Our Circuit Court. In session, Hon. W. L. Whitlock, presiding, H. L. Stevenson, Solicitor, J. W. Williams, Sheriff, E. Goode, D. Clark.

Some very heavy and complicated cases on the civil docket were decided last week. The criminal docket was taken up on Monday and continued until Thursday evening.

The Grand Jury adjourned on Thursday, after a session of one week, and the Solicitor reports crime greatly on the decrease, only one true bill having been found against any freedman, and that for assault on another freedman.

The civil docket was again taken up on Thursday evening, and court will adjourn on Saturday.

Judge Whitlock has discharged his duties in an able, dignified and impartial manner, highly satisfactory to the bar, litigants and the public generally.

In fact, he has won golden opinions in our community. The Solicitor and other officers of Court have also acquitted themselves in a manner highly creditable and satisfactory.

We are requested by Mr. Robert Tanner, Tax Collector of Calhoun County, to tender his hearty and sincere thanks to the citizens of Calhoun County, for their prompt attendance at his appointments, punctual payment of taxes, and uniform kind, respectful and gentlemanly treatment of himself, as a collecting officer.

We understand that only about twenty-five dollars of State and County tax remain unpaid. We question if this can be beat in the State.

Remember that Monday next is the first regular meeting at Jacksonville of the Agricultural & Manufacturing Association of Calhoun County.

New Store.—E. H. Seymour has just opened a fine stock of New Goods at Crow's Corner. Mr. S. is desirous of doing a large business on the principle of quick sales and short profits.

He has had considerable experience in the business, and manifested good taste in the selection of his present stock. We have passed through his store and find many articles marked at very low figures in comparison with the quality.

Persons wishing to purchase would do well to give him a call, examine his goods and learn his prices.

New Livery Stable.—Messrs. Mattison & Smith have opened a Livery Stable at the stage stand of Gen. W. O. Hutchinson, west side of main street and south of the square.

These gentlemen have entered into the business with an energy and enterprise which gives assurance to the public that the business will be conducted in a prompt and correct manner, and in a spirit of accommodation which entitles them to a liberal patronage, while their establishment is a great convenience to the public.

By reference to the advertisement of Mr. F. Sutton, it will be seen that he designs shortly to open a new and more extensive establishment, modeled after the European plan.

We need only to repeat what we have said before, that Mr. Sutton understands his business thoroughly, and will leave no effort unused for the accommodation of his patrons and the public.

The Washington correspondent of the Montgomery Advertiser, Mar. 27, says: "Every thing here forbodes the speedy dissolution of the Radical Party, and the formation of a new and more Conservative one."

See notice of sale of Personal Property on the 24 inst. by W. T. Alexander, Administrator.

We invite the attention of our Lady friends, (and we know they are numerous,) to the advertisement of Mrs. E. Goode, who is now receiving, and will continue to receive until 15th April, a fine assortment of seasonable and fashionable Millinery Goods.

The special attention of the citizens of Alexandria and surrounding country is called to the advertisement of Messrs. Green & Co. These experienced, fair dealing, energetic and accommodating merchants, have received the largest stock of seasonable and fashionable goods they have ever purchased, and offer unusual inducements to cash purchasers.

What Bulldozer is Doing at Washington. We do not attach much importance to our Express Governor, and we believe he is pretty well "played out" everywhere, but as some of our readers may be curious to know what rascality he is fomenting in Washington, we copy from the Louisville Courier-Journal's special of the 23d:

Governor Bullock, of Georgia, is here, working actively with the intense Radical faction in that State, and have Congress remain it to a territorial condition. Of course, Bullock is to be the head with unlimited power of appointment and removal.

Another point he is striving for, is to be empowered to declare martial law over any portion of the State, so as to run the State machine after the Brownian style. The Georgia bill is set for Thursday—It is certain that that portion of the bill declaring the acts of the Late Georgia Legislature inoperative, null and void, will be embraced in the new one to be submitted by the Reconstruction Committee.

Public Meeting in Shelby County. SPEECH OF EX-GOVERNOR PARSONS. From the Shelby County Guide.

Gov. Parsons, of Talladega, paid our town a visit on Wednesday. He is enjoying his usual good health. After the adjournment of court at 12 o'clock the Governor addressed a large and attentive audience, composed of the citizens of Shelby and neighboring counties.

Among the distinguished gentlemen present were Hon. Jon T. Hefflin and James W. Lapsley, Esq., of Selma; Hon. Chas. Pelham, Judge of the Circuit Court, Col. A. W. Bowie, Col. Taul Bradford, of Talladega; Col. S. W. Earnest and Col. Alberto Martin, of Jefferson; Hon. N. B. Mardis, A. M. Elliott, Circuit Clerk, A. A. Sterrett, D. B. Lewis, J. T. Leeper and Paul H. Lewis, Esqrs., and Col. John W. Lapsley of Shelby.

It was refreshing to hear a speech so truly conservative in character; so full of good counsel and wholesome influence. It was entirely free from those abusive and inflammatory epithets which often spoil the addresses of too many eminent men. He advised the people to lay aside the prejudices growing out of past political differences; to cultivate a spirit of peace and good order; to unite in obedience to the laws, and in support of the officers appointed to execute them.

While he could not endorse the political views of President Grant and the party in power, he felt confident that the President, though greatly beset by the extreme radicals, would administer the government with fidelity and according to a policy of sound conservatism.

This speech was well received, and at its close, the following resolution, offered by Col. John W. Lapsley and seconded by W. Roberts, was unanimously adopted by the meeting:

Resolved, That we, citizens of the county of Shelby and other counties, here assembled, pledge ourselves to the President of the United States, to sustain these high officers, and all others charged with the enforcement of the laws, in the full exercise of all their lawful authority, for the punishment of crime, and for the preservation and maintenance of peace, good order, and general and individual security; and to secure to every citizen and sojourner his just and lawful rights and immunities.

THE ABSORBING UNITED STATES MAELSHALL.—Some time ago we gave an account of the mysterious disappearance of United States Marshal Dickson from Atlanta, and that the amount of defalcation would probably reach the neighborhood of fifty or sixty thousand dollars. Opinions varied at the time as to whether he had taken the money with him in his flight, had loaned it to parties who failed to come to time, or had sunk it in unfortunate speculations.

From the Macon Journal & Messenger, of the 23d, we learn that he, in reality, absconded with comparatively empty pockets. He has been running a turpentine plantation for three years past, and that's where the Government funds have gone. The theory upon which our belief is based, is that he had gone on appropriating money to make a showing for it, and then, not daring to face the trial, he fled. No one knows certainly, of course, how much money he had with him, but the impression is general among parties who have a good stand-point for finding out things, that the theory in question is correct.

"The Man on Horseback." The New York Express furnishes this pleasant picture: The present military complexion of things are not a pleasant scene in platoon for a Republic. It is: 1st. A Military President.

2. A Military family with the President. 3. A Military Executive Mahsoob. 4th. A Military Guard around the White House.

5th. Then comes General Sherman in command of the U. S. Armies, and announces to the country the members of his staff. And who are they? Who but men controlling the head of every bureau attached to the War Department, completely swallowing up the whole Department. The Adjutant General, Inspector General, Quartermaster General, Commissary General, Surgeon General, Paymaster General, Judge Advocate General, Chief of Engineers, and the Chief of Ordnance, all heretofore the subordinate of the Secretary of War, are now declared to be but the staff officers of the General commanding the Army.

6th. A Military Secretary of War, with military sympathies all around. 7th. Ten States under Military rule. 8th. Georgia out in the cold. Ditto Louisiana, Virginia, Texas and Mississippi. 9th. Arkansas under sealawag Militia.

If this is Reconstruction, it is a failure. If it is Republicanism, it is a greater failure—but if it is Military Despotism, then we can understand it. We but discharge a simple duty to our countrymen when we entreat them to watch, and, as far as they can, arrest these innovations upon the Constitution of the country and the examples of the fathers.

