Gamecocks hold off UT Martin for fourth consecutive OVC title

Timothy Cash Sports Editor

No 2 Jacksonville State claimed their fourthstraight Ohio Valley Conference championship Saturday, squeaking by UT Martin 14-7.

The Gamecocks also extended their OVC-win streak to 31, and picked up the OVC's automatic FCS playoff birth.

"I'm proud of this team for getting us right where we want to be at the end of the season," head coach John Grass said after the game.

"Proud of all the guys who've come before them to make this four in a row happen.

It's pretty special when you look back at it. But right now, we don't have time to look back at it – we have to get ready for Tennessee State."

Jacksonville State's (9-1, 7-0) ground game punched in two first half touchdowns via Roc Thomas, while the Gamecocks defense limited UT Martin to only 83 offensive yards.

However, the Gamecocks had to fight off a second-half resurgence by UTM to secure the win.

Linebacker Joseph Roberts secured the win for JSU when he landed on a fumble by Skyhawks' quarterback Dresser Winn with 1:09 remaining in the contest.

"It's a great win on the road. We knew it was going to be tough coming up here," Grass said.

"We didn't make enough plays to get the ball in the end zone. A few scores were left out there

Chilean Chef brings flavors of Chile to the Caf

Brannon Cahela Staff Writer

JSU students and faculty were treated to a unique dining experience on Friday, November 10 at Jack Hopper Dining Hall. In addition to the typical fare served at the Caf, students were granted the opportunity to sample a variety of Chilean dishes prepared by acclaimed Chef Mauricio Alejandro Arteaga Campos.

Chef Mauricio payed a visit to the JSU dining hall as part of Sodexo's Global Chef program, sharing his Chilean cuisine with America. This tour allows people to experience the flavors of Chilean cuisine, which is unfamiliar to many American pallets.

"Every day we try to provide diners with a unique experience." Said Chef Mauricio. "Food is experience. Although our food is simply prepared, we prepare it with love and we believe the end result reflects that."

There were many staple dishes of Chilean cuisine available including a skewer with chicken, pork and peppers; chicken cooked in Cognac; barley risotto with onion and tomato and a salad with shredded beef and caramelized onions.

Chilean cuisine is simply prepared with fresh, quality ingredients and stems from many Spanish influences. Chile has a diverse agricultural climate, making many fresh fruits and vegetables essential in Chilean cuisine.

For more than 20 Chef years, Mauricio has delighted thousands of Sodexo guests with his culinary specialties. He has served more than 3,100 guests per day at the historic Banco de Chile in Santiago and more than 7,000 daily meals as Executive Chef at Minera Escondido, the world's largest copper producing mine in the northern Chilean city of Antofa-

Chef Mauricio's interest in cooking began as a child, when he saw his father cooking with wood and flame. His interest then developed farther as he became more classically trained.

After studying International Technical Gastronomy at El Instituto de Capacitation Profesional de Chile, Chef Mauricio trained at Hotel Carrera in Santiago. He then joined the culinary teams at Paseo San Damian Mexican Restaurant, Restaurant Branigo Gourmet Pub, and Hotel Hyatt, and catered kosher food events for more than 12 years.

"It has been an amazing experience to be able to share the food of my country with the people of America. It is so awesome when people come to me and tell me how delicious my food was and how much it meant to them to try Chilean cuisine," Chef Mauricio said.

JSU Greek community strives for hazing-free campus

JSU Newswire

With hazing incidents on college campuses making headlines across the nation this fall, JSU's Greek community has been working proactively to ensure the university remains a safe place for students to enjoy fraternity and sorority life.

In September, the Dean of Students Office presented National Hazing Prevention Week. Dr. Lori Hart, a hazing prevention and risk reduction expert, visited campus and led nearly 600 students in a discussion that viewed hazing through many different lenses and challenged students to be better brothers/sisters.

"Dr. Hart gave us great examples of issues facing fraternity and sorority life and demonstrated how clear communication, simple solutions and non-complacent leaders give us the edge in making fraternity and sorority life successful at JSU," said Kyle Burt, Interfraternity Council President.

The JSU student handbook defines hazing as "any action taken or situation created - recklessly or intentionally - to produce mental or physical discomfort, embarrassment, ridicule, or possibly cause mental or physical harm or injury to any person on or off the university campus." Permission or approval by a person being hazed is not a defense. In fact, allowing oneself to be hazed is a violation of university policy.

