SGA pushes JAX cash for student elections

A new, higher-tech way of receiving traffic tickets at JSU and the subject of JAX Cash were the highlights of Monday night’s SGA senate meeting.

Chief Justice Andy Green indicated that parking violators will now have a whole new way of getting a ticket and going through an appeals process. University police will scan the bar code of the parking decal on the windshield of the car, which holds all the student’s and vehicle’s information.

A small ticket is then printed out on the scanner device, which has the information of the location of where the ticket was received along with any comments about the location of where the vehicle is parked.

Then an e-mail is automatically sent to the student’s JSU account with all the ticket information on it, just in case the ticket was somehow “get lost.”

As for the new appeals process, which became effective Monday, it is now done online. The old way where you fill out a form will still be in effect until the Spring 2005 semester, but after that it will be a completely online process, making it more effective and efficient and “saving trees by cutting down on the amount of paper,” according to Green.

The other highlight of the meeting was the topic of JAX Cash, which the SGA has been working on for the last year, according to SGA President Emily Williams.

JAX Cash is a work in progress that will attempt to provide extra money on student ID cards, like the current Bonus Bucks, for the student’s necessities, such as buying meals and other essentials.

The students or their parents or some other source puts the additional money on the cards.

The SGA is working to try to get businesses around the Jacksonville area to cooperate with JSU to provide this for the students, and many of them have already shown interest in the program, Williams said.

An online survey is posted at studentlife.jsu.edu until Oct. 21, and it is to be e-mailed to all students later this week. Students are asked to complete the survey to help JAX Cash succeed, because it currently depends on student opinion.

Also during Monday night’s meeting, the first Senator of the Month for Sept. was announced. Justin Lord was recognized for his time spent in the office to help make phone calls and being at every SGA event, arriving beforehand and helping to set up and staying after to assist in taking down and cleaning up, according to Vice President of the Student Senate Alison Pierce.

The meeting moved on to Committee Head Reports, where it was stated by the STARS Committee that there was a voter registration drive held Tuesday, and that the last day to register to vote

JAX Cash was the order of business Tuesday at the monthly Organizational Council meeting. Jessica Bobo, the student who is spear-heading the push for the mandatory meal plan took the floor during announcements and spoke to the group who had little to say.

Bobo stated that JSU was the only college of its size in Alabama that did not have such a program. The program, which will be placed on the student ballot with homecoming representatives allowing the students the chance to voice their opinion.

Greek community still getting used to idea of new dog in the house

By Elizabeth Thurman
The Chanticleer New Editor

JSU’s Greek community is still getting used to the idea of a new fraternity on campus, and another addition may be in the works.

Sigma Pi Fraternity was recently added to the mix, colonizing 35 men Sunday night, according to Assistant Director of Student Life Meagan Radison.

Sigma Pi was invited to join JSU’s Greek community after a process that started with letters being sent to a list of national fraternities and ended with the Interfraternity Council’s expansion committee’s final decision between two organizations, Sigma Pi and Delta Sigma Phi.

“The final selection was based on the best fit for campus right now,” said Radison.

The IFC expansion committee considered several factors before making their choice. “The committee looked at the fraternities’ academic programs, how well the chapters do on other campuses, and the support of each fraternity in the surrounding area,” Radison explained.

Both Sigma Pi and Delta Sigma Phi journeyed to Jacksonville in April to make presentations to the expansion committee, but in the end, only one could receive an invitation for the fall.

The expansion committee heard each presentation and made a suggestion to the IFC. After hearing the suggestion of its expansion committee, IFC voted to bring Sigma Pi on board.

According to Radison, other fraternities were interested in opening a chapter at JSU, but were not able to come as soon as the Fall 2004 semester.

“We want to bring Delta Sigma Phi [to campus] when we’re ready,” said Radison. “Sigma Pi is healthy, and that our other chapters are sure that Sigma Pi is healthy, and that our other chapters are going to continue to work with Sigma Pi.”

DENVER (AP) - Democrat John Kerry will prepare for the next presidential debate this week, a signal that he considers Republican-leaning Colorado within his reach.

Kerry plans to mix work with relaxation in advance of Friday’s town-hall forum in St. Louis, campaign manager Mary Beth Cahill said.

“It’s a chance to have a couple days in a state that matters so much,” Cahill said Monday.

The visit will be Kerry’s fifth to the Colorado since June. He was scheduled to arrive at Denver International Airport on Tuesday and stay at the Inverness Hotel in the GOP-dominated suburbs south of town.

President Bush will be here soon, too: He is scheduled to hold a $1,000-per-plate fundraiser for Republican Senate candidate Peter Coors next Monday in Denver. Coors campaign spokeswoman Cinamon Watson said. Coors is in a tight race with Democrat Ken Salazar for the state’s open Senate seat.

Colorado, where Republicans and unaffiliated voters each outnumber Democrats, went for Bush in 2000. Recent state polls have shown Bush and Kerry in a statistical tie or Bush up to 12 percentage points ahead of Kerry.

Denver pollster Floyd Ciruli, however, said national polls showing the candidates roughly even after last week’s debate puts ...

“‘There’s still a natural Republican advantage here, based on registration and voter history, but it’s not that big,” Ciruli said.

Colorado’s relatively modest number of electoral votes nine could be crucial in a tight race, he added.

“It’s less the size of the electoral vote than how close the Democrats think they are,” Ciruli said.

