Three contestants in Homecoming Top 10 disqualified for early campaigning; Alpha Omicron Pi and Zeta Tau Alpha heated over Homecoming violations

By J. Wilson Guthrie
The Chanticleer Editor-in-Chief

The SGA Senate, in a closed “special session,” disqualified three members of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority from the homecoming pageant top 10 Monday night. The women were accused and held accountable for early campaigning for the homecoming races under 704.5 section of the SGA code of laws.

The other seven members of the top 10 filed the complaint against Katie Nelson, Brandie Pollard, and Beth Cantrell Monday morning. This stems from the women visiting fraternity house meetings Sunday Oct. 24, 2004 to ask for the fraternities support for the women for top five.

Justin Davis called for the special session, removing all people from the audience, including The Chanticleer.

The Chanticleer did receive an account of the session from a senator who is speaking under conditions of anonymity.

“We started with Tim King telling what happened, he read everything,” the senator said. “Then the girls came in.”

The senator is referring to documents of allegation, documents of disqualification and documents of appeal. The allegation, which is signed by all other members of the top 10, simply states that on the night in question, between the hours of 7 and 9 p.m. Nelson, Pollard and Cantrell visited three fraternity houses to ask for support. The letter also cites 704.5. The article in question states “Only official SGA campaigning for Homecoming Queen may begin on the Monday following the Homecoming Pageant.

“Everyone was pretty much 50/50 (on the decision),” said the senator. They continued to say that after reviewing a tape made during the election committee interviews and much heated discussion, in a silent vote, decided by a 21-10 margin—just above the 21/3 majority needed to uphold the earlier decision by the election committee—to uphold the election committee’s earlier decision.

The women’s appeals were based on unclear wording of article 704.5. In their appeal, the women stated that “At no time did any of the three women specifically ask for a vote for homecoming queen.” The women also did not consider word of mouth “official SGA campaigning.”

“We mainly just encouraged them to go vote,” said Nelson after the meeting. “At no time did the words ‘vote for me’ or ‘vote for me for homecoming queen’ exist either the three of our mouths and we do have witnesses for that.”

Nelson went on to say Senator Ryan Mathis vouched for the girls during the special session.

“Tonight we appealed to the student senate appealing the decision of the election committee,” said Nelson. “We stated that we did not feel that we violated the article because we never asked for a specific vote for homecoming queen.”

Nelson, Pollard and Cantrell also made some allegations of their own.

“I think that the less competition there is, the greater chance the others have to win,” said Cantrell. “I feel that they took it as an opportunity to jump and maybe gain something from it for our expense.”

When asked if there was one group responsible for allegations, all three women were in agreement on who it could be. “From what we have heard yes, (it is AOPi),” said Nelson.

Bush, Kerry pull out final stops as election time draws near PHILADELPHIA - Sen. John Kerry cited the Iraq war and a huge cache of missing explosives Monday as proof President Bush has "failed the test of being commander in chief." The Republican slammed his rival as "consistently and dangerously wrong" on national security matters.

In a race of ever-escalating rhetoric, the president also accused the Democratic challenger of "the worst kind of Monday-morning quarterbacking" on the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq. But he fell silent on the disappearance of 377 tons of high explosives in Iraq, leaving it to aides to explain.

Public polls in the major battleground states of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Florida were so close that both camps had cause for optimism and room for doubt. And with only eight days to go, there were signs that the field of competition might be widening. Democrats fretted about and made plans to advertise in Hawaii, which last backed a Republican for president in 1984.

In an endgame advertising shuffle, Democrats also bought airtime for this week in GOP-leaning West Virginia, where Kerry had mostly pulled his money from, and in Michigan, where spending was scaled back this week in a surprising show of confidence given that polls show a close race there.

Polls showed a tightening race in Arkansas, a state the president won four years ago and the Democrats had virtually given up for last this time. The president's high command was concerned, as well, about New Hampshire, in Bush's column four years ago, trending Kerry's way in the race's final days.

