

January 9, 2003

THE CHANTICLEER

www.jsu.edu/chanticleer

Jacksonville State University

Volume 15

Alabama may dodge proration in 2003

By Benjamin Cunningham
The Chanticleer Editor in Chief

Rainy Day Fund should cover $200 million shortfall

JSU and the rest of education in Alabama may dodge the proration bullet in 2003, but it remains to be seen if schools can avoid the budget axe in 2004.

Thanks to the new Education Rainy Day Fund, approved by Alabama voters last November, state schools may not feel the effects of a predicted $200 million shortfall in the 2003 Education Trust Fund, which funds the schools.

The Legislative Fiscal Office in Montgomery is predicting the slumping economy will result in lower-than-expected revenues from taxes, meaning the state government would have to cut back on budgets for state-funded agencies for the rest of the fiscal year. This condition, known in Alabama political jargon as proration, in the past would have meant state-funded schools, from K-12 to universities, would have to cut spending, suspend programs or fire workers to save money.

Thanks to the new Rainy Day Fund, proration for schools can be avoided if the governor takes steps to borrow from the fund to make up for the lost revenue. The $248 million Alabamians voted to place in the new fund in November would more than cover the shortfall.

Mike Kanarick, a spokesman for outgoing Gov. Don Siegelman, said Tuesday that the process of borrowing from the Rainy Day Fund would be left up to the administration of Gov.-elect Bob Riley, who takes office on Jan. 20. Riley's office had not returned phone calls by press time.

"That's going to be a decision that Gov. Siegelman is going to leave to Gov.-elect Riley in the interest of ensuring a smooth transition," said Kanarick. "It's being passed along, so to speak, in the interest of letting Gov.-elect Riley ... make these decisions since he's going to be the gov

see Proration, page 2

SGA working on recycling, music for spring term

By Jamie M. Eubanks
The Chanticleer News Editor

The SGA's goal this semester — please more than one group of students.

"We're just trying to be more diverse," said Mark Choquette, second vice president of the SGA, "as diverse as we can be with the amount of money that we have. I'm trying to stretch the money as far as I can."

These diverse events include the annual Casino Night, comedians, weekend events, a recycling program, a crawfish boil that we are going to institute," Hayes said.

According to Hayes, JSU had a recycling program that wasn't very organized, which led to the program's demise.

"We contacted the Anniston Army Depot because they have one of the strongest programs in, not only the county, but in the southern area," Hayes said.

The Depot instructed the SGA on how to start their recycling program. The SGA is currently waiting on JSU's administration to act on the resolution for the program.

Payphones an endangered species

By Miranda Bryant
The Chanticleer Staff Writer

JSU can expect to see BellSouth workers around campus this month taking down payphones, but they will not be bringing new phones to put in their places.

According to JSU's telephone center manager Evin Thompson, all payphones on campus will be removed by Jan. 30.

The main reason for BellSouth's removal of payphones at JSU, according to Thompson, is the decrease in profit. "I think they are more interested in how much money they are taking in," said Thompson, "and that really tells them what they need to know."

"but at the same time it's always nice to have a phone."

According to Thompson, BellSouth would leave the payphones in place if the University paid the phone company $58.50 every month for each phone, and BellSouth would keep the money that the users deposit into the phones.

"We would still get nothing from the phones, and this telephone center operates off profits," Thompson said. "The equipment we use is very expensive to purchase and maintain."

The payphones will no longer be able to provide a safety outlet for students without cellular phones, but the telephone center is less worried since emergency phones were installed around campus last cling program, a crawfish boil and more.

"There's so many types of students on campus," Choquette said. "It's important to try to cater to everybody to try to make them feel like they are welcome and we are trying to help them out."

SGA President Robert Hayes had some general goals for the SGA this spring semester. Suitcase On the Shelf will continue this semester but will now be highlighted on the SGA calendar. JSU is often referred to as a "suitcase college," and SOS is a way to let students know what is going on during the weekends in hopes of keeping them in town.

"Probably one of the main focuses that we're going after, as far as service oriented programs, is our recycling program for the program.

"This year, in response to students' desires for a concert and activities we're going to have a good ol' crawfish boil," Hayes said.

"With all the different genres of music and as much taste as you have in this area," according to Choquette, "it's hard to pick something that will appeal to everyone. With the crawfish boil we're going to try to have local music and a headlining band the community as a whole would support."

The SGA is also focusing on Higher Education Day in Montgomery on March 13. College students from across the state gather at the capital to voice their concerns about education funding and the many

see SGA, page 2

2003 Mimosas arrive after production delay

By Jamie M. Eubanks
The Chanticleer News Editor

The 2002 Mimosas are in. There are some new details and they feature a non-traditional cover.

The yearbooks arrived on Monday, three months later than the staff originally expected.

According to Mike Stedham, adviser to the Mimosa and all student media, Bree Davis, editor of the Mimosa, wanted a more contemporary yearbook, hence the non-traditional cover which features pictures of Cocky, Bibb Graves Hall, and Houston Cole Library. The color scheme is green and khaki.

The theme is "Take a Closer Look."

"Probably the biggest change people are going to see is something that had been requested several years ago," said Stedham. "We now have an index in the back."

This will allow students and alumni to find themselves in the book.

"People get the annuals and the first thing they want to do is find themselves," Stedham said.

This is also the first all digital Mimosa. It was completely laid out by computer.

The three-month delay was due to lost pages, Stedham said. Jostens, the Clarksville, Tenn., company that prints the Mimosa lost some of the pages even though the staff met its deadlines.

"We even had to re-lay out a few pages," according to Stedham. "We knew we had sent them."

Now that the Mimosas are in they can be purchased for $10.

The Chanticleer/Patricia Lockhart
Art major Heather Black talks to her boyfriend on a payphone in the Theron Montgomery Building on Tuesday. BellSouth has announced plans to remove all its payphones from the campus by the end of January, citing declining revenue from the units. Widespread cellular phone usage has been cited as the main reason for the decline.

know."

No survey was conducted to determine the ratio between cellular phone users and non-cellular phone users on JSU's campus, but Thompson feels that the increase in newer technologies has caused a decrease in the usage of public payphones. "I suspect that cell phones are what caused this to happen," Thompson said.

"I certainly understand that they cannot keep them in place if the phones are not paying for themselves," said Thompson, installed around campus last semester.

"We are aware of security issues," said Thompson, "and we are ready to respond."

An option for JSU is to install courtesy phones that would only be located inside buildings. "The phones that we would be able to provide are not strong or durable enough to withstand outside elements such as weather and vandalism," Thompson said. JSU has

see Phones, page 2

Congressman introduces bill to revive draft

By Jodi Enda
Knight Ridder Newspapers

WASHINGTON — Three decades after the military draft ended, a small group of Democratic lawmakers wants to bring it back. They seek to spread the risks and burdens of a possible war with Iraq to the white, middle- and upper-middle class men and women who seldom volunteer to serve in the armed forces.

A bill introduced Tuesday by Rep. Charles Rangel of New York is unlikely to become law — the Pentagon opposes it — but it throws a spotlight on issues of patriotism, sacrifice and fairness in an all-volunteer military that in its enlisted ranks is disproportionately poor and African-American or Hispanic.

Rangel, a vocal opponent of war with Iraq, proposes drafting 18- to 26-year-old men and women for military duty or nation

see Draft, page 2

Southerners to march in inaugural parade

By Benjamin Cunningham
The Chanticleer Editor in Chief

When Bob Riley takes office later this month one of the first sights he'll see as Alabama's governor will be JSU's Marching Southerners.

The marching band's 300-plus members will travel to Montgomery to participate in the parade celebrating Riley's inauguration on Jan. 20, performing along with other college and high school bands and dozens of other units before Riley and other state government officials, dignitaries and Alabama citizens.

"I think it's really good exposure," said Ken Bodiford, the band's director. "We've got a pretty big name out there with the Marching Southerners but unfortunately unless people come to a football game or see us at one of our exhibitions they don't ever get an opportunity to see the band."

The Southerners also marched in the parade honoring the inauguration of out-going governor Don Siegelman four years ago. Riley defeated Siegelman in an extremely tight race for the office in November. Both men had declared victory on election night, but Siegelman conceded after a two-week effort for a recount failed.

The Southerners are no strangers to high-profile parades. The band marched in President Lyndon Johnson's inaugural parade in 1965, and in the 1996 Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City, as well as the inaugural parades of many Alabama governors.