Republican consultant Katy Atkinson of Denver said it makes sense for Kerry to use debate preparation time “to score a few political points” in a potential swing state.

UPD implements new appeals policy

By Elizabeth Thurman
The Chanticleer News Editor

Jacksonville State students and faculty members can now appeal their campus parking tickets online, thanks to a new policy implemented by the University Police Department.

Instead of having to follow standard procedure that has included picking up an appeal form from the police department, parking citation recipients who wish to contest their tickets can now go online at police.jsu.edu/parkingappeal.htm to fill out the necessary forms and automatically submit them to the parking service division at the UPD.

After the UPD processes the appeal, a confirmatory e-mail will be sent to the person filing for appeal that identifies the current status of the appeal. If the UPD chooses to accept the appeal, the e-mail will include the date and location of the next appeals court.

The student, faculty member or staff member appealing a citation must bring the original ticket, or the e-mail printout from his or her GEM account to the appeals court on the date given.

Although appeals can now be made online, students and staff are still able to submit appeals in person at the police department. “We will continue to accept walk in appeals at the University Police Department until the end of this semester,” said Fetner.

Fetner attributes the UPD’s implementation of new policies this year to a desire for the entire JSU campus to run as smoothly as possible. “We wanted to make everything as convenient as possible for the JSU community,” said Fetner.

It’s never convenient to get a ticket, but now dealing with it is.

Political Science stresses voting

With an election coming up, Political Science Department professors urge students to get involved and to get out and vote

By Audrey Hykes
The Chanticleer Staff Writer

During this time of presidential campaigning and intense political debate, it’s certain that most individuals are anxiously awaiting the Nov. 2 elections to cast their vote. So what better time would there be to provide an inside look at JSU’s Departments of Political Science and Public Administration?

With approximately 155 graduating majors and 171 graduate students, the Masters of Public Administrations program is the second largest graduate program on the JSU campus, just behind education, according to Dr. R. Lawson Veasey, the department head. Each year, at least 12-20 masters level students graduate and around 1-15 political science majors graduate, either going on to graduate school, law school, or various jobs.

Dr. Veasey stresses that having knowledge of political science is a core discipline that needs to be taught to any student. “The faculty spends a good deal of time answering questions trying to help the students understand an area of discipline that goes misunderstood to the most significant things you need to learn about America—money and politics,” said Veasey. Even though they are citizens of the United States, they live under a governmental system, they live in a republic, they live in a democracy, they don’t necessarily understand all that.

Currently, the entire curriculum in political science has been completely reworked in the past two years on the undergraduate level, and varied adjustments are being made to attempt to get the MPA program accredited as a disciplinary accreditation. Veasey says that they’re in the process of recruiting two faculties that it will take to do this. “We’re also changing the curriculum to be more in line with what’s required out there,” said Veasey. More statistics, more analytical abilities, scientific methodology—those kinds of things.

Although the standards are set high, the faculty does everything it can to relate to each individual on a comprehensive level. “We teach whoever comes to the classroom door and we try to do that as efficiently and effectively as possible. We attempt a pre-comprehensive job in advising the students about the core requirements and major and minor requirements and we give them an accurate timeline on when they can expect to get out of here,” Veasey said.

Students are strongly encouraged by the faculty to be effective in their oral and written communication skills as well. “If you can’t effectively communicate, then you’re going to have a problem,” continued Veasey.

Along with strong enthusiasm to educate political science and public administrations students, the department is also involved with student organizations such as the SGA, the Model Arab League, the Young Democrats, the College Republicans, and the Law Club. According to Veasey, the department’s faculty was asked by President Meehan to monitor student organizational groups, especially if they’re to publicly speak, to make sure they’re legitimate, not “going off the deep end” on some topic, and dealing with issues that are relevant to the students.

The department has also been doing much to emphasize the significance of the upcoming elections to its students with many class discussions, and they’re also working to influence the general public. They have helped the SGA set up voter registration drives, and are working with the Legal Women Voters to inform people of how easy it is to register to vote, as well as providing instructional information on how to vote. “All of us participate to one degree or another in trying to get out political information,” said Veasey.

Bush still leads Kerry in polls but Massachusetts Democrat is coming up from behind

The Pew poll of 810 likely voters showed Kerry gaining strength against Bush through the weekend. By a 2-to-1 margin, voters who saw the debate said Kerry did a better job than the president.

But almost half of the 1,002 registered voters in the poll 48 percent said Kerry changes his mind too much to be a good cent said they don’t think the president has a clear plan for bringing the situation in Iraq to a successful conclusion.

Andrew Kohut, director of the Pew Research Center, said the poll suggests “the public images of these candidates are fairly locked in. One night doesn’t appear to be doing it, even though it was a very good
U of Arkansas student overdoses in yet another fraternity related death

Associated Press

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - A University of Arkansas student drank a dozen beers, took a prescription cough suppressant, the anti-anxiety drug Xanax and possibly smoked marijuana the night before he died of an overdose, his fraternity brothers told police.

Fayetteville police said Monday that the death of Bradley Barrett Kemp, 20, appeared to be "a tragic accidental overdose" Fayetteville police said.

Kemp, originally from McGehee, died Saturday after police responded to an emergency call to his home near the university campus, Sgt. Shannon Gabbard said.

Police are awaiting results of toxicology tests to help determine the cause of death.

Gabbard said that Kemp had consumed several beers and that he also had taken hydrocodone, a medication that was prescribed as a cough suppressant, because he had been feeling sick.