Long-planned events blended with the unexpected in a campaign already marked by unpredictability.

Former President Clinton joined Kerry at a noon time rally in Philadelphia that drew tens of thousands. "If this isn't good for my heart, I don't know what is," Clinton said, looking thinner seven weeks after bypass surgery.

Supreme Court officials announced that Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, 80, is undergoing treatment for thyroid cancer and is expected to return to work next week. The statement served as a reminder that the next president is likely to have more than one

Spring Concert gets makeover, still no beer

By Elizabeth Thurman
The Chanticleer News Editor

As students look ahead to JSU's annual spring concert scheduled for April 7, 2005, one thing is clear: no alcohol will be served or allowed at the event.

The forbiddance of alcohol at the concert isn't cruel and unusual punishment, it's part of the university's policy and procedure. "There's a whole section on it," said Student Activities Council Concert Committee Head Kenny Reighard. "It says we can't have alcohol."

The SGA recently conducted a survey in the TMB that was designed to give the organization an idea of what students want for this year's concert. Only 359 students participated in the survey, said Reighard. Many participants commented that they wished alcoholic beverages were served at the concert, or that they were allowed to bring their own inside. "We just want to make sure that everybody knows that it is university policy, just to clear up any confusion," Reighard stressed.

Although the alcohol policy won't be modified, other aspects of the 2005 concert may undergo some changes. Instead of booking only one band and an opening act, the concert committee is considering planning a music festival that showcases two or three well-known bands and additional local acts, said Reighard. The majority of students surveyed agreed with the idea of a festival. Of the 359 participants, 320 were in favor of the possible change.

If the festival idea goes over well with JSU President Dr. Meehan and the Board of Trustees, Reighard says the concert committee will busy themselves booking acts for the event.

"We want to make sure there's something for everybody. Last year, Fuel played and a lot of people complained because not everyone necessarily likes that kind of music," Reighard said of the concert committee's concerns about band diversity this year. "Right now, I think we're going looking at rock, alternative, country and even rap."

The cost for booking several bands may exceed what was spent for last April's Fuel concert. The band itself cost $25,000, while the SGA paid over $10,000 for other necessary concert fees. Reighard has been calling around for estimates on musical acts, trying to simultaneously address the requests of students and maintain a reasonable budget. The price estimates range from Widespread Panic, which goes for $75,000, to Kenny Chesney, who charges $200,000 per performance. Reighard even tried to get a price quote for Usher, and was told that figures were only offered to "serious" buyers. "There's a gap there in the price," Reighard said of the bigger, more expensive acts. If JSU does sponsor a music festival, will ticket prices go up? Probably, but not by much, says Reighard. "The SGA is not out to make money."

The concert committee may also move the concert outdoors and offer armbands at the door for students who wish to leave and come back later. If the festival is approved, this will be especially convenient for people who don't want to stay through every single act.

According to Reighard, many students who attended the Fuel concert in Pete Mathews Coliseum complained about having to leave their cigarettes and lighters at the door. This was enforced to prevent the coliseum floor from being burned, an accident that would require the entire floor to be redone.

The concert committee is also considering adding a concession stand to the event, due to complaints about the absence of food at last spring's concert.

Final race week, close call expected

He accused Kerry of "throwing out the wild claim that he knows where Osama bin Laden was in the fall of 2001 and that our military had a chance to get him in Tora Bora."

That was a reference to Kerry's frequent assertion that the administration "outsourced" the job of hunting down bin Laden to Afghan warlords.

"This is an unjustified and harsh criticism of our military commanders in the field," Bush said. "This is the worst kind of Monday-morning quarterbacking."

Beyond Iraq, Bush cited Kerry's opposition to the first Persian Gulf War, his proposal for cuts in the intelligence budget in 1994 and his position on former President Reagan's defense buildup in the 1980s. Together, they show that "on the largest national security issues of our time, he has been consistently and dangerously wrong."

White House spokesman Scott McClellan sought to allay concern over the threat posed by 377 tons of explosives missing from the Al Qaeda military installation.