Add to the above: 10th. A Chief-of-Staff, by whom all messages are sent by Grant to Congress. The pious Schenck, observed, he would like to know "what in the hell the President of the United States had to do with a Chief of Staff. So would we!

THE PRESIDENT GENERAL.—Many men have been disappointed in Gen. Grant. Among them Mr. Voorhees, a Democratic Congressman from Indiana. From a recent speech to his constituents, we extract as follows:

"Gen. Grant is not a great man in civil affairs. He is a man of arbitrary power; he has read but little, and possesses very limited information upon civil affairs, consequently there is more danger on that account. The reasons which he gives in favor of the ratification of negro suffrage will arouse you. He says unless you ratify it the question will continue to be agitated. I suppose if a man wanted my house I had better give it to him for fear he would burn it."

A Notable Coincidence. Andrew Johnson, in his speech at Greenville, referring to the tyranny of the Radical majority in Congress said: "The people had better have a prince or a king over them than an arbitrary body enacting laws and measures so unwarranted and terrible in character."

Senator Sprague, one of the impeaching Senators, was, at the very same time, making a speech in the Senate, on the same subject. He used this language: "If I have to submit myself to any tyranny, I prefer the tyranny of one man with some humanity in him, and occupying a responsible position, to that of an irresponsible body like the Senate." Know, Daily Press & Herald.

A spring wagon has been invented by a resident in Magsville, Ky., which he proposes to run without any kind of animal or steam power. He has already perfected a small model, which run up or down hill very rapidly. The power is received from an immense coil of steel spring, which will run for half an hour without being wound up. In going up hill, the spring exhausts itself, but in going down hill winds itself up. The inventor claims that he can carry heavy loads over any ordinary road.

A young man in Texas, was courted a daughter of Mrs. Roach.—The mother objected to his visits, and he shot and killed her, but in such a secret manner that it would never have been known who committed the deed, but that a piece of news paper, which had been used as the "wadding" in the pistol was picked up, scorched and blackened, near the murdered lady.—In the pocket of the murderer's coat was found a newspaper which was folded together one corner of the folded package was torn off, and left a hole near the center of the sheet. The strip picked up exactly fitted this place, so perfectly indeed did it, that when both pieces were spread out in their proper places the matter could be read with ease.—Upon this evidence Judge Lynch pronounced sentence and his officers executed his edicts by instant hanging.

It is reported in New York that Sheridan had the good taste to decline the appointment to the command in Louisiana, where he is so universally detested.

Alexander T. Stewart clears one thousand dollars a day, Sundays excepted, all the year round. Cornelius Vanderbilt pleads guilty to twice that sum, while William B. Astor rates his income at four thousand three hundred and thirty dollars. Sleeping or waking, the latter named gentleman finds a three dollar bill dropping in to his hat every minute of the twenty-four hours.

Death of a Remarkable Man.—Jacob Sargent, ninety-seven years old, died at New York last week, and left a property valued at ten millions of dollars. He was a Creole Frenchman, but was born in the United States. He lived by rule and was very abstemious, drinking nothing but water. He used to say that he had a secret of longevity which he bought of a gypsy woman when he was a sailor and he thought he should live to be a hundred. For many years he spent his winters in Mississippi, but when the winter broke out he went to New York, where he remained until his death.

One of the most disgusted Jacobins in Washington is Schenck, of Ohio.—Grant shows a disposition to give to his own personal friends all the offices in Schenck's district.

Science advances with a kind of rhythmic flow. Sometimes the emphasis of discovery falls upon Astronomy; sometimes upon Geology, sometimes upon Chemistry. One day we are startled by the "optic tube," next by the microscopic glass. Just now the town is agog over H. P. Dancy's "Evolutionary Theory," whose surprising virtues are exciting expressions of delight from Savans as well as profaneites.

She admonished her children to meet her in heaven, where parting would be no more.

War Probabilities in Europe.

From the New York Herald, 31st ult. A cable dispatch from Paris says that French officers and privates on leave of absence have been ordered to rejoin their regiments on the 1st of April. A few days ago we had a cable dispatch quite as startling as this one, being that the Emperor of the French had formally asked an explanation from the government of King William of Prussia regarding the mobilization of Prussia troops close to the French frontier.

It is, however, not all. It is only a few weeks since the French Press, official and semi-official, went wild because the Belgian Legislature refused to sanction a bill of the Great Luxembourg and the Eastern of France Railway, denouncing Belgium, making all manner of threats quite unworthy of a big boy when speaking to a small one, and more than insinuating that all this Belgian stubbornness was the result of Prussian, or rather, to speak more particularly, of Bismarck dictation.

In ordinary circumstances all this might be allowed to pass as of comparatively trifling importance. We have been so used to the cry of "war" in this particular direction when there was no war that we have ceased to be alarmed by the cry. The circumstances, however, are not ordinary. The condition of Europe at the present moment, and indeed for some time past in spite of the manifest dread of open war, is of the most combustible character possible. The mine is ready, the powder is abundant, the train is laid, and it only requires the application of the match to produce such a conflagration as Europe never saw before. It is not the war spirit which is doubted; it is the match which is dreaded. Such is the situation Europe was never so armed, was never so convinced that war was coming, and was never so fearful that war should come. The expenses for war purposes on the part of the European nations, one and all, larger and smaller, have been for many years past so heavy that it is universally felt that actual war if it would only take the place of possible or rather probable war, would be a positive relief.

The situation is aggravated by the fact that Napoleon, who has for so many years been the virtual arbiter of Europe, is beginning to be convinced that something must be done if he would maintain his proud position—a position which more than anything else, has reconciled the French people to this arbitrary rule. Napoleon has not had for some years any great success. Since his famous campaign against Austria he has been rather against him. The Mexican blunder, the Luxembourg defeat, the steady and determined policy of Bismarck, have all been against him. Nor has this Spanish revolution made matters better. It now begins to be patent to all the world that English gold, as in days gone by, is more powerful than French diplomacy. The probable election of Montpensier to the Spanish throne, as matters now stand a heavy blow to Napoleonic pretensions. The independent attitude of Belgium in this railway matter is scarcely less irritating. This last has made him feel how easy it might be to unite Prussia and Great Britain against him.

All these things taken into account only encourage the belief entertained by many that a vigorous dash against Prussia and German pretensions generally would be popular all over France. The French army is in fine condition. It is magnificently equipped. It pants for trial. It is impatient to measure its strength with the proud army of Prussia. There is, we observe, a disposition in some quarters to believe that a collision is impending between Russia and Prussia. No existing rumor has less foundation in fact. Prussia and Austria are as yet natural enemies. It is not to the interest of Prussia that she should ally herself with Austria in the arms of France; and Count Bismarck is not the man to make so egregious a blunder. The shock of arms may not be immediate; but the shock of arms is more than possible in the early future, and a war between France and Prussia might be a blessing to Europe and the world.

SEE THE DANGER.—Some of the Radical papers have just succeeded in discovering the great danger to liberty in a "Supreme Senate." It is indeed a heavy burden for the burr-tailed tangle of Constitutional freedom; but they are able to see this only since they have discovered that the Senate is as an "obstacle" to a re-partition of the spoils. That discovery has sharpened their mental optics wonderfully. Anything that threatens their interest invests a Constitutional dogma with great clearness and importance. Now they see this problem: Given a President managed by a Supreme Senate—controlled in its turn by a supreme party caucus, worked by New England triumvirate of Radical Senators—who is President? what is the Senate?—and what is the Government? The President is a puppet—the Senate the wire that sets him in motion—the caucus is the crank; and the three wise men from the East are the performers who turn it. It is a very nice and ingenious arrangement—but what would you call it?

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, Calhoun County, Court of Probate for Calhoun County, March the 15th, A. D. 1869.