A fraternity brother, Willard Ferguson, told police that Kemp drank about 12 beers during the night with several people and told Ferguson that Kemp drank one ounce of hydrocodone syrup along with the beer, according to a police report.

Ferguson told police that Kemp had had some congestion and some sinus troubles over the last week. Another fraternity brother of Kemp's also told police that Kemp had taken the anti-anxiety drug Xanax and possibly smoked marijuana during the night and had used another illicit drug and hydrocodone within the last 48 hours.

Police originally told the Morning News in Springdale that police received a call from Kemp's home at 527 N. Wilson St. at 9:39 a.m. Saturday, asking them to respond to an emergency at the Kappa Sigma house.

Gabbard said Monday that the caller actually asked police to come to the private home. He said once officers got there they found Kemp's girlfriend, Christina Reid, and Ferguson trying to resuscitate Kemp.

Kemp was taken to Washington Regional Medical Center, where the coroner pronounced him dead at 10:28 a.m., Gabbard said.

Officials at the scene then called other officers to go to the Kappa Sigma house to gather more information since Kemp was a member of the fraternity.

"There is no apparent connection with that (Kemp's fraternity membership) at all," Gabbard said.

The Associated Press,

Bush and Kerry were running even at 47 percent apiece in a CBS-New York Times poll, and Bush was slightly up in an ABC-Washington Post poll out Monday.

The Pew poll of 1,002 registered voters, including 810 likely voters, was taken Oct. 1-3 and had a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points for registered voters and plus or minus 4 percentage points for likely voters.

The poll provided the first public images of these candidates are fairly locked in. One night doesn't appear to be doing it, even though it was a very good night for John Kerry in the eyes of the voters."

Kohut said the Democrat "still has a lot of work to do, but it's still very much a horse race."

Well, the first Presidential Debate of the 2004 election is over and we got both more and less than we bargained for. Both candidates stayed on track by emphasizing points that they have spoken of before. They were both able to spell out where they stood on national security and foreign affairs and did so in a manner that was almost genial. It was good to see this in the wake of accusations from the followers of both candidates the last few months. I was half expecting a verbal free-for-all; anything goes. Overall, I was very happy to see the level of decorum that both candidates displayed, even when prodded a bit by the moderator, Jim Lehrer, for some good, old-fashioned character assassination.

As the debate began, it seemed that Bush would come out the more persuasive of the two. He had his message down as he went down a list of achievements during his term thus far. Bush spoke of how 9/11 "changed how America must look at the world" and how that led him to wage this War on Terror. He spoke of the successes in Afghanistan and then Iraq. He mentioned the influence that the war has had on Libya and how the A.Q. Khan nuclear proliferation network was stopped. He then tied this to the concept of "purusing a strategy of freedom around the world" to cause people to reject terror and embrace peace. He goes on to emphasize the voter registration in Afghanistan.

At this point, his control over the debate began to slip. It wasn’t obvious at first, but Bush began to repeat “its hard work” when referring to the war and international relations. I suppose Bush thought it would emphasize his point, and it did, but mostly it just made him appear defensive and a bit petulant. His expressions during the debate added to this impression.

Kerry, on the other hand, appeared confident and relaxed. He fielded the questions with panache, not allowing the President to undermine him. Kerry spoke persuasively of his convictions that the war in Iraq had been rushed into without a plan and for the wrong reasons. When confronted by the President with his vote authorizing the war, Kerry replied that he had done so with the expectation and promise of caution on the part of the President. In short, Kerry agreed to give Bush the power to go to war, but trusted him to use that power wisely. Kerry stated that Bush had not lived up to his statements to the Congress or the American people when he rushed into a war in Iraq. Finally, Kerry addressed that we were now there and must make the best of the situation.

Kerry presented his plan to gather the world to solve the problems in Iraq. Kerry said that Bush could not do this because he had alienated so many nations. Essentially, Kerry believes the world will help America get out of this mess Bush has gotten us into, but not while George Bush is President.

I have to be honest with you. I have not really been a John Kerry fan. I have had some concern over Kerry’s inability to coherently describe his position. He was able to do that effectively in this speech and that is an important step for him. The position of George Bush has always been clear, as he said himself in the debate when he stated that "people know where I (Bush) stand". The position of Kerry has not been so clear before this debate and it is a major step for him to be able to clarify it as he did. I would have voted for Kerry just because I know the direction George W. Bush is carrying this country is a mistake. However, now I feel much more comfortable doing so. This is known as "firming up the political base" and John Kerry did it. Bush did not, and many of those who had been leaning toward him are now leaning toward Kerry.

The challenge now facing the Kerry campaign is solidifying the independents leaning toward him over the coming weeks. The next opportunity to do that will be the Vice Presidential Debate coming up on Tuesday, October 5. I encourage you to watch this debate, since both Dick Cheney and John Edwards are intelligent, gifted public speakers. It will likely be the most compelling Vice Presidential debate ever and could make a major difference for either campaign. In the coming weeks, Bush and Kerry will meet two additional times. It is one of the most interesting and important elections in American history and I hope, regardless of who you ultimately support, you will take the time to become informed by watching these debates. All of our futures and those of our children depend on it.

Undercover agents raided an apartment early Saturday morning and found the place overrun with cockroaches. Officers said the property was “disgusting” and “unsanitary.”

They also said they discovered some marijuana, cocaine and drug-packaging materials, but the tenants weren’t home. Police said someone attempted to fumigate the apartment, but apparently was unsuccessful.

