NEW YEAR'S ADDRESS, OF THE CARRIAGE OF THE Jacksonville Republican,
January 1st, 1869.

In the year of our Lord 1869, the Jacksonville Republican is in full career. It is the organ of the People, and as such, it will continue to be. It is a daily paper, and as such, it will continue to be.

The Jacksonville Republican.

JACKSONVILLE, JANUARY 3, 1858.

The correspondence of the London Cyclops telegrams from Washington to the United States, is now so complete that the people of the United States will be enabled to form a just and accurate judgment of the political affairs of the country. The Cyclops, in its most recent dispatches, has announced that the people of the United States are not only in favor of the Union, but are determined to maintain it, and that they will use all means to that end. The Cyclops has also announced that the people of the United States are determined to maintain the Union, and that they will use all means to that end.

A CONTRAST.

An old native asserts there is no part of the world more attractive to the average of the human race than the South. He claims that the South has the most beautiful scenery, the most sweet and inviting climate, the most fertile soil, the most civilized people, and the most desirable homes.

The South is the land of the South. It is the land of the South's history, its literature, its music, and its art. The South is the land of the South's unique culture, which has developed over the centuries in response to the challenges of its physical environment and its social and political institutions.

The committee on military affairs, of the House of Representatives, is now in session, and is considering a bill to authorizing the President to call out the militia of the United States to suppress insurrections, to repel invasion, and to enforce the laws of the Union. This bill is the result of the action of Congress in the late session, and it is the belief of the committee that it will be necessary to call out the militia of the United States for the purpose of suppressing insurrections, and for enforcing the laws of the Union. The committee is of the opinion that the bill is necessary, and it is the belief of the committee that it will be necessary to call out the militia of the United States for the purpose of suppressing insurrections, and for enforcing the laws of the Union.