In addition to giving up their Martin Luther King holiday to perform, JSU band members will spend two days this month practicing for their appearance. The band will practice music on Monday afternoon at Mason Hall's performance center, and will practice marching on Wednesday at Pete Mathews Coliseum.

The band will perform "Stars and Stripes Forever" during the parade, and will prepare their trademark "Stars Fell on Alabama" and "Malaguena" from their 2002 field show for a standstill performance. The Southerners will join bands from the University of Alabama and Auburn University and other schools in the parade according to event organizers.

Bodiford said the band received calls asking them to perform from Riley's inaugural committee as well as from out-going Secretary of State and former Marching Southerner Jim Bennet.

"They were very enthusiastic about wanting the Southerners," Bodiford said. "I think that Governor Riley, he was at one of our football games this fall. He had an opportunity to see the Southerners then and I think that he was thoroughly impressed from what I understand."

By the numbers:

Days until spring break:

72

Gamecock Scoreboard:

Men's basketball:

Jan. 6 - JSU 88, Gardner-Webb 69

Jan. 11 - vs. Georgia State, home, 7 p.m.

Women's basketball:

Jan. 3 - JSU 102, Savannah State 45

Tonight - at Samford, 7 p.m.

Index:

Announcements, Crime 2

Opinion 3

Features 4

Sports 6

Classifieds 2

Concert calendar 5

Question of the Week 3

PAGE TWO

The Chanticleer • January 9, 2003

Draft: Pentagon opposes Rangel's idea (from page 1)

al service. He would eliminate the exemptions for college or graduate school students that allowed many white, middle- and upper-middle class men to avoid fighting an unpopular war in Vietnam a generation ago.

If President Bush declares war, Rangel said, he should ensure that Americans from all walks of life fight in it.

"I truly believe that those who make the decisions and those who support the United States going to war would feel more readily the pain that's involved, the sacrifice that's involved, if they thought that the fighting force would include the affluent and those who have historically avoided this great responsibility," said Rangel, a decorated veteran of the Korean War.

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld rejected Rangel's proposal out of hand.

"We're not going to reimplement a draft. There is no need for it at all," Rumsfeld told reporters.

The current military prepared for war, and a universal draft would be costly and ineffective because it would require the military to train soldiers to serve for very short periods of time, he said.

"We have people serving today — God bless 'em — because they volunteered. They want to be doing what it is they're doing," Rumsfeld said.

But Rangel's proposal raises anew questions that go to the heart of America's concept of equality. Already, it has created strange alliances: Conscientious objectors have sided with the Pentagon while other notable Vietnam War foes have joined the call for conscription.

"I'm dead set against us declaring war on Iraq. But if we're going to do it, if that's what the country wants, then everybody should participate on equal footing," said former South Dakota senator George McGovern, a World War II bomber pilot who ran for president in 1972 on a Democratic anti-war platform.

"That never happened in Vietnam," McGovern said. "It was always the minorities and the poor fighting and dying. If we're going to go to war with Iraq, a rich Harvard or Stanford student ought to be as subject to the draft as a poor kid of any kind.

"I'm opposed to deferment. We should never repeat that injustice," he said in a telephone interview.

But Brian Cross, a director of the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors, a non-profit based in Philadelphia and Oakland, Calif., said renewing the draft is "a very bad idea." He said the argument posed by Rangel and McGovern that a draft could help deter war is akin to "hostage-taking," adding, "The young people of America don't need to be Charlie Rangel's hostage."

Rangel presented Pentagon statistics showing that African Americans comprise 22 percent of enlisted men and women in the military. They represent less than 13 percent of all Americans, according to the 2000 U.S. Census.

The Oxford Companion to American Military History, a standard war reference, notes that during the height of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, between 1965 and 1969, African Americans made up 15 percent of combat fatalities. In that period, they comprised 11 percent of the U.S. population and 12.6 percent of the soldiers in Vietnam.

The draft, requiring two years of military service, ended as American troops pulled out of Vietnam in 1973, and registration halted two years later. Former President Jimmy Carter reinstated registration after the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in 1980.

(Knight Ridder Newspapers researcher Tish Wells contributed to this report.)

from Phones, page 1

courtesy phones inside its buildings at the moment, and these phones can be used at no cost if the call is local. Calling cards and collect calls may be used if the call is long distance.

Thompson said it would only take the telephone center one day to install a courtesy phone, but that could only take place after a building

"I am not expecting that we will pay the $58.50 each month for BellSouth's payphones," said Thompson, "but that will be up to the budget manager."

Thompson said the telephone center is concerned about the students' opinions. "I would like to hear from the students," he said. "If they feel

from Proration, page 1

error for the next four years."

Kanarick added that Siegelman's financial staff estimated the Education Trust Fund shortfall to be less than the Legislative Fiscal Office's estimate, about $140 million. The exact amount of the shortfall could soon become a key issue, and how much would be left in the Rainy Day Fund could soon become key issues for the Riley administration.

The LFO has not provided detailed projections on state revenue for 2004, but Joyce Bigbee, who heads the agency, has called the outlook "bleak." That could mean the conditions for proration would exist again next year, and the Rainy Day Fund might not have enough money to cover another shortfall.

The ballot measure that established the Rainy Day

Fund calls for the Legislature to replace borrowed funds within five years, but critics have said it provides no mechanism for doing so. That could leave Alabama schools strapped for cash in 2004.

"We're talking about the potential for better than a 10 percent shortfall (in 2004) unless the Legislature does something," Dr. William Fielding, JSU's vice president for administrative and business affairs told The Chanticleer on Friday. "And we'll have used up most of the Rainy Day Fund if we use it this year. So that's where the likelihood for proration is."

Fielding said that any loss of funding from the state would be bad but that a smaller percentage would be easier to absorb than the hypothetical 10 percent. A substantial state budget cut would force the University to consider raising tuition.

"Obviously if we have that kind of a cut we're going to have to see a tuition increase, a pretty substantial one. I wouldn't say how much," Fielding said.

JSU's board of trustees last raised tuition in April of 2002, by $150. The increase was intended to fund $8 million in renovations to Ayers Hall and other campus buildings.

"Our two main sources of funds are tuition and state appropriations," Fielding said. "If you cut the state appropriations dramatically you're going to have to make it up somewhere or shut things down, and we don't want to do that if there's any way possible not to. We just don't have any other options at the University level."

Classifieds

Call 782-5712

Campus rate: $4.00 for 20 words
10 cents each add. word. ($6/20 words off-campus)

Call 24/7! If no answer, leave a message.
We will return your call!

HELP WANTED

Bartender trainees needed.
$250 a day potential.
Local positions.
1-800-293-3985

Reading Tutors Still Needed

America Reads still needs volunteer tutors for all area schools. Our students need help with their reading skills. Can you help? Volunteering only takes one hour a week and we can work around your schedule. Please call Tracey at 435-5091 or e-mail at calhounamreads@cableone.net

FOR RENT

Jacksonville- 1BR, 1BA apartment. 204 College Street SW. Furnished with appliances including washer and dryer. $350/mo includes water, garbage and sewer. Deck on back.

Lease, references and $350 deposit required. Walking distance to JSU. Call 237-9533.

Jacksonville-3BR, 1BA. New paint inside. Stove, Frig. Clean, quiet, No Pets. $525/mo. Call 435-5721 phone center one day to install a courtesy phone, but that could only take place after a building manager submits a request for the phone and finds $15 a month in the building's budget.

commented about the students' opinions. "I would like to hear from the students," he said. "If they feel that having no payphones will impact them greatly, then we need to know."

from SGA, page 1

problems facing higher education.

The Office of the Vice President of Institutional Advancement has reserved two buses to take students to Montgomery to rally for Higher Education, according to Hayes. The event will also include free lunch to participating students and excuse from classes.

"If you remain silent, you never can get anything accomplished," Hayes said. "But if you step up to the plate and be vocal and be visible you'll make a difference. And you might make an impression on some of the legislators."

SGA's senate is also very empty. "Grades, graduation, attendance and class schedules" are the reasons Stephanie Janis, vice president of the SGA, gave for the drop in the number of senators. According to Janis, if a student is interested in becoming a senator they need to call her at the Office of Student Activities at 782-5491.

calhounamreads@cablone.net

SPRING BREAK TRAVEL

SPRING BREAK 2003 is now sponsored by Student Express! Cancun, Acapulco, Mazatlan, Jamaica, Bahamas, South Padre, Las Vegas, Florida, and Ibiza. Book early and get FREE MEALS! Student Express sponsors the BEST PARTIES and is NOW HIRING salaried salespeople, campus reps, and on-site staff. Contact www.studentexpress.com or 1-800-787-3787 for details.