“Apparently, the bugs got to the dealers before the cops did,” Shelton Det. Sgt. Michael Madden said.

Police said they anticipate making arrests in connection with the raid.

FRICK, Switzerland (AP) A burglar who broke into an apartment in northern Switzerland was arrested early Friday after he was found drunk and asleep on a nearby balcony.

The 33-year-old man was discovered passed out by the resident of an apartment in the city of Frick, who called the police to say a stranger was sleeping on her balcony.

When officers arrived, they found the unidentified man had stolen cash, a camera and alcohol which he apparently consumed from a neighboring apartment and then climbed across to the balcony, where he passed out, police said.

Police said the man is suspected by investigators in neighboring France of committing several similar crimes.

I have an idea. Let’s quit talking politics for a second. My brain needs a break from the commercials, the debates, the articles and the persuading, and I’m guessing yours could use one too.

It’s not that I’m burnt out on the election. It’s the exact opposite, really. I can’t wait to vote. Can’t wait for a capable president to step into office (ahem).

All this Election Day hype is bruising my ego and causing me to become nauseated at the very sight of either political party’s bumper sticker.

No, I’m not “non-political” like someone dear to me claims to be; I’ve got the “Life-sucks-because-my-parents-decided-that-I-needed-to-be-born-on-the-same-day-that-America-decided-to-elect-a-president” blues. What’s a birthday girl to do?

I might as well give myself a new birthday this year. As a general rule, I hate birthdays anyway. I just forego the whole thing, and avoid what is sure to be a complete fiasco, much like the birthdays of yesteryear.

I can directly attribute the failure of most of my adult birthdays to my poor judgment in the opposite sex. For example: I spent my 21st birthday in Logan’s (which I detest) with a group of people I’d never met before in my life. All the while, the boyfriend at the time is saying, “isn’t this great? You can just throw the peanut shells on the floor!” Call me crazy, but being allowed to eat and socialize among discarded food litter is not my idea of a selling point, much less a birthday celebration. Not to mention the fact that my body had been massacred by globs of life-sucking bronchitis that particular November.

So there I was, stricken with a hacking cough, perched upon piles of other people’s peanut shells, surrounded by strangers who seemed to think the whole event was loads of fun. I, myself, felt like an elephant, co-mingling with legumes. My 21st birthday was capped off by one of the stranger’s charming renditions of the 80s-classic, “Black Velvet.” Happy birthday to me.

By the time my 22nd rolled around, I thought that surely it couldn’t be worse than the previous year. I was wrong. Different birthday, different boyfriend. I began the day retching up my breakfast leftovers from that surely it couldn’t be worse than the previous day if it killed me. The boyfriend at the time called to inform me he would be over shortly to toss them whenever I’m not in a good mood.” The newspaper said the man, who was not publicly identified, had confessed to dropping bricks off of buildings 11 times in the past three months.

The man was in custody on Monday but had not been charged with any crime, Yue said.

WASHINGTON (AP) The editor of the Crawford, Texas hometown newspaper says he has no regrets about endorsing Bush’s Democratic opponent John Kerry, even after a dozen business pulled their advertising from the publication.

“I’d do it again,” Leon Smith, publisher of the Lone Star Iconoclast, told the Waco Tribune-Herald in Sunday’s editions.

The Iconoclast, which endorsed Bush in 2000, said it now supports the Democrat because of disillusionment with the war and Bush’s actions on Social Security, the economy and other issues. An editorial dated Sept. 29 accuses the president of having a “smoke-screened agenda” and leading the United States into a “quagmire” in Iraq on flimsy pretenses.

The newspaper, with a circulation of 425, has become scarce, and copies have shown up on the eBay online auction site.

Business leaders in Bush’s adopted hometown of 705 residents about 30 kilometers (20 miles) west of Waco say they support the president and are critical of the upset newspaper.

“If I think what’s his name, Leon Smith, is entitled to his own opinion,” said Vicki Martin, an employee at the Coffee Station convenience store and cafe, where Bush sometimes stops during stays at his ranch. “Unfortunately, his opinion hurt a lot of feelings around here. Bush is our neighbor.”

Breath-taking fights, rollicking melodies, mistaken identities, and gut-busting laughs; you can expect all of these things and more at JSU’s delightful presentation of Shakespeare’s comedy “As You Like It.” I’ll admit that spending an evening listening to stale speech while praying that the kid screaming next to me doesn’t spit up isn’t my idea of a thigh-smacking good time. If you’re expecting that kind of humor will be trite and outdated,” Dr. Claeren stated.

One of the biggest obstacles when performing a Shakespearian play is the difficult language that is used throughout. Sadly, this solitary aspect turns countless people away from even seeing a wonderful production! To facilitate the audience’s understanding of the play’s action, a modern approach has been taken to the show, including costumes. One of the barriers of this complex language has been broken by staging. In other words, most of the humor throughout the play is exuded by the actors’ quirky, native, and jovial delivery of the lines.

In addition to comedic conflicts from mistaken identities, especially rewarding to literally get to hear a piece of history. If you’re more of a hog-squealin’, rip-snortin’, belly-achin’ brawler, there are plenty of fights and rumbles, too. This show contains a jewel box of dynamic shows coming up, it’s Breaks to watch television are few and far between. This semester I have a full load of classes, a new time-consuming position here and a demanding schedule with the Marching Southerners. I am not, however, writing to complain about any of this, because, although stressful at times, I love everything I’m getting the opportunity to participate in this fall.

