Trafalgar.

The sensation attending the actual capture of the French and Spanish vessels, Napoleon's ships of war, at Trafalgar, has caused a great excitement in the British community, and has put an end to the war. The British and French vessels were in the English Channel, off the coast of the south of France, on the 21st of October, when the British fleet, under the command of Lord Nelson, opened fire on the French and Spanish vessels, and drove them off in confusion. The British fleet consisted of 44 ships of the line, armed with 1,100 guns, and commanded by Lord Nelson.
