JULY
JACKSONVILLE REPUBLICAN

Vol. 17—No. 37

JACKSONVILLE, ALA., TUESDAY, JULY 5, 1853.
Whole No. 863

W. E. HALL, Proprietor.

JOSEPH W. HICKMAN, Editor.

Linotype, C. M. COBBIN.

Linn's Typographic Inks, W. COBOY & BRENNAN.

Foreign and Domestic

THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1853.

POETRY.

Miss B. E. C.

From the Poetry, Boston.

"In the bark of the aged oak,

The leaves rustling in the wind."

The sun is setting in the west,

And the shadows stretch across the plain."

"I memory's thus,

And the rilling brooks of song,

The song of Memory Placemaker."

"I pluck the rose of light,

And scatter it o'er Memory's plane."

"The song of Memory Placemaker,

And the rilling brooks of song."

"I memory's thus,

And the rilling brooks of song.

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song."

"The song of Memory Placemaker,

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song,

The song of Memory Placemaker,

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song."

"I memory's thus,

And the rilling brooks of song."

LOTIS, NORTH CAROLINA.

A garment which has been tried,

And the rilling brooks of song.

The song of Memory Placemaker,

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song.

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song."

"I memory's thus,

And the rilling brooks of song.

The song of Memory Placemaker,

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song.

The song of Memory Placemaker,

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song,

The song of Memory Placemaker,

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song."

"I memory's thus,

And the rilling brooks of song."

LOTIS, NORTH CAROLINA.

A garment which has been tried,

The song of Memory Placemaker,

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song.

"I memory's thus,

And the rilling brooks of song.

The song of Memory Placemaker,

The sackcloth of the world,

And the rilling brooks of song."

"I memory's thus,

And the rilling brooks of song.