It was during a day’s hiatus that I plopped down on the couch with a magazine and turned on the TV. I wasn’t glued to the tube, glancing up after a page turn or so, until I heard the phrase “Putting the ‘f’ back in freedom.”

My left eyebrow rose and my head cocked to the side like a curious puppy. It was the end of a commercial, a tagline for a new movie. The next sound out of my mouth was laughter, which only made me feel silly because I was sitting in the room by myself. But my sarcastic mind couldn’t help but respond to the commercial by saying, “Because without the ‘f’ all we would have is ‘reedom?’”

Now, I’m not a genius, but I’m pretty sure that’s not a word. Plus, my Word program just underlined this combination of letters in red. So I took to the Internet to find the meaning of ‘freedom’...

On Wednesday Sept. 29, Katie Koestner spoke with a large turnout of JSU students and faculty about her experience with date rape. Koestner was raped by a man that she knew during the third week of her freshman year at the College of William and Mary. After her attack she was the first to receive national attention and recognition as a date rape victim. She was and still is a pioneer of date rape awareness. At the time she came forward, date rape was an ugly little secret no one spoke about. Now, due to her courage, date rape is recognized for what it is: a crime.

Koestner painted a picture of the events that lead up to the assault with both humor and an underlying somberness. No, she never makes the assault out to be a joke and is clear that date rape should not be made out as one. But she does allow the listener insight into her thoughts about the man before her attack. Yes, she knew she liked him, found him attractive and enjoyed spending time with him. What she did not know was that after inviting him back to her dorm room he would not take “no” for an answer.

Tearfully, Koestner spoke of the assault. She left no doubt that she still carries the scars from that night. As listeners held on to every word she spoke, she reminded them of the humor will be trite and outdated,” Dr. Claeren said. “Much of the comedy in the show, as well as in modern times, stems from the problems that keep young lovers apart. Shakespeare gives us four young couples in this show, so you can imagine the chaos to ensue.”

In essence, a duke has overthrown his brother, who is exiled to the wilderness, jaded and begrudged. As his daughter tries to seek him, she happens across a charming young guy, and so it begins. For one reason or other, four couples wander throughout the play, so it is wiser for students to go ahead and purchase a season ticket for $24 rather than pay $4 for a non-musical and $8 for a musical. The adult price for a season ticket is $34, and senior citizens and JSU personnel pay $29. For ticket information, contact Jan Rhodes at (256) 782-5624 or jrhodes@jsucc.jsu.edu. Be sure to support the arts, as well as your fellow students by coming to this enchanting production.

Although many other productions have included a more Elizabethan (and frankly, a more flat and boring) approach to the music used throughout the show, Dr. Claeren opted to go with a more robust sound that seems to fit the characters better. Shakespeare himself wrote the lyrics to the songs used throughout the play, so it is

As listeners held on to every word she spoke, she reminded them of the humor will be trite and outdated,” Dr. Claeren said. “Much of the comedy in the show, as well as in modern times, stems from the problems that keep young lovers apart. Shakespeare gives us four young couples in this show, so you can imagine the chaos to ensue.”

In essence, a duke has overthrown his brother, who is exiled to the wilderness, jaded and begrudged. As his daughter tries to seek him, she happens across a charming young guy, and so it begins. For one reason or other, four couples wander throughout the play, so it is wiser for students to go ahead and purchase a season ticket for $24 rather than pay $4 for a non-musical and $8 for a musical. The adult price for a season ticket is $34, and senior citizens and JSU personnel pay $29. For ticket information, contact Jan Rhodes at (256) 782-5624 or jrhodes@jsucc.jsu.edu. Be sure to support the arts, as well as your fellow students by coming to this enchanting production.

Although many other productions have included a more Elizabethan (and frankly, a more flat and boring) approach to the music used throughout the show, Dr. Claeren opted to go with a more robust sound that seems to fit the characters better. Shakespeare himself wrote the lyrics to the songs used throughout the play, so it is

ARIES:  (March 21-April 20)
If there is a change in plans this week, make the best of the situation. Something very promising may come of what seems to be a missed opportunity. Your love life is getting back on track, so take the opportunity to work out details, and go slowly with your mate.

TAURUS:  (April 21 - May 20)
Love is everywhere during the week. Either a current love is rekindled or you may be in for a new attraction. In any case, the rules have changed, and even if with an old flame, the relationship is completely new. Being around positive people will lift your spirits.

GEMINI:  (May 22 - June 21)
It just might come to blows with a loved one during this week. Give each other time to cool off before approaching the subject in a reasonable mood. Good news about money may lighten up your mood a bit. The way you use information presented to you pleases your superiors.

CANCER:  (June 22 - July 23)
Your nature insists you follow the rules, but an acquaintance that is more of a free spirit, prefers spontaneity - learn from him. Don't fall into the trap of judging others, remember that you don't know what motivates and influences others to do what they do. Take a firm hand on money matters.

LEO:  (July 24- August 23)
Your personal brand of creativity is crying out to be let loose, allow time for this expression to take place, and don't be too attached to producing immediate masterpieces. If a problem is backing you into a corner, focus your energies on diffusing it.

VIRGO:  (August 24 - September 23)
Keeping your feelings under wraps will create the illusion of control. If you take the risk of expressing yourself to a loved one, no one will care if you break down. It's going to hurt falling down - but you are better off jumping in, instead of watching from a distance.