He told reporters no nuclear material was involved, and gave reporters an accounting of weapons found, not those lost.

"We have destroyed more than 243,000 munitions," he said. "We've secured another nearly 163,000 that will be destroyed."

At the Pentagon, spokesman Bryan Whitman said coalition forces were present in the vicinity of the site both during and after major combat operations, which ended May 1, 2003, and searched the facility but found none of the explosives material in question. That raised the possibility that the explosives had disappeared before U.S. soldiers could secure the site in the immediate invasion aftermath.

The Pentagon would not say whether it had informed the nuclear agency at that point that the conventional explosives were not where they were supposed to be.

With the race in its final full week, the pace of the campaigning picked up as did the involvement of the courts.

Ryan also points out that there is an alternative approach to education that JSU offers, called the Alternative Fifth Year, which is a masters level initial certification route. This is for students that have graduated with a degree other than education but have decided to pursue teaching as a profession. They take both undergraduate and graduate level courses to be eligible for teaching credentials.

Whether a student's focus is achieving a degree at the undergraduate level or an alternative route available at the master's level, JSU has much to offer for education majors. "It all results in the student being able to secure a teaching certificate from a state and to secure employment," Ryan said.

Kerry campaigned from New Hampshire to Wisconsin during the day by way of Pennsylvania and Michigan. Aides mapped a plan for a 72-hour marathon leading to Election Day. Bush went from his ranch in Texas to Colorado, Iowa and Wisconsin as he sought the 270 electoral votes needed for a second term.

The pace of legal maneuvering was picking up, as well, as both parties anticipated a close finish.

In Florida, U.S. District Judge James I. Cohn ruled the state is not required to create a paper record of ballots to be available in case of a recount. In some-what of an understatement, Cohn said the case is of great public importance."

and promised to issue a written order quickly to permit an appeal.

Florida was the site of a bitterly contested recount in 2000 that eventually went to the Supreme Court Rehnquist presiding. A 5-4 court ruling sealed Bush's 537-victory in the state, propelling him to the White House.

ROTC shows strengths during Mississippi challenge

By Brad Sewell
Special to The Chanticleer

Despite facing adversity that included incorrect instructions on the rifle range, a significant injury to a team member, and being forced to complete an event normally accomplished during daylight at night, the JSU ROTC Ranger Challenge team managed to finish seventh out of a 26 team field at the annual Ranger Challenge competition at Camp Shelby, Mississippi.

Teams from across the southeast converged in southern Mississippi to compete in the 36 hour competition that included the Army physical fitness test, marksmanship with the M16 rifle, timed assembly and disassembly of the M16, tactics, orienteering, rope bridge building, a hand grenade assault course, and a 10-kilometer road march carrying a weapon and a 35 pound pack. Competitors get very little sleep during the course of the competition, adding to the physical and mental stress of the event.

"It’s a constant challenge to keep moving forward and get up for each event," said team captain Derrick Rice. "We worked extremely hard to prepare for the competition, but once you get here, it’s a challenge to stay motivated while you deal with the stress and the physical exertion."

Prospects for a strong finish appeared bleak when Cadet Erin Rice suffered a serious ankle sprain as the team began the orienteering course. Every team is required to have one female cadet, and the loss of Rice would have taken the JSU cadets out of trophy competition. The ankle immediately began to swell, and Rice was taken for evaluation by an Army doctor. Although the doctor recommended that Rice leave the competition for further evaluation and x-rays, she chose to continue in the events even though she was experiencing significant pain. Rice participated in and finished the remainder of the events on Saturday and, on Sunday morning, she finished the 10-kilometer road march ahead of many students from other universities. Ranger Challenge Coach Major Ronnie Preston lauded Rice’s performance. "She’s tough...it would have been easy for her to quit, but she didn’t want to hurt the team. She represents what this competition is all about: great cadets giving their all, no matter what the circumstances, to show their pride in their team and their university."