WHEREAS, on the 17th day of February, 1869, John A. Spaulding, in right of his wife, Paralee A. Spaulding, and the said Paralee A. Spaulding, late Paralee A. Phillips, and late the wife of Charles F. Phillips, deceased, and now the wife of the said John A. Spaulding, filed in said court their petition in writing, representing among other things, that the said Charles F. Phillips died in then said county of Calhoun, intestate, on the day of — 1859, and that on the day of — 1859, one Wm. Phillips, was by the court of said county appointed and qualified as the administrator of the Estate of said decedent, and under an Order of this Court, the said Wm. Phillips, as such administrator, proceeded to settle said decedent, and property of the Estate of said decedent, collected the debts due intestate's estate; and he further alleged, that the said Wm. Phillips, as administrator as aforesaid, has never made settlement and distribution of said Estate; and further, that the said Wm. Phillips has removed and he has been in the State of Texas; and they now appear in court, and pray that their said petition be heard, and that an order be made in the present term of this court, and it appearing that the notice required by Law in such cases had been given by publication in the Jacksonville Republican, a news paper printed and published in said county, for three successive weeks prior to the filing of this petition, and that the said Wm. Phillips, as administrator as aforesaid, to be and appear at this term of the court, and defend against said petition if he thought proper, or to settle said Estate, and to make a settlement of said Estate, and to file his account and vouchers for a settlement of said Estate; and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the court, that the allegations set forth in said petition are true. Thereupon the court proceeded to state an account between said administrator and said Estate, for settlement of said Estate from such materials or information as presented to the court. It is therefore ordered by the court, that the 22nd day of April, 1869 be set for examining, auditing, and settling said account; (if necessary) so that the said Wm. Phillips, as administrator as aforesaid, will be notified of the time of the settlement of said Estate, and notice of the same be given by publication in the Jacksonville Republican, a news paper printed and published in said county, for three successive weeks prior to said day; for the said Wm. Phillips, Phillips, as administrator as aforesaid, and all other persons concerned, to be and appear at the court house of said county on said 22nd day of April, 1869, and show cause, if any they have, why the account so stated, as aforesaid, by the court, between the said Wm. Phillips, as administrator as aforesaid, and said Estate, should not be examined, audited, passed and allowed, &c as provided by Law. A. WOODS, Judge of Probate. March 29, 1869. W. R. HILL, W. R. THE LIVER.
THE SYMPTOMS OF LIVER COMPLAINT, are understanding and pain in the stomach. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach
is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, based in general, on a morbid alteration in the bile. The head is sometimes with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, on intermittent days, accompanied with painful sensations of having left undone some thing which ought to have been done. Often,
a complaint of weakness,
dizziness, and low spirits
is observed, and sometimes some of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the Liver
is generally the organ most involved. Care of the Liver with Simmons' Regulator and all
will be well.

the Throat, Skin of Bones," are treated with unparalleled success.

THE LIVER.
THE SYMPTOMS OF LIVER COMPLAINT, are understanding and pain in the stomach. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder,
and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach
is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, based in general, on a morbid
alteration in the bile. The head is sometimes
with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, on intermittent days, accompanied with pain-
thing which ought to have been done. Often,
a complaint of weakness,
dizziness, and low spirits
is observed, and sometimes some of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the Liver
is generally the organ most involved. Care
of the Liver with Simmons' Regulator and all
will be well.

A eminent agricultural writer has said that a good farmer should know how to make heavy land lighter, and light land heavier—gold land lighter, and hot land colder. He that knows these things is a farmer, and he who does not know them, is no farmer.

THE MOST POPULAR MEDICINE EXTANT.

Ferry Davis' Pain Killer

This became an article of commerce, which no medicine ever before. It is as much an item in every bill of goods sent to the country merchants as tea, coffee, or sugar.
This speaks volumes in its favor.
The good people should always keep by them a good preparation, and
DAVIS' PAIN KILLER
is that preparation. Don't be deceived by the many worthless stuffs offered, such as "King of Pain," "Pain Diner," and the like. Davis' Pain Killer is known to be good.
Solely sold by all Druggists.

The hope we expressed last week that the fruit crop would escape destruction by frost, has since been dashed by the cold weather, from Monday till Wednesday morning last.

Mrs. O. H. Nisbet, as will be seen by reference to her advertisement in another column, has commenced the millinery business at her residence, one block from Town Square.

A very destructive fire occurred at Madison, Georgia, on Thursday the 5th inst., by which upwards of forty houses were destroyed, including nineteen of the twenty stores in the place.

A VALUABLE AND INTERESTING BOOK. In another column we publish the notice, by the local Agent for this County, Mr. B. G. McClellan, of a new work, which will shortly be out.

Mr. McClellan, is a citizen of our County, a competent and reliable Agent, and will doubtless pretty thoroughly canvass the county, with a specimen copy of the work, which makes it unnecessary for us to say more in this notice.

We invite attention to the Prospectus in another column, of the Montgomery Daily & Weekly Mail, which will shortly appear in a new dress and much improved.

We do not suppose we could say anything to add to the reputation of this widely known, able and sterling democratic paper, so justly popular for its fearless exposition of party corruption, and able advocacy of correct political principles.

FURNITURE.—While in Rome, on Monday last we stepped into the Furniture Warehouse of Mr. C. W. Wells, of that place, and were shown by the gentlemanly and polite Proprietor, a great variety of beautiful and fashionable Furniture, embracing almost every description that could be named or needed.

The attention of the travelling public is invited to the notice of E. J. Woolm & Co. who will run a regular Hack Line in future, on Tuesdays and Fridays, to various points in Alabama and Georgia.

Cooking Stoves.—We stepped into the Hinware Manufactory of Messrs. Prickett & Dean the other day, where we saw the largest, finest and most varied assortment of Cooking Stoves ever brought to this place, embracing the latest and most approved inventions.

er prices. No need now to go farther for Cooking Stoves, and every family ought to have one.

The School teacher's Institute will meet at Cross Plains on Saturday the 1st day of May next. The members of the Institute, and friends of education generally are requested to attend.

A Dead-lock in Indiana.

There is a dead-lock in the Indiana Legislature. It will be remembered that the Democrats resigned to prevent action on the proposed fifteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States.

Very destructive fire occurred at Madison, Georgia, on Thursday the 5th inst., by which upwards of forty houses were destroyed, including nineteen of the twenty stores in the place.

to govern the country without the assistance of the United States, as a preliminary step to bringing in American troops. This rumor is gaining strength each time it is repeated, and some of the Southern journals declare that certain officers are put in command of troops in the South because of their views on this Mexican matter.

The Boy who Wouldn't Tell a Lie

SOME days after one of the English steamers had left Liverpool, not long ago, a bright looking boy, about eight years old, was found aboard, who had been concealed in the vessel since she left port, which by the way is quite a common occurrence.

To Keep Stoves and Ranges Bright.—Make a weak alum water and mix your brush with it. It will keep the stoves bright and clean.

Letter from Mayor Hall of New York, on Gift Enterprises, etc.

To the Press of the United States.—I beg to caution strangers against New York circulars and prospectuses of tick-ets, shares and chances in co-operative unions or gift enterprises or dollar stores, or in any other possible scheme whereby property or the value promised is greater than the price asked to be paid.

How to Dry Cotton Yarn.—Take one pound of logwood, steeped in water until the whole coloring matter is extracted, then take about one-half gallon of this liquor and dissolve in it one ounce of soda ash and the same quantity of alum.

FROM PENNSYLVANIA.—Philadelphia, April 8.—Twice, who was convicted of the murder of his wife's mother, and whose execution was fixed for to-day, was found dead in his cell this morning.

FROM CALIFORNIA.—San Francisco, April 6.—The Yellow Jacket Mine, Gold Hill, Nevada, took fire at 1 o'clock this morning. The fire extended to the Keokuk and Crown-point Mines. Eleven bodies have been removed and others are seen at the bottom of the Keokuk shaft, but it is impossible to remove them in consequence of the heat.