LIBRA:  (September 24 - October 23)
It's time to let well enough alone. Learn to recognize when you've done all you can, and move on. Hindsight is always 20-20, learn from mistakes and decide to do better next time. If you exercise a little patience, your rewards will be evident.

SCORPIO:  (October 24 - November 22)
If the attitudes of others seem to be holding you back, it's time to be a little more self-centered in order to get yourself back into the swing of what is good for you. A little separation from others can be a good thing. Opportunities are bountiful: look for them.

SAGITTARIUS:  (November 23 - December 21)
You have a reason to be proud of your output and quality of work this week. Work will provide you with a welcome respite from other worries. If your attitude concerning a relationship does not seem to change, you may be looking at the situation from the wrong way. Don't try so hard.

CAPRICORN:  (December 22 - January 20)
If you have been running yourself ragged, preventative measures may be needed to keep your health up to par. Money is likely to be tight for the near future, but don't let it stop you from making plans to get away on vacation. Your lover is an absolute joy to you.

AQUARIUS:  (January 21 - February 19)
plans to get away on vacation. Your lover is an absolute joy to you.

AQUARIUS: (January 21 - February 19)
If you ponder over the "what ifs", even more questions will arise. It's not worth putting yourself through such self-criticism. What's done is done, and you can only resolve to do better next time. Your drive for perfection is unrealistic, for there is no such thing as perfection.

PISCES: (February 20 - March 20)
Your hard work is not always noticed or appreciated by others. Whatever you do must satisfy you first - relying on others will keep you feeling disappointed. Sweet memories may cause you to look back on the past with a sense of loss and some regret - the good old days.

IF THIS WEEK IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:
Your creative energies express themselves in very tangible ways. You do not build castles in the sky, but tend to put down roots and build useful things that are meant to last. Your life work will always involve building and growing.

College Concoctions

CHOCOLATE FUDGE
1 pkg. (8 sqs.) Baker's semi-sweet chocolate
2/3 c. sweetened condensed milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1/8 tsp. salt
1 c. walnuts, chopped

Microwave chocolate and milk in 1 1/2 quart microwave bowl on High 2 minutes, stirring after 1 minute. Stir until chocolate is completely melted and smooth. Stir in vanilla, salt and walnuts. Spread in greased 9 x 5 inch loaf pan. Refrigerate until firm, about 2 hours. Cut.

LIME TARRAGON FILLETS
1 lb. red snapper fillets
1 tbsp. margarine
1 tsp. lime juice
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. dried tarragon leaves
4 slices lime

Cut fillets into serving size pieces. Arrange in 8 inch square microwave safe baking dish with thicker pieces to the outside. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave (high) 4 to 4 1/2 minutes or until fish flakes apart easily, rotating dish once. Set aside. Combine margarine, juice, salt, and tarragon in 1 cup microwave safe measure. Microwave (high) uncovered, 30 to 45 seconds or until melted. Arrange fillets on serving plate. Stir margarine mixture and spoon onto fillets. Garnish with lime slices.

ITALIAN STYLE CHICKEN BREASTS
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 c. seasoned bread crumbs
1/4 c. Parmesan cheese
1 can tomato sauce
1 tsp. Italian seasoning
1/4 tsp. garlic powder

Dip chicken breasts in eggs, then crumb mixture. To make the crumb mixture, combine the bread crumbs and the Parmesan cheese. Microwave in 1 1/2 quart casserole, loosely covered with wax paper, for 5 minutes. Turn over and cover with sauce. To make the sauce, combine the tomato sauce, Italian seasoning and garlic powder. Put over top of chicken. Cover loosely and cook 4 minutes. Place slices of Mozzarella cheese on each chicken breast and cook 2 minutes. Let stand 3 to 4 minutes, covered.
Chanticleer JSU Athlete of the Week - Breanne Milne

Lindsay Dant
Chanticleer Sports Writer

Breanne Milne has been on the Gamecocks soccer team all four years. Not only is she one of the three captains on the team but she has scored two goals; just this season for the soccer team playing defensive center back.

"Breanne is the total package. I'm biased, but I think she is the best player in the conference. She is the key to our defense and is very active in the back. She possesses all the qualities one needs to be a terrific soccer player," says Coach Howe on the JSU website.

Last season she started all twenty games and was named to the First team All-Ohio Valley Conference. Freshmen teammates Shannon Wright and Elizabeth Selasky exclaim, "Breanne holds the team together. Not only is she a leader but she is definitely the backbone of the team."

The Chanticleer sports talked with Breanne Milne, chosen as Athlete of the Week, to get inside the head of this 5-4 senior defensive center back from North Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

Why JSU?
Breanne: When I met the JSU soccer team it reminded me of my high school team. They looked like a great team that worked hard together and gelled as a whole.

Biggest rivals in the OVC?
Breanne: Samford! They have beaten us 1-0 three times. We have only beat them once. It was a heartbreak when we lost to them a couple weeks ago. We want another rematch.

Favorite color?
Breanne: Blue.

Favorite movie?
Breanne: It would have to be "My Best Friend's Wedding."

Favorite food?
Breanne: Chocolate pudding and chocolate ice cream.

Favorite CD player?
Breanne: The best CD right now would have to be Maroon 5.

Favorite thing to do?
Breanne: Watch TV.

Favorite sport besides soccer?
Breanne: I'm from Canada and hockey is really big, but I also love watching basketball.