Aside from the seventh place overall finish, JSU finished first on the hand grenade assault course, fourth in the 10-kilometer road march, and fifth in the rope bridge building competition. The high finish in the rope bridge competition is even more impressive considering the Rangers had to complete the event at night. All other competing teams built their rope bridges during the day.

"This is just a great group of young people who overcame a lot of adversity and refused to quit," said Lieutenant Colonel Doc May, the head of the ROTC Department. "They are among our very best cadets, and they worked extremely hard from the beginning of the semester to prepare for this event. I’m extremely proud of them and their performance."

The Ranger Challenge competition is held every year in fall and any student on campus is eligible to try out for the team. Interested students can contact Major Ronnie Preston at 782-5601.

Senate holds closed session

"Two AOPi representatives in the top ten are the official accusers, and I have to believe that there is some fact to that," said Cantrell and Alpha Omicron Pi’s president Brooke Davis, also a member of the top 10, said that this was not motivated by Greek letters or anything in the past. Davis says that Alpha Omicron Pi would expect to be held accountable to the same standards as everyone else in a similar situation. The allegations were brought on by all seven candidates who are all members of different organizations. "We just wanted it to be fair."

Many senators refused to comment after the emotional meeting. The three women who were accused all left the meeting in tears.

One member of the senate did make threats to The Chanticleer, saying that it would be in the best interest of the newspaper not to report anything about the incident.
One member of the senate did make threats to The Chanticleer, saying that it would be in the best interest of the newspaper not to print anything about the special session. The Chanticleer also appealed its removal from the meeting, with the accused requesting the newspaper to be allowed to stay for the proceedings. Another special motion was made and by a unanimous vote, the senate removed The Chanticleer from the meeting.

Chief Justice of the SGA Judiciary Council Andy Green said that the women could file for him to interpret the article and the article could be found to be too vague.

At press time the women had filed another appeal and it was “being reviewed by the administration,” said Director of Student Life Terry Casey.

OPINION

SGA might be right

By J. Wilson Guthrie
The Chanticleer Editor in Chief

I was asked earlier during this busy, hectic week if The Chanticleer was going to endorse anyone. The Chanticleer is endorsing John Kerry.

Now to the business at hand. If you didn't read my article on the front page about the homecoming scandal then you should stop reading this and read that. Ok welcome back, for those of you who left.

I have to say that I still believe what the SGA did was a direct violation of the Alabama Sunshine laws. I was asked to leave, then as I walked out, to show that they are even more unprofessional one senator, and I will not resort to vague, which leaves it open to a lot of criticisms. But it also leaves it open to a lot of interpretation.

Did these girls deserve what happened to them? No they didn't. If this sticks it will most likely be what they remember about college and that is not good. A fine or something, but not being disqualified.

Now to what might be the biggest question. Was the SGA's decision right or not? I don't know. The wording of the article is VERY, VERY vague, which leaves it open to a lot of criticisms. If this situation, you have to ask yourself, does the crime fit the punishment? I don't think so. But that is my opinion.

There are the people that are going to say that this is petty Greek situations and they really don't care. I heard one senator say that "This is all about letters, and you know it." Well guess what, that's completely true. It brings even more negative light, no matter who was right or who was wrong, to the entire Greek system which really doesn't need it.

I have to say that I knew most of the girls involved and I feel sorry for all of them. None of them are going to come out smelling like roses. If the administration overturns the SGA and one of the disqualified women wins, then they will be looked down on by the girls who didn't and if it isn't overturned then the disqualified women will always say that she could have been me.

Right now we are in a whole big mess. And I have to say I hope it never happens again. For everyone's sake.

Letters to the Editor

As the undersigned representative of the Nader for President 2004 campaign, I would like to respond to an article printed in the Chanticleer in Volume 53, Issue 8 regarding the notion that critics against the Iraq War should be silenced. I, Jeff Martin as a student of the University and as JSU Campus Coordinator for the Nader for President 2004 campaign, feel that democratic contracts would disappear...it would be VERY bad for business.