Enterprises

612 A Pelham Road, South • Jacksonville, AL

- Computer Sales & Services
- Framing • Gifts • Models
- Bell South Payments • Internet Service
- Crafts • Hobbies
- Money Orders • Fax Service

TravelersExpressMoneyGram

(256) 435-5576 • Fax (256) 435-3268

ANNOUNCEMENTS

• Delta Zeta: Welcome back everyone! We are so excited about seeing everyone again. This year is going to be great. Have a good week! Good luck to Kimber in the Miss JSU pageant! I hope everyone will be there to support her. Contact: Delta Zeta, dzinformation@yahoo.com

• Freshman Forum: We would like to welcome everyone back to school and wish everyone a great semester. Contact: Katie Scott, katiescott@hotmail.com

• JSU Model Arab Club Meeting: There will be a meeting of the JSU Model Arab League Club on Jan. 9 at 6 p.m. in 216 in Martin Hall. If interested and unable to attend you can still get involved. Contact: Dr. Baucom, 782-5811 or tbaucom@jsucc.jsu.edu

• Phi Mu: We welcome everyone back to class. Congrats to our new members for having the highest GPA! Good luck Jenny, Katie, and Maranda in the Miss JSU pageant! Have a great semester and study hard! Contact: Lacey Deaver, lacedoo@aol.com

• SGA: Welcome back! The Miss JSU Pageant will be this Saturday in the Stone Center at 7 p.m. Tickets can be purchased at the door — $5 for JSU students, faculty, and staff, and $8 for general public. Senate meetings are every Monday at 6 p.m., come and be part of the excitement. Contact: Andrew Symonds, 782-5495.

• Zeta Tau Alpha: Welcome back! We would like to wish all JSU students and faculty good luck this semester. Thanks to all the families who participated in family night Tuesday; it's so good to see all of you! Good luck to everyone in Miss JSU this weekend! We love you Katie and Cambrey! Contact: Pinkgirl18200118@aol.com

The Chanticleer Announcements Policy: Any JSU student organization or University office may submit items for the Announcements column. Submissions must be typed, and must be limited to 50 words. Submissions must include a name and telephone number or e-mail address to contact for further information, but this information does not count toward the 50-word total. Submissions must arrive at The Chanticleer offices in Room 180, Self Hall by 5 p.m. on the Monday prior to the desired publication date.

The Chanticleer reserves the right to refuse publication of any submission for any reason. We also reserve the right to edit submissions for style, brevity, and clarity.

CAMPUS CRIME

• Jan. 4 — JSU reported possession of marijuana to JSUPD occurring at Sparkman Hall. One bag of leafy green substance was recovered.

Information in the Campus Crime column is obtained from incident and arrest reports at the JSU Police Department in Salls Hall. These records are public documents which any individual has the right to examine under Alabama state law. If you believe this information to be in error, please call 782-5701, or contact JSUPD at 782-5050.

ALL AMERICAN FOOD™

611 PELHAM ROAD, S.
JACKSONVILLE, AL

10%
DISCOUNT
WITH STUDENT ID

Expires
January 31, 2003

CHALLENGING. REWARDING. ESSENTIAL.

A CAREER
WITH THE INS

IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE

www.ins.gov

A CAREER WITH THE INS, NOT YOUR AVERAGE DESK JOB

If you are looking for an exciting career with every opportunity to succeed, consider the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Whether it's law enforcement, immigration services, management, or technical support, you'll be contributing to the fulfillment of a vital mission: safeguarding our nation. The rewards are great, the challenges unique, and the benefits tremendous.

For more information or to apply, visit www.ins.gov.

IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE FOR YOUR CAREER. FOR YOUR COUNTRY.

ALL RECORDS FROM INS OFFICES ARE AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYMENT

OPINION

The Chanticleer • January 9, 2003

In Our View

Smarter shopping

It's the beginning of another semester, and that means fighting with heavy traffic, struggling to remember where it is you're supposed to be going, and waiting anxiously for loan checks to arrive.

And it also means shelling out large sums of money for your semester's supply of textbooks.

For time out of mind students have decried the exorbitant prices college bookstores charge for the tomes of knowledge they peddle — even the used ones. Surely, students have wondered for ages, there must be a way to get these books from another retailer at a more reasonable price. If only there were some way to browse all the bookstores in the world from my desk and get the best possible price.

It would seem the time for rejoicing is at hand. The advent of the Internet has made easy-to-do comparison shopping for college textbooks a reality ... almost.

The reality is that while students can save at least a few dollars — in some cases hundreds — by shopping for their books online, the logistics of the matter still make it inconvenient to do so.

In most cases students don't learn what text they'll need for a course until the bookstores stock up and open a few weeks before class. That often leaves students rushing to get their books at the last minute as they arrive in town for the start of classes.

Certainly the technology is available to give students a list of texts required for their courses as soon as they register. Students can already access their schedule, billing information, grades and other information from home on the Internet. Why not make a database of books required for each course available as well?

It will require some work, and will probably mean some changes to procedures the University has followed for years. But the need for this change is unquestionable. For whatever reason, campus bookstores can't or won't provide books at the best possible price. With tuition always on the rise, the cost of books is becoming ever harder to bear. It should be obvious, then, that the best interests of students are not being served.

With the technology now available, the time is ripe for student leaders to push University administrators to make a change. Make it easier for students to shop for their books on their own, ahead of time. It may mean eventually saying goodbye to bookstores the way we've always known them, but honestly, who will miss that part of a new semester?

It's time for today's kids to think outside the box

By Gary W. Lewis
The Chanticleer
Contributing Editor

The 10-year old's eyes lit up as he began opening the last of his Christmas presents. Something about the size and weight of this particular gift seemed to excite him more than the others.

The appearance of a familiar logo confirmed his hopes, and he furiously tore off the remaining wrapping paper.

"Cool!" he shouted. "Shaak Ti!"

Leaving behind a stack of new clothes, CDs and video games, he jumped up and ran to his bedroom with the new action figure.

"He collects Star Wars toys," his mother explained.

I suppose I shouldn't have been surprised when moments later I walked into his room and saw dozens upon dozens of Star Wars action figures — unopened — lining each shelf and desktop and every conceivable bit of wall space.

Kids don't seem to play with action figures these days. Even girls aren't immune. I know one little 8-year old who's the same way with Barbie dolls.

They get it from their parents, I guess. I'm sure I wasn't the only kid who gleefully sacrificed Luke Skywalker and Han Solo to the playground gods. I shudder to think how much my old Millennium Falcon might be worth today, had I left it unopened in the original packaging rather than using it to attack the mountain fortress of GI Joe and the Incredible Hulk.

And I suppose my sister would prefer that I hadn't entered Ken and Barbie as contestants in "Death Race 3000" those many years ago.

Superman had to withdraw from the competition after losing both arms and a leg in a horrible accident a few days earlier — I ran over him with my bike. Twice. That left the Tonka bulldozer without a driver.

A covert mission to my sister's room soon located more than just a substitute driver. I also found a new vehicle to enter into the race: the Barbie "Country Camper," a goofy-looking plastic Winnebago with a side that folded out into a sort of tent.

Barbie got to drive the bulldozer, 'cause Ken was a putz.

Neither fared well, unfortunately. My sister found her two dolls a week later, half-buried in a mound of Georgia red clay. She never found the Winnebago. Cheap plastic just can't compete with die-cast metal in something so important as a Death Race. The Country Camper was pulverized in minutes.

Such wanton destruction of our childhood toys helped create the market for the "collectibles" of today. The idea of placing unopened toys into protective plastic sleeves was as foreign to us then as it is commonplace today. The whole thing is silly.

I can envision some bright-eyed grandfather showing up on the set of Antiques Roadshow in the year 2050, Star Wars toy in hand. A well-dressed expert casually examines the goods.

"Hmmm ... A mint-on-mint .00 card 'Poggle the Lesser' from Episode II," he says knowingly. He hands the package back to the old man. "Show me something I don't see every day."

Now that everyone is doing it, collecting has become futile. But that's not the worst of it. When I was a kid, the only thing as fun as playing with a new toy was playing with the box it came in. A box was never just a box. In the proper hands, it became a cave, or a skyscraper, or even a battleship. Sure, it was fragile and usually didn't last the day before falling apart. But then, neither did the toy.

