A REVOLUTION. A service, provided in the year of the birth of our Lord, in the Church of St. Andrew's, by Rev. J. F. W. Weyant, of the City of Philadelphia, for the benefit of the poor and the infirm, was held on the 4th of May, the anniversary of the memorable day, in the year of the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America. The service was attended by a large number of the inhabitants of the city, and was conducted with great solemnity and devotion. The Rev. Mr. Weyant's address was a most appropriate and inspiring discourse, in which he called upon the people to remember the great and glorious events of the past, and to give earnest heed to the words of the prophets and apostles, that they might live to the glory of God.

J. F. W. Weyant.

ARTICLES OF THE REVOLUTION.

The Revolution, the glorious event that has given to the world so much, and made the name of America so illustrious, is the result of the efforts of many brave men, who, in the face of danger, self-sacrifice, and hardship, have fought for the freedom of their country, and for the principles of which they believed.

The brave men of the Revolution, who have fought for the freedom of their country, were not only men of courage, but men of faith and of principle. They were men who believed in the right and just cause, and who were willing to sacrifice their lives for its advancement.

The Revolution was not only a war of independence, but it was also a war of liberty. The men of the Revolution were men who believed in the freedom of the individual, and who were willing to fight for it, even at the cost of their own lives.

The Revolution was a war of principle, and it was fought for the principles of liberty, of equality, of justice, and of religion. The men of the Revolution were men who believed in the principles of the Declaration of Independence, and who were willing to fight for them, even at the cost of their own lives.

The Revolution was a war of liberty, and it was fought for the liberty of the individual. The men of the Revolution were men who believed in the right of every man to live as he pleased, and to pursue his own happiness, without interference from the government or from any other person.

The Revolution was a war of principle, and it was fought for the principles of the Declaration of Independence. The men of the Revolution were men who believed in the right of every man to live as he pleased, and to pursue his own happiness, without interference from the government or from any other person.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTION.

The American people are rapidly becoming conscious of the necessity of a constitutional amendment, and the demand for such an amendment is rapidly increasing. The question has been much debated in the press and in public meetings, and it is now generally conceded that a constitutional amendment is necessary to prevent the recurrence of the late sectional conflict.

It is believed that the proposed amendment will be an important step in the right direction, and will tend to promote harmony and concord among the people of the United States. It is hoped that the proposed amendment will be adopted without delay, and that it will be promptly put into operation.

Now the time has come to make a public appeal for a compromise, which is essential to the good of all. The American public, with its love of peace and prosperity, and its desire for progress and development, must rise to the occasion and act with wisdom and determination. The lines are drawn, and the stakes are high. A peaceful solution is within our grasp, but it requires the commitment of all parties to the principles of compromise, understanding, and collaboration.

The United States is facing a critical juncture in its history. The divisions that once united us are now tearing us apart. It is time to put aside our differences and work together for the common good. The sacrifices of our ancestors were made to ensure that we would never again experience the horrors of civil war. It is our duty to honor their legacy by seeking a peaceful resolution to this crisis.

In conclusion, I urge all Americans to join together in seeking a compromise that will ensure the lasting peace and prosperity of our nation. Let us remember the sacrifices made by those who came before us, and let us not let our differences divide us. Together, we can find a way forward that will benefit all.

Yours sincerely,

Rice Report. - The following note, which appeared in one of the Cuban newspapers, is interesting -

"The United States government has decided to purchase all the rice produced in the United States, and to pay for it in silver. The price has been fixed at $1.00 per hundred pounds, which is the highest price ever paid for rice in the United States. The rice will be shipped to the United States by the end of the month."

THE DAY OF JUDGMENT.

The day of judgment is coming, and it will be a day of reckoning for all. The time is approaching when we will all stand before the judgment seat of God. It is a time to prepare ourselves, to repent of our sins, and to turn to God for forgiveness. For those who have sinned, the day of judgment will bring eternal punishment. For those who have lived a good life, the day of judgment will bring eternal life in heaven.
