WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 18, 1870.

Mr. W. R. Carroll, Editor:

I have come from the White House this evening to announce the death of President Grant. The President, while upon the public platform at the Centennial Exposition in New York, suddenly collapsed. While the doctors were attending to him, he expired. His death was unexpected and was caused by a heart attack. The President was a beloved figure in the United States and will be greatly missed. His memory will be forever remembered.