FROM WASHINGTON.—Washington, April 8.—SENATE.—Morton introduced a resolution making the adoption of the 15th amendment a condition precedent to the admission of representatives from Virginia, Mississippi and Texas.

part, leaving the plants just thick enough to crowd each other when fully grown, at which time it is also beneficial to scrape the soil away from them. Do not cultivate very deep, but keep the surface mellow, that it may easily absorb moisture.

The English patent harness blacking, which is commended for keeping leather soft and giving it a good polish, is made by dissolving together, over a slow fire, three ounces of turpentine, two ounces of white wax, then add one ounce of ivory-black and one drachm of indigo, to be well pulverized and mixed.

The hope we expressed last week that the fruit crop would escape destruction by frost, has since been dashed by the cold weather, from Monday till Wednesday morning last.

Mrs. O. H. Nisbet, as will be seen by reference to her advertisement in another column, has commenced the millinery business at her residence, one block from Town.

A very destructive fire occurred at Moulton, Georgia, on Thursday the 5th inst., by which upwards of forty houses were destroyed, including nineteen of the twenty stores in the place.

A VALUABLE AND INTERESTING BOOK. In another column we publish the notice, by the local Agent for this County, Mr. B. G. McClellan, of a new work, which will shortly be out, entitled, "White Supremacy and Negro Subordination," by J. H. Vanverie, M. D.

We invite attention to the Prospectus in another column, of the Montgomery Daily & Weekly Mail, which will shortly appear in a new dress and much improved.

We do not suppose we could say anything to add to the reputation of this widely known, able and sterling democratic paper, so justly popular for its fearless exposition of party corruption, and able advocacy of correct political principles.

Furniture.—While in Rome, on Monday last we stepped into the Furniture Warehouse of Mr. C. W. Wills, of that place, and were shown by the proprietor and polite Proprietor, a great variety of beautiful and fashionable Furniture, embracing almost every description that could be named or recorded.

The attention of the travelling public is invited to the notice of E. J. Woolm & Co. who will run a regular Hack Line in future, on Tuesdays and Fridays, to various points in Alabama and Georgia.

Cooking Stoves.—We stepped into the Tinware Manufactory of Messrs. Privett & Bond the other day, where we saw the largest, finest and most varied assortment of Cooking Stoves ever brought to this place, embracing the latest and most approved inventions.

HIRAM M. MYANS, Secy. A Dead-Back in Indiana.

There is a dead-lock in the Indiana Legislature. It will be remembered that the Democrats resigned to prevent action on the proposed fifteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States.

Beginning to See N. Some of the Democratic papers of the North seem to comprehend the true condition of public affairs and speak accordingly.

Radical leaders already talk about establishing an Empire without knowing how to raise the means to carry on a Republic.

A Dusky Official Aids His Dignity on the Floor of the Senate. Lieutenant-Governor Dunn, (formerly of Louisiana), was on the floor of the Senate and House, and was well received by several of the Senators and members.

FROM CALIFORNIA. San Francisco, April 6.—The Yellow Jacket Mine, Gold Hill, Nevada, took fire at 1 o'clock this morning.

FROM PENNSYLVANIA. Philadelphia, April 8.—Twice, who was convicted of the murder of his wife's mother, and whose execution was fixed for to-day, was found dead in his cell this morning.

How to Grow Onions.—A good preparatory crop is peas, the ground to be frequently plowed after removing the crop, or more manure may be added.

President James Z. of Mexico, is holding secret conferences with the United States Minister, and suspicion is that he is about to declare his inability to govern the country without the assistance of the United States.

The English patent harness lacking, which is commented for keeping leather soft and giving it a good polish, is made by dissolving together, over a slow fire, three ounces of turpentine, two ounces of white wax, then add one ounce of ivory-black and one drachm of indigo, to be well pulverized and mixed.

To Keep Spices and Herbs Bright.—Make a weak alum water and mix your British luster with it; put two spoonfuls to a gill of alum water; let the spices be cold, and brush it with the mixture, then take a dry brush and rub the mixture over the spices.

Letter from Mayor Hall of New York, on Gift Enterprises, etc. New York, March 27, 1869.

To the Press of the United States. I beg to caution strangers against New York circulars and prospectuses of tickets, shares and enterprises in cooperative unions or gift enterprises or dollar stores, or in any other possible scheme whereby property or the value promised is greater than the price asked to be paid.

How to Dye Cotton Yarn a Deep Blue.—Take one pound of logwood-chipped fine, boil it in a sufficient quantity of water until the whole coloring matter is extracted; then take about one-half gallon of this liquor and dissolve in it one ounce of verdigris and the same quantity of alum.

THANKING those who have entrusted us with their patronage heretofore, we now announce to them and the public our continuance of the Cotton Factoring and Commission Business.

Hoping by energy, promptness and a strict observance of the instructions, together with increased facilities and enlarged experience, to be able to protect and advance the interest of those who may favor us with their patronage.

All orders promptly executed with care and economy.

Three days had elapsed since the terrible night on which this wretched prisoner had been torn from his hearth and sent to a dungeon. On the morning of the fourth day he was summoned before the judges, and promptly charged with the murder of Schieb. He could only reply by feeble gestures and looks of voiceless agony.

Foremost amongst his accusers was his old enemy, De Koepf, who swore that on the night of the murder he had seen the prisoner flying on horseback from the place where the Banerret's body had been discovered.

Mathilde led at the witness, and she well understood that implacable hatred and disappointed passion had made him the accuser of her father, but held her peace, and prayed.

Additional evidence was then produced to show that De Felis was in another person could have been concerned in the assassination.

For the defense, Mathilde swore that on the night of the murder her father, pressed by business, had remained at home; and further, that by no possibility could he have gone abroad without her knowledge.

Under the pressure of such conflicting testimony the judicial mind wavered, and finally referred the question of the prisoner's guilt or innocence to the verdict of the ordeal.

Mathilde was overjoyed at the result, and, rising in the midst of the court,

MATHILDE DE FELLIS,

A Legend of Berne.

BY GEORGE FOSTER.

About the beginning of the fourteenth century there lived, in the good city of Berne, two eminent citizens, named Jorg de Felis and Pierre de Koepf. They had known each other from childhood, and were attached by the strongest ties of friendship.

But political differences subsequently tended to estrange them; time only seemed to widen the breach, and ultimately they learned to regard each other with a jealousy which can only be explained by assuming that the politics of that period appealed more to the heart and less to the head than ours of to-day.

About twelve years after the first rupture of their friendship, Mathilde, the daughter of Jorg de Felis, a fascinating and accomplished maiden, who inherited much of her mother's gentleness, with a strong infusion of her father's determination, whilst dancing at a civic revelry, attracted the eye of Pierre de Koepf, and captivated his heart.

He lost no time in declaring his passion, and making her an offer of his hand and ample fortune; but Mathilde finally rejected his suit, and referred him for explanation to her father, from whom he received a rough reception, and an unequivocal repudiation of his pretensions.

Wounded in pride and sore at heart, the passionate De Koepf returned home, and sat down to plot the ruin of De Felis and his daughter.

One morning the citizens of Berne were horrified on hearing that a couple of peasants had discovered the mangled body of Schieb, the Banerret, lying outside the walls.

Thither they flocked in crowds, and many of them were seized with fits, whilst gazing on one whom they had known so long. The Banerret's head had been cloven in two by his assassin, who seemed to have taken a devilish delight in mutilating the remains of their victim, for no less than sixty halbert thrusts were found in his body.

Pierre de Koepf was amongst the first who arrived at the scene of the tragedy. He moved from group to group rapidly, whispering as he passed

"What does Pierre say?" asked a venerable citizen of his nephew.

"Pierre says, uncle," replied the boy, "that the murderer of the Banerret is Jorg de Felis."