Examples of hazing include, but are not limited to the following:

- *Tests of endurance
- *Physical abuse *Psychological abuse
- *Morally degrading or
- humiliating activities *Forced ingestion of any substance
 - *Forced attire expectations that do not apply to the entire chapter

- *Activities that interfere with academic pur-
 - *Paddling in any form
 - *Use of alcohol
 - * Servitude

Hazing is typically associated with membership selection and initiation into an organization. It is possible for hazing to occur before, during, and after membership selection and initiation. No chapter, colony, student or alumnus may conduct or condone hazing activities.

For more information, contact Josh Robinson, assistant dean of students, at 256-782-8492 or jrobinson6@jsu.edu.

This article first appeared on JSU's website on Monday, November 6. Jacksonville State University takes hazing very seriously. Report any instances of hazing to the Office of Student Life.

The International Consortium of Investigative Journalists (ICIJ) released information, dubbed the "Paradise Papers" revealing that many highprofile people and businesses, including members of the Trump Administration and Apple, may be avoiding tax payments.

Paradise Lost: the House tax plan in the shadow of the Paradise Papers

JoAnna Mitchell Staff Reporter

Recently, a cooperative effort involving over 380 investigative journalists worldwide uncovered an expansive trove of documents exposing how the wealthiest people in the world, alongside large multi-national corporations, manage to avoid paying taxes on their vast collections of wealth. The papers, dubbed the Paradise Papers, show how elite maneufinances their and store obscene amounts of money in offshore accounts in order to dance around paying taxes that should be going communities profit from.

Many large international companies such as Nike Apple, and have been exposed dodgers, well as members of President Donald J. Trump's administration. The administration has been pushing Trump's new tax plan, claiming that it will help workclass citizens and "make America great again." This new tax plan will, in fact, cut taxes to the wealthiest, including many members of the Trump administration, and potentially Trump himself.

According to the New York Times, the plan "will deliver a significant tax cut they for corporations." The bill favors businesses over the citizens of the United States, with $1 trillion in cuts going to corporations, over two-thirds of the total. The plan also proposes a permanent 15% tax cut for businesses, bringing them from 35% to 20%. This change is estimated to reduce federal revenue by $1.5 trillion over the next 10 years.

> To make up for the loss of revenue from the business cuts and those to the wealthier citizens, lawmakers want to repeal tax breaks for things like medical expenses, moving expenses, student loan interest and adoption. The bill also proposes to cut Medicaid and Social Security to help recover lost revenue from corporate tax cuts.

According Washington the Post, "Mr. Trump, in particular, might benefit from the elimination of the alternative minimum tax (AMT), which prevents taxpayers from using deductions and loopholes to avoid paying at least a minimum amount to the federal government."

According CNBC, a recently amended version of the plan would "effectively repeal the Obamacare individual mandate, which requires most Americans to have health insurance or pay a penalty. Senators say doing so will save more than $300 billion to give Republicans more budget flexibility. The Congressional Budget Office has estimated that it will lead to 13 million more people uninsured by 2027 and increase average Obamacare premiums."

Times states that the bill "repeals certain tax credits, including a 15 percent credit for individuals aged 65 or over or who are retired on disability. Right now, those individuals can claim up to $7,500 for a joint return, $5,000 for a single individual, or $3,750 for a married individual filing a joint return."

This would see a tax decrease for 76% of American families, but it would increase taxes on a large portion of middle class Americans. OPINION & EDITORIAL

Pictures on the Mantle:

Memories of Thanksgiving

Rebekah Hawkins Associate Editor

There's a lot of argument as to whether or not we transition too fast between Halloween and Christmas.

And to be fair, there's some merit in those statements. Halloween When has barely ended and I'm already hearing "Holly, Jolly Christmas" on the radio, or seeing Christmas trees gracing the Garden Center in Wal Mart, maybe it IS too early for all that.

Personally, I'm one of those people that starts planning for Christmas when Halloween ends. I spend all of October planning a perfect Halloween, then when November starts you might as well call me St. Nick and dress me all in red because I am ready for Christmas.

I love the trees and the lights and the decorations. I love the corny Christmas music and cheesy Christmas specials. I love the movies and the caroling. All of it. And I aim to start it as soon as possible so I can enjoy it longer. But sometimes I do wonder if I'm forgetting about Thanksgiving.

Sometimes when I look deep into my childhood memories I can't remember a lot of Thanksgivings. They seem like a blur that turns into Christmas. I see a lot of pictures from Christmases past, but we don't often take pictures on Thanksgiving. It's mostly just a, "Hi, how are you? Haven't seen you all year. Oh yay food! Okay, bye. See you in a month at Christmas."