Historically, this conflict that we are in has no precedent. Some people bring up Vietnam, but if you do some studying, it was several years after the war in Vietnam had begun before any protestor's voices were heard. In this case, there were executive branch." Ralph Nader has also repeatedly stated that "Bush and Cheney disregarded the advice of many battle-tested officers, retired generals, and intelligence experts who advised against their un-provoked, poorly trained, and renegade rush to war. And when it came time to award Iraq-war contracts, most were awarded privately without any public PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) - Two Buddhist monks abandoned their vows after they fell in love with a pair of teenage girls who sold beer across from their temple in central Cambodia, a newspaper reported Monday.

The two monks Nang Pong and Vom Vong, both 19 gave up their monastic lives Thursday after the chief monk at their temple accused them of secretly courting the girls in violation of Buddhist precepts. The Cambodia Daily reported.

The two girls earlier had been told to leave the monks the monks alone, Deputy District Police Chief Yung Sam was quoted as saying.

Ninety percent of Cambodia's 13 million people are Buddhist. About 60,000 monks live in more than 4,000 pagodas across the country.

LONDON (AP) - A hit-and-run driver struck a motorcyclist and drove off with the man's severed foot stuck in his front bumper, police said Saturday.

Lancashire Police said the victim, 36-year-old Richard Sholl, was riding a Honda motorcycle through Blackburn, northwest England, on Friday when he collided with a gray Volvo that pulled out in front of him.

Sholl's left foot was severed in the collision, and remained wedged in the Volvo's bumper when the driver left the scene.

The 23-year-old car driver, who has not been identified, later called police after he noticed the foot in his bumper. He was being questioned Saturday at Blackburn police station.

Sholl's leg was amputated below the knee at Wythenshaw Hospital in Greater Manchester.

OSLO, Norway (AP) - Hoping to boost morale among his fellow inmates, a Norwegian prisoner secretly hired an exotic dancer to spice up the prison's monthly culture night.

The woman got all her clothes off, to the cheers of the male inmates, before guards could react on Wednesday night at the Hof minimum security prison in southern Norway. "Everything had been agreed in advance with the inmates, who also had permission to invite the woman," warder Kjesti Solberg told the P4 radio network Thursday.

"What we didn't know was that the hired dancer could do more than dance."

Every month, the prisoners are allowed to have a culture night, usually organizing it themselves after the show is approved.

Wednesday's show began tamely, with an inmate doing a comedy routine. As he left the stage, raunchy music filled the auditorium, and the woman started dancing and taking her clothes off.
Jeff Martin - JSU Student

One of nature's perks for going to school at JSU, rather than a big city school, is the beautiful night sky. It will catch you off guard after a late night study session at the library or coming home after a date. Suddenly, you are caught in what seems like a snow globe as bright stars jump off a dark colored background.

Another feature of JSU is located in Martin Hall in the science department. A planetarium exists here where the sky, and everything in it, can be seen on the rounded walls of a dome during a show or program. “Because these presentations are shown on a dome, the viewer is completely surrounded by the images, so the effect is very powerful,” Dr. Kelly Gregg, JSU geology professor, said. “In fact, the images can be so gripping that we can easily make people a little motion sick by running a couple of our more intense short programs.”

While Dr. Gregg has been teaching at JSU for 13 years, the planetarium, which can hold 30 people, has been in Martin since the hall was constructed in the mid 1960s. However, there was a $150,000 addition a little over a year ago that has really added to the planetarium experience. A new projector, the gadget that puts the stars up on the dome, was purchased and installed.

During the story hour, digital images of bats, snakes, ghosts and other goblins will be displayed on the ceiling, giving an eerie feel to the show. Admission to this eerie evening is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children.

The new projector, as well as other programs, was purchased with outside grant money. There is computer software built into the system allowing for the user to create a personal presentation. “We can also purchase visually dazzling programs from the creators of the system, but these cost $5,000 each,” Gregg said. Through the grant money, the department has been able to purchase two of these programs. Therefore, the admission charge to any planetarium show helps to obtain new programs and maintain the system.