I wonder sometimes if today's children have the imagination to play with a cardboard box.

This collecting craze just needs to stop. Kids need to take those Star Wars action figures out of the package and go nuts. One-up George Lucas. Every now and then, let the Empire and the Trade Federation join forces to crush the Rebel Alliance.

Why not? It's called imagination.

Besides, if enough kids do that, maybe the mint-on-mint .00 card Darth Maul I've been hanging on to might actually be worth something someday.

IN YOUR VIEW: QUESTION OF THE WEEK

"What's your number-one New Year's

one New Year's resolution, and are you
managing to keep it?"

Patricia Lockhart
Photo Editor

Leslie Bice
Junior
Nursing

"My New Year's resolution is to pass algebra 102. It is going fine."

Michael Doty
Sophomore
Nursing

"My New Year's resolution is to pass biology 102. It is going great so far."

Sheraton Groce
Sophomore
Sociology

"My New Year's resolution is to make better grades and be on the dean's list. So far it is going good."

Nailah May
Junior
Elementary education

"I do not have a New Year's resolution. My focus is on my lifelong goals."

Lucas Sanders
Junior
Accounting

"I'm going to go to class every day, but it is going to be hard."

May our tolerance prevail as steadfast beliefs clash

By Jane Eisner

Knight Ridder Newspapers

The U.S. State Department has posted a series called "Muslim Life in America," but it is clearly for foreign consumption. The upbeat collection of stories and photographs on the department's official Web site deftly mixes profiles with patriotic propaganda, designed to illustrate the complex but comfortable life that adherents of Islam enjoy in America today.

It shows this nation at its inclusive best, from the Algerian Muslim immigrant who now directs the National Institutes of Health to the three blacks who make up the Muslim rap group Native Deen — deen meaning religion or way of life.

"Our music is American, it's hip, and it's something everybody can be comfortable with," boasts Joshua Salaam, the group's leader.

That neatly sums up the characterization of religious life that America is eager to project to the world: modern, decentralized, accepting of differences, tolerant of others. Something comfortable to all.

And totally out of touch with emerging reality.

"When people look back on our age, they'll see highly educated Americans who are ignorant of religion and the wave about to wash over them," warns David Brooks, a writer and senior editor at the Weekly Standard. "We still have a worldview that does not know how to deal with religion. We don't know how to blend the spiritual and the material, to take into account the fact that people elsewhere believe things and act on their beliefs."

I'll confess to being one of those wallowing in blissful, pluralistic ignorance — until, that is, I heard Brooks and others speak at a conference last month sponsored by the Ethics and Public Policy Center, which brings together scholars and journalists to discuss issues such as religion and international conflict.

The "live and let live" credo of American religious life will find itself increasingly challenged not only by a potent Islam but also by a growing, radical Christianity that bears little resemblance to the liberal, secularized version practiced here.

"We are living in revolutionary times," writes Philip Jenkins, a professor of history and religious studies at Pennsylvania State University, who also spoke at the conference. "But we aren't participating in them."

Jenkins contends that the number of Christians living in the global South has risen dramatically in the last century and will continue to grow, causing a profound shift in a faith that many still consider predominantly American and Western European. By 2025, half of the world's Christian population will be in Africa and Latin America, and an additional 17 percent will be in Asia.

"There'll be an aging, white North and a very young black and brown South," he predicts.

With the demographic change will come cultural and religious conflict not seen since Martin Luther defied the Catholic Church nearly five centuries ago. The waning Christians of the North are concerned with democracy and privacy, but their Southern brethren — very numerous, very poor — embrace a charismatic religion of signs, wonders and healing (especially in impoverished communities without medical care).

The new Christianity is much more conservative on social issues such as abortion and homosexuality and less willing to question religious authority on such matters as the ordination of women. It may well have a liberating effect in some countries, where emboldened clerics are sometimes the only ones willing to challenge an entrenched ruling class or dictatorship.

(Clerics from the global South, for instance, have been outspoken proponents of debt relief for struggling countries.)

But this new Christianity will hardly bring about the liberal reformation so desired by many in the North. The tension is already evident in the renegade actions of the Rev. David L. Moyer, conservative Episcopal pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Rosemont, Pa., who has defied the more liberal Bishop Charles L. Bennison, head of the Diocese of Pennsylvania. The bishop so far has failed to oust Father Moyer, who has received support from a more conservative bishop in Africa.

The new Christianity will also run headfirst into equally conservative, traditional and increasingly centralized Islam, intent on imposing its own laws and expectations. Muslims are particularly resistant to any attempts at conversion — a major problem for Evangelicals who believe it's their job to spread the Word.

The resulting conflicts may make the sectarian troubles of Northern Ireland look like an overheated chess match. Think of the recent bloodshed in Nigeria, where Christian-Muslim rioting over the hosting of a beauty pageant left more than 100 dead, as a possible preview of what's to come.

Unfortunately, it's not clear how and even if the West should intervene. "It's naive to think that we can go into the Muslim world and teach them about moderation," argues Jeffrey Goldberg, who writes about the Middle East for the New Yorker and also spoke at the conference. "These are grown-ups with a very ancient, complex system of beliefs that may clash sometimes with our system of beliefs."

The religious challenges of the 21st century will likely be far more complicated than today's verbal jousting over clerical-abuse scandals and the separation between church and state. One can only hope that our foreign policy reflects something more sophisticated than the heartwarming photographs on the State Department Web site. While we teach the world about the American recipe for religious pluralism, we also better become smarter about religious practices that are not always comfortable to all.

ABOUT THE WRITER

Jane R. Eisner is a columnist for Philadelphia Inquirer. Readers may write to her at: Philadelphia Inquirer, P.O. Box 8263, Philadelphia, Pa. 19101, or by e-mail at jeisner@phillynews.com.

The Chanticleer

Campus Mail 700 Pelham Rd N
Room 180, Self Hall Jacksonville, AL 36265
<http://www.jsu.edu/chanticleer>

News Desk - 782-5701, Sports Desk - 782-5703
Newsroom Fax - 782-5932, Advertising Director - 782-5712

The Chanticleer is the newspaper of the Jacksonville State University community. Copies of The Chanticleer are distributed across the JSU campus weekly on Thursdays during the fall and spring semesters.

Single copies are free from newsstands. Unauthorized removal of multiple copies will be considered theft and prosecuted as such.

LETTERS POLICY

The Chanticleer welcomes letters to the editor. Letters for publication must be limited to 300 words and must be typed. Letters may be hand-delivered or sent through campus mail to our offices in Room 180, Self Hall, or to the mailing address at left. Letters may also be e-mailed to:

jsu_chanticleer@hotmail.com.

The Chanticleer will not print letters which are libelous, defamatory, or submitted anonymously. Letters may be edited for style, brevity, or clarity. The Chanticleer reserves the right to refuse publication of any submission. Letters must be received by noon on the Monday prior to desired publication date. There will be at least two weeks between publication of letters from the same person. Rebuttals will be published no later than two weeks after publication of the article, editorial or

Editor in Chief Benjamin Cunningham
Managing Editor Stephanie Pendergrass
News Editor Jamie M. Eubanks
Features Editor Danni Lusk
Sports Editor Anthony Hill
Advertising Director Stephen Hollis
Photography Director Patricia Lockhart
Adviser Mike Stedham

FEATURES

The Chanticleer • January 9, 2003

SGA makes plans for the spring

By Danni Lusk

The Chanticleer Features Editor

The SGA's biggest plans for the spring semester are in the works while some of the smaller events are already planned.

The annual Miss JSU pageant, on Jan. 11 at 7 p.m., will be held in the Stone Center theatre, according to SGA publicity director Andrew Symonds. The pageant serves as a preliminary pageant to the Miss Alabama pageant and even further, the Miss America pageant.

On Feb. 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the TMB auditorium, Jon Reep, a comedian, will make an appearance. He recently showcased at the Montreal Comedy Festival in addition to appearing at various clubs and college campuses.

One of the SGA's newest game shows Think Fast will be on March 19 in the TMB auditorium. This fast-paced quiz game is similar to those played on the computers in some local bars, according to Symonds. A $200 cash prize will be awarded to the winning team. Teams may be made up of an unlimited number of people.

Instead of hosting an annual spring concert, the SGA decided to put together a day-long crawfish boil featuring a few small bands. According to Symonds, they have not yet signed any bands to the event and should know more in a few weeks.

