Vol. 20.—No. 9.

JACKSONVILLE, ALA., TUESDAY FEBRUARY 19, 1856.

Whole No. 1002.

WAR IN KANSAS.

From a Northern correspondent, we learn that the Cabinet Shop, in Washington, is still under the constant surveillance of a large body of troops. They are on the alert to prevent any attempt to remove the President or the Cabinet from the city. The President is in profoundest melancholy, and it is believed that his views have been changed by the recent events. He has a large number of friends who are in close attendance upon him, and his visitors are not allowed to enter his presence without being subjected to severe scrutiny. The Cabinet is also under the same watchful eye, and it is feared that any attempt to remove them from the city will be met with instant resistance. The situation is very critical, and the President and his Cabinet are in imminent danger.

MARKET.

Plum, Tomato, and Cabbage Market.

Market Hill, the heart of the city, is thronged with customers, seeking to get the best of the day's produce. The plums are abundant, and the fruit of all kinds is in great demand. The tomatoes are large and red, and the cabbage is of a fine quality. The market is well supplied, and the prices are reasonable. The market is a popular place, and the people are busy with their purchases.

Washington, March 11.—The President, in his message to Congress, recommended as a matter of policy the annexation of the territory of New transgender to the Union, and the establishment of a federal government for the same. He pointed out the necessity of this step in the interest of national security and the welfare of the inhabitants of the new territory. The President further stated that the acquisition of New transgender would provide additional resources for the development of the territory and would enhance the prestige of the Union.

The Senate, in its consideration of the President's message, expressed its approval of the proposed annexation and federal government. The Senate also emphasized the importance of maintaining a strong federal presence in the new territory to ensure its stability and prosperity. A joint resolution was introduced to authorize the acquisition and establishment of the federal government, which was passed by both houses of Congress and sent to the President for his approval.

The House of Representatives, on its part, welcomed the President's proposal and endorsed the Senate's resolution. The Speaker of the House, in his remarks, underscored the significance of the annexation and federal government for the future of the Union. He highlighted the need for a strong federal presence in the new territory to safeguard its interests and ensure its growth. The resolution was swiftly passed by the House and sent to the President.

The President, in his subsequent address to the nation, thanked Congress for its support and emphasized the unity and importance of the Union. He also underscored the need for continued cooperation and support from all segments of the Union to realize the goals set forth in thePresident's message. The President's speech was met with widespread acclaim and further solidified his position as a leading figure in the Union.

In conclusion, the annexation of New transgender and establishment of a federal government are significant steps forward in the Union's development. They represent a commitment to the welfare and prosperity of the new territory and the continued growth and stability of the Union as a whole. The President's proposal, the Senate's resolution, and the House's endorsement are indicative of the strong support and cooperation that will be necessary to ensure the success of these initiatives.

WAR IN KANSAS.

I N Clark County the excitement was wild. The raiders were not in Kansas, but their presence was felt throughout the territory. The counties of Clark, Allen, and Brown were all in a state of commotion. The citizens were prepared for a possible conflict, and the state militia was called out to maintain order.

MARRIAGE.

J. M. and N. L., of Clark County, were married on the 22nd of the month. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. H. Smith, of the Presbyterian Church, and the couple were afterward entertained at a sumptuous dinner by the bridegroom's family.

FOUNT.

I N the town of Clark, the Ascension of Our Lord was celebrated with great religious observance. The congregation assembled early in the morning at the church, and the service was conducted by Rev. W. H. Davis, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The sermon was delivered by Rev. J. H. Smith, of the Baptist Church, and was a most inspiring and convincing discourse.