The man responsible for getting the grant to purchase the new projector is little known hero for the department, Pete Conroy, head of JSU’s EPIC office. He has also brought in millions of dollars for the construction of the new field school building and National Park headquarters at Little River Canyon and serves the community in many other ways as well.

Another plus of the planetarium is that it can be used for more than just astronomy. Any digital imagery can be projected on the dome. “One of our presentations allows you to walk through ancient Egyptian temples and tombs, a fun thing for archaeology and history,” Gregg said. “We are also working with the graphics professors in the Art department and are talking with the Drama department about staging a play in the planetarium while projecting imagery on the dome all around the actors.”
Cold season coughin' sneezin'

By Erin Chupp
Chanticleer Features Editor

It's that time of year again. The leaves are changing, carved bright orange pumpkins scare the wooden steps of houses and the person sitting behind you in class is sneezing in your general direction. Cold season doesn't just describe the change in weather, but the spreading of germs and the flu.

However, no matter what your mom tells you, getting the sniffles is not from going outside with wet hair or not wearing a jacket in the wintertime. The reason you probably get a cold during this season is because the humidity drops and viruses claim territory in dry conditions. For those of you who have been trying to stop smoking for months, now would be a good time because your nicotine habit brings about nasal dryness.

A moist nose doesn't just mean your dog is healthy, it's good for you too. To achieve this, an intake of twice as many liquids will help-stop your thought process right now if you think going out tonight and chugging a few beers is the perfect answer. Liquids to ward off colds also don't include sugary or caffeinated beverages. Susan Baird, a health writer for www.student.com suggests a hot cup of herbal tea as an ideal drink because it can soothe your throat and moisten your nose. If you want to get more for your buck, she also shows favoritism to hot water with lemon juice and honey, a toddy.

College students seem to have the worst chance of getting sick once this time of year rolls around. Maybe it's a toss up between students and their grandparents. We end up doing just about everything to ruin our immune systems like staying up late and not drinking enough water.

Most people also find the polite way to cough or sneeze in public is to cover your nose and mouth with a hand, however, this probably spreads more germs. Think about it. You nicely cover your mouth to cough, hacking germs onto your hands. And how many times a day do people's hands touch the same things? The keyboards in the computer lab of Bibb Graves, door knobs into classrooms, tables you eat on at the TMB or even the friendly handshake between fraternity brothers. The makers of Kleenex suggest it's better to turn your head and cough away from others unless you keep tissues handy.

This season, Kleenex has also created a new product: an anti-viral tissue. It contains a moisture-activated blue dot layer with a formula that traps and kills 99.9 percent of viruses. Plus, for all the germophobes out there, the blue dots become visible when wet.

Cold and flu season is upon us. Are you prepared to ward off the sniffles, coughs and germs?

TAURUS: (April 21-May 21)
A loved one may unknowingly hurt your feelings this week. Let them know what has hurt you, and how to avoid such problems in the future. Be willing to look at any oversensitivity on your part. A personal philosophy you hold dear may be questioned, so try 'to go with the flow.'

GEMINI: (May 22-June 21)
There is no such thing as perfection, so don't expect as much from yourself, and those around you. Stop being so critical and learn to be good to yourself and to others. Follow your hunches this week, you will be glad you did, or sorry you didn't. Delegate responsibilities.

CANCER: (June 22-July 23)
Your belief system may seem to be disintegrating before your eyes, and although this does not seem to be good news at the present time, it will in the long run. Take advantage of the support and care family members want to give you...family has always been there for you.

LEO: (July 24-August 23)
Try to set aside time during the week to explore any new ways of self-expression. You may uncover creative avenues that you never had previously thought of. Let a special person in your life know that they are appreciated and loved. Spend some time alone.

VIRGO: (August 24-September 23)
Facing the truth in a situation may not be as damaging as you may think. Relax into the newness and you will find that it really isn't so bad; there are advantages to a new way of looking at situations. Someone may put you in your place if you monopolize others.

