A PROCLAMATION.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25th, 1863.

WHEREAS, it has been shown by the records of the Treasury that there is a deficit in the revenue of the United States for the current year, and that the same cannot be supplied by the issuance of paper money, it is hereby proclaimed by the authority vested in me by the Constitution of the United States and the laws thereof, that all persons who shall be found in possession of salt shall forthwith hand it over to the nearest collector of Internal Revenue.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Treasury at Washington, this 25th day of September, 1863.

DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES

LADIES DRESS GOODS

An 1869 advertisement for W.D. Hoyt & Co., jobbers in drugs, medicines, and druggists sundries, located at 53 Broad Street, Rome, Georgia. The ad also includes a guarantee for genuine oil products. The advertisement promotes various goods for sale, including dry goods, groceries, shoes, and clothing. It mentions the store's location and its commitment to providing quality products at affordable prices. The ad is part of a larger issue of a newspaper, with other advertisements and articles. The text is clear and readable, with the primary focus on the goods and services offered by the store. There are no visible errors or misalignments in the text, and the layout is typical of late 19th-century newspapers. The advertisement is a typical example of how businesses marketed their products during that time period.
