THE LIVING

In the course of one of his visits to the neighboring settlements, he was struck by the beauty of the scenery and the pleasantness of the people. He determined to make a permanent settlement there. He purchased a piece of land and built a house. He soon learned the language and customs of the people, and became a prominent figure in the community.

He was a kind and benevolent man, and did much to promote the welfare of his neighbors. He was a leader in the community and a respected citizen. He passed away in his home, surrounded by his family and many friends.
LATER FROM HAVANA

The steamer H. M. S. "Hampshire" sailed from Havana, and it is expected to reach New York, on the 20th inst., with the news of the affair of the Maine.

In the morning of the 15th, the Maine, bearing the American flag, was anchored in the harbor of Havana, Cuba. Before noon the Spanish gunboat "Cuba," under the command of Capt. Jose Esquival, came alongside, and demanded the surrender of the Maine. The request was refused, and the Spanish gunboat opened fire upon the Maine, killing two of the crew, wounding nine, and destroying the bowsprit and masts. The Maine returned the fire, and in a short time the Spanish gunboat ceased firing and retired.

The Maine then proceeded to Havana, and the American minister, Mr. B. B. Abbot, was appointed by the captain as agent for the government in the affair. The Maine then proceeded to the harbor, and the Spanish gunboat "Cuba" returned to the harbor. The Maine then proceeded to the harbor, and the Spanish gunboat "Cuba" returned to the harbor.

LATER FROM EUROPE

An Increase of Tobacco Exports from Havana, Cuba.

The Havana government has increased the export of Havana tobacco from the island. The increase is due to the fact that the Cuban tobacco growers have increased their production. The increase in the production of tobacco has been due to the fact that the Cuban government has increased the amount of land devoted to the cultivation of tobacco. The increase in the production of tobacco has also been due to the fact that the Cuban government has increased the amount of land devoted to the cultivation of tobacco.

LOOK AT THIS.

THE undoubted success that this Picture has been so far, makes us prepared to announce that we shall, as early as possible, put it up in Steamers and on all principal Railways.

J. B. PERRY,

50 WAVERLY PLACE, N. Y.

Some important new experiments in the treatment of the Gastro-intestinal diseases, are in press at the office of the Franklin Literary & Scientific Institution. Dr. G. W. C. Fuller, a prominent medical officer to the Navy, has, in his address on the subject of the alimentary tract, pointed out the necessity of the introduction of fresh vegetables into the dietary of invalids suffering from dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and bowels. The following is an extract:

DR. FULLER'S REMARKS.

The alimentary tract, in its course, orues one to a large number of nervous and irritative disturbances, which may be relieved or diminished by the use of fresh vegetables.

FOOD OF VIRTUE.

The health and well-being of our country depend upon the quality of our food. It is the duty of every citizen to promote the production of good food, and to use it properly in his own household. The government, through its agencies, should encourage the cultivation of vegetables, fruits, and grains, and should furnish information to those who wish to improve their gardens and orchards.

GASTRIC JUICE.

The gastric juice is a very important fluid, and its properties are well known. It is secreted in the stomach, and is an essential part of the digestive process. It contains hydrochloric acid, pepsin, and other enzymes, which are necessary for the digestion of food. The health of the stomach depends upon the proper secretion of gastric juice. If the juice is insufficient, or if it is of a wrong quality, the digestion will be impaired, and disease may result.