For more information on any of the events contact the Student Activities office at 782-5491.

Tunes for toys

Pretend to be a slut and sell records

By Danni Lusk

The Chanticleer
Features Editor

Christina Aguilera is what I like to call an "entertainment slut."

This marketing machine production was shaped, molded and formed into whatever her marketing execs wanted her to be in the beginning of her career and now is turning herself into a "dirty" (as Christina would say) version of herself. According to her official Web site her latest album "Stripped" "strips away the last remnants of her previous teen idol persona and what's left is as real as it gets."

Christina's got 11 piercings now and when asked about the ones that aren't visible in a recent interview with Allure she said, "I'm not going to tell you where they all are, but you'll probably imagine."

Along with her holey body, she is sporting the rich skank look — you know, the one where she shops at trendy stores with expensive clothing yet she still looks like a two-dollar hooker.

And her latest album even

Behind the classifieds

Behind every classified ad there is a story, some are just more odd than others

By Aline Mendelson

The Orlando Sentinel

ORLANDO, Fla. — Skim the classified section of a newspaper, on any given day, in any given city.

Wherever you are, you will find the same stories. Stories of breaking hearts and bleeding hearts, stories of loves lost and found. Stories to which we can all relate.

Some ads are cryptic:

Wanted: Autographs of anypublished.

Other ads are intensely personal:

Engagement ring — 1 carat diamond solitaire, $6,500 obo. GIRLFRIEND SAID NO!

"It got your attention, didn't it?" points out the embarrassed advertiser, who would not give his name.

But not everyone is as secretive as the autograph seeker and the ring seller. Some people are willing to share their stories. Here is one.

Some ads are cryptic:

Wanted: Autographs of anyone famous.

The Orlando man who submitted this ad says he paid $20,000 for a document signed by Benjamin Franklin and John Adams. To protect that autograph, he did not want his name willing to share their stories. Here is one.

WANTED DEAD OR ALIVE! BUICK V-6 4.1, 1983 OR 1984 MODEL.

Some men name their cars.

see Ads, page 5

Brent Merrill, lead singer of Something 5, performed on Dec. 17 at the Brother's Bar/Toys for Tots benefit along with three other bands.

Prolonging your pleasure

Condom companies Durex and Trojan introduce "climax control" brands containing a mild anesthetic to prolong your pleasure

By Daniel Chang
Knight Ridder Newspapers

It's a tantra master wrapped in foil, the antidote to impatient passion.

Two lines of "climax control" condoms that contain a mild anesthetic, Benzocaine, promise men the sort of self-restraint that once required tantric meditation or at least a distracting thought or two during sex, Michael Jackson, say, in a Peter Pan costume.

For many, the recent introduction of Trojan Extended Pleasure and Durex Performax condoms has been as welcome as a postcoital smoke, according to Jane Flaherty, co-owner of Condom U.S.A. in Coconut Grove, Fla.

"People have been waiting for these for years," she said. "This makes it easier and likelier that people will use a condom."

Trojan and Durex each developed a climax-control condom after learning that roughly 30 percent of people in clinical trials complained of premature ejaculation.

"We thought the thing to do is to ... make the experience longer lasting and, therefore, more pleasurable," said Richard Kline, vice president of marketing for Trojan.

Durex, based in the United

Miami Herald Tribune

The Durex Performax condoms

Kingdom, sold 18,000 of the new condoms on the Internet in three months before introducing them in the United States last summer, said Tonya Cramer, associate brand manager.

"We did a lot of research," she said. "This definitely took care of one of the big problems that people were having."

Trojan has sold 21 million of the Extended Pleasure condoms since introducing them last year, Kline said. Already, it's the fifth-best-selling condom in the United States, he said. Each brand cost about $12 a dozen, roughly $1 more than a box of traditional condoms.

Numbing the penis to prolong sexual intercourse is nothing new. Before the climax-control condoms were introduced, Flaherty said, customers would buy a desensitizing spray or cream, apart from their condoms.

The new condoms simplify that process, she said, and reduce the risk that the anesthetic will numb both partners. The Benzocaine is inside the condom and, in the case of the Performax brand, is heat activated.

According to the condom manufacturers, desensitizing the penis can delay climax by as long as five minutes.

Still, prolonged pleasure should not trump birth control or safe sex as reasons for using a condom, Kline said.

"We're trying to make that protection as pleasurable as possible," he said.

Filing early is key

By Chastity Pratt
Knight Ridder Newspapers

DETROIT, Mich. — Parents and students who will need financial aid to pay for college this year were able to start filing necessary federal paperwork Jan 1.

The Free Application for Federal Student Aid, or FAFSA, can be filled out and filed electronically or by mail. The FAFSA is used to determine the amount of grants, scholarships, work-study awards and loans a student may qualify for to pay for college.

An estimated $50 billion will be awarded for the 2003-04 school year, according to the U.S. Department of Education.

About 10.9 million applicants filed the FAFSA for the 2002-03 school year, according to U.S. Department of Education statistics. The FAFSA is the starting point for almost all student financial assistance programs, according to Sallie Mae, the country's leading provider of education funding.

Although experts at the Department of Education say students who are eligible for federal aid will get it, it is important to file the FAFSA as soon as possible to meet deadlines.

Ruth Jordan of Detroit said she will be at her computer as soon as the application is available. With tax records on hand, she said she has logged onto the FAFSA Web site and received a personal identification number so she can file for her son, who she hopes will be accepted to Princeton.

Her son Venias Jordan Jr. plays football, basketball and baseball for Cody High in Detroit and has a 3.5 grade-point average. Jordan, a divorcee who works as a housing aid for the Inkster Housing Commission, is confident her son's schooling will be paid for between financial aid, athletic scholarships and the several academic scholarship applications he has submitted.

But still, she said she knows now is the time to be diligent about the search for college money.

"Parents, we have to take responsibility," said Jordan. "Have a rapport with your child's counselor. ... And if you don't have a computer, go to the library. They have computers, somebody to help you and the forms (are) right there."

Within 72 hours of filing online, Jordan will get the Student Aid Report, which will tell her how much federal aid her son qualifies to receive. Those who mail in the paperwork should get a response in about two weeks.

Also, filing electronically can help avoid delays because the software allows for on-the-spot corrections.

An estimated 8 percent of paper applications are returned for errors, according to the Department of Education. For the 2002-03 school year, about 58 percent of FAFSAs were processed online.

"We encourage people to apply online because the error rate is so much smaller," said Jane Glickman, a spokeswoman for the Department of Education's Federal Student Aid programs.

And her latest album even features a song called "Dirrty" in which she seductively sings the lyrics "Sweat until my clothes come off." The music video is even nastier featuring half-clothed men and women and highlights of it include a mud wrestling match and striptease-like dancing by Christina herself.

It was recently reported on Access Hollywood that Christina said she is "playful" in bed and even likes to use handcuffs.

Her Rolling Stone pictorial features her, among other photos, covering two of her best assets with her hands, with a guitar laying alongside her.

My question is, what is the point in saying and trying to become all these "dirty" things?

Some would say she is just being herself. Or she is showing her independence and strong feminine self.

I say it's a cheap attempt to sell records. And it works.

But is all this nastiness necessary to sell records? I'm wondering what happened to buying an album based on the talent of the performer. After all, Christina, in my opinion, could easily go up against the level of talent of sensational singers like Mariah Carey or Aretha Franklin. Her singing abilities are beyond that of most of the pop divas nowadays.

Even some critics have praised her musical ability while at the same time, criticizing her for appearing so cheap.

But, do you really have to become such a stereotypical slut to entice people to buy your record? I think not. I believe that consumers and their thinking abilities go beyond what record companies think: sex, sex and sex.

from Ads, page 4

Other men insist their cars have a gender, usually female.

John J. Lewis has neither named his '83 Buick Park Avenue nor determined its gender.

"I've never checked," the Apopka, Fla., man drawls.

He bought the car from a friend five years ago. It needed body work and a fresh coat of white paint to look decent. The upholstered burgundy seats feel like velvet and smell of the vanilla incense he likes. The car could take Lewis all the way from Apopka to Atlanta on 15 gallons of gas.

Recently, the car broke down. Now it sits motionless in Lewis' driveway, waiting for a new heart. The engine is beyond repair.

Lewis' son let him temporarily borrow his Chevrolet van, and he isn't too enchanted with it.

Lewis has had no luck finding an engine, even though he has inquired as far away as Oklahoma and will accept a dead engine that can be rebuilt.