A few moments later De Koepf had mounted the cross in the great marketplace, and openly denounced De Felis as the butcher of Schieb. The charge excited some color from the notorious fact that the Banerret and the accused had been for many weeks on bad terms, and the populace, glad of having found some clue to the mystery which puzzled them, adopted the words of De Koepf, and marched through the town proclaiming De Felis a murderer.

The foul story soon spread, and De Felis, dragged from his home and the embraces of his devoted daughter, was cast into prison.

"What have I done?" he asked of the jailors, who came to put him in irons.

"You have murdered Schieb the Banerret," they angrily replied.

De Felis raised his hands as if to invoke heaven to witness his innocence, when, to the terror of his daughter and the jailors, he was struck dumb.

The popular indignation, which is always active in such emergencies, directly interpreted this incident as proof of God's wrath, and a judgment on a would-be blasphemer.

Three days had elapsed since the terrible night on which this wretched prisoner had been torn from his hearth and sent to a dungeon. On the morning of the fourth day he was summoned before the judges, and promptly charged with the murder of Schieb. He could only reply by feeble gestures and looks of voiceless agony.

Foremost amongst his accusers was his old enemy, De Koepf, who swore that on the night of the murder he had seen the prisoner flying on horseback from the place where the Banerret's body had been discovered.

Mathilde led at the witness, and she well understood that implacable hatred and disappointed passion had made him the accuser of her father, but held her peace, and prayed.

Additional evidence was then produced to show that De Felis was in another person could have been concerned in the assassination.

For the defense, Mathilde swore that on the night of the murder her father, pressed by business, had remained at home; and further, that by no possibility could he have gone abroad without her knowledge.

Under the pressure of such conflicting testimony the judicial mind wavered, and finally referred the question of the prisoner's guilt or innocence to the verdict of the ordeal.

Mathilde was overjoyed at the result, and, rising in the midst of the court, she solemnly accepted the trust. Turning to De Koepf, she said:

"I charge this man with having prepared his soul in accusing my father of the murder of Schieb, whom God keep in his mercy; and I am ready to prove what I say against him by the ordeal of single combat, whenever and wherever the judges shall fix it."

A murmur of admiration ran through the spectators, and all eyes were turned on the devoted girl. De Koepf having accepted the challenge, Mathilde threw down her glove and received his in turn.

As he presented it, it was observed that his face turned ashy pale, and his strong frame quivered like a reed. The murmur in the court increased; never before had such a spectacle been witnessed in Berne, and the emotion of the people was profound when the challenger and the challenged were conducted to prison, there to await in prayer and meditation the day of the combat.

The anxiously-awaited morning came at last. The sun shone brightly on the streets and the roofs of Berne, and the town was astir from the dawn. Around the lists and enclosing them was raised a temporary amphitheatre, from which the citizens could witness the fight.

At noon the heralds' trumpets sounded, and Mathilde, clad in a suit of elastic chain-mail, stepped, with modest confidence, into the arena. The beautiful proportions of her figure were seen to advantage in her novel costume, and her long yellow hair, which had escaped the confinement of her casque, streamed down to her waist. Though many of the spectators hailed her as the champion of a bad cause, few there were who could refuse her their sympathy or their prayers for her success.

And now De Koepf strode, gloomily into the lists. As he stood before his frail antagonist, the odds in his favor were so obvious that every one trembled for her fate. There was a short delay in consequence of its being found impossible to comply with the law, which says "the combatants in ordeal must be equal in every respect."

"Hail the left arm of Pierre de Koepf," cried the spectators.

"Hail!" exclaimed Mathilde. "See that you fetter him not. I am willing to fight the knight armed and free as we are, and so God judge me aright."

The only condition she insisted on was that the combat should be fought on foot, as she was unaccustomed to sit on horseback. This was immediately granted. Then, riding to the four corners of the lists, the heralds proclaimed aloud the penalties which the laws inflicted upon any person obstructing the fight or favoring the combatants.

When they ceased, Mathilde and De Koepf knelt down; as the latter, in conformity with the usages of the ceremonial, raised his visor, his face, pale with the consciousness of his shameful position, was seen for a moment, and the strange contrast which it offered to the countenance of Mathilde, radiant with innocence and hope, was looked upon as a good omen by all who sympathized with the brave maiden.

Each having made a confession of faith, Mathilde, in a clear, melodious tone, said:

"Man, whom I hold by the right hand, and who has received in baptism the name of Pierre, but who ought rather to be named after the fiend, I swear that the words you have uttered are perjured, and so may heaven assist the justice of my cause!"

De Koepf quailed beneath her eyes as he answered:

"Woman, whom I hold by the left hand, and who has received in baptism the name of Pierre, it is false that I have wrongfully accused the father; so God judge between us!"

This was the marriage ceremony of the ordeal, in which one of the two, at the conclusion, was espoused unto death and infamy. When it was ended both rose and retired, Mathilde to the east, De Koepf to the west, and prayed a little while.

When Mathilde dropped on her knees, hundreds of the spectators knelt also, their faces to the east.

The last petitions having been offered, and the final preparations made, the trumpets breathed forth a shrill warning, and the combatants approached each other. All was silent in the amphitheatre; not a sound was heard, and the spectators on the galleries looked as if the cry of horror which each seemed about to utter was frozen on his lips.

One moment of fearful suspense, and the combatants advanced, sword in hand. Crossing their weapons quietly, they looked into each other's eyes and paused for breath, whilst a groan burst from the spectators. Another instant, and Mathilde's buckler was dashed from her arm by a dextrous sleight of her adversary's weapon. And now the steel hissed and clashed, and sparked in the sunlight; but despite De Koepf's address, he had not yet sent a single thrust home to his antagonist. Well parried, or avoided with a backward spring, his blows fell harmless, until irritated by the skill displayed by Mathilde, he sprang forward and dealt her a stroke on the head which brought her to the ground.

The brave girl was stunned for a moment, but, rising to her knees, and grasping her sword with both hands, she thrust it into De Koepf's side, and wounded him mortally. As he fell, the judges rushed into the lists, and the pope, overlapping or breaking down the barriers, followed, with a roar of exultation, to the spot where Mathilde, with her sword pointed to De Koepf's throat, forced him to choose between instant death, or the retention of the calamities he had uttered against her father. The brave knight chose the latter alternative, and further confessed that he had deceived the assassination of Schieb the Banerret, that he might compass the ruin of Jorg de Felis and his daughter. On hearing these words; the executioner was summoned, and, with the accomplices whom he named, De Koepf was put to death.

Jorg de Felis lived to enjoy the recovery of his good name; and Mathilde, after a long life, blessed with the esteem and sympathy of all honorable men and women, bequeathed her story to posterity as one of the richest testaments in the traditions of Berne.

Whom Do Great Men Marry.
Women, of course. But they show the same diversity of taste that is seen in the lower ranks, and, on the whole, make worse mistakes. They, however, generally show the same sense in choosing their wives that they show in managing other people's affairs, whether it be good or bad.

Robert Burns married a farm girl with whom he fell in love while they worked together in the plow field. He too was irregular in his life, and committed the most serious mistakes in conducting his domestic affairs.

Milton married the daughter of a country squire, but lived with her but a short time. He was an austere, exacting, literary recluse, while she was a rosy, romping country lass that could not endure restraint imposed upon her, so they separated. Subsequently, however, she returned, and they lived tolerably happy.

Queen Victoria and Prince Albert were content, and about the only example in the long line of English monarchs wherein the marital vows were sacredly observed, and sincere affection existed.

Shakespeare loved and wed a farmer's daughter. She was faithful to her vows, but we could hardly say the same of the great bard himself. Like most of the great poets, he showed too little discrimination in bestowing his affections on the other sex.

Jacksonville as a Summer Resort.

