 16-5. This is the fourth time the women's team has won the GSC title in five years. Five players were named All-GSC for the women: Lea Clayton, Marne Andrulionus, Amy Conneen, Amanda Wrenn and Paige Johnson.

The women finished the season ranked No. 13 in the nation.

The men's team finished second in the GSC with a 13-5 record and No. 17 in the nation. Two players from the men's team, Michael Garnett and Les Abbott, were named All-GSC.

The softball team finished only their second season under Coach Amy Hardemon. The Lady Gamecocks finished the year with an improved 11-21 record. Jill McLean was named All-GSC for the Lady Gamecocks.

Gamecocks make return visit to the World Series

By RODNEY PARKS
Sports Editor

The spring was a very good time of the year for Coach Rudy Abbott and his baseball team. The Gamecocks finished the year with an overall record of 39-14 and their second-straight World Series appearance.

The Gamecocks had a strong regular season, finishing with a 31-10 record as they won the GSC Eastern title and then hosted the GSC tournament.

In the GSC tournament the Gamecocks had to face the University of North Alabama, a team ranked in the top ten in the nation. The Gamecocks did not fare well in the first game of the tournament, losing to UNA 14-5. Abbott's team then came back to defeat West Georgia 10-4.

JSU also defeated Delta State 5-2 to move into the GSC tournament finals.

In the finals JSU had to defeat UNA twice to be able to win the GSC title. In the first game JSU showed their power as they won over UNA 8-6, but in the second game UNA showed why they were ranked in the top ten as they defeated JSU 9-0 to win the 1989 GSC Tournament.

Even with the loss, Abbott's team then received a bid to play in NCAA playoff's South Central Regional. In the regional, the Gamecocks had to face Delta State again. This game came down to the final pitch, with the Gamecocks winning a close one 11-10.

JSU then had to face UNA again, with the winner of two games going to the World Series. JSU was clearly the best team on this day as the Gamecocks won both games from UNA 8-1 and 8-5. With the South Central tournament championship the Gamecocks were on their way to their second-straight World Series appearance.

Abbott's team started the series off on a good note with a 12-4 victory over New Haven College. The Gamecocks then beat Rollins College 6-5.

After this JSU's hopes of a national championship ended as the Gamecocks lost two straight games to New Haven, 5-2 and 10-6. With the two wins in the World Series, JSU finished third in the nation.

Abbott felt very good about his team's performance. "It was a great year for us," he said. "I'm very proud that we made the World Series two years in a row."

JSU Gamecocks Gamecocks number one in GSC score off field

By RODNEY PARKS
Sports Editor

JSU was represented by nine student-athletes on the 1989 Academic All-Gulf South Conference team for spring sports.

Shortstop Jim Hazlett and GSC Commissioner's Trophy winner Billy Klein, both seniors, represented the baseball team.

Klein, a right-handed pitcher from Attalla, posted a 3-0 record and a 3.83 ERA for Coach Rudy Abbott's team. Klein is the first JSU student to ever receive this award. He carries a 3.52 GPA in biology. Klein posted a 7-0 record during his two year-career.

Hazlett has a 3.03 GPA in finance. He batted .338 with 1 home run and 24 RBI's for the Gamecocks this year.

JSU's softball representatives included Lisa Case, a senior with a 3.95 GPA in physical education, and senior shortstop Jill New, who has a 3.8 GPA in physical education.

Senior golfer Chris Gray was also selected. Gray has a 3.04

JSU won the men's 1988-89 Gulf South Conference All-Sports Trophy.

The men's program won this award by winning the GSC in football and basketball. The men's baseball and tennis teams also finished second in the GSC.

The women's sports program finished second in the All-Sports Trophy after winning the honor one year ago.

The women's tennis team finished first in the GSC, while the volleyball team finished second and the basketball team finished third.

During the year JSU had seven All-Americans, 27 All-GSC performers, 13 Academic All-GSC athletes and seven All-Region and All-Star honorees.

Three players now have new teams

By RODNEY PARKS
Sports Editor

Three players from the 1989 JSU baseball team were picked in major league draft just after the college season ended.

The first player picked from JSU was Todd Jones. Jones is presently playing for the Houston Astros' Class A organization in Auburn, N.Y. Jones has a 1-2 record with a ERA of 4.40, and has 46 strikeouts in 30 innings pitched.

James Dennison was also taken in the draft by the Boston Red Sox organization. Dennison is presently playing for the Sox's Class A team in Winter Haven, Fla. Dennison has a 1-0 record with a 5.57 ERA.

Mac Siebert was picked by the Detroit Tigers and is being used as a pitcher. Siebert is presently playing in the Tigers' rookie league in Bristol, Va. Siebert has a record of 2-1 with a ERA of 2.66. He has 18 strikeouts and only nine walks.