LIBRA: (September 24-October 23)
Gather all that excessive and positive energy to get a task accomplished this week - there is no use in putting off what needs to be done eventually. Do not get caught up in a situation that is going nowhere. You can accomplish quite a bit if you put your heart to it.

SCORPIO: (October 24-November 22)
It's time for a well-deserved rest this week. Along with rest, you should consider self-introspection. Pay attention to any health matters, no matter how trivial they may seem. Romance may be on hold for the time being until you review your feelings and options for how you want to proceed.

SAGITTARIUS: (November 23-December 21)
This week you probably come to some important conclusions regarding the best use of your money. Lively discussions with family members will bring new information to the group. Be cautious of letting, another know your feelings, you may just need to sit on this one awhile.

CAPRICORN: (December 22-January 20)
Any information you may be able to glean from a family member, no matter how authoritarian this figure may seem, will be well worth any discomfort. Daydreams do serve a very useful function, but try not to get caught up in such fantasies. Financial juggling is in order.

AQUARIUS: (January 21-February 19)
You may be able to teach another the lesson of focusing energies to profitable ends. You have good ideas for the workplace, but you need to soften your approach so that you don't turn off others. A cherished part of your life is coming apart at the seams.

PISCES: (February 20-March 20)
Bask in the admiration of others for a job well done, and then start a clean slate. Time alone can be a real treat, so surround yourself with quietness, beauty and serenity. If you are working only for money, find additional work that will leave you satisfied.

IF THIS WEEK IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:
You are unusually witty, adventurous, skillful and personable - so use this to your advantage. Social happenings will lead you to new friends who will liven up your life and boost your morale.

From Staff Reports

Josh Foster kicked a 23-yard field goal as time expired to lift Tennessee Tech (5-2, 2-1) to a 16-13 upset over No. 12 Jacksonville State (6-1, 4-1) to snap the nation's longest regular-season winning streak at 12 games Saturday night.

Tech quarterback Robert Craft marched the Golden Eagles 85 yards in 10 plays over the final 2:54 for the win.

“I thought Robert Craft was the difference in the football game,” said JSU head coach Jack Crowe. “It was a close game and he was the guy who made the plays at the end. My hats off to Coach (Mike) Henningan and their football team, they now have just one loss and control their own destiny.”

Craft finished the game 17-for-35 for 284 yards as the Golden Eagles finished with 357 yards of total offense. Trey Bonner led all receivers with 104 yards on five catches.

Tech tied the game with 6:16 left in the fourth quarter after Craft tossed a 16-yard pass to Brent McNeal and Foster added the extra point to make the score 13-13.

The TTU defense then forced a JSU punt to set-up the game winning drive with less than three minutes to play.

Jax State took its first possession and marched 78 yards in seven plays to take the early lead after Raynodd Zeine caught a 22-yard touchdown pass from Maurice Mullins.

Gavin Halford added the point after to give JSU a 7-0 lead with 7:49 left in the first.

Mullins finished the game with 157 yards and one touchdown after going 13-for-21 and he also added 47 yards on seven carries.

The Gamecock defense then forced a Tech fumble and three plays later, Halford kicked a 36-yard field goal as JSU took a 10-0 lead with 3:49 left in the first quarter.

Pi Kapp completes perfect season

Alpha Omicron Pi clinches sorority championship victory in emotion-filled overtime thriller against Zeta Tau Alpha

From Amado Ortiz

Pi Kapp Phi and Alpha Omicron Pi cleaned up the 300 screaming fans.

A defensive battle from start to finish, neither team seemed to be able to get a lot going offensively. As a matter of fact, neither team passed the 20 yard line until the 4th quarter. Noted up at 0-0, Alpha Omicron Pi had Wrong? It just goes to show how hard it is to take your team on the road and stay focused. JSU has two conference losses since joining the league and guess what? Both games were on the road.

