AUGUST
POETRY.

Autumn Shadows

One or two among the shadows
That grace the earth in passing,
Shall come again to greet the sun
That birthed them in the morning.

The leaves are falling fast and far
Upon the sunsetdancing cloud,
And all that once was green and fair
Is dimmed by winter's course.

Yet in the midst of all this change
A beauty still remains,
For nature's spirit bids us know
That spring shall come again.

The sun will rise, the birds will sing,
The flowers bloom once more,
And winter's shadow will be gone,
To make room for new rebirth.

The late autumn shadows fade
As day takes on its new blend,
And all that once was green and fair
Will soon be quickened by the sun.

Gentlemen:--Manufacturers generally report business good, though interesting, prices low.

It is reported that Mr. Dyon, pianoforte manufacturer, has taken a lease of a building on the west side of the street, near the corner, and will shortly open business there.

The French continue their usual round of business. The London Packet, which has just arrived, reports that there has been no serious disturbance.

The position of all parties in the country is still uniform.

The British Packet, in a letter from Moscow, says:-

"There has been in the Baltic no movement of importance of late. The present position of all parties in the country is still uniform."

The New York Packet, in a letter from Moscow, says:-

"There has been no movement of importance in the Baltic for some time. The present position of all parties is still uniform."

The French have not been heard from since the last report.

Lazarus.-The Russian shipping has also been very active, and has brought considerable freight from the Baltic. The French have not been heard from since the last report.

As the season advances, the French are said to be more active in their efforts to reach their own lands.