Home soccer game to go to this season?
Breanne: On October 8th we are playing Eastern Illinois, and on October 10th we are playing Southeast Missouri State. These are two of the biggest games all season; except for the Samford game.

Even though she is a senior and will be greatly missed next year, she will leave behind a legacy of leadership and teamwork.

So if you ever get a chance to stop by a JSU soccer game look for #7 because she will be hard to miss. She is the one playing her heart out for the team that she so dearly loves.

Sig Ep’s and Delta Zeta leading Bowling IM’s

Amado Ortiz
Chanticleer Sports Editor

Intramural Bowling is now in full swing. The top of the leader board is a huge surprise this year. Delta Chi and Zeta Tau Alpha were Intramural Bowling Champions last year, but the pins are not falling for them in the beginning weeks.

Sigma Phi Epsilon is coming out of the gate fast in bowling with a 1738 average. Out of the possible eight bowlers in two nights of bowling, Sig Ep has had only 2 guys not break 400 for a three game set, and one of those was a 399. Wade Peterson is leading Sig Ep after bowling a 505 and 423, and Ricky Reynolds is not far behind with a 482 and a 434. Sig Ep is out to commanding lead in bowling with a 179 pin lead over second place Sigma Nu.

Delta Zeta overtook Phi Mu this past week to hold lead in sorority bowling with an overall score of 2414 to Phi Mu’s 2403. Molly Sosebee has been D2’s “Big Bowler” bowling two consecutive 400 games. However, there are four more nights of bowling, and the last two weeks of bowling are “double pins” so both races could still be interesting.

In Flag Football The Boycotters and T-N-T are leading the Red Conference in Men’s Flag Football with a 2-0 record. They will play each other in what could ultimately decide the Red Conference champions on Oct. 13.

The White Conference is led by Brick House with a 2-0 record. The other contender in the White Conference is the T-Dawgs. Brick House does own the tie-breaker over the T-Dawgs as they defeated them back on Sept. 28 by a score of 27-0. The only way that these two teams could ever face again would be in the Men’s Independent Championship game.

In the Fraternity Conference, Delta Chi beat Kappa Alpha by a score of 14-13. This was a crucial game for Delta Chi, as it was their first win on the season. A loss to KA would have all but killed their hopes for a repeat Championship. Delta Chi scored midway through the 4th quarter to take a 14-7 lead. However, J.D. Davis hit Evan Monson in the back of the end-zone with :57 seconds left to make it 14-13. The ensuing PAT attempt fell just a little short, and so did KA’s chances of sweeping Delta Chi.

Pi Kappa Phi and Sig Ep played a crucial game as both teams came in undefeated. The two teams played a tough first half as Sig Ep went into halftime with a 7-6. Glen Lockaby led the opening drive that resulted in the first touchdown of the game. Pi Kapp regrouped at halftime and made some key defensive changes led by Chris Siekete as Pi Kapp would pull away in the second half and prevail 25-7.

Zeta Tau Alpha and Alpha Omicron Pi are currently tied for first place in the women’s Conference sporting an undefeated record. Alpha Omicron Pi defeated Phi Mu 21-0. “I am real pleased with our performance,” said AOPi Head Coach Woody Rozier. “We just had their number today.”

The match-up between AOPi and Zeta on Oct. 14 could decide who will be the regular season champions.
Who’s in the playoffs? Are you kidding?

It feels great to be a Jax St. Gamecock. It feels great knowing that we have a strong chance to make it to the playoffs and actually go deep into the schedule. It feels even better that at any moment Maurice Mullins can run the option for a huge gain or Craig Agee can go the distance on a punt return or Jarvis Houston can pull off his best Randy Moss impersonation. Man, it feels good to be a Gamecock.

Not only does it feel good to be a Gamecock but did you see the Auburn Tigers put an old fashioned whippin’ on the Tennessee Volunteers? Auburn running-back Ronnie Brown flat out told Vol Cornerback Jason Allen you’re the only 10 I see as he ran him over from the three for a touchdown.

That play put a stamp on Charles Barkley’s comments earlier on, ESPN Gameday when he said, “For Tennessee, there is light at the end of the tunnel, but there is a train coming and you better get off the tracks.” Man, it feels good to cheer for Auburn.

The one thing I have lost through all the football games was the team the whole south loved for 12 consecutive seasons. Expectations at the beginning of the season were low. Johnỹ

Defense bones up as Gamecocks get payback

From Staff Reports

Junior quarterback Maurice Mullins threw for 131 yards and one touchdown and added another rushing touchdown to lead No. 22 Jacksonville State past Murray State 35-14 in JSU’s Ohio Valley Conference home-opener Saturday afternoon.

Mullins also rushed six times for 40 yards, while senior Oscar Bonds led the Gamecocks (4-0, 2-0) with 17 carries for 86 yards and two touchdowns. JSU finished with 363 yards of total offense, including 179 on the ground.

“We have won four games, four different ways and that is a credit to our team,” said JSU head coach Jack Crowe following the game. “We didn’t have as good a day on offense as we are capable of having. Our defense showed their resourcefulness and we had a good kicking game today.”

Jacksonville State struck first when Mullins capped an eight-play, 73-yard drive with an 18-yard run. Gavin Hallford added the extra point and the Gamecocks led 7-0 with 8:35 left in the first quarter.