Thanksgiving and Christmas are two of the only days of the year that I see all of my family. I see my grandparents on my dad's side more because they live right around the corner from me, but the rest of my family, on both sides, I'm lucky if I see more than just those two designated days in the winter.

Rebekah's grandfather Jack Norton who died November 1, 2014.

It's sad isn't it?

I was always taught Thanksgiving was a time to be grateful for all the things that we have. All the things that we share. I wish that I had more memories of Thanksgiving than just the ones that blur into Christmas. But there are some memories that stand out.

I do remember the table cloth with the leaf pattern that draped over the long table. I remember how it used to just be just one long table, then it became two as the family grew. I remember the sausage balls carefully placed into a basket with an orange napkin, festive as my grandmother is, and I remember being told by my mother not to eat too many before lunch.

I remember my grandfather falling asleep in his chair and pretending like he wasn't.

I remember being disappointed that the only dessert offered Thanksgiving was a jam cake, and I hated jam cakes. I remember my dad hiding out in the corner by the TV so he could watch the Thanksgiving NFL games.

I remember going to my dad's parents' house and getting what was left over of Thanksgiving dinner before going home. I remember dad always saying that he was full and then standing in the kitchen and making himself a plate anyway.

I remember my grandfather standing in front of the small kitchen window, him as tall as the window itself, and scrubbing the dishes carefully methodically and like he always has.

I remember my grandmother asking my dad if he wanted her to wrap up anything for him, and him always saying no before changing his mind and asking if she wouldn't mind.

I remember my mom reading the Black Friday ads that were strewn on the couch and wondering aloud to my grandmother why anyone would bother getting out in all that mess.

And the sweet tea. I remember the Red Diamond sweet tea.

There are memories like those that me smile. make Memories that I can clearly see, and that still go on to this day. And there are others that I sometimes wish I could forget.

I remember the first Thanksgiving after my grandfather died. He had died on November 1, and everyone was still processing it when our first holiday without him came. I remember the house decked out in its usual Thanksgiving décor, yet slightly sad and less than. I remember his pictures being up all over the house, a reminder of him so we wouldn't forget. As if we could.

remember his chair being empty for most of the night, until my grandmother sat in it herself, as if to say, "This is where he would have been. This is where I wish he still was."

I remember the tears when my dad said the prayer. When he said, "This family is hurting right now. Because we lost someone important. But we're still here.

We're still a family."

I remember all that.

I remember all the Thanksgivings after. How the house has lightened, how we've processed and how we've done our best to move on. How life has changed for us all, but how those pictures still remain where they were that Thanksgiving without him. How he remains.

remember Thanksgiving.

In the midst of planning for Black Friday shopping or planning for Christmas as early as I can because life is so busy, I'm going to try to remember Thanksgiving.

Remember memories I have, and the ones that are still to come.

Remember that leaf covered table cloth, the jam cake and sausage balls, my grandfather washing dishes in the kitchen, the leftovers dad swore he didn't want and those pictures on the mantle.

Rest in forever peace PawPaw.

51st annual Country Music Awards grace Nashville

Alissa Camplin

Arts & Entertainment Editor

The 51st annual Country Music Association Awards were presented on Wednesday, November 8th by ABC Network. This ceremony recognizes some of the best country music released during the period of July 1, 2016 and June 30, 2017.

Stars flooded to the Bridgestone Arena in Nashville to celebrate "Country's biggest night" of the year. It was co-hosted by Brad Paisley and Carrie Underwood, who have hosted the CMAs together for the past ten years. The ceremony has been held at this location for the past twelve years.

The night's opening number began with a solo acoustic rendition of "Amazing Grace," which allowed Eric Church to show his condolenses to those affected by the horrific act in Las Vegas that shook America a month ago.

The tone shifted as more country icons took turns in singing, "Hold My Hand." Stars included Reba McIntire, Garth Brooks, Faith Hill and Tim McGraw.

Other artists graced the stage before the night was over, Kelsea Ballerini, Dierks Bentley, Garth Brooks, Luke Bryan, Dan + Shay and Lady Antebel-

Categories of the night included, "Entertainer of the Year," "Single of the Year," "New Artist of the Year," and the best male and female "Vocalist of the Year."

Nominations were announced on September 4, 2017, on Good Morning America by Lauren Alaina, Dustin Lynch and Brothers Osborne.

The nominees and winners are decided by a board of 6,3000 industry professional members of CMA, according to their official website. This committee was established in 1958 and was the first trade organization to celebrate a specific genre of music.

Miranda Lambert received the most nominations at 5, followed by Keith Urban and Little Big Town with 4 a piece.