The 61-year-old former truck driver can't help but have a soft spot for Buicks. After all, he learned how to drive with a '39 Buick.

Even if a brand-new car magically appeared at his doorstep, he still would keep the Buick, Lewis says.

"I like my women young and my cars old."

Study this.

Student Special

1-Topping Pizza*

$5.99 $7.99

Medium Large

Pizza Hut

*Valid only with Student ID.
Not Valid on The Big New Yorker, Stuffed Crust, or The Chicago Dish Pizza
©2001 Pizza Hut, Inc. The Pizza Hut name, logo and related marks are trademarks of Pizza Hut, Inc. Delivery where available; charges may apply.

813 Pelham Road South
435-5202
Dine-In or Carryout

got news?
let us know. call 782-5701.

AW
ALL AMERICAN FOOD™

LONG JOHN SILVERS

10% DISCOUNT WITH STUDENT ID

Expires January 31, 2003

611 PELHAM ROAD, S. • JACKSONVILLE, AL

GRAYWOLF

ROCK SHOP

85 LEYDENS MILL RD.
JACKSONVILLE, AL

782-0016

WED-FRI 10-5 SAT 10-2

- CRYSTALS -
- MINERALS -
- ROCKS -
- GEMS -
- FOSSILS -
- JEWELRY -
- BOOKENDS -
- STONE CARVINGS -

WLJS
92-J
91.9FM

concert calendar

Jacksonville

1/9/03 Velcro Pygmies - Brother's
1/10/03 Ethan - Brother's
1/11/03 Downright - Brother's
1/15/03 DJ Mac - Brother's

Birmingham

1/9/03 Ethan - Barking Kudu
1/10/03 Gran Torino - Zydeco

Atlanta

1/9/03 Kitty Snyder - Smith's Olde Bar
1/10/03 Tishamingo - Smith's Olde Bar
1/11/03 Mitch Hedberg - The Punchline
1/13/03 Jet By Day - The EARL
1/14/03 Ethan - The Brandyhouse
1/15/03 Neva Dinova - Echo Lounge

Miss JSU Pageant

This Saturday

$5 For Students,
Faculty And Staff
With Valid
Identification

$8 For The General Public

7:00 P.M. At Ernest Stone Performing Arts Center

SPORTS

The Chanticleer • January 9, 2003

On being the guy after

“The Guy”

By
J. Wilson Guthrie
The Chanticleer
Sports Editor

The Thrill has left the building.

One of the first people I ever met on The Chanticleer staff was Anthony. We had been acquaintances since I first started here in 1998. And when I finally changed my major to my true love, print journalism, we talked again.

But, life has its twists and turns and I ended up spending nine months learning to be an Army journalist. I returned to JSU in hopes of finishing my degree and my life. Then tragedy struck. Sept. 11, 2001 affected the lives of millions of people and I was no different. My Public Affairs unit was deployed first to Kuwait, then Afghanistan. Another almost eight months passed.

Finally I was home. I spoke with Ben about maybe writing for The Chanticleer and he said, “Sure, come on down.”

So here I am now, after covering the SGA for a semester, I am the new Sports Editor. Why would I take a position such as this one, with no hope of being as good as the last guy? Who was the coach after Bear Bryant? Exactly. No one wants to be the guy after ‘the guy.’

I took this position first because I love my job. The only other reason was because I was

Gamecocks trounce Dogs

Courtesy The Anniston Star/Stephen Gross

Senior point guard Poonie Richardson led the Gamecocks to an 88-69 A-Sun Conference win Monday night over the Runnin' Bulldogs of Gardner-Webb. Richardson had a career high tying 26 points and six assists. The Gamecocks return to action Saturday against conference rivals Georgia State.

By J. Wilson Guthrie
The Chanticleer Sports Editor

Jacksonville State moved to 3-0 in the Atlantic Sun Conference Monday with an 88-69 blowout win over the Runnin' Bulldogs of Gardner-Webb.

Leading the Gamecocks onslaught with a career-high tying 26 points, and six assists was Senior Poonie Richardson. Richardson was 9-12 from the field, 5-7 from three-point land and in the waning moments of the first half went on a 10-3 romp.

Backing up Richardson were Jay Heard and Omar Bartlett, who were both in double digits with 21 and 14 points respectively. Bartlett also pulled down 12 boards giving him the seventh double-double of his career.

Otis Daniels led the “Poonie was hot so I had to give it to him.”

—Emerson Brown
JSU Junior Guard

Bulldogs, putting up 22 points and five rebounds. The Bulldogs only shot 41 percent from the paint and went a dismal 10-26 in the second half.

Gardner held the lead only once the entire game; their opening shot from the tip-off. Allowing the Bulldogs to tie the game only three times, Jacksonville dominated. As JSU pulled away with 10:00 left in the second half, no-look and behind-the-back passes became the norm. Vicious blocked shots and a no-mercy defense took out any hopes of Gardner closing the 20-point lead with 6:00 left in the game.

“(Richardson) was hot, so I had to give it to him,” said Emerson Brown, who had five assists.

Jacksonville will attempt to keep their flawless No. 1 A-Sun North ranking intact as they play Georgia State, the No. 2 A-Sun North team Saturday at 7 p.m.

Santa brings Gamecocks best season start, team tops A-Sun standings

Presents include a double-double for Barlett, a trip to Michigan, perfect A-Sun record

By Mike Vaughan II
The Chanticleer Staff Writer

Jacksonville State swept the season home-and-home series with a 74-67 win over the Braves of Alcorn State.

JSU had some trouble containing Lee Cook, the powerful big man for Alcorn, as he scored 31. JSU did effectively clamp down his supporting cast however, as the other 36 points were shared by 10 players.

The Gamecocks were led in scoring by Jay Heard, who notched 16 points and added came back with a second place finish in the University of Maine Invitational Classic. They easily handled NAIA Division II Maine-Machias 94-61, but dropped a heartbreaker to the homestanding Black Bears 68-64.

The first game featured the Gamecocks against their first ever NAIA Division II opponent, Maine Machias and the Gamecocks were not looking ahead, as Carl Brown led the team with 23 points in his first extended playing time of the season.

defense for a 15-0 run. A 20-11 run soon followed to cap the first half as the Gamecocks took a 42-19 lead to the break.

The second half was dominated on the inside as the big men for JSU managed to wear down the smaller Machias team, pushing the lead to as much as 40, allowing many reserves to receive playing time, and also allowing the starters to rest and prepare for the next game.

The next game proved to be much rougher, as the step up in competition was noticeable. The Black Bears pounded on the tired Gamecocks, and JSU was unable to cash in on the 27 turnovers they received.

at the second media timeout. That timeout proved to be critical, however, as the JSU shooters seemed to wake up, breaking out a 16-9 spurt of their own.

Alas, the half ended as it started, as the Bears poured on an 11-2 run, holding the Red and White scoreless over the last 4:28 of the half, as Maine took a 44-26 lead to the locker room.

JSU tried to make up for lost time in the second half, but were matched shot-for-shot by the home standers as the score pushed to 58-43 and the clock shrank to 12:16 remaining.

The Gamecocks resounded a ringing blow after that, howevand a game against the No. 15 team in the nation, the Michigan State Spartans. The Gamecocks gave a valiant effort, but the depth and talent of the Big 10 school overpowered the Gamecocks, 76-52. MSU also held a 42-23 rebounding edge and outshot the Gamecocks by a 54 percent to 36 percent margin.

The opening tip led to a 17-8 run by the Spartans as Alan Anderson and Kevin Tolbert scored on fast break opportunities. JSU cut the lead to nine at 27-18 with four minutes left, but the Spartans rebuilt a 33-19 halftime edge.

Depth played a large role in the second half, as 13 home because I love my job. The only other reason was because I was drunk when Ben asked me to do this.

So I am the guy now, but I am not Anthony.

Probably the most noticeable difference is that Anthony was bald. I have at least some hair.

And Anthony was somewhat athletically inclined. And other than scoring all over the 92J staff in the Dead Bowl and a small little venture called Danball, the closest I have ever been to organized sports is when I change the channel on the television.

But many similarities are there too, like facial hair. And we are both members of Greek organizations, who even have the same colors, black and gold.

So don't think of this as the end, o ye faithful followers of The Chanticleer sports page. We still have great teams and wonderful traditions. The only thing missing is Anthony, and One-on-One with Thrill. We decided that should travel with him.