I know a lot of you students think JSU stands for just show up, but that just doesn't work in football. Not saying that the Gamecocks defeat was like Florida traveling to Starkville, MS and getting beat by the worst team in the SEC, but no game can be taken for granted in any division or any conference.

Keep the faith. The same winning streak that was snapped this past Saturday can be started all over again. The Gamecocks need to make sure they snap their second ever OVC losing streak in a hurry or they can say goodbye to their house. So hurry up and get going undefeated during the regular season. Sig Ep beat the Golden Eagles this weekend and then JSU will have to beat the same Samford for homecoming on November 6th.

The Gamecocks can not afford another conference loss or else a promising season ends before the playoffs. A boxer's greatness is determined on how fast he gets up, let's just hope that the Gamecocks are not down for the count.

The football team is going to need our support more than ever the last two home games. There is no place like Paul Snow to the Gamecocks, and there is something really tough about bringing a team in to Jacksonville.

You just have a harder time staying focused and everybody protects their house. So put “Just Show Up” into meaning and come make Paul Snow a hostile environment.

Pi Kappa Phi and Alpha Omicron Pi cleaned up the Intramural Championships at Paul Snow Stadium on Tuesday night. AOPi and Pi Kappas enjoyed what would be called “night of the Delta Epsilons and sat on the same sidelines. Sigma Epsilon and Zeta Tau Alpha sat on the opposite sideline and coincidentally, both sidelines are teaming up in homecoming activities.

In the men’s game Pi Kappa Phi defeated Sigma Phi Epsilon 12-0 in a tough defensive ballgame. Pi Kappa Phi came into the game with a lot of confidence after going undefeated during the regular season. Sig Ep beat Kappa Alpha Order in the first round of the playoffs to earn a spot in the championship game.

Pi Kappa Phi got on the board in the first half on a 39-yard touchdown catch by Ross Nelson from Ryan Shell. Sig Ep got within striking distance several times, but the Pi Kappa defense came up huge every time and forced Glynn Lockaby to throw more than usual.

Amado Ortiz scored the only other touchdown of the game on a 25-yard fly right down the middle of the field. “We have had a tough emotional past couple of weeks”, said Pi Kapp Ross Nelson. “We have been misrepresented a lot so we just wanted to end the season on a high note. I am real proud of the way my fraternity overcame adversity.”

Alpha Omicron Phi played the ladies of Zeta Tau Alpha in the sorority championships. It was a tough physical game that was played with a lot of emotion. Alpha Omicron Pi defeated Zeta Tau Alpha in front of JSU screaming fans.

A defensive battle from start to finish, neither team seemed to be able to get a lot going offensively. As a matter of fact, neither team passed the 20-yard line until the fourth quarter. Nitted up at 0-0, Alpha Omicron Pi had one last play with :03 seconds left and went for it all. AOPi quarterback Jessica Kidd let it fly, and the pass fell incomplete as time expired.

ZTA won the toss and elected to go on defense. AOPi ran a couple of plays that lost yardage, and was looking at 4th down. Jessica Kidd rolled to the right and tried to hit Elizabeth Davis in the endzone. It went off Davis's fingers, but Lindsay Collins came out of nowhere and made a diving catch with her hands just under the ball for the touchdown. The extra point failed, and ZTA got their opportunity. ZTA quarterback Ashlee Jones took the first snap and rolled to the right, trying to hit Courtney Cunningham.

The ball deflected off of Cunningham's fingers and right into the hands of AOPi Elizabeth Davis. AOPi won their 4th Championship in five years.

“Sometimes you just got to get down and dirty,” said Holland. “They tipped it and I was just fortunate enough to be there.”

Zeta Tau Alpha got a chance to tie the game up but AOPi came up with an interception in the endzone to end the game. “We played real hard,” said Marty Mitchell. “The roughing the passer penalty in overtime killed us but I am proud of our season.”

AOPi and Pi Kappa Phi won the regular season championships and won their conference titles after both runner's up won last year's championships.