The most prestigious category of the night, "Entertainer of the Year," was awarded to Garth Brooks. This is the sixth time in his career that he has won this category.

Brooks accepted the award graciously and thanked God, the CMAs, and the people who came to see his tour. He ended his speech, in triumph, saying, "We are so...lucky to be a part of this thing called country music."

Keith Urban took home the award for "Single of the Year" for his hit, "Blue Ain't Your Color." "Pitch Perfect " stars Brittany Snow and Ruby Rose presented the award to Urban, which marks his first win in the category. He beat out fellow nominees Little Big Town for "Better Man," Sam Hunt's "Body Like a Back Road," "Dirt on My Boots" by Jon Pardi and Miranda Lambert's single "Tin Man."

Newcomer Jon Pardi was presented the award for the "New Artist of the Year," and was humbled to hear his name. "Thank you to all my friends... you are awesome," he began his speech. "Thank you everybody, and here's to a great night of country!"

It was a great night that honored the legacy that country music has created over the past fifty-one years through the CMAs and its yearly award show.

Blake Shelton is this year's Sexiest Man Alive

Country superstar Blake Shelton might have made a name for himself as a coach on NBC's hit series, The Voice, but he's got another title now: 2017's Sexiest Man Alive!

So what went through his mind when he first heard the news? "That y'all must be running out of people," he tells PEOPLE in this week's cover story. "Like, wow, we're down to somebody who is somewhat symmetrical."

All kidding aside, Shelton, 41, credits his girlfriend of two years, Gwen Stefani, for convincing him to embrace the crown. "She goes, 'Listen to me, you're going to regret this for the rest of your life if you don't take this gift and just live in the moment," Shelton says of his

"You Make It Feel Like Christmas" duet partner.

But a bigger incentive for the singer was being able to stick it to his fellow coach (and 2013 Sexiest Man Alive) Adam Levine. "I can't wait to shove this up Adam's a--," Shelton adds. "As proud as I am and honored that you guys asked me, that's really the only thing I care about."

Gamecocks remain No. 2 after clinching OVC title

After holding off UT Martin in a defensive battle on Saturday, the Jacksonville State football team held onto the No. 2 spot in both polls on Monday.

The Gamecocks (9-1. 7-0 OVC) limited the Skyhawks to just 176 yards of total offense and only 48 rushing yards to pull off a 14-7 win and clinch their fourth-straight OVC title on Saturday.

It marks the secondstraight week that JSU has been ranked second in both the STATS FCS Top 25 and the FCS Coaches Poll.

JSU tied the OVC record for consecutive championships, joining Middle Tennessee (1956-59), Tennessee Tech (1958-61) and Eastern Kentucky (1981-84) as the only programs in league history with four titles in a row.

With their win over the Skyhawks on Saturday, the Gamecocks extended their OVC-record conference win streak to 31 games.

It is the longest active conference-win streak in all of Division I football.

It is the second-longest conference win streak in FCS history behind Duquesne's 39-straight Metro Atlantic wins from 1999-2006.

The latest rankings put the Gamecocks in the Top 10 for the 57th-straight week, a stretch that dates back to the final polls of the 2013 season.

JSU has been in the Top six in at least one of the polls for 39-straight weeks now, dating back to the first week of the 2015 season.

North Dakota State is the only other team to join JSU in both of those streaks. Defending national champion James Madison remained No. 1.

Central Arkansas is No. 3

in both, while Sam Houston State is fourth in the Coaches and fifth in the STATS.

NDSU is fourth in the STATS poll and sixth in the Coaches, while South Dakota State is fifth in the Coaches Poll and sixth in the STATS Top 25.

JSU is the only OVC team ranked in either poll, while Austin Peay is each receiving votes both polls.

The Gamecocks return home for a Thursday night showdown with Tennessee State this week.

The OVC Game of the Week will kick off at 6 p.m. CT and will be broadcast on ESPN3.

It will be Senior Night for the Gamecocks, who will honor their senior class prior to the game. The senior class has a combined record of 42-7 in four years, including an OVC record of 31-0.

JSU stomps Spiders to earn 2-0 start

Dominating.

That's the word that best describes the start to the 2017-18 season for the Jacksonville State Men's basketball squad.

Gamecocks The downed Tennessee Wesleyan 100-42 in the regular season opener on Friday night, marking the first time Jacksonville State scored 100 or more points in the regular season since a 112-94 victory over Shorter on Nov. 23, 2004.

JSU then followed that up with a 94-61 shellacking of the Richmond Spiders on the road on Monday.