And even he is still here in spirit. He is being immortalized with a plaque of solid brass and wood laminate, emblazoned with "The Anthony 'Thrill' Hill Memorial Crunk Corner" dedicating the southwest corner of The Chanticleer office in his memory.

Tour times will be announced at a later date and a small fee will be charged.

So I am looking forward to doing my best with what I have been given. I hope that you all enjoy it.

notched 16 points and added five steals to his lone. Poonie Richardson scored 10 points and added seven assists. Neither team could build a lead larger than eight at any time, as six ties and 11 lead changes were sprinkled in the game.

The Gamecocks traveled to the northeasternmost contiguous state in the country, and season.

The team shot 54.9 percent from the floor, and held their opponent to only 36.4 percent, the lowest output by a JSU opponent this season.

UM-Machias managed to hit a three-pointer to open the game, and held an 8-7 lead five minutes in, but the Gamecocks bared their claws and ripped the turnovers they received. Richardson led the Gamecocks with 20, as Omar Barlett narrowly missed a double-double, scoring 16 and grabbing nine rebounds.

The first half featured a quick Maine 11-0 start only four minutes into the game, and the shell shocked Gamecocks were only able to hold the margin to 22-8 ringing blow after that, however, as they blew out a 21-6 run to even the game at 64 with only :42 remaining. A lay-up and a pair of free throws sealed the fate of the Gamecocks, making the final 68-64 margin.

Fresh off the gut-wrenching game against Maine, the Gamecocks were rewarded with a trip to East Lansing, Mich.,

the second half, as 13 home players saw playing time. The Gamecocks cut the lead to 10 briefly, but the inside game and defense of Michigan State proved to be too much as a 17-3 run midway through the half proved to be the winning stuff for the home team. After that

see Men, page 7

Old Saint Nick not so nice to Gamecock women

By Mike Vaughan II

The Chanticleer Staff Writer

Jacksonville State managed to out rebound the much taller Jackson State team 59-45, yet still had their three game win streak snapped with a 77-63 loss to the Lady Tigers.

A chilly night outside was matched by a chilly shooting night inside, as both teams shot a combined 35.9 percent from the floor. Shanika Freeman, the A-sun leading scorer, led the Gamecocks with her fourth double-double, as she scored 16 and pulled down a career high 16 rebounds. Heathar Shepard added a season high 10 points and Freddrika Embry added a 12 rebound night.

A shot as time expired capped off a thrilling holiday game in Huntsville to give the visiting Red and White a 66-65 win. The game featured six ties and six lead changes, four of which occurred in the climactic second half. Leading JSU again was Shanika Freeman, who tallied 19 and also by junior Kelly Nye who knocked in 16, her season high.

The first half was very physical as no team could secure a lead larger than nine. JSU did manage to jump out to a 10-5 lead, with Nye scoring eight of those 10. Turnovers and defensive rebounding problems haunted the Lady Gamecocks after that point, however, as A&M shot on a 25-10 run to up their lead to nine. The same monkey then hopped on the home team, as JSU cut the half-time deficit to 38-35.

The second half was even tighter than the first as both teams tried to open a lead, but struggled to do so. The Gamecocks briefly held a nine-point lead at the eight-minute mark of the game, only to see it dwindle to a one point lead in the next five minutes. A lay-up by Crystal Malone put the Lady 'Dogs up one with just over a minute left, but Shanika Freeman was able to get a good shot with no time left to pull out the heart stopper.

The two-day ECU Classic wasn't very memorable for Jacksonville State, as the Ladies dropped a pair from two Ohio Valley Conference teams. The Gamecocks will enter the OVC in the 2003-04 season.

JSU sped out of the gate with a seven point lead, using a good defensive plan and timely rebounding. The Eagles then warmed up themselves, smoking back to a 47-41 halftime lead.

Morehead kept the intensity up in the second half, as a quick 18-point hole met the JSU team out of the break. JSU managed to close the gap to 89-83, but that would be as close as they would get as free throws sealed it at the end. Shanika Freeman led the Gamecocks with a 31-point performance, as well as pulling down 11 rebounds for her fifth double-double for the season.

Freddrika Embry recorded a season-high 18 points, and Kelly Nye added 13. Heathar Shepard continued to be unselfish as she dished out eight assists.

The second game was even

Courtesy The Anniston Star/Stephen Gross
Sophomore point guard Heathar Shepard gave eight assists in the Lady Gamecocks disappointing loss to the Morehead State Lady Eagles. Shepard also had eight in the first half of Jacksonville's 102-45 romp of Savannah State.

rougher, as the Gamecocks faced the host team, the Lady Colonels of Eastern Kentucky. The hosts were not as gracious on the court as off of it, as they handed the JSU squad a 93-71 defeat. Jacksonville State held a quick 2-0 lead, the only lead held by the Lady Gamecocks, as a foul-plagued first half went the Colonels way. The scoreboard read 46-39, but also showed 27 fouls called on the two squads.

"When you play a level of basketball like we did today,

see Ladies, page 7

Gamecocks' Barlett draws A-Sun's Player of the Week honors

By Shane Dunaway

The Chanticleer Staff Writer

The 8-3 JSU men's basketball team is off to its best start ever in Division I play and if that wasn't enough, a key player for the Gamecocks was named Atlantic Sun Conference Player of the Week.

Senior Omar Barlett, a 6-foot-8 center, was awarded his first Atlantic Sun Conference Player of the Week honor of the season on Dec. 31, after having a stellar performance against the Oakland Golden Grizzlies and a decent outing against the No. 15 ranked Michigan State Spartans.

On the road against the Golden Grizzlies, Barlett had an exceptional game, amassing 29 points and 16 rebounds (five offensive, 11 defensive) in 38 minutes of play. Barlett was 13-18 from the floor.

Omar Barlett

At Breslin Center against the Spartans, Barlett accounted for 15 of Jacksonville's points and snagged three defensive rebounds. Barlett was 7-9 from the floor and logged 26 minutes of playing time against Michigan State.

Barlett has been consistent this season and leads the Gamecocks in scoring, averaging 17.4 points per game.

When asked about his award-winning performance, Barlett was modest and cited that his team was a big reason why he received the A-Sun recognition.

"It's a step for me, but it's a step for the team and without my team I don't think I'd have that accomplishment," said Barlett. "Any of the other 12 guys on our team could have had a big night. You can't say, because this person could have a big night one night and then another person could have a big night one night, not just one specific person. It doesn't work like that."

Assistant coach Jeff Maher and the rest of the men's team were proud of the achievement

Barlett received.

"I think we all take pride in it," said Maher. "Our guys are all real level-headed guys. I think he knows, especially at his position, that he didn't do that all by himself, there were guys passing him the ball. He knows that a lot of things he's accomplished and his awards come from the other 11 people."

from Men, page 6

run, the two teams exchanged buckets at will as the clock ran out.

A determined group of Gamecocks marched into Rochester, Mich., determined to come away with nothing less than a win. They managed to do just that as they defeated Oakland 82-76.

Barlett tallied a double-double, scoring 29 big points and grabbing 16 rebounds, a season high. Richardson also helped out with 14 points and six assists.

The first half seemed to tell a horror story for the Gamecocks, as a foul-plagued first half seemed to put the playing time of some starters in question. A 16-9 run by the home team did not help either. Jacksonville State put together a nice 22-15 run of their own, managing to cut the lead to a single point, before a lay-up by Cortney Scott was good with only :03 in

Belmont 52, Samford 51

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Adam Sonn scored 17 points, including the game-winning three-point play with 19 seconds left, to lead Belmont over Samford 52-51 on Saturday in the conference opener for both teams.

Samford (4-8, 0-1 Atlantic Sun Conference) had two chances to win the game in the closing seconds but failed to

from Ladies, page 6

basketball like we did today, someone has to bend, and we did right after the first half," said JSU head coach Dana Austin. "I thought they were stronger and quicker. We saw where we need to be to compete in the OVC."

Embry led JSU with 17

the half, giving Oakland a 39-36 lead at the intermission.

A 16-3 run by the Gamecocks highlighted second half play, spurred on by a Barlett dunk. Both teams managed to play match-the-shot for the rest of the half, as JSU refused to relinquish the lead.

JSU returned home to the "Pete" for the first time in almost a month to jump right into the Atlantic Sun Conference schedule, edging out the Campbell Camels 82-78.

The Camels proved to be rather full of spunk, as both teams shot a remarkable percentage from the floor. Jacksonville State hit 65 percent of their shots, while Campbell wasn't far behind hitting 57 percent. James Denson led JSU with a career high 20 points, 15 of which came in the first half. Josh "Sleepy" Perry stayed perfect on the season in the A-Sun, capitalize.