Doubtless many of our citizens in South Alabama are already casting in their minds, where and how they shall spend the ensuing Summer months, as a means of rest from the exhausting labors of business, and healthful recreation and amusement. To all such we say that the citizens of our Town, extend to them an earnest invitation, and a cordial welcome with a hearty welcome with the assurance that this place, and surrounding country offers as many advantages and combines as many inducements and conveniences as any other which could be named. As the first and greatest prerequisite, a healthy location, unquestionably Jacksonville has no superior in the State or in the whole southern country, as has been abundantly proven by the experience of the white inhabitants for near forty years. We have picturesque scenery, diversified with mountains, hills and valleys, rivers, creeks, brooks, and most beautiful springs; limestone, freestone and chalybeate water; and seven miles west of Jacksonville, sulphur water of several different kinds, which has been analyzed and pronounced by competent judges, equal to the White Sulphur of Virginia. Persons can also from this point find easy and convenient access to the Black and Yellow Creek Falls, and other interesting natural curiosities. We have two good Hotels, and a number of private families are prepared and preparing to accommodate boarders by the week or month at very reasonable rates, furnishing them with every comfort and convenience, and such a measure of genial, kind and friendly treatment, that they will feel themselves perfectly at home. A good livery stable, at which they can be furnished at any hour, means of conveyance to any point desired. We have Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Episcopal Churches, and male and female schools of the first order. Many other inducements of minor importance, might be mentioned, but we deem it unnecessary and again we say to our friends, come and spend the Summer with us, and if they are not well pleased and satisfied with their choice, we will cheerfully bear all the blame of their disappointment.

Boats & Shoes.

Mr. M. O. Markham, the extensive, reliable and accommodating dealer in Boots and Shoes, of Atlanta, Ga., this week renews his advertisement in our columns, and his invitation to our citizens to deal with him. We were in his large and well filled house when at Atlanta the first of last week. He had just returned from Boston, where he had purchased and was then receiving a very heavy stock. From the vast prices mentioned we were convinced that he could and would furnish country merchants upon as good a basis as they could obtain by going to Boston or other Northern cities, counting the traveling expenses to and from, to say nothing of the risk and loss of time. Call upon him while in Atlanta, or send your orders which will be most promptly and correctly filled.

The attention of the Ladies respectfully invited to the notice of Miss Wessner, who has returned to our place and is prepared to execute work in her line in the neatest and most fashionable style. Miss W. is a lady of taste, skill and experience; cuts and fits dresses by careful measurement, and we doubt not, will be able to give the most perfect satisfaction to her patrons.

A typographical error occurred in our paper of last week in noticing the Furniture Warehouse in Rome. The name name was printed Wells instead of Mills.

Don't forget that the first Monday in May is the regular meeting of the Calhoun Agricultural and Manufacturing Association. A full meeting is earnestly requested. Other matters of great interest and importance to the citizens of the county will be presented to the meeting.

We have received our new type this week, but not in time to make the necessary setting, and change of cases, to use them on this paper.

J. M. CARROLL & Co. have received a heavy stock of Spring and Summer Goods. See their advertisement in another column, and call and examine their goods, and learn their prices.

J. B. BRADSHAW, Esq. Tax Assessor of this county, makes his last call on Tax payers in this paper.

The Presbytery of South Alabama

(Presbyterian old school,) closed a very interesting meeting at this place a few days ago. There were in attendance thirteen Ministers and nineteen Ruling Elders. Although some important questions were discussed and decided, yet the business was transacted with dignity, harmony and brotherly feeling. The Rev. W. J. Lowry, of Selma, was elected Moderator, the Rev. E. Anderson temporary Clerk, and the Rev. G. W. Boggs, Assistant Clerk.

The question of the removal of Rev. W. J. Lowry from Selma to Mobile, elicited considerable discussion, but was finally decided against removal.

The preaching during the occasion was plain and forcible, being directed not so much to the ear of the educated elite, as to the minds and consciences of the multitude. The sermon preached on Sabbath morning by the Rev. Dr. Berggett of Mobile, made a deep impression upon many minds.

The members of this Presbytery have left a pleasing impression upon the minds of Christians here, so much so, that at any time, another visit from these brethren would be heartily welcomed.

CONGRESSIONAL ELECTION.

Next August the people of this District are permitted by our voters to vote for a Representative to Congress. It is certain that the Democracy has a majority in the District, and although under the restrictions and disabilities imposed on us by our conquerors, we cannot elect a representative man; yet we can at least have a choice among the evils tendered.

To exercise even this privilege, it is necessary to have concert of action, and to secure this, it is necessary to hold a convention to nominate a candidate. Thus far nothing definite has been done. A primary meeting in Cherokee recommended Gadsden as the point, and the 1st Monday of May as the time for holding the convention. We also see a portion of North Alabama have recommended Gadsden, and about the same time for the convention. These partial local reconstructions and conventions if held, are well calculated to defeat the object we should have in view—the election of a democratic candidate.

A convention, if held at all, must be participated in by the whole people of the District. We beg leave to suggest to the Democracy the 2nd Monday of June as the time—the Radical's move over their position on the 1st Monday of the month—and Gadsden as the most suitable and acceptable place for holding the convention. It is not the most central, but can be reached by means of Railroad and Steamboat connections with less time and expense by all the counties of the District than any other.

Let the Editors of the Democratic press then, write upon the time and place here suggested, or nominate some other time and place, and call upon the people of their respective counties to hold meetings and send delegates accordingly.

For the Republican.

Congress—What Shall We Do?

The time is approaching when we will be called upon to select a suitable man to represent us in the Congress of the United States. Upon this subject, we think the people are manifesting some much indifference. They seem to think and act upon the idea that the South has lost all for which a struggle should be made. This is wrong. True, we of the South have lost much—have been freed to surrender many cherished rights; nevertheless, much remains, and the solemn obligation is upon us to preserve, as far as possible, the fragments of a once glorious Republic. We can contribute to this end by selecting and electing a strong man, who will have the moral nerve and political honesty to stand as a break-water against the mad surges of a wild, fanatical dominant party in Congress.

We have heard the names of several gentlemen, informally mentioned, as being "nominations fit to be made" for this position—Among them Winston D. Kalb, Henry of Marshal, Rattery of Cherokee, and others.

Now we respectfully submit the names of another gentleman, whose antecedents, if we are correctly informed, will fully come up to the imperious demands of the times, and whose political principles and gentlemanly instincts will appear to be a true representative man of our people—we mean PERCY M. DOX of Madison.

This suggestion is based upon the firm conviction that our people cannot consistently with self-respect, and will not support a Radical Carpet-bagger, or Radical Scoundrel—a Democratic Carpet-bagger or a Negro—hence they will be compelled, from interest and inexorable necessity, to take the best of the evils—a Democratic Scoundrel.

Mr. Dox is represented as a Union

Democrat, an accomplished gentleman, a clear thinker and an honest man; and in addition to this, has proven himself to be in sympathy with our people, and is identified in interest with the State of Alabama. If these things be true, would he not be a suitable man to represent this District in Congress.

CALHOUN.

Edies Area, Edies Area!

Every nation has certain memorable days, the anniversary of which are observed with mourning and humiliation.

There are days of calamity—days of wrath. Thus the Jews, clothed in sack cloth and ashes, mourn the day when Jerusalem, the beloved, "the city of God," was given to the flames and they, as a nation, with their Princes and Priests of the lineage of David, dispersed among the Gentiles.

The Saxons long observed, with fasting and prayer, the anniversary of the battle of Hastings, when they passed under the yoke of the Conqueror. The people of the Southern States have equal cause to remember with sorrow and lamentation, the 6th day of April, when the great cause of Southern Independence was crushed to earth, never to rise again. On that day, Lee and his army surrendered. That army which for more than four years had stood as a pillar of fire, before the Southern Confederacy, which had twice successfully carried the war into the enemy's country and threatened his Capital—that army of veterans which had received the baptism of fire and dipped their conquering banners in the crimson tide of five and twenty stricken fields—that army, the pride and glory of the South, made up of its most gallant and chivalric sons, upon whose proud and triumphant career the eyes of the nation had gazed with exultation, who upon their bayonets had so long carried the rights and liberty of the South, who had unflinchingly endured the Winter's cold and Summer's heat, hunger, sickness, death, with mourning for the indomitable love of liberty to sustain them, was now overwhelmed by numbers, compelled to hurl its banners by down its arms and part to meet no more. Then earth gave sign that all was lost.

