MISSISSIPPI ELECTION.

From MS., Oct. 16.
The state of Mississippi is not divided into counties, but consists of over 200 counties, with about 1,000 counties in all. The state has a population of over 3 million, with about 150,000 Negroes. The state is divided into several districts, each with a representative in the state legislature. The state has a constitution dating back to 1817, which is still in force. The state has a unicameral legislature, with 50 senators and 50 representatives. The governor is elected by the people, and serves a term of four years. The state has a Supreme Court, which is composed of a chief justice and six associate justices. The state is known for its cotton production, which is considered one of the largest in the country. The state is also known for its history, which includes the Civil War and Reconstruction. The state has a rich cultural heritage, with many historic sites and landmarks.