Sonn was fouled as he made a layup that tied the game at 51. Sonn made the free throw and the Bulldogs drove down the court, but Jon Mills missed a three-pointer.

Sonn grabbed the rebound and was fouled again with five seconds left.

He missed both foul shots, but Cornell Felton's three-pointer rimmed out at the buzzer, allowing the Bruins to escape with the win.

points, while Shanika Freeman was held to just six points in each half, scoring 12.

The weather outside was frightful, but the shooting by the JSU women was so delightful, as the Gamecocks shot 60 percent from the field hitting all four of his shots, as he scored nine and added four rebounds. Richardson added 16 points and five assists.

Campbell owned the first half win as they used rebounding and timely turnovers to take the three point edge at the break. Three lead changes and a tie assisted a lead no larger than four to keep the fans on the edge of their seats and screaming for more.

The second half saw an 18-9 JSU run add to the excitement of the fever pitch of the 2,732 that showed up, even before the semester of school had started. Campbell cut the lead again, keeping it between one and four for the next eight minutes. They then took a five point lead with only 2:49 remaining at 78-73. That proved to be their final points, as the Gamecocks scored nine unanswered to take the win and up their record to 8-3, and 2-0 in the ASC.

Troy State 70, Jacksonville 68

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) —

Troy State's Ben Fletcher grabbed a long rebound and hit a short jumper at the buzzer to lift the Trojans to a 70-68 win over Jacksonville on Saturday in the first Atlantic Sun Conference game for both teams this season.

Jacksonville (4-8) had battled back from 68-62 with 1:43 to play and forged a tie at 68-all on Antwan Robertson's rebound basket with 28 seconds to play.

as they snapped their two-game losing streak, beating the Lady Tigers by 102-45.

Freeman scored 18 points in 19 minutes, as most of the starters were allowed to rest, and some reserves scored major playing minutes. Amanda Tyus scorched the

Atlantic Sun Conference Basketball Standings & Results

Men's Standings
Conference						Overall
Northern Division						Southern Division
W	L	PCT	H	A		W	L	PCT	H	A
Jacksonville State	3	0	1.00	3-0	0-0	9	3	.750	4-0	5-3
Georgia State	2	0	1.00	2-0	0-0	6	6	.500	4-1	2-5
Belmont	1	0	1.00	0-0	1-0	5	7	.417	2-0	3-7
Samford	0	1	.000	0-1	0-0	4	8	.333	2-2	2-6
Campbell	0	2	.000	0-0	0-2	3	8	.273	3-1	0-7
Gardner-Webb	0	2	.000	0-0	0-2	1	11	.091	1-1	0-10
Conference						Overall
W	L	PCT	H	A		W	L	PCT	H	A
Troy State	2	0	1.00	0-0	2-0	11	3	.786	3-0	8-3
Mercer	2	0	1.00	0-0	2-0	7	3	.700	2-0	5-3
UCF	1	0	1.00	1-0	0-0	9	5	.643	5-0	4-3
Florida Atlantic	0	1	.000	0-0	0-1	4	9	.308	3-0	2-9
Jacksonville State	0	2	.000	0-2	0-0	4	9	.308	1-0	2-8
Stetson	0	3	.000	0-2	0-1	1	10	.091	0-0	1-6
Women's Standings
Conference						Overall
W	L	PCT	H	A		W	L	PCT	H	A
Belmont	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	8	2	.800	3-0	5-2
Jacksonville State	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	5	5	.500	4-1	1-4
Georgia State	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	5	6	.455	3-2	2-4
Campbell	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	4	6	.400	3-4	1-2
Samford	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	4	7	.364	1-1	3-6
Gardner-Webb	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	1	9	.100	1-2	0-6
Conference						Overall
W	L	PCT	H	A		W	L	PCT	H	A
Troy State	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	5	6	.455	2-0	3-6
UCF	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	4	7	.364	3-4	1-3
Jacksonville	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	2	8	.200	1-5	1-3
Florida Atlantic	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	2	9	.182	2-2	0-7
Mercer	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	1	9	.100	0-2	1-7
Stetson	0	0	.000	0-0	0-0	1	10	.091	1-4	0-6
Upcoming Games
Jan. 9
Belmont at Gardner-Webb
Samford at Campbell
Florida Atlantic at Troy State
Jan. 10
Jacksonville at Stetson
Jan. 11
Georgia State at Jacksonville State 7:00
Belmont at Campbell
UCF at Troy State
Florida Atlantic at Mercer
Samford at Gardner-Webb
* - Indicates clinched berth in A-Sun tournament

Attention Art Students

10% Discount for JSU Students

~ ~ ~ Art Supplies ~ ~ ~

•Oils •Watercolor •Acrylics •Charcoals

•Brushes •Paper •Canvas •Easels

•Pencils •Ink •Pens •Quills

~Drafting Supplies • Expert Picture Framing~

Green's Art Supplies

"Where Masterpieces Begin"

237-8701

1411 Wilmer Avenue • Anniston, AL

Jacksonville

New

Jacksonville Discount Muffler & Auto Repair

•OIL CHANGE •BRAKES •TIRES

Prices Starting At Most Cars & Light Trucks

•Brakes.....$49⁹⁵ •Winterize.....$24⁹⁵

•Oil Change.....$15⁰⁰ •Alignment.....$24⁹⁵

•Mufflers.....$44⁹⁵ •Rotate & Balance.....$18⁹⁵

We also do tires, flowmaster duals, general automotive repair, tune-ups, timing belt, water pumps, towing, tires-plug and repair.

Used Tires.....only $20⁰⁰

610 Pelham Road, S. 435-1610 Jacksonville, AL

New Grilled Chicken Flatbread meal

A warm, soft, seasoned flatbread is wrapped around tender grilled chicken, vegetables, pepper jack cheese* and creamy herb sauce!

$4.29
plus tax

LOCALLY OWNED AND OPERATED new tastes menu!
Piedmont & Jacksonville

All American Food™

611 PELHAM ROAD, SOUTH • JACKSONVILLE, AL

10% DISCOUNT
WITH
STUDENT ID

EXPIRES JANUARY 31, 2003

Little Caesars

HOT-N-READY

FREE
CRAZY BREAD WITH THIS AD

$5.00
1 TOPPING
ORIGINAL SAUCE
Large Pizza
Everyday!

Grand Opening

Open House Special All Day - Thursday, January 16th

Register
To Win Prizes
& Gifts

Special Discounts

Hurry Limited To The 1st 50 New Members!

- 23,000 SQ. FT. STATE-OF-THE-ART FACILITY
- STATE OF THE ART CARDIOVASCULAR EQUIPMENT
- CYBEX & BODY MASTERS STRENGTH EQUIPMENT
- 15,000 LBS. FREE WEIGHTS •PERSONAL TRAINING
- GROUP CYCLING •SMOOTHIE BAR •TANNING
- 3200 SQ FT GROUP FITNESS STUDIO
- MEN/WOMEN LOCKER ROOMS •SAUNA
- WOMEN'S ONLY AREA
- CHILD CARE

Come And Be A Part
Of Jacksonville's New
Premier Health Club

256-782-9797

500 Pelham Road, S. • Jacksonville, AL 36265

Marching Ballerina Auditions 2003

The Marching Ballerinas are an integral part of JSU's Marching Southerners, and are one of the most advanced and innovative college dance lines in the country.

If you are a female student at JSU with an interest in dance and performance, there will be an informational meeting on January 13th at 7:00 p.m. in the Mason Hall Performance Center.

Come be a part of one of JSU's finest traditions!

bored?

come by

The Chanticleer

we've got something to keep you busy.

call 782-5701

ALL AMERICAN FOOD™

611 PELHAM ROAD, S.
JACKSONVILLE, AL

10%

DISCOUNT
WITH STUDENT
ID

Expires January 31, 2003

???

Got something to sell?
In the market to buy?
Looking for a place to live?
Need a job?

???

The answers to all your questions are in The Chanticleer's Classified Ads!
Call 782-5712 to place your ad today!

JACKSONVILLE BOOK • STORE

"Uptown On The Square"

Come see us for
the lowest prices
on your Textbooks and Gamecock Apparel.

Call us for more information

Go Gamecocks!!

SAVE $$$ ON JSU TEXTBOOKS!

NEW AND USED

435-7407