"Day of wrath" "Day of wrath" for the South. Then the old cry, as old as the human race, "The Vengeance of the vanquished," went forth, and we have realized to the fullest extent the terrible meaning of these two little words.

Should we not, then, the true men of the South, when the Gosh is in our high places and lordly it over the land of Washington and Jefferson, and a few remnant Southerners are holding the land that suits us, "blowing the head to the earth's eye," and far distant emigrants, ready to promote the hand red with Southern blood and soiled with stolen Southern gold, to office and distinction, upon the return of that most eventful day, pre-arrange ourselves in lowly humiliation, devote that day to the memories of the past, the memories of those who fell in the great cause of Southern Independence, garland their tombs with laurels, and chant requiems for the repose of their souls. By so doing we shall be made better if not wiser. And possibly through the ministrs and deas of the future, we may see God's commences, remember, smiling upon us.—Gadsden Times.

ROSS.

The Kansas senator's Muss with the President.

New York, April 13.—The Herald's Washington special gives the following account of alleged false interview between Senator Ross & the President:—Ross was admitted at the same time as a "State Land and Immigration Society," which would control the immigration and dispose of it to the best advantage, both for the new comer and the State. We will again allude to Col. Grandall's proposition and plan of action. Suffice it to say at present, that it proposes that each Southern State shall control and direct the immigration to her soil, and shall retain under her own direction—irrespective of her neighbors, or of the central government—those surplus lands now lying waste, but which may yet be made to blossom like the rose.

Again we call the careful attention of the Mobile Board of Trade to this subject; and we invite them to consider Col. Grandall's scheme, among others; but above all, to act promptly and to the point.—Mobile Register.

The New York Herald sees no

salvation for Grant's administration but in annexing all outlying territory on this continent, North and South.

"Frankly, sir," said Grant, "I intend not to make those appointments. What, sir, you seem to accommodate in the least, exclaiming Ross, boiling over with rage. "Sir, I believe I have given you my answer firmly, but strongly," replied Grant. "This is not treating me fairly. My President, nor on one gentleman should treat another," uttered Ross. "I have no intention to be dictated to sir," said Grant sharply. "Nor have I to be insulted even by you, sir, were you twenty times the President," exclaimed Ross with his ire stirred up to white heat. "I must decline to be annoyed any on the subject," muttered Grant between his teeth, and desire the interview should terminate. "You and your desires may go to hell," roared out Ross. "Leave the room sir, leave the room or I shall force you out," thundered Grant. Ross took his departure accordingly in a terrible rage, quitting the White House like one rushing from a plague, and hurried to the Capitol.

Grant threw himself into a chair the doors closed and wiped his brow with his handkerchief, evidently much agitated. Old Zack Chandler approached and was thus addressed by the President: "Excuse me a few moments, after that interview I must take a little time to cool off."

Such is the account which I have learned, and which I give substantially as it came to me, I do not vouch for its truth, but have good grounds to believe it is not very different from the actual occurrence.

LOUISIANA.

The Sugar Planters Cheerful and Hopeful.

From the New Orleans Times, 7th.

Our planters, who have arrived in the city lately, give a good account of the appearance and prospects of the cane crop. The injury apprehended to the soil from the long spell of cold and wet weather has proved insignificant, and the plant has a thrifty appearance. The area planted is much larger than last season, and in fact has only been limited by the difficulty of obtaining labor. This difficulty is becoming a serious and embarrassing one. Encouraged by the high prices of their staples, especially of sugar, our planters would be justifiable and emboldened to attempt a culture equal to that of the anti-bellum times, if they could command the requisite labor.

The natural resources of Louisiana are equal to the product of a sugar crop sufficient to supply the whole demand of the United States. They have the soil, the machinery, all the appliances for cultivation, and the energy and enterprise, but the labor is lacking. Under these circumstances, and with the troubles likely to continue for some time to come, the prices of sugar must advance.

Immigration.

The problem of Southern re-occupation is slowly but surely working itself out. That re-occupation must come, spite of bad laws and individual law-givers, when the population of the South is so reduced by the still-living industry and energy of labor facilities of immigration that it can bare its treasures to the world and call the commerce of nations to its ports. The march of this idea into the North and West is steady and sure. More than this, it is penetrating beyond these into the path of foreign immigration. The latter question is exciting the interest of immigration brokers at the great sea ports; and to swell their schemes, while they reap the benefit of selling that incoming population, should be a great point now with us. We need the steady and energetic Englishman; the cool and skilled artisan of Germany; the brawny and industrious son of Hia. We want good and productive population from any point whence it may come. But we want it chosen by Southern agents, who alone are fitted to properly supply them. We have before suggested fully and often to our Board of Trade that Alabama, at least, should set forth in tangible shape the money and great inducements she offers to repay the small investment of capital—added to the great one of willing labor—the emigrant is able to make. Again we express this upon her people, and upon those authorized to speak for them. Last time is best, whether for others will cut in before us, if we delay, and I repeat the profits that should be ours.

In this connection, we would refer to the plan suggested by Col. Lee Grandall, of New Orleans, to the people of Alabama. It is simply one of organizing a "State Land and Immigration Society," which would control the immigration and dispose of it to the best advantage, both for the new comer and the State. We will again allude to Col. Grandall's proposition and plan of action. Suffice it to say at present, that it proposes that each Southern State shall control and direct the immigration to her soil, and shall retain under her own direction—irrespective of her neighbors, or of the central government—those surplus lands now lying waste, but which may yet be made to blossom like the rose.

Again we call the careful attention of the Mobile Board of Trade to this subject; and we invite them to consider Col. Grandall's scheme, among others; but above all, to act promptly and to the point.—Mobile Register.

The Peddler's Pack.

[From the Joliet (Ill.) Signal.

A short time since, just at dark, a pedler carrying a large pack, appeared at the door of a wealthy farmer in the town of Green Garden, in this county, and requested the privilege of remaining over night. The farmer being a hired man that he could not stay. He then requested the privilege of leaving the pack until morning, as he was very tired and could not carry it further that night. This was granted and the pack deposited in one corner of the sitting room. During the evening some of the females of the household had occasion to move it, and taking hold of it discovered that there was something suspicious about the contents. The tired man was called, and upon taking hold of it, found it contained a man. He quickly stepped into an adjoining room and returning with a revolver, mentioned to the family to stand aside, and at once proceeded to fire three shots into it. A piercing shriek issued from it, and on tipping off the outside covering, a man with a large bowie knife and a revolver tucked in his blood. Two of the shots had proved fatal. The neighbor who was statted, but no trace of the pedler who led the precious pack could be found. Thus, by mere accident, a doubtless a shocking case of robbery, and perhaps murder was prevented. It was a close shave for the farmer, as it was well known that he had a large sum of money in the house. An inquest was held over the body on the following morning, and verdict was that the killing was justifiable homicide. No clue leading to the discovery of the victim, or his accomplice, has been ascertained.

FREAKS OF AN ELEPHANT.

The most remarkable events in the career of any neologism occurred in Forest Mississippi, a short time since, during a morning exhibition of the great Mexican Gymnasium and Menagerie. The huge elephant Hercules, which had been peevish and morose for several days, became frantic when a rust-colored coat and a piece of tobacco. The elephant broke his chain after some violent struggles, during which the large crowd fled in the wildest haste. The pedler, fast-attached a train that was slowly approaching striking it with such force that it broke a truck, was over-rat and instantly killed. The locomotive was thrown off the track, and into the canal erected beside the road, burst into the lion's cage, killing the lioness and freeing her mate. The latter took flight out of town, scattering the pointing country folks high and low, upsetting horses and wagons, smashing chickens into ill-dred and otherwise, twenty mounted policemen, with guns and dogs, were in pursuit of the royal quadruped.