The 33-point margin is good for the largest true-road victory in Jacksonville State's Division I history.

After scoring bursts from both teams left the game knotted at 15 nearly eight minutes into the contest, Jacksonville State took control of the game and never looked back, building a halftime lead of 50-29 that would grow as large as 35 in the second half.

The Spiders finished last season at 22-13 and made it to the quarterfinal round of the National Invitational Tournament, advancing past Alabama in the first round with a 71-64 victory in Coleman Coliseum.

Jacksonville State used a hot-shooting day and a dominant effort on the glass to romp past Richmond.

JSU knocked down 57 percent of their shots on the day to Richmond's 39 percent.

The Gamecocks collected 42 rebounds to the Spiders' 20, led by junior forward Christian Cunningham's 11.

Cunningham stuffed the stat sheet for JSU, tallying 16 points on 6-8 shooting, two steals and four blocks to go along with his 11 boards, marking the eighth career doubledouble for the Albuquerque, N. M. native.

After just tallying four points in the season opener, JSU star center Norbertas Giga rebounded in a big way against the Spiders.

Giga had 10 first half points to help the Gamecocks to their big halftime advantage, then finished with 18, which led all scorers, and five rebounds.

Marlon Hunter and Jamall Gregory joined Cunningham and Giga in double-figures with 11 and 10 respectively. Maurice Dunlap led the Gamecocks with four assists.

Tyrik Edwards pitched in nine points off the bench to help lead the Gamecocks to a 31-6 advantage in bench points.

The Richmond game is the first in a five game road trip for JSU. The Gamecocks take on Buffalo on Wednesday before a Thanksgiving Tournament in Chattanooga and a trip to Starkville to take on the Mississippi State Bulldogs on Nov. 26.

The Gamecocks return to action in Pete Mathews Coliseum on Thursday November 30, at 7 p.m. in a matchup against Alabama State.

Richardson, Haynes lead rifle against Morehead State

The nationallyranked Jacksonville State rifle team finished all squared with Ohio Valley Conference Morehead State at the Gamecock Rifle Range.

JSU and MSU both posted aggregate scores of 4645 and both clubs had identical marks in smallbore and air rifle as they accumulated a 2312 in smallbore and 2333 in air rifle.

Individually, two Gamecocks claimed the top-two spots individually. Junior Mekenna Richardson turned in the best overall mark with an 1169.

She edged teammate junior Trace Haynes by six marks. Richardson tallied a 589 in air rifle and a 580 in smallbore. Haynes finished with a 583 in smallbore and 580 in air rifle. JSU junior David Sink rounded out the top-five individual spots with an 1157.

Sink registered a 581 in smallbore and a 576 in air rifle. Senior Brandon Henson and sophomore Zach Schmidt carded top-10 finishes.

Henson had an aggregate score of 1155 for seventh place, while Schmidt was a mark back of him at 1154 for eighth.

Jax State returns to home action on Nov. 17-19, hosting the annual Gamecock Invitational.

Gamecocks can't hang late with 'Noles

Grant Benefield Chanty Sports Reporter

JSU women's basketball faced their first of two Power-five opponents on the 2017-18 docket Sunday, and fell 75-51 to the visiting 18thranked Florida State Seminoles.

Despite the loss, the Gamecocks (1-1) gave the 'Noles (2-0) all they could handle in the first half of play, and even led FSU 17-13 after the first period.

Much of the Gamecocks' first half success was thanks to a stellar shooting performance by guard Morri-Gretchen

The senior from South Lake, Texas, six-of-seven from beyond the arc and added a two-point basket for 20 first half points.

The Seminoles won the second period of play, but led by just three going into halftime.

Gamecock The offense fell silent in the second half, failing to score in the third period and shooting just fivefor-29 in the half.

And while JSU went cold, Florida State only got hotter in the second half, shooting 15-for-33 from the field to finish off the Gamecocks 75-

Senior forward Sylacauga, Shakayla Thomas ,led Florida State with 23 points.

Seminoles' Nicki Ekhomu and AJ Alix also reached double digits with 14 and 13 points, respectively.

Outside of Morrison's 20 points, no other Gamecocks reached double digits, with Rayven

Pearson having the next most with 7. Pearson led JSU on the boards with eight rebounds. Tyler Phelion and Tasha Magruder followed with seven and five, respectively.

Phelion dished four assists.

The Seminoles also led JSU in turnovers, with 11 to the Gamecocks' 17.

JSU women's basketball remains without a against an Atlantic Coast Conference opponent in the program's history, but they will have another chance this season when the Gamecocks travel to Clemson on December 17.