The Racers (2-3, 1-1) answered on their very next possession when Chad Cook rushed 31 yards for the score. Morgan Riley kicked the first of two extra points and tied the game 7-7 with 5:41 remaining in the first period. Cook led the Racers with 24 carries for 129 yards.

Jacksonville State scored again as Mullins completed a 21-yard touchdown pass to tight end Danny Tillery. With 1:05 remaining, the Gamecocks led 14-7. It was the first career touchdown reception for the Madison, Ga., native.

After an out-of-bounds punt gave Jacksonville State possession at the Racers’ 49, the Gamecocks need only two plays before Bonds rushed 32 yards for a touchdown, pushing the Gamecock’s lead to 21-7 with 13:02 left in the third quarter.

The Racers came back with an 8-yard touchdown pass from Fisher to Daniel Rumley and Riley added the point after to cut the lead to 21-14 with 7:42 left in the third.

JSU’s Craig Agee broke down the left sideline and raced 79 yards for a touchdown, which was the fourth longest punt return for a touchdown in school history.

Agee finished with four returns for 149 yards and a touchdown. JSU returns to action on Saturday at UT-Martin.

Kick-off is set for 2 p.m.

Volleyball off to best start in school history

From Staff Reports

Jacksonville State’s Shari Weyer had 19 kills and hit .615 on the night as the Gamecocks defeated a tough Tennessee-Martin (2-9, 0-3) team Friday night, 3-1. JSU lost game one to the Skyhawks 34-32, but came back strong to win three straight to take the match.

Ohio Valley Conference match Saturday afternoon at Pete Mathews Coliseum.

JSU hit over .300 in games one and three and over .250 in game two. Junior Suzi Terrell had 18 kills to lead the Gamecocks on offense, while sophomore Shari Weyer had 14 kills and only one error on the day. Weyer hit .650 in the win.

Freshman Abby Breit added 16 kills and libero Kylee West had 18 digs as she continues to lead the Gamecocks.

Jacksonville State extended its winning streak to 11 straight matches with wins over Tennessee-Martin (3-1) and Murray State (3-0) last week.

West, a libero from New Castle, Indiana, posted 43 digs in league action. She recorded 20 digs in the win over UTM and added 23 in the victory over the Racers. She surpassed was the team the whole south loved for 12 consecutive seasons. Expectations at the beginning of the year were low. John Schuerholz was forced to cut the budget and most of the superstars had to part ways with Hot-Lanta.

The Tomahawks weren’t waving at the beginning of the season when the Braves fell back 10 games and looked absolutely terrible. Most people were saying if they just finished at .500, the season would be a success.

I couldn’t watch. It was unbearable to see. I thought about when Sid Bream came around third and slid home to win the NLCS or sweet David Justice burned the Indians in 1995 for their only World Series Championship. It was over. The consecutive division titles were over and the Braves wouldn’t go back to the Dale Murphy days.

But then the Braves made a magic turnaround and the ‘Ted’ was starting to pop again. SHHH!! Don’t tell anyone. Could it be that this is the year of the Braves? Do they have enough left in the tank to take out the red-hot Astros and enough pitching to settle down the Cardinals?

The Braves are dealing with some off the field trouble of their own as star short-stop Rafael Furcal is dealing with a DUI after already being on probation from another DUI. History clearly shows that teams dealing with problems outside the clubhouse simply can not focus, like LA Story. I mean the LA Lakers.

But, maybe, just maybe, the South can put down a football for a second and tune into the national pastime. Man, it would feel so good if the Braves won the series, but I would take a DI-AA Championship instead any day of the week. And don’t forget about the loveliest village on the plains.

Cross Country team runs into nat’l polls at 7th

From Staff Reports

JSU’s men’s cross country team won the Great American Classic with a team time of 2:11:28. “This was also the school’s first ever team victory so that added some extra excitement,” JSU head coach Heath Dudley said. “We still have alot of work to do because we still did not run as well as we can.”

JSU was lead by Josphat Waweru, who won the meet and set a school record.

Rifle team shooting well

From Staff Reports

Jacksonville State head coach Ron Frost was victorious in his first shoulder-to-shoulder rifle match this past weekend, as the Gamecocks defeated Ohio Valley Conference foe Murray State by an aggregate score of 4674-4613.

Joseph Hall (581), James Hall (579) and Kari Baldwin (579) finished second, third and fourth in overall small-bore, while James Hall finished first in air rifle (587).

The Gamecocks have participated in two previous rifle invitational Matches that were completed this past weekend, as well. Jacksonville State was the winner in the Memphis Invitational, shooting air gun only.

The Gamecocks recorded a team score of 2231, defeating such teams as Murray State, host Memphis, Texas El Paso, Birmingham-Southern, Ole Miss, Tennessee-Martin.

JSU also won the Ole Miss Invite with an aggregate score of 4642. The Gamecocks will host Xavier October 23 in their next contest.

JSU moves to 15th in Polls

From Staff Reports

Jacksonville State made the biggest move of the week and jumped up to No. 15 in the latest Sports Network I-AA Top 25, which marks the highest JSU has ever been ranked in the I-AA poll.

The Gamecocks, coming off an impressive 35-14 win over Murray State last week, improved to 4-0 on the season and was ranked 22nd last week. Jax State also debuted in the USA Today/ESPN Coaches Poll at No. 16 after being ranked just outside the Top 25 last week in the 26th spot last week.

“The only times the poll really counts, since we’re in a playoff system, is when you get the opportunity to play at home,” said JSU coach Jack Crowe.