"Madam," said a cross tempered physician, "if women were adapted to prurience, their nature would make it a purgatory. "And some physicians, if it were to practice there," replied the lady, "would make it a desert."

A vast bed of rock salt has been discovered at Pax, in France, which is reported to extend over more than a mile in diameter, and is 10 feet thick. It lies at a small depth, and is of great purity.

In the Western States and in Kentucky, there is a singular epidemic known as "hog cholera." In some cases the swarms have disappeared, leaving a good supply of hogs. It is said that great numbers of dead hogs are found about streams of water and on ice.

Democratic Victory in Ohio.

The democrats achieved a brilliant triumph in Cleveland, Ohio, on the 5th inst. They elected their candidates for city officers by heavy majorities. Their nominee for Mayor received over 1,000 majority—a democratic gain of over 3,000. The vote for President stood thus: Seymour, 5,749; Grant, 7,840.

FROM NEW YORK.

New York, April 19.—Great excitement was caused to-day by a report that a strong expedition was about to sail for Cuba with the tacit consent of the Government. The report proved to be inaccurate as to the details. Numbers of men are drilling in various parts of the city and arms are being bought and stowed away but New York will not be the point of departure for any large expedition. This sailing point will be farther South.

Grain to the amount of $160,000 worth, stowed with Parker Peck, was sold, and Peck disappeared with the money. Intense excitement was produced in the Stock Exchange in consequence.

Washington April 19.—Senator Chanceller offered a resolution requesting the President to open negotiations for the settlement of the matters in dispute between England and United States on the basis of the surrender of the British North American possessions, and made a speech which was very warlike. He hoped for a peaceable settlement on the basis of his resolution, but if England wished war let it be short, sharp and decisive. The sixty thousand Michigan veterans alone would look out for the Canadas. The resolution was referred to the committee on Foreign Relations.

FROM AUGUSTA.

Augusta, Ga., April 19.—The Morning Chronicle contains the particulars of the murder of Dr Benjamin Ayer, Republican member of the Legislature, who was killed near Louisville, which states that Ayer was murdered and robbed by a negro named Wilson, who is now in jail. Ayer's pocket book and money was found in Wilson's possession.

FROM PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, April 20.—A wealthy director of the Union League, recently nominated and confirmed to a European Consulate, has been detected stealing cigars. He acknowledges his guilt, and says the disposition to steal is irresistible.

FROM BALTIMORE.

Baltimore, April 20.—In the case of Kimberly vs Butler, pending before Judge Chase, Addison & Brent are for the plaintiff and Goshing and Schley are for the defendant. The points discussed thus far seem to be adverse to Butler.

FROM INDIANA.

Indianapolis, April 20th.—A terrible hail storm occurred here last night. Telegraph wires were prostrated and buildings destroyed. Some persons were injured and probably some loss of life.

Annexation of British America.

Now that the Senate has almost unanimously rejected the Johnson-Stanley treaty, it becomes an interesting question to consider what is the next step. England will not recede. The United States will not dare to fight because they know that reconstruction has a rotten foundation, and that it will fall to pieces in the event of a foreign war.

"We reproduce in another column a significant article from an able London paper, The Anglo-American Times, edited, we believe, by a retired officer of the British army, and which, while always friendly to America, is thoroughly English in its stern devotion to British rights and British honor. It is in response to the suggestion of the Tribune, whether if England should voluntarily proffer to us a cession of British America, with the assent, of course, of its people, as a settlement in full of all existing claims, we might not, consistently with our national honor, accept a tender, and agree to revise the international code, now saddled with the Alabama precedents, and adjust the relations of the two countries upon such a basis of mutual faith and mutual interest as to secure a permanent and cordial peace. The Anglo-American remarks that these views 'are in accordance with the opinion of no small section of the English people,' and adds with emphasis: 'We verily believe that the end will be what the Tribune suggests.' To accomplish so happy a result as the prevention of war and the restoration of harmony between these two great nations, by an arrangement so simple, and, as it would seem, so mutually advantageous, the assent would be necessary first of England, then of the Canadas, and lastly of the United States."

Imperialism.

The establishment of a new journal in New York, styled the "Imperialist" provokes comment on the part of the press there which is to some extent edifying. One of them, the Atlas says: "Imperialism needs no advocates here. Its seeds are sown. They are fast taking root. This is proved by the ever increasing and lawless spirit which characterizes our present legislation in all parts of the country; by the multiplication of luxurious and extravagant amusements of opulence and poverty; by the slow but it would appear sure absorption of the conservative middle class; by the quiet submission, generally manifested, to outrages which, ten years ago, would have excited an insurrection. If all this be not speedily corrected, the solution of these imperialistic tendencies and efforts will be realized in the not far distant future."

Dealing With Thieves

The following story is related by an exchange, of Jacob Sheafe, Esq., a merchant of Portsmouth, in former times. A man had purchased some wool of him, which he had weighed and paid for, and Mr. Sheafe had gone to the back room to get change for a note. Happening to turn his head when there he saw in a glass, which swung so as to reflect the shop, a stout arm reach up and take from the shelf a heavy chest. Instead of appearing suddenly and rebuking the man for his theft, as another would, thereby losing his custom forever, the crafty old gentleman gave the his change as if nothing had happened, and then, under the pretence of lifting the bag to lay it on the horse for him, took hold of it and exclaimed:—"Why, bless me! I must have reckoned the weight wrong." "Oh, no," said the other, "you may be sure you have not, for I counted with you." Well, well, we won't dispute the matter, it's scarcely tried," said Mr. S., putting the bag into the scales again. "The re," said he, "I told you so; knew that I was right—made a mistake of nearly twenty pounds; however, if you don't want the whole, you needn't have it; I'll take part of it out." "No," said the other, staying the hands of Mr. S. on the way to the strings of the bag, "I guess I'll take the whole." And this he did, paying for dishonestly by receiving the skim milk cheese for the price of the wool. On another occasion Mr. S. missed a barrel of Pork. A few months after, a man one day asked him the question, "Did you ever find out who took that pork, Mr. Sheafe?" "Yes," was the reply; "you are the fellow! For none but myself and the thief knew of the loss." The fellow was detected by the shrewd dealer, who possessed the happy faculty of knowing when to be silent.

The net profits on a sugar plantation in the parish of St. Landry, La., last year, with 90 acres cultivated in cane and eighty in corn, amounted to twenty-five thousand six hundred and sixty dollars.

Manhood How Lost, How Restored. Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife, pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, and radically.

POETRY.

'There's no such thing as Death.'
'There's no such thing as death.'
To those who think right.

'There's no such thing as death.'
That which is thus mis-called,
Is the life escaping from the chains

'There's no such thing as death.'
In nature nothing dies;
From each sad remnant of decay

'There's no such thing as death.'
'Tis but the blossom sprays, Sinking to fare the coming fruit

'There's no such thing as death.'
'Tis but the bud displaced,
As though the perfect flower;

'There's no such thing as death.'

derous Feud.

neighborhood.

The condition of affairs became so unpleasant that Edwards determined to

THE LIVER.

THE symptoms of LIV-ER COMPLAINT, are unpleasantness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for Rheumatism. The stomach
is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general constive, sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensations of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often constipation, biliousness, and low spirits.
Sometimes some of the above symptoms are attended with a fever, and at other times very few of them; but the Liver is generally the organ most involved. Cure the Liver with Simmons' Regulator and all will be well.

Has become an article of commerce, which no medicine ever became before. It is as much an item in every bill of goods sent to the
country merchants as tea, coffee, or sugar.
This speaks volume in its favor.
The good people should always keep by
them a good preparation, and

is that preparation. Don't be deceived by
the many worthless stuffs offered, such as

like, Davis' Pain Killer is known to be good.
